After the unveiling of the statue, which occupies a prominent place in the church, a new society of "Our Lady of Mount Carmel" will be formed under the direction of Father Schwartz. The celebration will conclude in the evening with an elaborate display of fireworks, a banquet and band concert at Berkeley Heights, to which all the members of the parish and their friends have been invited.

MR. CLEVELAND'S NAME GIVEN TO BIG FOREST

President Roosevelt made public yesterday the following letter, which he sent to Mrs. Cleveland last Monday:

"My Dear Mrs. Cleveland—It has recently been my privilege to sign a proclamation changing the name of the San Jacinto National Forest to the Cleveland National Forest. May I express to you the very great pleasure it gave me to take that action—a pleasure mingled with a keen sense of the loss to our country and to our citizens in the death of President Cleveland. On February 22, 1897, President Cleveland signed the proclamation creating the San Jacinto forest reserve in southern California. The date, February 22, was no mere accident; since the signature of the proclamation was timed to coincide with the birthday of our first President.

"President Cleveland was one of the first to recognize the need of forest preservation, and the creation of the San Jacinto and other forest reserves with a total area of 25,686,320 acres was one of the results of his foresight in this direction. Throughout his life he took great interest of conserving the natural resources of the nation; and I particularly regretted his inability to attend the meeting of the Governors in May, because that meeting was in part the fruit of seed he had sown years before.

"The name of Grover Cleveland will always be prominently identified with the movement to protect the forests of the United States, and it seemed to me eminently fitting that one of the forests which he created should bear his name throughout all time. Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

U. S. Express Reduce Rates.

Pursuant to an order issued by the United States Express Company on June 4, a new rate per one hundred pounds of express matter carried between this city and any point in Greater New York, except Staten Island, went into effect today. Heretofore, the rate has been sixty cents a hundred and the company has made a reduction to fifty cents a hundred. The sixty cent rate went into effect in March, but on account of the strong objections made by the various agents along the line the company was finally persuaded to make a reduction to the old rate.

Colored Baptists to Meet Here.

The Middlesex Baptist Association will convene in Calvary Baptist church, tomorrow, and remain in session until Sunday night. Rev. E. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick, president of the association, will be in charge. The gathering will be for conference and prayer.

Among the prize photographs in The Evening Telegram, last night, was one taken by Mrs. W. Durrant, of West Fifth street, entitled "A Bottle Baby on Farm at Plainfield."

"TED" CLEVELEY TO ENJOY EXTENDED EUROPEAN TRIP

Edward H. Cleveley, better known as "Ted," who recently disposed of his restaurant business on North avenue and has since been living in New York, returned to Plainfield yesterday for a brief visit with friends previous to going abroad. He sails tomorrow on the "Adriatic" of the White Star line for the purpose of visiting his parents who live near London and whom he has not seen in nearly thirty years. After remaining at their home for several months he will make a tour of the provinces and also enjoy side trips to Paris and interesting points in Scotland.

Mr. Cleveley was in business in North avenue for twenty years and is credited with being the originator of the "quick lunch" idea in Plainfield. He disposed of his establishment in order to take a much-needed rest and also to inspect orange groves in Florida in which he is interested. On returning from his European trip, probably some time next spring, he will reside in Plainfield for an indefinite period while preparing to look after several business propositions.

"CAMP HOPE" NOT AFFECTED BY HEAVY THUNDERSTORM

Reports received today from "Camp Hope," Washington's rock, indicate that the West End boys enjoying tent life on the mountain site overlooking Plainfield, passed through yesterday's heavy thunderstorm with all colors flying. They were mustered beneath the main tent when the ominous-looking clouds began to gather overhead and by the time the first rain drops fell everything was tied up hard and fast to ward off the threatened deluge. The drainage about the camp is excellent and by the time "lights out" was signalled the grounds were fairly dry.

The camp will be visited tonight by the parents and friends of the boys and also the members of the Hope Boys Club who were unable to participate in the week's outing. Rev. L. R. Howard will conduct a religious service similar to the one held in the chapel every Wednesday and at which the club is generally in attendance.

BLACKVILLE---DARKTOWN BALL GAME ON TOMORROW

The Blackville and Darktown baseball teams, which recently crossed bats in a very exciting game, will again meet on the diamond tomorrow afternoon. The contest will take place on Hope Common and will be as red hot as the frankfurters "Bill" Marsh sold at the last exhibition, mainly because the winning team will get a purse of $10, some of it in real money. George Ruggles will be stakeholder.

John Taylor, who is captain, manager, coach and press agent for the Blackvilles, gives his word of honor that those who attend the game will never forget it. He fails to state just why it will be indelibly impressed upon the minds of the spectators but it is presumed that John has something up his sleeve that he will bring down at the psychological moment. "Gamey" Nelson has kindly consented to keep score and will allow an inspection of his minutes after every inning. The name of the umpire has not been given out but it is rumored that he will wear one of the latest, improved razor-proof costumes imported from Rahway.

Sewer Assessment Adjusted.

According to the terms of adjustment of the sewer assessment on property in the Netherwood district, owned by Ernest Sharpe, which was authorized by the Common Council, Monday night, upon advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh, the same concessions were made to E. F. Feickert and Mrs. Edith Hyde-Colby, who made the same offer as Mr. Sharpe, dedicating land for a street to be opened.

Mrs. Hartridge Dies in Pittsburg.

Mrs. Clifford W. Hartridge, whose strange disappearance last October gave rise to rumors concerning her whereabouts and her reasons for leaving her husband, died Monday in the Homeopathic Hospital, Pittsburg, of cerebro-spinal meningitis. She has relatives and acquaintances in this city.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES IN THE FIFTH DISTRICT

A fight for the Republican congressional nomination in the Fifth district promises to be not the least entertaining feature of the campaign this fall. The Morris county men have put forward, among others, for Representative Fowler's shoes, John C. Capstick, James McGraw, Senator Hillery and Richard Williams. Warren county has suggested John I. Blair Reilly, prosecutor of the pleas, and John E. Fulper, postmaster.

On the Democratic side talk seems to be centreing about Benjamin H. Campbell, of Elizabeth, one of the "old line" Democrats. He is principal of the Columbia school of New York.

The leaders, however, do not smile on Campbell's boom, and are practically in favor of James E. Martine, the "farmer orator" of this city, who gave Fowler such a run in the last election.

SOMERSET'S FREEHOLDERS ARE AS BUSY AS EVER

Bide were opened and read for the construction of the VanNest bridge at Peapack; the Robeson bridge on Union avenue, between Somerville and Bound Brook, and the Middle Brook bridge, at the July meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, yesterday, and after being referred to the different committees, the Board decided to meet in Somerville, July 22, at 11 o'clock in the morning for the purpose of receiving reports and awarding contracts.

Rev. Peter Gibb, and other residents of Millington, appeared before the Board and requested the improvement of a short stretch of road near the church in Millington. The petition was filed and the committee was advised to secure the guarantee of the township committee of Bernards to pay ten per cent. of the cost and the approval of the State road commissioner.

Upon the recommendation of the committee's report, the claim of W. M. Reed and Thomas Cleary, of New Brunswick, for $250 for the arrest and conviction of James Williams, who stole a horse in Montgomery township, on May 12, was approved. The sum will be paid after the two men furnish a bond indemnifying the board against any future claim. The Board decided to meet at the South Branch river bridge on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The county collector was authorized to borrow $20,000 in anticipation of taxes.

NEGRO PLEADS GUILTY TO STEALING BICYCLES.

Lucius H. Taylor, colored, who has served a term for chicken stealing, and who was arrested here recently on a charge of stealing several bicycles, was arraigned in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Elizabeth, this morning, having been committed by City Judge William N. Runyon, last week. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge of larceny and sentence will be pronounced on Wednesday, July 22.

Taylor, although having lived here for some time, off and on, claims to have resided in New York for two years. He admitted having stolen five bicycles in this city, but the police feel sure that he has taken as many more from time to time.

J. Clifton Henry a Benedict.

Jesse Clifton Henry, of this city, and Mrs. H. M. Tucker Pope, of New York, were married on June 29, in New York, by Rev. Hutchins C. Bishop, rector of St. Phillips' church. The best man was George W. Johnson, of Washington. Miss Sadie Thomas, of New York, was flower girl. The ceremony was performed beneath a bower of daisies and a novel feature was the fact that the couple knelt on a pillow of love letters. The bride received many gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Henry are now enjoying a honeymoon.

What Makes Us Late Today.

An unfortunate mishap in the electric apparatus of The Daily Press plant causes an unavoidable delay in our going to press today. Sunday's storm did considerable damage to the P. S. C.'s local electric plant and necessarily effected us when repairs were made this morning. We, therefore, ask the indulgence of our readers who will get their paper much later today than usual.

Funeral of George Louden.

The funeral of George Louden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Louden, was held at the parents' home on West Third street this afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel. Burial was at Hillside.

THREW MATCH IN CLOSET; HOME TOTALLY DESTROYED

The home of William Johnson, located on the road between Oak Tree and Potter's Crossing, was totally destroyed by fire, yesterday afternoon, caused by a boy in the family dropping a lighted match in a clothes closet. The upper part of the structure was burning fiercely when the flames were discovered and Mrs. Johnson had barely time enough in which to get the children to safety and drag out a sewing machine.

William Johnson, Jr., who is about ten years old, went to the closet early in the afternoon to get a dress for a younger sister. The interior was quite dark and he struck a match to find the frock wanted, afterward tossing the burning stem into a corner. He thought it would go out immediately and went downstairs. Not long afterward, Mrs. Johnson detected smoke and looking about for the origin, found the room containing the closet to be blazing fiercely. There was no one about to attempt to extinguish it but nothing could be done as the flames were beyond control.

The house was owned by Mr. Johnson and was uninsured. The loss on the furniture is covered.

DUNELLEN MEN FIGURE IN AN ASSAULT CASE

Howard Bird, a well known resident of Dunellen, appeared before Justice R. P. F. Von Minden, this morning, and swore out a warrant for William Ruhl, of the same borough, charging him with assault and battery. The complainant's head bore testimony to the fact that he certainly had been battered as it was swathed up in bandages put in position by a doctor. Ruhl will be arraigned as soon as the warrant is served.

According to Bird's testimony, he and Ruhl became engaged in an altercation over the cutting of some grass on Bird's lawn. Ruhl had the job but did not do it satisfactorily and there was more or less argument. The two met on North avenue, Dunellen, yesterday morning and made a few passes at each other after a flow of words but there was no damage. Yesterday afternoon, Ruhl went on Bird's lawn to get some tools that he claimed had been left there and the argument was renewed. Bird claimed that Ruhl picked up a heavy stick and banged him over the head with it; hence the visit to the doctor's office and the charge of assault and battery.

Both men are well known, both in this city and Dunellen.

Major Martin Gets Fourth Prize.

Major W. B. Martin, formerly captain of Co. K, who as a member of the American Rifle Team, has been making a great record at Bisley, was fourth in the Halford Memorial rifle shooting contest at Bisley, yesterday. His score was 144. Hession, also an American, scored 141. Both won small prizes.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR EDIFICE'S RENOVATIONS

Plans for the extensive improvement of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church are completed, and it is expected that the work will begin next week. The contract for the changes, including the decorating, carpentry and mason work, has been awarded to O. E. Pape, of New York. For a number of years he was with Tiffany and had charge of the important work of that concern, including that at Rev. Dr. Parkhurst's church in Madison Square, New York.

The contract for the large new organ has been given to Ernest M. Skinner, of Boston, who also has the contract to build the organ in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. Although a description of the instrument to be placed in the church had been decided on, several changes have been made. It will be one of the finest organs in this part of the country.

As soon as the work of alteration is started, the members of the church will meet temporarily in the chapel for the summer. In the fall, upon the invitation of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, the congregation will meet in that edifice for a month or so until the church is completed.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie will have charge of the services on Sunday for the last time until he returns from his vacation in September. He will spend the summer abroad.

RAHWAY HAS BANISHED THE VOTING MACHINE

The result of the special election at Rahway yesterday was a clean sweep for the opponents of the device of the voting machine, as despite all the glowing literature circulated by the trust, it could muster only seventy-seven votes out of the total of 437 which were cast.

Those favorable to the retention of the device showed their greatest strenth in the Third ward in that place, where they polled forty of the 154 votes deposited. They were weakest in the First ward, where they had only seventeen out of a total of 155 votes.

The result of the balloting was as follows:

Ward.	Against.	For.
First	138	17
Third	114	40

At the election for Governor last fall the Third ward of Rahway gave a total of 613 votes for Fort and 596 for Katzenbach.

BLACK HANDERS GET 12 YEARS.

Three men, convicted of having sent a Black Hand letter demanding $5,000 to the Rev. Augustine Bassori, of Franklin Park, were sentenced at New Brunswick yesterday by Judge Booraem to twelve years each at hard labor in State Prison. They are John Gary, Michael Filesetor and John Donati.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Booraem said that the crime of which the men had been convicted was the first of its kind in Middlesex county, and that it would be the last if severity of punishment could effect that end.

An organization guilty of such dastardly and cowardly crimes, he said, was capitalized on murder and blackmail, and should be cut out root and branch.

Had Fisherman's Luck.

Pierson Bailey, son of Letter-Carrier F. W. Bailey, and George Webster, son of Conductor Frank Webster, both of Duer street, the borough, spent yesterday fishing at Boynton Beach, it being the first time the boys were allowed to spend the day away from home alone. They had fisherman's luck, the result of their efforts being one eel.

Pastor Domeij Returns.

Rev. Olof F. Domeij, who was reported missing to the local police, has returned to the city of his own accord. He stated that his going away was purely on a matter of business but that he had neglected to tell the people at his boarding place that he would not return right away. He stated that he had been at Kenilworth.

ENDORSE E. R. ACKERMAN

Elizabeth's Downtown Republican Club Demand Plainfielder's Renomination.

WANT STUTZLEN FOR ASSEMBLY

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman was endorsed last night for renomination by the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, and Captain Robert Kirkland made a strong speech in advocating his re-election to the Senate, praising the good work accomplished by him during his present term.

The club endorsed Frank Stutzlen, of Elizabeth, as a candidate for the Assembly, but inquiry at the county seat today failed to disclose who he is supposed to succeed in the lower house of the Legislature. Joseph F. Cahill, of Elizabeth, received the endorsement of the club for member of the Union County Board of Freeholders.

Yesterday was the birthday anniversary of James White, assistant postmaster of Elizabeth and in honor of the event, a huge bouquet of flowers was presented to him at the meeting. In making the presentation, Captain Kirkland stated that there was a flower in the bouquet for each year of his life. This caused great laughter, for there were at least one hundred flowers in the gift.

In planning for the approaching campaign, Sidney M. Williams was appointed to represent the organization on the executive board of the County League of Republican Clubs. It was decided to fix September 8 as the date when all the clubs in the county league will be invited to attend a meeting to be held at Elizabeth, when the active work of the campaign will begin. In the meantime the work of organizing these clubs throughout the county will be continued, the idea being to have one in every city, borough, township and town. From these numerous organizations there will be a representation comprising what will be known as an executive committee. This body will work in harmony with the Union County Republican Executive Committee in conducting the campaign in this part of the State. It was reported that already there is much enthusiasm being shown on the part of Republicans in the county. The presidents of all the county clubs will be invited to constitute an active working committee.

The club unanimously endorsed the action of the Chicago Republican convention in nominating W. H. Taft for the Presidency and J. S. Sherman for the Vice-Presidency and pledged its full support in helping to elect the ticket in November.

BARACA CLASS ELECTS.

D. C. Patterson Made Head of the Faith Chapel Organization.

The Baraca class of Faith chapel held the semi-annual meeting, last night, and elected the following officers: President, D. C. Patterson; vice-president, Ira L. LaRue; secretary, Joseph Eckstein; treasurer, S. J. Utzinger; press representative, C. B. LaRue; librarian, Charles Griffin; teacher, Rev. J. W. Musson; assistant teacher, Frank Stewart.

Following the business session, the Baraca members met with the Philathea class and a social hour was spent, during which refreshments were served. The attendance at the meeting was quite large.

In the City Court.

On complaint of Louis Kornfield, of Spruce street, Theodore Zeller, a contractor, was fined 5 in the city court, this morning. The affair was the outcome of a dispute over a bill that Kornfield declared the defendant owed him and which he sought to collect in the presence of a crowd. The plaintiff also made a charge that Zeller had assaulted his wife and son but it was proved that he had simply ejected them from property on which they were trespassing.

Will Hold Fair and Festival.

A fair and festival will be held for the benefit of the Mt. Bethel Baptist church at Fairview Council Hall, Mt. Bethel, Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 12. If stormy the affair will be held the next clear day. The committee in charge comprises Mrs. A. Schumacher, Mrs. I. V. Adams, Mrs. A. Haye and Mrs. G. D. Peck.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Return.

The eight Plainfield boys who have been enjoying their vacation at the Y. M. C. A. Camp, Waywanda, N. Y., returned home today, and Boys' Secretary C. B. Batchelor, of the local association, has gone to Racquet Lake, Adirondacks, where he will spend his vacation.

HAS MADE 299 TRIPS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Hoboken, July 15.—Captain A. G. Thomsen, of the Scandinavian-American liner C. F. Tietgen, which arrived at this port today, completes, by this voyage, his 299th trip across the Atlantic as skipper of a vessel. When he takes the Tietgen back to Copenhagen he will thus have 150 round trips to his credit—a transatlantic record equalled by few if any of the master mariners now afloat.

Captain Thomsen, a man still in the prime of life, has followed the sea since boyhood, and for many years has been connected with the Scandinavian-American line. He was created Knight of Denmark by the late King Christian, of that nation, for his skilful seamanship in bringing the steamship Hekla to New York about a dozen years ago. An accident occurred to the Hekla's machinery, and it was nearly forty days before the voyage from Copehagen was successfully accomplished.

On another occasion he took a disabled steamer to the Irish coast, and was presented with a pair of mariner's glasses by President Garfield for rescuing a number of American seamen from a distressed vessel in midocean.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The first Taft-Sherman Club in South Jersey has been organized at Swedesboro, with Mayor V. E. De Groft as president.

Endeavoring to start a gasoline engine, James Carey, of Paulsboro, had two fingers mashed and one wrist badly lacerated.

Scalded about the legs by escaping steam, Samuel Anderson, twenty-four years old, of 115 Mechanic street, Camden, was taken to Cooper Hospital yesterday afternoon.

With a bullet wound in his thigh, Louis Balinsky, a Carmel youth, was brought to Millville for surgical attention. He was toying with a revolver, which he didn't know was loaded.

On the Montgomery street line the use of "pay-as-you-enter" cars was begun in Jersey City yesterday. The Jersey City Belt Line and the Greenville line are to be equipped with the cars.

Campaign buttons of former Mayor Cooper B. Hatch, of Camden, who aspires to become the shrievalty nominee on the Republican ticket in Camden county, made their appearance yesterday.

Charles Viniski, thirty-one years old, of 309 Groove street, Jersey City, was overcome yesterday afternoon while at work in the American Iron Foundry, in Washington street in that city, and was removed to the City Hospital.

Twenty-five Philadelphians, passengers aboard the sloop J. Harry Lyons, were rescued from the stranded sloop off Atlantic City yesterday by a volunteer crew of oarsmen, headed by Captain Parker, who ran out the government life-saving craft.

Turning a somersault over a fence a trick dog, belonging to J. A. Williams, of Ninth and Chestnut streets, Camden, escaped from the Camden dog-catchers yesterday and landed safely in the yard of its owner to the amusement of a large number of persons.

The big raft in front of the Royal Palace Hotel, Atlantic City, broke from its moorings yesterday afternoon, with six children aboard. The raft was drifting toward the breakers on the inlet bar when Merrick, a lifeguard, went out and rescued the children who had been washed off.

Detectives who had joined the working force of the Hotel Rudlof, Atlantic City, unearthed an alleged bold plan for robbing the hotel of linen and silver and arrested Lloyd Robby, Charles Mopp and James B. Holland, employes of the house. The men will get a hearing before Magistrate Williams.

Accused of recklessly handling firearms on the Fourth of July, Paul Corson, twelve years old, of 1915 South Sixth street, was held in $200 bail by Justice of the Peace Roun, in Camden yesterday. Mrs Emily Peck, the complainant, alleges that she was badly injured by fireworks in the hands of the boy.

The large pulp mill located at Weymouth, formerly used for the manufacture of paper, but recently converted into a saw mill run by Andrew G. Stewart, was destroyed by fire late Sunday night with all the machinery and a large quantity of lumber stacked in the yards. The fire, it is thought, was the work of an incendiary. Loss is estimated at $4,000.

With the reopening yesterday of the mill of the United & Globe Rubber Companies, Trenton, sixty men went back to work after an idleness of five months. Other men will be taken on as rapidly as they can be secured until a full force of 125 is employed. Former Mayor Welling G. Sickel, head of the combined companies, said yesterday that business is now the best that it has been since last autumn.

Mrs. Harry Raup, wife of the stenographer in the office of Prosecutor Goldenberg, of Atlantic county, saved the life of her husband yesterday after he had waded into a quicksand in Grassy Bay. Raup was seeking oysters in the shallow beds, when he stepped into the shifting sand and mud and went down. He was disappearing under the water, when Mrs. Raup reached him in the boat, in which they made their trip from this city, and threw a rope over his arms.

POLICE FIND SUMMIT WAIF.

Summit, July 15.—Police Sergeant Murphy found six-year-old Raymond Dickinson about 10 o'clock last night asleep in a doorway in Union place. When Murphy aroused the little fellow and ordered him to go home the child declared he had no home, and that he had been waiting for his father, who promised to meet him and give him money for a night's lodging.

At the police station the boy, who could scarcely keep awake, told the sergeant that he had been sleeping in a house in Aubrey street, conducted by John Romelli, but the latter turned him out because he could not pay fifty cents. The child further said that his father boarded at the home of his grandfather, William Kelly, in Denman place, East Summit, but his grandfather would not take him in.

Patrolman McNamara took the little fellow to the home of his grandfather in Denman place and although the latter declared his son-in-law would pay nothing toward the support of the child, he was ordered to take him in. It is said the boy has been sleeping in barns and doorways for several weeks.

INSURANCE HELD UP.

Companies Refuse to Pay Sons of Mrs. Tapack.

Louis Tapack, of Paterson, who insured his mother for $6,000 called on the insurance companies yesterday to demand the money only a few hours after an autopsy had been made on his mother's body to determine if she was poisoned to death.

The two companies refused to pay the money, saying that County Physician Armstrong had communicated his suspicions to them and that they would wait until after the result of the autopsy is made known.

KEPT TICKETS UNTIL SEATS WERE PROVIDED.

Newarkers on Shorebound P. R. R. Train Compel Addition of Car at Rahway.

Asbury Park, July 15.—Refusals by about a dozen Newark men to surrender their tickets until seats were provided for them resulted in a spirited debate Monday afternoon on the shorebound Pennsylvania Railtrain that left Newark at 4:54 o'clock. There were no seats available for the dozen Newarkers when the conductor asked for their tickets.

The oppressive heat and the prospect of the additional discomfort of a long stand, nettled the standers and they promptly explained that seats must first be furnished before they would comply with the demand. Then followed a long wrangle between the men and the conductor, but the ticket holders held on to their tickets.

At Rahway a car was added to the train, the dozen Newarkers sat down and then yielded their tickets.

AMERICAN ATHLETES WIN AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

London, July 15.—American athletes made a fine showing at the opening of the Olympic sports here yesterday, representatives from that country winning their heats in the 1,500-metre race and completely outclassing their opponents. In the opening event, J. P. Sullivan, of the Irish-American A. C., and J. O. Lightbody, of the Chicago A. A., were drawn and they finished in that order with Meadows, of Canada, third. Sullivan's time was 4:07 3-5, eight seconds behind the report.

Melvin Sheppard, also of the Irish-American A. C., was an easy winner in the second heat, finishing in front of J. P. Halstead, also of America.

None of the other American athletes qualified. Hallows, of England, made the fastest time, covering the 1,500 metres in 4:03 3-5.

BURKE ACQUITTED.

Patrick J. Burke, who conducts a saloon at Bond and Catherine streets, Elizabeth, was acquitted in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the screen clause of the Bishops law. The chief witness against him were Detective Sergeant Samuel Murphy and Detective McCarthy. Witnesses testified for Burke that they could get a good view of the interior.

At the time Burke was tried before the Excise Board and found guilty he declared that it was a cat that had pulled down the screen. His license was revoked, but he secured a writ of certiorari allowing him to open temporarily. Whether the county court verdict will result in the suppression of the Excise Board's case has not yet been decided.

Drowns in Newark Bay.

Stephen Nesid, who lived at 230 Culver avenue, Jersey City, was drowned yesterday afternoon while bathing in Newark Bay, near the Central Railroad. He was one of a number of young men who were swimming. He caught cramps, and before assistance reached him, he sank out of sight. The body was recovered.

Tom Jones is playing a swift game at first for St. Louis. McAleer has found the veteran one of his most reliable men this year.

Cincinnati newspapers and fans are up in arms because the Reds put Pitcher Spade on the waiver list. Both Boston and New York at once claimed the man. Spade won the last four games from his rivals, which included victories over Chicago, Pittsburg and New York, and naturally they believe he is good enough to hold.

McAleer is trying to purchase the release of Nig Clarke, but will probably fail to make Lajoie fall for such a plan.

If the Browns win the pennant, they will have to thank Clarke Griffith as much as Jimmy McAleer. Williams and Ferris are the life of the team.

Critics panned Jake Stahl so hard that the Highlanders had to let him go. It is the truth, however, that Jake was never cut out for an outfielder and he may do better at first base for Boston.

Boston has released Case Patten, who was received from Washington in exchange for Jesse Tannehill.

Washington's purchase of Bob Unglaub probably means that Joe Cantillon will dispose of Jerry Freeman.

Kid Elberfield is said to be trying to get Laporte back from Boston. He might do well to also strive to get back Powell, Howell, Williams and Ferris, of St. Louis.

Tom Connolly is one of the most competent umpires in the country. His work during the series with St. Louis was uniformly good, and the fact that the Athletics lost three out of four games cannot be charged to him.

Manager Murray evidently made a rich pickup when he obtained Foxen, the southpaw. Charley Dooin says he will be the wonder of the league next season.

Jimmy Collins is playing a very steady game at third. He is doing everything that can be expected of a thirdsacker, and doing a great deal that other men in his position can't.

Jack Highlands and Walter Carter, respective Harvard and Yale pitching stars of fifteen years ago, met in New York the other day. "How do the present day college pitchers compare with those of our day?" asked Highlands of Carter. "If they'd been playing in our day, Jack," was the response, "they wouldn't have been allowed to pitch to the nets."

The Cincinnati Reds, according to report, are to train at Atlanta next season. That being the case, where will the Highlanders train?

Good words for the players are frequent, but for the umpires few. Here's one of the few. The work of Sheridan and Evans in New York this time has been excellent.

It is to be hoped Rube Waddell doesn't fly the coop on the eve of his New York visit as he did last trip. New Yorkers would like to see him perform as a member of the McAleer troupe.

Harry McCormick made a good restart with the New York Nationals. Four hits in the first game is doing pretty well.

Jake Beckley is the only diamond warrior we can think of who has played ball in the home towns of both Taft and Bryan. Years ago Jake was a member of the Lincoln team and a few seasons ago of the Cincinnati team.

There hasn't been a no hit game in New York for over a week, but the metropolis comes pretty near having a monopoly on this season's no hit contests.

DO IT NOW!

When your house, barn or store has reached that stage where it is no longer protected from the elements, it requires painting not simply to hide the weather-beaten boards, but to penetrate and preserve the wood from further decay.

Don't delay the job, but do it now and do it right, by using the old reliable pure linseed oil paint which, when applied according to directions, not only penetrates the pores of the wood and retards decay, but also produces a beautiful glossy finish.

Before deciding on the paint you will use, no matter how much, please secure prices and color cards of MOORE'S HOUSE COLORS from our representative,

GOLF.

Close finishes marked the play-off of the ties for the various cups presented by President E. C. Converse over the links of the Fairfield County Golf Club on Saturday. Conditions called for handicaps vs. bogie in Classes A, B and C, and in the first named J. M. Mason defeated F. S. Armstrong in the play-off, the former finishing 5 down, as against 6 down for Armstrong. The triple tie in Class B resulted in a win for Benjamin Strong, Jr., at 4 down. His opponents, J. W. Curtis and I. F. Stone, ended 6 and 7 down, respectively. In the C division R. Craft finished 2 up, and easily defeated his opponent, E. L. Stevens, who ended 4 down.

Three couples settled their deadlock for four prizes in the nine-hole foursome contest, also against bogie. First prizes were won by G. Van Duhn and W. T. Graham, who ended 5 up, but J. A. Topping and Edward Shearton and E. C. Converse and George P. Sheldon tied again at 2 up. In an extra nine holes Converse and Sheldon, after the hardest kind of a contest, finished 8 up on the "Colonel" and barely beat their rivals, who were 7 up.

Unusual energy is being displayed at the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club this this season. A long lease of the old Ferris Farm has been secured, and at present the members are playing over a nine-hole course, but the coming year will see nine holes added. Clock golf, shooting, tennis and archery are numbered among the other attractions. Bob Peebles is the professional in charge.

Willie Tucker, the Ardsley professional, has once again succeeded in lowering the record for the course, his latest effort in that direction resulting in a 74. The 5s at the eleventh and eighteenth holes were due to hard luck, otherwise he would have been at least two strokes lower.

It is possible that the four days' professional and amateur tournament announced for Van Cortlandt Park, July 29, 30, 31 and August 1, will be played over another course. There is a feeling among some of the committeemen that a change of green would result to the benefit of the tournament.

E. A. Lassen, recent winner of the amateur championship title of Great Britain, has gathered in additional honors by winning the Yorkshire County championship title at Sandygate, near Sheffield. With the exception of the second round, where Lassen beat his man by the narrow margin of 1 up, all his matches were fairly easy.

The recently formed Waterbury Country Club has blossomed out with a full eighteen-hole course, and Eugene Reilly, a home bred professional, has been engaged. The old nine-hole links of the Waterbury Golf Club has been abandoned.

Val Flood, the athletic trainer at Princeton, has been granted a leave of absence for the summer, and he will put in his time as professional at the Hyde Manor Golf Club, Sudbury, Vt. Prior to his engagement at Princeton Flood was regularly employed as a greenkeeper at various courses in the East.

John Mulgrew, a graduate from the caddie ranks at the Richmond County Country Club, has secured the place as professional at the Lake Thomas Golf Club, near Albany. Until last Saturday Mulgrew was assisting Herbert Strong at Apawamis. The former plays a good game, as Charles Seely, the metropolitan champion, learned to his surprise in a practice round the day before the Apawamis tournament.

PERSONAL.

Miss May E. Howlett, of Elmwood place, is visiting friends at Glen Ridge.

Miss Carrie Smith, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Newman, of West Fifth street, have been sojourning at Asbury Park.

Dr. Ralph W. Emerson, of Park avenue, has returned from a short stay at Asbury Park.

Mrs. L. E. Coles, of West Front street, will spend her summer vacation at Asbury Park.

Mrs. George Dufford, of West Front street, has been visiting relatives at German Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cottrell and children, of this city, have gone to Tolland, Mass., for the summer.

Miss Jennie Brown, of Roselle, has returned home after spending the past week with friends in this city.

Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, who is enjoying the summer at Lake Hopatcong, is in town for a day or two on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull and family, of West Front street, are at Lake Hopatcong for the summer, occupying their own cottage.

William Hillman, formerly of this city, but now of Jacksonville, Fla., accompanied by his wife, is visiting relatives in this city for a few days.

Baggagemaster J. F. Garretson, of the North Avenue station, who has been off duty for several months on account of illness, is gradually regaining his strength.

Captain and Mrs. Yule, who were married in this city several weeks ago, have arrived at Manila, where the captain will be stationed for the present. Mrs. Yule was formerly Miss Pauline May Sandford, of East Front street.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, is planning to take his vacation during August.

The choir of the First M. E. church will take its vacation during the month of August.

Rev. Dr. P. H. Murdick, of Woodbridge, will preach at Grace M. E. church Sunday morning and night.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of Lincoln, will be one of the supplies at the First Baptist church during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, on his vacation.

JACKS UP POLICE.

Auto Commissioner Says They Must Enforce Speed Laws.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith yesterday issued a long circular letter to the various police officers of the State, calling their attention to the laxity in enforcing the automobile laws.

He tells them the law places upon local authorities, primarily, the duty of policing the roads and the enforcement of penalties for violations of the law. The police say the supposed attack was a joke played on Mrs. Whitley by a friend who wanted to test her boast that "nothing could scare her."

TORPEDO BOATS ARRIVE.

The United States twin torpedo boats Gwin and Talbot passed through the Delaware and Raritan Canal at New Brunswick yesterday morning on the way to New York. They passed the lower lock at 10:15 a. m. and traveled at a fast rate after leaving the lock. They are long and narrow, with a bow like a knife, and the stern narrow but round.

THE CLEVELAND MONUMENT.

Although the invitation to subscribe was extended but a fortnight ago, Plainfield has already given $291.85 towards the fund being raised in New Jersey for a suitable monument to Grover Cleveland, the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States. It is planned to erect this memorial at some appropriate place in this State and judging by the way subscriptions are being received by the committee it is safe to say that before long a handsome monument will be raised. On this committee are such men as Governor Fort, former United States Senator John F. Dryden, former Governor Franklin Murphy, United States Senators Kean and Briggs, Richard A. Lindabury, former United States Senator James Smith, Jr.. Plainfield's membership includes Alexander Gilbert, Charles W. McCutchen, Edwin S. Hooley, William J. Buttfield, William L. Saunders and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

The Daily Press, which has been authorized to collect, acknowledge and transmit contributions for the fund, acknowledges these subscriptions:

"It is fitting that New Jersey should raise a shaft or in some similar manner give evidence of her love for Grover Cleveland. The home of Washington is maintained to call to mind the glorious deeds of the "father of his country;" "Monticello" continues to be venerated by reason of its having been Thomas Jefferson's home. There are shafts to practically all of the Presidents in various parts of the country, erected by loving and patriotic hearts.

"Aside from the great deeds which merit no less recognition for Grover Cleveland, he was New Jersey's President. When, however, to State pride is added the pride every American feels in this illustrious American, there should be a generous response to the call for funds for the Cleveland monument."

As in every patriotic movement of the sort, Plainfield has so far made the banner contribution. We ought to be able to raise at least $500 here, and with that aim in view The Daily Press makes an appeal for subscriptions.

Two classes in the Friends' First-day School have jointly sent to The Daily Press $4.50 for the fund being raised by this paper for the baby camp on the mountain conducted by the Plainfield Union of King's Daughters. This added to $5 received from Charity Circle and $15 contributed as a result of a lawn party held by children at John Hummell's home, brings the fund up to $24.50. It's a most deserving charity and following our annual custom we will be glad to acknowledge any subscriptions sent to this paper for the purpose.

It is quite consistent for James E. Martine to be enthusiastic over the nomination of Bryan and Kern. The farmer-orator knows full well what it means to be in the oft defeated class and therefore has a fellow feeling for the Democratic National ticket.

If Dr. Evans really wants to find a genuine "brainstorm" victim, he should visit the office of the Carlisle, Pa., Sentinel. The editor of that daily has given expression to this hallucination: "Mr. Bryan is a leader, and Mr. Roosevelt a boss."

The Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth has endorsed the candidacy of Ernest R. Ackerman for re-election to the State Senate. Well, let's make it unanimous.

SOME RULES TO GUIDE WHENBUYING FISH.

The market price of fish is not always a true indication of its economic value in the family dietary, says an authority. Supply and demand, nearnes to its market, season and many other exigencies regulate its price. The amount of waste involved in dressing the fish and the amount of nutrition that it contains measure its value. For example, cod usually costs about half as much as salmon, but it contains little more than a third as much nutition. Besides, the waste in dressing the salmon is very little, while the waste from the cod is relatively large. The result is that in the end, all things considered, salmon is less expensive than cod. The waste in skin and bone is great in most fish—in cod, 6 per cent.; in haddock, 35 per cent. If the same price were paid for a salmon and cod 52 per cent. of nutrition would be obtained from the salmon and 19 [illegible] from the cod.

There is a large percentage of water in the composition of fish—from 50 to 75 per cent. on the average. Salt cod contains 67 per cent. of water; haddock, 46 per cent.; oysters, 77 per cent. Compared with meat, fish contains more gelatine and fewer extractives. That is, boiling is the most expensive and the least attractive way of cooking fish, the loss in nutrition and flavor in boiling being great.

Lean fish, dieticians say, is more easy of digestion that fat fish. Long-fibred fish, like cod and lobster, are harder to digest than the short-fibred fish. White flesh fish is far easier of digestion than dark flesh, although that with dark flesh has more nutrition. This explains why some persons find bluefish unwholesome.

Fish that has white flesh requires about ten minutes to the pound in boiling and fifteen minutes in baking.

The old idea that fish is a "brain" food was long since proved to be without foundation. But is has not yet been proved that an overdiet of fish does not lead to skin troubles.

Never buy a fish that has dull eyes, white gills, or soft, spongy flesh. When a fish is fresh the eyes are bright, the gills red and the flesh firm and odorless. Lobsters and crabs, if alive, should be lively, or, if boiled, the lobster's tail should be tight against body, not hanging limp.

The proper cooking of fish is not a simple matter. If it is underdone it is uneatable, while overdone fish is tough and tasteless. The cooking of a fish depends upon the size, kind, the nature of the water from which it was taken, its character and the character of the water in which it is cooked.

HINTS FOR THE GIRL WITH CLEVER FINGERS.

The present fondness for long, clinging robes brings the house gown and the cautal negligee into close relationship. However, if you have the figure of a Greek, by all means make use of the Greek mode while it lasts. There are any number of lovely gowns that you can make with borders, and, if you are handy at stencil work, so much the better.

One girl with a atste of her own has just finished a most attractive house gown which runs so close to the lines of the negligee that its character is nameless. It is made of pongee, and stenciled in soft old greens and blues. The same girl is busy now embroidering bands of old blue Japanese cotton crepe with plum blossoms worked in white. These bands are to trim a white Japanese cotton crepe kimono. Both garments are to form a part of a wedding trousseau.

Two girls are earning pin money painting white China silk dressing sacques in dainty flower patterns. Pongee and Japanese cotton crepe are among the two practical materials for such garments. Both lend themselves readily to artistic decorations and both are of durable character.

For daintier garments flowered lawns trimmed with plain lawn or the reverse, the dimities, embroidered swisses and a host of other thin weaves are supplied by all cotton departments.

China silk and challie are perennial favorites with women who study economy. Challie, for dressing sacques and kimonos for chilly midsummer days, is always a comfort. It is light and at the same time snug. For women who shudder at morning and night chills adjustable linings of albatross are a luxury for thin cotton matinees and other thin, loose garments.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A movement is on foot to have the flag pole, fire hydrant and electric light pole removed which have stood for a number of years on the ground at the head of Front street. This corner since automobiling has become so popular, is considered a dangerous one and the Township so posted it several years ago. Those who favor the removal of the old landmarks claim that the ground space should be thrown into an open roadway, as the time has come when the room is needed for traffic and unless something is done to enlarge the roadway at this point there will be a serious accident some day when two or more automobiles come together.

On complaint of Rose Meyer, a search warrant was issued in Justice Clark's court against Joseph Duffy, of Terrill road. The case covered unlawful confiscation of household goods belonging to Mrs. Meyer, which Duffy refused to surrender, claiming that the goods were held to cover rent unpaid. Constable Walpole located the goods and the case was dropped by the defendant agreeing to surrender the goods and pay all costs in the case.

Miss Sadie Lee, of East Front street, entertained a number of friends yesterday afternoon at a lawn party. The afternoon was spent playing games on the lawn until the shower, when the guests adjourned to the house. Refreshments were served.

THE FORUM.

"Plurality" and "Majority."

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly advise me as to the difference between the term "plurality" and "majority," when applied at political elections.

TAXPAYER.

(Plurality means the number of votes the highest candidate receives over the next highest. A candidate may have a plurality and yet not have a majority. A majority is the number of votes the highest candidate gets over all other candidates for the same office. For instance, if A gets 20 votes; B, 10, and C, 3, A's plurality is 10 and his majority 7.—Editor.).

EVERY BIT NONSENSE.

Did you ever notice that men always instinctively put confidence in a girl with blue eyes and distrust the girl with dark ones, and can you tell me why? Is it that the limpid blue eye, transparent and gentle, suggests all the soft, womanly virtues and because he thinks that he can see through it, clear down into that blue-eyed girl's soul, that she is the kind of a girl he fancies she is?

Dark eyes, and the rich, warm colors which dark-skinned women have to wear, suggest energy and brilliance, and much intellect. Men look into such eyes and seem not to be able to see below the surface.

They have not the pleasure of a long deep gaze into immeasurable depths. And so they think this girl designing and clever, and even intellectual, when, perhaps, she has a wealth of love and devotion and heroism stored up behind that impulsive disposition and those dazzling dark eyes.

Buried Hopes.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE SUMMER OUTFIT.

The economy of possessing for the season's outfit accessories of one color, though possibly f many shades, so that a variety of metamorphoses may be arranged, is a point upon which one cannot insist too strongly.

The pretty summer frock, for instance, of ivory linon, of muslin flower-strewn, of marquisette of palest hue, of creamy cashmere de soie or shantung, with a border of color, can own a couple of hats or three, an afternoon parasol, a few belts or sashes, a better-most and worse-most petticoat, possibly the last word in scarfs and veils, all belonging to the same chosen tint, interchangeable as occasion requires, but "all there"—sparing their owner the horrible sinking of the heart late at night, when in early morning start has to be made next day for some festivity, that accompanies the recollection that there is no hat, or waist-wear, or something else equally important, that will "do." The economy of the principle "the same piece of bread does for both" is without doubt almost too obvious to insist upon further, but there are certain side issues in the way of ideas to be jotted down which may be of use to the woman who is busily engaged in planning a few gowns to serve many purposes during the coming three months of the season proper.

This scheme of using one shade of color has two disadvantages—the wearer gets tired of always being tied to one hue and her friends and acquaintances are apt to think that if she wears a blue hat one day the blue toque she wears the next is the same—"something blue!"—no matter though both shade and shape are varied distinctly.

An alternative arrangement is here suggested. Have two colors combined in your scheme, and see how that works out. Say, pale blue and mauve, par example. A pale blue flowery hat, a mauve straw of severer demeanor, a smart chapeau of fluffy detail, mauve and blue mixed. A striped mauve and blue parasol, or, newer, a Paisley patterned silk with mauve and blue mingled, or a chine silk with blurred design of mauve and blue on a white ground, and white silk fringe edging it (and a sash to match either), or a note of the ribbon introduced into the gown, or a stock and belt.

Petticoas managed in the same way, embroidered on stockings, tiny ornamental bags or catchels, and so forth. Gloves are to be kept neutral, of course, but this late along one need hardly issue a warning against colored gloves, and we may see less of colored shoes this summer even in the sometimes permissible darker hues.

SUNDRY HINTS ON SUNDRY SUBJECTS.

To Destroy Fleas in a House—Wipe the furniture, where it is possible, with spirts of naphtha, but do not let children go near it till quite dry. Another recipe for destroying these troublesome pests in an old house is to make a strong decoction of laurel leaves and boil it for several hours. With this, while hot, deluge the floors. The liquor will slightly discolor the ceilings, but they are easily whitened again. Sprinkle camomile flowers in the beds and on stuffed furniture. Use carbolic soap freely for cleansing purposes throughout the house. It will take several weeks, probably, to rid your house of the pest.

When making boiled custards, if about half a teaspoon of corn flour is added the custard will not burn, however hard it boils.

Straw matting should always be washed with warm water and salt. Water alone would turn it yellow. The salt alone has a counteracting effect.

Marking Linen—To make linen easier to write on when marking it, dip the piece to be marked in cold starch, and the pen will prite without scratching.

Laundry Hint—When ironing, if the iron be firmly rubbed on a piece of glass or emery paper, and then slightly soaped, it will be found to slide beautifully over the article and leave no smudges.

Tender Feet—A capital recipe to relieve tender feet, especially useful during hot weather: One pint of bran, one ounce of bicarbonate of soda and one gallon of hot water. Bathe the feet in this mixture.

THE HIGHER EDUCATION.

"The main object of the higher education of women has not been kept sufficiently in view. Of course, there are other objects, plenty of them—training for the professions, training for all the varieties of work that women are now engaging in; training for all that enjoyment and usefulness that comes with knowledge of the fine arts, and with appreciation of the artistic spirit, and of what the artistic spirit can do for the activities of a nation. It is woman to whom fails in greater part the training of the population in the sense of beauty and in appreciation of the worth of beauty. Who keeps the flowers blooming in the average house lot? Who fills the one southern window with plants in int cans and broken pieces of crockery? Who engages the florist to keep the rich house filled with flowers through all the seasons? For whom are all the beautiful objects in the rich home procured and set forth? Always by and for the woman. Who teaches the little children to enjoy the beauties of nature and of art? Always, or almost always, the woman.

"I look forward, therefore, to the future of the higher education for women as a great influence in the perfecting of family life, of civic life, of household joy and good."—President Eliot, of Harvard, in Harper's Bazar.

GOVERNOR WANTS TO DON A UNIFORM NOW

Sea Girt, July 15.—After a day of rest the citizen soldiers from Camden and neighboring towns took up the action work incident to their instruction in the duties of a soldier, and it was rather a strenuous day. To many of the men who had not been out under the sun's rays for nearly a year drilling hard out in the open made them tired before the first drill was finished. However, all took hold of the work with a vim and there was no lagging in any of the battallions.

The officers of the Third Regiment had instructions in the manner of saluting when they march forward in evening parade and salute the colonel. The instructor was Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas D. Landon, one of the best drill masters in New Jersey.

It is evident that Governor Fort takes an active interest in the National Guard. He goes out every evening to witness the parade; he participated in the religious service Sunday; the officers of the brigade and regiment find a cordial welcome when they call to pay their respects to the executive, and Mr. Fort was heard to remark that he would like to don a uniform, though it has not been the custom for a Governor to do so.

There are a lot of social functions incident to the encampment of the National Guard. The Governor entertains some of the officers every night; General C. Edward Murray, quartermaster general, entertains almost every evening, and it is almost a perpetual banquet at the headquarters of General D. F. Collins, commander of the Second Brigade. General Collins is a generous host and a splendid entertainer, and those who are so fortunate as to be his guests, if only for a part of a day, have a pleasant remembrance of the experience.

The concerts given by the regimental band every evening is another feature of the camp which is appreciated by the summer guests from the neighboring towns. As soon as it is known that the camp has started the people, the majority women, come here in numbers to witness the evening parades and to listen to the band concerts. The band alternates between the Governor's cottage, brigade headquarters and regimental headquarters.

The Second Troop, in command of Captain Edwin Field, has taken up active cavalry work. The men are showing plenty of interest and all are working hard to perfect themselves in the manual for the cavalry.

THIS LIFE GUARD IS ONCE AGAIN A HERO.

Harry Merrick Rescues Six Children Who Were Being Carried Out to Sea.

Life Guard Harry Merrick, a young collegian, and hero of several thrilling rescues before this season, at Atlantic City, proved a hero again yesterday afternoon, when a big raft to which six children had waded for play, broke from its moorings at the Inlet end of the beach, and started on its way toward the heavy and dangerous breakers of the Inlet bars. The screams of the youngsters, two of whom were little girls, caused great excitement, and the ultimate rescue of the tots was greeted with hearty cheers.

More than a dozen youngsters were playing around the moored raft when the rope broke. The six delayed too long, and when the raft reached the swift current setting out toward the bar, four were washed out into the swirl of dangerous water. Merrick had started out at the first alarm, and reached the raft just as the waves were breaking the holds of the last two children clinging to its slippery sides. Working with might and main, he lifted all an the raft and,, soothing them into bravery, carried them two by two to the shore and safety. The raft was rocovered later.

SOMERSET'S FREEHOLDERS ARE AS BUSY AS EVER.

Agreeable to adjournment the Somerset County Board of Freeholders met yesterday and viewed the bridges and culverts built and in course of construction on the Watchung road, after which the board organized at the Washington House, near Watchung, in Washington Valley. All the members were present.

Joel Codington, of Warren township reported that the bridge at Union Village, a Morris county line structure, needs repairing. It was moved that a committee be appointed with power to repair said bridge. Carried.

Members Joel Codington, of Warren; John V. Bunn, of Bernards, and William M. Demlar, of North Plainfield, were named as the committee.

A communication was received from Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, Second Regiment, N. . N. J., inviting the board to go as his guest to Sea Girt on Thursday, July 23. On motion the communication was received and the invitation accepted. The clerk was requested to so inform Colonel Dungan.

Miss Harriet Halloway, of Watchung avenue, is sojourning at Silver Bay, N. Y., prior to going to Tolland, Mass., for the summer.

GOVERNOR HAS NAMED ANOTHER COMMISSION

The Governor, at the request of President Roosevelt, named yesterday a State commission for the conservation of natural resources, and made the following statement:

"Pursuant to the request of the President of the United States of June 8, carrying out the action of the conference of Governors held at Washington in May last, in which he recommends that each State shall designate a commission for the conservation of natural resources so that there may be a State commission in each State, that better uniformity of action may result, I have concluded to take the action suggested in the President's circular letter and designate a commission for New Jersey. Of course, this commission will not have the power to incur any expense except the Legislature shall hereafter authorize it, and in order that the commissioners may be men who are both familiar with the work and can devote some time to it, I have designated certain State officials already familiar with the various subjects who are in the employ of the State and can therefore be expected to give the necessary time to the work without additional compensation."

The members of the commission are Professor E. D. Voorhees, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station; Alfred B. Gaskill, State forester; Henry B. Kummell, State geologist; Morris R. Sherrerd, engineer State Water Supply Commission; John B. Sherman, engineer Inland Waterways Commission.

Governor Fort also sent a cablegram yesterday morning to Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, an officer in the Second Regiment, complimenting him on his work as a member of the American team at Bisley, which won the international match in the Olympic games now in progress in England. The telegram said: "New Jersey congratulates you and takes pride in the victory of the American team."

ALIBI FOR THE MAYOR.

Proved That Jersey Constable Got Wrong Number on an Auto.

The case of Mayor McClellan, who was alleged to have broken the speed limit while passing through New Brunswick on June 26, was heard yesterday afternoon by Justice William A. Housell. Mayor McClellan was not present, but was represented by Frank H. Crowell, his attorney.

John H. Siderson, stenographer to the Board of Estimate, was present as a witness for the Mayor, and showed that on June 26, the day when the Mayor is alleged to have exceeded the speed limit, he was before the Board of Estimate from 9:15 in the morning until 12:30, and, therefore, it would have been impossible for him to have been in New Brunswick that morning.

Judge Housell dismissed the case, as he said it was apparent that a mistake had been made in getting the number of the car that was speeding.

HEARTS and MASKS

BY HAROLD MACGRATH

Fudge! The train was racing through the yards. Another page crackled. Ha! Here was that unknown gentleman-thief again, up to his old tricks. It is remarkable how difficult it is to catch a thief who has good looks and shrewd brains. I had already written him down as a quasi-swell. For months the police had been finding clues, but they had never laid eyes on the rascal. The famous Haggerty of the New York detective force,—a man whom not a dozen New York policemen knew by sight and no criminals save those behind bars, earthly and eternal,—was now giving his whole attention to the affair. Some gaily dressed lady at a ball would suddenly find she had lost some valuable gems; and that would be the end of the affair, for none ever recovered her gems.

The gentleman-thief was still at large, and had gathered to his account a comfortable fortune: that is, if he were not already rich and simply a kleptomaniac. No doubt he owned one of my racing cars, and was clear of the delinquent lists at his clubs. I dismissed all thought of him, threw aside the paper, and mentally figured out my commissions on sales during the past month. It was a handsome figure, large enough for two. This pastime, too, soon failed to interest me. I gazed out of the window and watched the dark shapes as they sped past.

I saw the girl's face from time to time. What a fool I had been not to ask her name! She could easily have refused, and yet as easily have granted the request. At any rate, I had permitted the chance to slip out of my reach, which was exceedingly careless on my part. Perhaps they—she and her uncle—frequently dined at Mouquin's; I determined to haunt the place and learn. It would be easy enough to address her the next time we met. Besides, she would be curious to know all about the ten of hearts and the desperate adventure upon which I told her I was about to embark. Many a fine friendship has grown out of smaller things.

Next, turning from the window, I fell to examining my fellow passengers, in the hope of seeing some one I knew. Conversation on trains makes short journeys. . . . I sat up stiffly in my seat. Diagonally across the aisle sat the very chap I had met in the curio-shop! He was quietly reading a popular magazine, and occasionally a smile lightened his sardonic mouth. Funny that I should run across him twice in the same evening! Men who are contemplating suicide never smile in that fashion. He was smoking a small, well-colored meerschaum pipe with evident relish. Somehow, when a man clenches his teeth upon the mouthpiece of a respectable pipe, it seems impossible to associate that man with crime. But the fact that I had seen him selecting a pistol in a pawnshop rather neutralized the good opinion I was willing to form. I have already expressed my views upon the subject. The sight of him rather worried me, though I could not reason why. Whither was he bound? Had he finally taken one of Friard's pistols? For a moment I was on the point of speaking to him, if only to hear him tell more lies about the ten of hearts, but I wisely put aside the temptation. Besides, it might be possible that he would not be glad to see me. I always avoid the chance acquaintance, unless, of course, the said chance acquaintance is met under favorable circumstances—like the girl in Mouquin's, for instance! After all, it was only an incident; and, but for his picking up that card, I never should have remembered him.

Behind him sat a fellow with a countenance as red and round and complacent as an English butler's,—red hair and small twinkling eyes. Once he leaned over and spoke to my chance acquaintance, who, without turning his head, thrust a match over his shoulder. The man with the face of a butler lighted the most villainous pipe I ever beheld. I wondered if they knew each other. But, closely as I watched, I saw no sign from either. I turned my collar up and snuggled down. There was no need of his seeing me.

Then my thought reverted to the ten of hearts again. My ten of hearts! The wrinkle of a chill ran up and down my spine! My ten of hearts!

Hastily I took out the card and examined the back of it. It was an uncommonly handsome back, representing Diana, the moon, and the midnight sky. A horrible supposition came to me: supposing they looked at the back as well as at the face of the card? And again, supposing I was miles away from the requisite color and design? I was staggered. Here was a pretty fix! I had never even dreamed of such a contingency. Hang it! I now wished I had stuck to my original plan, and gone to the theater. Decidedly I was in for it; there was no backing down at this late hour, unless I took the return train for Jersey City; and I possessed too much stubbornness to surrender to any such weakness. Either I should pass the door committee, or I shouldn't; of one thing I was certain.

"Blankshire!" bawled the trainman;

then the train slowed down and finally came to a stop.

No turning back for me now. I picked up by suit case and got out. On the platform I saw the curio-shop fellow again. Tramping on ahead, the smell from his villainous pipe assailing my nostrils, was the man who had asked for a match. The former stood undecided for a moment, and during this space of time he caught sight of me. He became erect, gave me a sudden sardonic laugh, and swiftly disappeared into the darkness. All this was uncommonly disquieting; in vain I stared into the blackness that had swallowed him. What could he be doing here at Blankshire? I didn't like his laugh at all; there was at once a menace and a challenge in it.

"No." But I asked him to direct me to a hotel. He did so.

I made my way down the street. The wind had veered around and was coming in from the sea, pure and cold. The storm clouds were broken and scudding like dark ships, and at times there were flashes of radiant moonshine.

The fashionable hotel was full. So I plodded through the drifts to the unfashionable hotel. Here I found accommodation. I dressed, sometimes laughing, sometimes whistling, sometimes standing motionless in doubt. Bah! It was only a lark. . . . I thought of the girl in Mouquin's; how much better it would have been to spend the evening with her, exchanging badinage, and looking into each other's eyes! Pshaw! I covered my face with the gray mask and descended to the street.

The trolley ran within two miles of the Hunt club. The car was crowded with masqueraders, and for the first time since I started out I felt comfortable. Everybody laughed and talked, though nobody knew who his neighbor was. I sat in a corner, silent and motionless as a sphinx. Once a pair of blue slippers attracted my eye, and again the flash of a lovely arm. At the end of the trolley line was a carryall which was to convey us to the club. We got into the conveyance, noisily and good-humoredly. The exclamations of the women were amusing.

"Good gracious!"

"Isn't it fun!"

"Lovely!" And all that. It must have been a novelty for some of these to act naturally for once. Nothing lasts so long as the natural instinct for play; and we always find ourselves coming back to it.

Standing some hundred yards back from the road was the famous Hollywood inn, run by the genial Moriarity. Sometimes the members of the Hunt club put up there for the night when there was to be a run the following morning. It was open all the year round.

We made the club at exactly 10:30. Fortune went with me, doubtless it was the crowd going in that saved me from close scrutiny. My spirits rose as I espied Teddy Hamilton at the door. He was on the committee, and was in plain evening clothes. It was good to see a familiar face. I shouldered toward him and passed out my ten dollars.

"Hello, Teddy, my son!" I cried out jovially.

"Hello!"—grinning. Teddy thought it was some one he knew; well, so it was. "What's your card?" he cried, as I pressed by him.

"The ten of hearts."

"The ten of hearts," repeated Teddy to a man who was keeping tally on a big cardboard.

This sight did not reassure me. If they were keeping tally of all the cards presented at the door, they would soon find out that there were too many tens of hearts, too many by one! Well, at any rate, I had for the time being escaped detection; now for the fun: It would be sport-royal while it lasted. What a tale to give out at the club of a Sunday night! I chuckled on the way to the ball room. I had dispensed with going up to the dressing-room. My robe was a genuine one, heavy and warm; so I had no overcoat to check.

"Grave monk, your blessing!"

Turning, I beheld an exquisite Columbine.

"Pax vobiscum!" I replied, solemnly.

"Pax . . . What does that mean?"

"It means, do not believe all you see in the newspapers."

Columbine laughed gaily. "I did not know that you were a Latin scholar; and, besides, you gave me to understand you were coming as a Jesuit, Billy."

Billy? Here was one who thought she knew me. I hastened to disillusion her.

"My dear Columbine, you do not know me, not the least bit. My name is not Billy, it is Dicky."

"Oh, you cannot fool me," she returned. "I heard you call out to Teddy Hamilton that your card was the ten of hearts; and you wrote me, saying that would be your card."

Complications already, and I hadn't put my foot inside the ball room!

"I am sorry," I said, "but you have made a mistake. Your Jesuit probably told you his card would be the nine, not the ten."

"I will wager—"

"Hush! This is a charity dance; no one makes wagers at such affairs."

"But— Why, my goodness! there's my Jesuit now!" And to my intense relief she dashed away.

I carefully observed the Jesuit, and made up my mind to keep an eye upon him. If he really possessed the ten of hearts, the man who kept tally on the cardboard was doing some tall thinking about this time. I gilded away, into the gorgeous ball room.

What a vision greeted my eye! The decorations were in red and yellow, and it seemed as though perpetual autumnal sunset lay over everything. At the far end of the room was a small stage hidden behind palms and giant ferns. The band was just striking up "A Summer Night in Munich," and a monderful kaleidoscope revolved around me. I saw Cavaliers and Roundheads, Puritans and Beelzebubs, Musketeers, fools, cowboys, Indians kings and princes; queens and empresses, fairies and Quaker maids, white and black and red and green dominoes. Tom Fool's night, indeed!

Presently I saw the noble Doge of Venice coming my way. From his portly carriage I reasoned that if he wasn't in the gold-book of Venice he stood very well up in the gold-book of New York. He stopped at my side and struck an attitude.

"Pax vobiscum!" said I, bowing.

"Be at the Inquisition Chamber, directly the clock strikes the midnight hour," he said, mysteriously.

"I shall be there to deliver the supreme interrogation," I replied.

"It is well." He drifted away like a stately ship.

Delightful foolery! I saw the Jesuit, and moved toward him.

"Disciple of Loyola, hast thou the ten of hearts?"

"My hearts number nine, for I have lost one to the gay Columbine."

"I breathe! Thou art not he whom I seek." We separated. I was mortally glad that Columbine had made a mistake.

The women always seek the monk at a masquerade; they want absolution for the follies they are about to commit. A demure Quakeress touched my sleeve in passing.

"Tell me, grave monk, why did you seek the monastery?"

"My wife fell in love with me,"—gloomily.

"Then you have a skeleton in the clothes-press?"

"Do I look like a man who owned such a thing as a clothes-press, much less so fashionable a thing as a family skeleton?"

"Then what do you here?"

"I am mingling with fools as a penance."

"Marry come up, why am I a fool?"

"It is the fashion," was my answer. This was like to gain me the reputation of being a wit. I must walk carefully, or these thoughtless ones would begin to suspect there was an impostor among them.

"Aha!" There was mine ancient friend Julius. "Hail, Caesar!"

He stopped.

"Shall I beware of the Ides of March?" I asked, jovially.

"Nay, my good Cassius; rather beware of the ten of hearts," said Caesar, in hollow tones, and was gone.

The ten of hearts again! Hang the card! And then with a sigh of relief I recollected that in all probability he, like Columbine, had heard me call out the card to Hamilton. Still, the popularity of the card was very disquieting. I wished it had been seven or five; there's luck in odd numbers. . . . A Blue Domino! My heart leaped, and I thought of the little ticket in my waistcoat pocket. A Blue Domino! If, by chance, there should be a connection between her and the ticket!

She was sitting all alone in a corner near by, partly screened by a pot of orange trees. I crossed over and sat down by her side. This might prove an adventure worth while.

"What a beautiful night it is!" I said.

She turned, and I caught sight of a wisp of golden hair.

"That is very original," said she. "Who in the world would have thought of passing comments on the weather at a masque! Prior to this moment the men have been calling me all sorts of sentimental names."

"Oh, I am coming to that. I am even going to make love to you."

She folded her hands—rather resignedly, I thought— and the rollicking comedy began.

"You Do Not Know Me."

CHAPTER III.

When they give you a mask at a ball they also give you the key to all manner of folly and impudence. Even stupid people become witty, and the witty become correspondingly daring. For all I knew, the Blue Domino at my side might be Jones' wife, or Brown's or Smith's, or even Green's; but so long as I was not certain, it mattered not in what direction my whimsical fancy took me. (It is true that ordinarily Jones and Brown and Smith and Green do not receive invitations to attend masquerades at fashionable hunt clubs; but somehow they seem to worry along without these equivocal honors, and prosper. Still, there are persons in the swim named Johnes and Smythe and Browne and Greene. Pardon this parenthesis!)

As I recollected the manner in which I had self-invited the pleasure of my company to this carnival at the Blankshire Hunt club, I smiled behind my mask. Nerves! I ought to have been a professor of clinics instead of an automobile agent. But the whole affair appealed to me so strongly I could not resist it. I was drawn into the tangle by the very fascination of the scheme. I was an interloper, but nobody knew it. The ten of hearts in my pocket did not match the backs of those cards regularly issued. But what of that? Everyone was ignorant of the fact. I was safe inside; and all that was romantic in my system was aroused. There are always some guests who cannot avail themselves of their invitations; and upon this vague chance I had staked my play. Besides, I was determined to disappear before the hour of unmasking. I wasn't going to take any unnecessary risks. I was, then, fairly secure under my Capuchin's robe.

Out of my mind slipped the previous adventures of the evening. I forgot, temporarily, the beautiful unknown at Mouquin's. I forgot the sardonic-lipped stranger I had met in Friard's. I forgot everything save the little ticket that had accidentally slipped into my package, and which announced that some one had rented a blue domino.

And here was a Blue Domino at my side, just simply dying to have me talk to her!

"I am madly in love with you," I began. "I have followed you often; I have seen you in your box at the opera; I have seen you whirl up Fifth avenue in your fine barouche; and here at last I meet you!" I clasped my hands passionately.

"My beautiful barouche! My box at the opera!" the girl mimicked. "What a cheerful Ananias you are!"

"Thou art the most enchanting creature in all the universe. Thou art even a turquoise, a patch of radiant summer sky, eyes of sapphire, lips—"

"Archaic, very archaic," she interrupted.

"Disillusioned in ten seconds!" I cried, dismally. "How could you?"

She laughed.

"Have you no romance? Can you not see the fitness of things? If you have not a box at the opera, you ought at least to make believe you have. History walks about us, and you call the old style archaic! That hurts!"

"Methinks, Sir Monk—"

"There! That's more like it. By my halidom, that's the style!"

"Odds bodkin, you don't tell me!" There was a second ripple of laughter from behind the mask. It was rare music.

"I could fall in love with you!"

"There once was a Frenchman who said that as nothing is impossible, let us believe in the absurd. I might be old enough to be your grandmother,"—lightly.

"Perish the thought!"

"Perish it, indeed!"

"The mask is the thing!" I cried, enthusiastically. "You can make love to another man's wife—"

"Or your own, and nobody is the wiser."—cynically.

Says He Fears for His Life.

Califon, July 15.—Mrs. Eliza Hoover, wife of Eliphalet Hoover, of Vernoy, was arrested yesterday by Constable George Walters, of Cokesbury, on a peace warrant, issued by Justice of the Peace C. Watson Apgar, of Farmersville, at the instance of George Schuyler, also of Vernoy. Schuyler said he was afraid of his life, and that during a recent altercation he was forcibly struck over the head with a mopstick. Last week Schuyler was arrested at the instance of Mrs. Hoover, charged with assault and battery, alleged to have occurred during the same altercation over Schuyler trespassing on the Hoover lands. Both gave bail for appearance to the Hunterdon county courts. Mrs. Hoover is a frail woman and Schuyler is a powerful built man and a stone mason by trade.

—Now that the old horse-sheds have been removed from the First Baptist church property it is the intention of the trustees to have a fence or suitable wall placed there as a protection to the property.

$500,000 TERMINAL PLANNED FOR HOBOKEN

The Public Service Corporation is perfecting plans for a $500,000 three-story terminal at the junction of Hudson street and the Lackawanna and McAdoo tunnel terminals in Hoboken, and work on it will begin in September. It will have a capacity to handle 70,000,000 persons a year, and will be ready for use early next year.

The building will be of brick, concrete, steel and ornamental limestone. It will be arranged so as to handle traffic from the Lackawanna Railroad, from the ferries and the tunnel lines, in addition to that over the surface and the elevated lines, and will be planned that at no time will the throngs passing and repassing in opposite directions conflict.

The lower floor will be used for subway traffic, the main floor for surface lines, railroad and ferry passengers and the upper deck for elevated traffic. Separate stairways will prevent congestion at any point, and loading and unloading of trolley cars will take place without causing crowding. At present Chief Engineer Marttin Schreiber, of the Public Service, is working out the track scheme. The structure will be fireproof in every respect.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Those who like to study election statistics will be interested in the following figures reflective to the predilections of Jersey bolters in the last few years:

In the last Presidential election the Republican plurality ran up to the figure of 80,598, as compared with the Republican pluralities of 56,899 in 1900, and 87,692 in 1896. But on the other hand, in 1906 the Republicans barely carried New Jersey by a plurality of 1,432 on Assemblymen. Essex went Democratic by 6,170, whereas in 1904 it gave Stokes 18,338, a change of 24,508. Hudson went Democratic by 18,369, while in 1904 the Democratic plurality on Governor was only 7,554, a change of 10,815. Passaic went Democratic by 1,467, and in 1904 its Republican plurality was 2,895, a change of 4,362. Here was a total change in the three counties of 39,685 votes. The total change in the State was 50,212. A comparison of the Assembly vote in 1906 with the vote for Roosevelt in 1904 shows a Republican loss in the three counties of 55,907 votes, and of 79,166 in the State. Last year the Republican plurality on Governor was only about 8,000.

C. W. Boynton's Will Missing.

The will of C. W. Boynton, of Sewaren, who died five weeks ago, cannot be found, though one is known to have been drawn less than two years ago. A thorough search has been made since his death of his papers and safe deposit vaults. Those conversant with Mr. Boynton's affairs say his estate will reach a million dollars and that his business was left in an orderly condition.

May Condemn P. O. Site.

United States District Attorney J. B. Vreeland said yesterday that the figures received from the owners of the property proposed to be taken by the government for a new postoffice at Jersey City exceeded the $400,000 appropriation, and in the event of no compromise with the individual owners the government would be obliged to proceed by condemnation.

Penmanship

To listen to some teachers of penmanship, you would think there is some patent way to learn to write, but there is not. If you cannot write well, it is because you cannot control your hand. We show you how to do this, give you the correct form of letters, and then, if you will practice faithfully, you will soon become a good writer. We have a skilled penman at the head of the penmanship department in this school.

"AUNT SALLY" DEAD AT 104

New Jersey's Oldest Woman Saw Every Administration Except Washington's.

SHE KEPT UP WITH THE TIMES.

Mrs. Sarah Hall Doremus, Who Passes Away In Newark, Took a Lively Interest In All Current Events.

Mrs. Sarah Hall Doremus, the oldest woman in New Jersey, affectionately known as "Aunt Sally," died yesterday afternoon at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Thomas Linnett, 26 Osborne Terrace, Newark, of old age. Had she lived until August 13 she would have been 105 years old.

She had been failing for the last three months, but it was not until two weeks ago that it became certain that her long life must come to an end in a short time. When Dr. Charles Young, who had been her physician for the last quarter century of her life, told Mrs. Doremus that the end was not far distant "Aunt Sally" replied cheerfully that it was time.

She was born in Spring Valley, N. J., August, 1803, the daughter of an Englishman, Philip Hall. When she was 7 years old her parents moved to Saddle River, N. J., where in 1824 she married John A. Doremus, of Parsippany. There on a large farm she lived until two years ago. Her husband died more than twenty-five years ago. In 1906 she went to Newark to live with her daughter, Mrs. Sarah A. Broadwell.

Mrs. Doremus had the attribute, rare in extreme old age, of living to the end in the present rather than the past. She showed a deep contemporary interest and kept herself well informed on the events of the day. Automobiles, when first introduced, interested her greatly, and two years ago she took a ride in one, showing no fear and apparently enjoying the experience. More recently airship experiments aroused her interest and she read accounts of them closely.

But "Aunt Sally" also had a fund of reminiscences to relate, though she rarely did so unless drawn out. She had never looked her age, and until the end retained all of her faculties.

Until comparatively recently she walked fair distances without perceptible effort, was erect in carriage, and more vigorous than the average woman of 80. She attributed her long life to simplicity of living, open air exercise, and to taking interest in the every-day affairs of life. No person ever saw her bored.

Napoleon Bonaparte was no mere name of history to Mrs. Doremus. She was 13 years old when Waterloo was fought. It was "Aunt Sally's" boast that the only President in whose term of office she did not live was George Washington. She was born in John Adams' second term.

Her vigor during her last illness surprised her physicians. Unconscious, and at times seemingly dead, still her will would not yield.

"I could not understand how she managed to live since last Saturday," said Dr. Young yesterday. "She had no strength and had taken no sustenance in many days, yet her belief that she would live was strong."

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Broadwell, Mrs. Doremus leaves a son, Abraham Doremus, who lives on the farm at Parsippany. He is 80 years old. Mrs. Broadwell is 73. There are seven grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren living.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Linnett.

Tells of Work at Northfield.

William D. Murray, who has just returned from Northfield, Mass., where he attended the summer conference now in session there, spoke at the prayer-meeting in Trinity Reformed church, last night, giving an interesting description of the work at this well-known religious centre, which was established years ago by the late Dwight L. Moody. Mr. Murray gave an account of a single day at Northfield, telling of the great help and encouragement received there through religious instruction given by learned divines and others, as well as through the recreation obtained in that beautiful mountainous country.

Arrested for Assault.

William Ruhl, of Dunellen, who is charged with assault and battery by Howard Bird, was served with a warrant by Constable Robert Ierce last night. He was released in his own recognizance to appear before Judge R. P. F. Von Minden tonight at 7 o'clock.

BOY'S FACE DISFIGURED BY KICK OF A HORSE

William Brown, the six-year-old son of Walter Brown, a contractor, residing at 1655 South Second street, was kicked in the face by a horse owned by Thomas Wearren, of Rock avenue, about 6 o'clock, last night, the whole lower part of the cheek being cut open. At first it was thought that the lad's jaw was broken, but an examination at the hospital, where he was taken, showed that no bones were fractured. The wound is a severe one, however, and the boy will be disfigured for life.

The lad was standing near the horse at the time, when he suddenly raised his hind foot and let it drive full force, striking him in the face. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken with all possible haste to the hospital. His condition at first was such that it was feared that the injury would prove fatal, but the boy responded to prompt treatment and it is now believed that he will recover.

MYSTERY STILL SURROUNDS MURDER OF JOHN BUSSI

Much mystery still surrounds the murder of John Bussi, who was foully attacked and killed by a strange negro in his home near Mount Bethel several months ago, and whose wife was also badly injured at the same time by the same assailant. A few days ago a strange negro appeared in the neighborhood of the Bussi home with a satchel in his possession. When arrested he did not have the satchel and could not explain satisfactorily where he had left it. He was taken before Mrs. Bussi, who was unable to identify him as the murderer of her husband and her own assailant, and he was forthwith released.

County Detective George D. Totten, of Somerville, is still busy on the case and yesterday he returned from Goshen, N. Y., with a negro who had been arrested there by the authorities on suspicion that he may have been the man wanted for the Bussi murder. It is said he answers pretty well the description sent out of the assailant. The man was arraigned before Justice Sutphen in Somerville and was lodged in the county jail, pending identification by Mrs. Bussi.

Detective Totten and other Somerset county officials have arrested a half dozen or more negroes and lodged them in the county jail since the murder, on suspicion that they may have had a hand in it. As soon as Mrs. Bussi failed to identify them they were released.

"UNCLE JIM" TRIES SUICIDE IN NEW BRUNSWICK JAIL

James Nolan, who was arraigned before Judge Runyon Monday morning on a charge of drunkenness and escaped punishment by making a novel appeal for leniency, must have proceeded directly from this city to New Brunswick and celebrated his release by getting gloriously drunk. He was arrested in that city Monday night as he was belaboring pedestrians on Albany street with a stout cane because they had refused his appeals for money. He was so far gone with booze that a water wagon had to be pressed into service to get him to jail.

Nolan, or "Patsy Kelley," as he called himself in New Brunswick, had no more been put in a cell than he attempted suicide by hanging himself with his belt. He was unconscious when discovered and had to be removed to St. Peter's Hospital. He recovered yesterday but immediately threatened to take his life at the first opportunity and the doctors had the police take him back to jail. He was arraigned before Recorder Watson this morning and got a fifteen days' sentence.

Nolan is seventy-two years old and is one of the oddest characters the local police have ever had to deal with. He claims Newark as his home but wanders all over the State and generally manages to pick up a lot of loose change by singing or giving recitations. He has the typical deep voice of a tragedian, uses excellent English and is exceptionally witty. He refers to himself as "Uncle Jim" whenever addressing anyone.

PYTHIANS TO MEET AT HUB

Plainfield to Be Represented at Biennial Convention of the Order at Boston.

FOR A TEN DAYS' SESSION.

Governor Guild to Review Parade—Souvenir Badge Adopted—Boston to Extend a Royal Welcome.

Plainfield will be represented at the biennial convention of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, which will convene in Boston on the first Tuesday in August, and will remain in session about ten days. The slogan now is "Pythians, on to Boston."

All good Pythians throughout the domains of the United States will respond to this call with alacrity. The biennial encampment of the Uniform Rank will also be held in Boston during the week of August 3, and will be the greatest assembly of Pythians that the order has ever known. Lodges throughout the country are organizing Boston Clubs, and it is safe to make a prediction that the attendance at this encampment will eclipse that of any previous event.

The city of Boston is preparing a royal welcome for the Knights who are to be her guests on this occasion. Boston will dispense true New England hospitality and Pythians will have the freedom of the city Boston proses to do herself proud on this occasion, and members of the order who journey to her domain will truly have the time of their lives.

As this is the greatest Pythian assembly since the inception of the order, so it is that the parades will be the greatest Pythian demonstration ever witnessed. The military parade, with more than 18,000 members of the Uniformed Rank in line, will take place on Tuesday, August 4. On the following day, Wednesday, the monster parade of Pythian lodges will take place. Major General Arthur J. Stobbert will command the military parade, and Geo. E. Wragg, of Boston, will be the chief marshal of the lodge parade.

The lodge parade will be reviewed by Curtis Guild, Jr., Governor of Massachusetts, and George A. Hibbard, Mayor of Boston, and the Supreme and Grand Officers of the various domains. Boston Lodge, No. 3, the oldest lodge in Massachusetts, will act as escort to the Chief Marshal. It is estimated that there will be 25,000 men in the lodge parade.

On August 5 a field inspection review and competitive drill will take place, open to all companies of the Uniform Rank, for which $15,000 in prizes will be competed for.

Large delegations of Pythians, including companies of the Uniform Rank, will arrive in Boston from Seattle, Wash., Southern California and Southern Texas, in time for the parade; as a forerunner, two Pythian Knights left Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23, driving a team of four goats, who have attained a Pythian record for traveling and are scheduled to reach Boston by July 25. The Pythians at every town or city turn out in force and give brothers and Pythian goats a right royal welcome, and it is hoped that the goats will be in good condition on their arrival at Boston, and be prepared to assist in Pythian work.

A souvenir badge has been adopted.

Boston has long been recognized as the "Hub" of the universe and the centre of the lower medallion typifies this idea. To the left is "Bunker Hill Monument," the famous land mark of the celebrated battle in 1775. To the right is shown the "Old State House" which is held famous for its importance in the days of stirring times, and at the bottom, "Faneuil Hall" the cradle of liberty.

All lodges, societies and clubs of every organization will keep open house during the convention and assist in making the Supreme Lodge convention a lasting memory. The merchants and citizens of Boston will make an effort to illuminate and decorate the city that will be hard to excel.

Shortest Session of District Court.

The shortest session in the history of the local district court was held this morning, when the business was disposed of in fifteen minutes by Judge Clark Whitemore, who presided in place of Judge Newcorn, the latter being in charge of the former's court at Elizabeth by previous arrangement. There was several cases on the calendar for today, but by consent of the court and counsel everything was laid over for one week.

Rev. Charles Gilbert Mallery, pastor of the Reformed church, at Rhinebeck, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church on Sunday morning.

DRIVER IS FATALLY HURT

VICTIM IS IN THE HOSPITAL.

Sampson Is Forty Years Old and Unmarried—Horses' Dash Away and Man Is Thrown Under Wagon's Wheels.

Sampson Gibson, employed as a driver by George J. Tobin, of North avenue, was thrown off a wagon at the freight house this morning and was injured to such an extent that the physicians in charge at the hospital, where he was taken, believe his chances for recovery are slight. Two ribs were broken and there are other internal injuries so severe that until noon the physicians were unable to make an examination.

Gibson was sent to the freight house to get a shipment of goods. The team of horses he was driving became frightened at something and started to run away. The man was on the wagon at the time and the sudden dash of the team threw him off and the wheels passed over his body. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, carried to the freight house and the ambulance was summoned at once to remove him to the hospital. In the meantime, someone caught the team a short distance away, preventing further damage.

During the five months that Gibson has been employed by Mr. Tobin he had a good reputation for sobriety and honesty. Prior to that time he lived in New York. He is about forty years old and unmarried. Little is known of his relatives.

THREE KEGS OF BEER SAVED AT NOON-DAY FIRE

A barn located in the rear of 1331 Lake street and used as an Italian boarding house, was practically destroyed by fire at noon today. A couple of other buildings close by threatened to join in the blaze and they were saved only by quick work on the part of the firemen. Chief Doane estimates the loss at $700. The place was owned by Nicholas Martone.

The fire was discovered by Joseph Clark, who was acting as driver for Chief Doane today, while he was waiting near a couple of buildings on Watchung avenue. He noticed smoke pouring out of windows and immediately turned in an alarm from box 27. When the apparatus reached the scene the structure was burning from top to bottom. One corner of the place was used as a store and the remainder was occupied by bunks filled with straw in place of mattresses. The firemen had to break into the building as everything was locked up.

In trying to save something from the store part, three kegs of beer were rolled out, giving evidence that the occupants were either going to have a house party or else a "speak easy" has been conducted on the premises. Chief Doane learned nothing as to what caused the fire.

Who Will Help the Baby Camp?

The King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain is now open and at present there are thirty-five children and mothers being cared for there. Mrs. Bird, matron of The Day Nursery, is in charge. The urgent need for the camp of necessity compelled the King's Daughters to open it earlier than usual, and in consequence there is immediate need of supplies and cash to maintain it during the summer. Anyone desiring to contribute to this worthy charity can send the same either to The Daily Press or Mrs. Anna M. Most, of Myrtle avenue, who is treasurer of the organization.

Blasphemer Gets Thirty Days.

Edward Garabrand, a one-armed mendicant, was arrested by Patrolman Charles Flynn, last evening, as he was berating people on Park avenue who refused to give him a hand-out. When the officer arrived, the air was blue with cuss words and the flow continued even after Garabrand was on the way to Sycamore street. When arraigned this morning he had no excuse to offer for his conduct and Judge Runyon sent him down for thirty days.

74 Miles an Hour His Limit.

Claiming that his extreme limit was never over seventy-four miles an hour, John W. Masurey, of New York, refused to be sworn at his hearing before Justice Housell in New Brunswick, yesterday, on a charge of running his auto eighty-one miles an hour while en route to Sea Bright, his summer home, two weeks ago. Decision was reserved for two weeks for further investigation.

SILAS DEWEY DRAKE DEAD

Realty Boomer of Extraordinary Enthusiasm Suddenly Succumbs to Paralysis.

WAS WOUNDED IN CIVIL WAR.

He Operated Successfully In Union and Middlesex Counties For Years and Was Held In High Esteem By Countless Friends.

Silas D. Drake, well known throughout New Jersey, died at his home in Bound Brook at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon of paralysis. He had been about until a few days ago and the news of his death came as a great shock to all who knew him.

Mr. Drake, who was 63 years old, was the son of James F. Drake, who published the Elizabeth Journal when that paper was a weekly periodical. At the age of 16 he joined Captain Harris' company, Fourteenth New Jersey Volunteers, and saw considerable active service during the Civil War. At the battle of Winchester, Va., he was wounded in the arm. He was one of the originators of the town of Lincoln, N. J., and was in turn postmaster and Mayor of that place. He also founded the town of Lorraine, this State.

Mr. Drake had for years been a unique character. He was intensely patriotic and always peculiar in his exhibitions of that sentiment. He was exceedingly pugnacious in his public views and always argumentative. His brother, J. Madison Drake, who formerly commanded the Third Regiment, National Guard, and who organized and commanded the Veteran Zouaves of Elizabeth, is a man of the same character. In former years both were happiest when they were in hot water. J. Madison Drake started the Elizabeth Leader and was connected with other local newspaper enterprises. The great achievement of Silas Drake was the establishment of an ambitious town in Union county. He devoted all his time and boundless enthusiasm to booming it, and was virtually the whole government. The enterprise lagged, but not by any fault of his. Manufacturers were invited to locate and offered free sites, but they did not avail themselves to any extent of the flattering offers. One day the town of New Orange went into bankruptcy and was sold out by the Sheriff. But as a town founder Mr. Drake was indefatigable. In character he was sincere and honest though impulsive and erratic. The name of Silas Drake is a familiar one throughout Union county and particularly in Elizabeth, where he has for years been a well-known character.

Mr. Drake leaves a widow, three sons and three brothers. The sons are Louis L. Drake, of Orange; Edward R. Drake, of St. Louis, and Arthur Drake, of Bound Brook. The brothers are General J. Madison Drake and Edward K. Drake, of Elizabeth, and Charles Drake, of Cranford.

ANOTHER BIG EXCURSION TO ASBURY PARK TODAY.

Favored by delightful weather conditions, the annual excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-schools, of this city, and the Dunellen Presbyterian church Sunday-school left this morning for Asbury Park. There was one train made up of fifteen coaches, thirteen of which were filled, in charge of Conductor William Brightman and Engineer William Huff.

Although the train was advertised to leave at 8:15 o'clock it was a little later before the excursionists got away. There was every indication that the day at the shore would be a fine one and in consequence the patronage was large. Returning tonight the train will leave the shore at 6:30 and should reach here about 8 o'clock.

FUNERAL OF CALVIN SUTTON.

Service at His Late Home Attended By a Large Gatherings of Relatives and Friends.

The funeral of Calvin Sutton, who died Sunday after a lingering illness, was held yesterday afternoon at his late home on Chatham street. It was conducted by Rev. Mr. Rockwell, a retired pastor of the borough, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including a delegation from Local 480, of the Painters Union. During the service Elmer D. Cutting rendered two selections. The floral tributes were numerous and included a set piece from the painters.

Burial was made in the North Plainfield cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: James Huntington, George Mehl, Jr., Howard Woolston, Joseph and Jacob Blimm and Joseph Martin.

COLORED MAN SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES IN HOSPITAL

William Watt, colored, aged about forty years, who was found at Dunellen on Friday night, July 10, suffering from a broken arm, which he claimed was the result of being struck by a train at that place, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday night, but not as a result of his injuries. His death was due to an intestinal trouble of long standing.

When the man was found lying alongside the New Jersey Central tracks at Dunellen by Marshal Blaine, he said that he had been riding on a coal train and that when he jumped off a passenger train came along and he was struck on the arm. Further inquiry revealed the fact that Watt resided in New York, was a cook and had been in search of work. He leaves a mother in Washington and a sister, who resides in Philadelphia. They have been informed of his death and will probably arrange to take care of the body.

AUTOMOBILE DESTROYED IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

A small, frame automobile house belonging to Rowland H. Leveridge, located on his father's premises at 828 Sherman avenue, caught fire at 12:20 this morning and was totally destroyed. With it was consumed an auto runabout valued at $850 and which was beyond saving when the flames were discovered. The loss on the building is placed at $150 with no insurance.

Mr. Leveridge had been riding in the machine last night and returned home shortly before 12 o'clock. He remained in the house reading for about fifteen minutes and then went to the kitchen for a drink of water, when he noticed the blaze through a window. A neighbor had noticed it at about the same moment and telephoned an alarm to the West End fire house. Chief Doane accompanied the chemical engine in responding and while they were on the way to the scene, some one pulled box 79 at Grant and Sherman avenues, bringing the steamer and part of the apparatus from headquarters. The building was wrapped in flames when the first relay arrived and the automobile was nothing but a bunch of twisted machinery.

Mr. Leveridge is at a loss to account for the fire as everything was all right when he put the machine up for the night. He lighted no matches while inside and refrained from smoking until he went to the house.

KILLS EDITOR-PREACHER

Rev. S. B. D. Prickitt, Retired Methodist Minister, Murdered by Archibold Herron.

SLAYER IS SENT TO PRISON.

After Shooting Goes to His Home, Where, With Revolver, He Defies Posse for Hours.

Following his arrest charged with killing the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt, a retired Methodist clergyman, by shooting him almost in front of his home at Metuchen, Archibald Herron, who is said to have been seeking revenge for what he deemed a wrong done him when Mr. Prickitt, as Recorder, two years ago, sent him to prison for ten days, will today be arraigned at Metuchen. Herron was lodged in the county jail at New Brunswick for the night, after he had for hours kept at bay a posse with his revolver.

The Rev. Mr. Prickitt had just left his home to go to the village when he met Herron in the road. Although no one seems to have witnessed the shooting, Mr. Prickitt's son, Charles, who was in the clergyman's house at the time, heard a shot and rushed out to find Herron standing within a few feet of his father. Mr. Prickitt staggered and fell forward into his son's arms as the latter dashed into the road. Herron, with a revolver in his hand, stood watching the dying clergyman and then turned and started down the road.

"Let him go, Charlie," the elder Prickitt whispered to his son. That was his last utterance. He died fifteen minutes later in his own house.

Herron was found a little later in his own home, and kept the police at bay with his revolver for several hours. He was finally arrested and lodged in jail, where he burst into a tirade against the dead minister, and also against the town marshal of Metuchen, declaring that he had been hounded by the two men without cause, and sent to jail at one time on a charge of intoxication.

It was said at Metuchen that there was no ground for Herron's statements. Neither Mr. Prickett nor Enos Fouratt, the town marshal, it was said, had ever molested Herron, except under stress of his bad behavior, which made it necessary to put him under restraint for a short time.

No threat against the clergyman was ever heard from Herron until nine months ago, more than a year after he had served the ten day sentence. Last autumn, however, Herron, who is reported to have been drinking heavily at the time, was loud and bitter in his denunciations of Mr. Prickitt, and declared he would have revenge. He repeated the threat with increasing frequency thereafter, until friends of the clergyman began to be alarmed.

Mr. Prickitt was sixty-eight years old and a pensioner on the list of superannuated clergymen of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. For ten years he had been editor of the Metuchen Recorder, a small weekly, and was one of the most highly regarded men in that part of New Jersey.

Intrenched behind a bed in the second floor Herron, when cornered in his home, called down that he would kill the first man who appeared. Constable Cornish started to dash up the stair, but was held back by his companions. The men then held a protracted parley with Herron, and told him they were going to take him dead or alive, and he might as well surrender.

This was interrupted by the sounds of a shot, which came near precipitating a rush upon Herron, but it resulted in his surrender, for he had discharged his pistol accidentally, pinching his flesh in the trigger. This seemed to take his courage and he agreed to come down and surrender.

"Mayor" Kuntz Entertains.

Joseph Kuntz, "mayor" of Berkeley Heights, and one of the most public spirited citizens of that thriving community, entertained about twenty-five friends at "Pine Tree Inn," last night. After the guests had thoroughly enjoyed a fine chicken supper prepared under the personal direction of the "mayor," there was an informal musical program, including vocal selections by Charles Benedict and Sol. Sayles, who possess exceptional tenor voices. The affair was concluded about 10:30 o'clock, when the guests departed thanking the "mayor" for his generous hospitality.

An American Wins.

London, July 16.—Martin Sheridan, of the Irish-American Athletic Club won the final of the discus throw at the Olympic games today. He made 134 feet 2 inches. Giffin was second, with a throw of 133 feet 6½ inches. Horr was third, with 129 feet 5 inches.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

WESTFIELD.

A gasoline stove exploded on the second floor of the building owned by William Bischel, on Elmer street, Westfield, Tuesday afternoon and set the house on fire. Mrs. William Guilfoil, who was near the stove when it exploded, was so badly frightened that she collapsed and had to be carried from the blazing room. Before the fire department could put out the fire the second story was burned out. The loss to building and furniture will amount to about $1,200, partly covered by insurance. While the fire was in progress a line of hose was laid across the Central Railroad tracks at the Central avenue crossing and an engineer of a coal train, not seeing the hose in time, ran his locomotive over it. It was with difficulty that the angry firemen were kept from mobbing the engineer.

Fruit and crops in general about Westfield have suffered severely for want of rain the past week, and though the high wind accompanying the shower Tuesday did considerable damage, the rain more than made up for it. Corn suffered most. In many fields the wind laid it flat on the ground.

William McHarg, of Park street, Westfield, is ill at his home as the result of stepping on a rusty nail that penetrated his foot through the instep of his shoe. His physicians are doing their utmost to prevent lockjaw.

Fred C. Decker will be in charge of the Westfield contingent on the county Republican outing, August 8. He is chairman of the Westfield committee.

Ground for the new Fourth ward schoolhouse was broken yesterday. W. S. Jimmerson, a local mason, has a sub-contract for the mason work.

LACKAWANNA MAY FIGHT SWITCH ORDER.

Summit, July 16.—The Lackawanna Railroad Company will appeal to the United States Supreme Court, it is understood, from the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission directing the Lackawanna to construct on or before September 1, 1908, and thereafter maintain two switches at Summit, giving the Rahway Valley Railroad's rails connection with the Lackawanna's tracks, for the handling of freight traffic.

Elmer L. McKirgan, counsel for the Rahway Valley, has served a certified copy of the commission's decision upon the Lackawanna. The latter's appeal, it is understood, is to be based upon the contention that the section of the Hepburn act, under which jurisdiction was assumed, was not properly construed, and further, that the Rahway Valley Railroad did not prove the existence of the special specified circumstances required under the act. These conditions are:

That such switch connection shall be reasonably practical; that it can be put in with safety, and that enough business shall be supplied to justify the construction and maintenance of such switch connection.

The commission held that these conditions had been shown to exist and apply, and thereupon issued the mandatory direction.

—City Engineer A. J. Gavett is now awaiting the arrival of the material to be spread on North and Park avenues, which will be expected to hold the dust down. He hopes to commence the work of spreading it this week.

Bob Peterson, the Providence catcher, bids fair to rival Billy Keeler, of the Yankees, as one of baseball's noted real estate manipulators. While Keeler owns some valuable pieces of property in Brooklyn, which he acquired by his earnings on the diamond, Peterson has been buying up land for the past five seasons in Philadelphia, which city is his home.

When Peterson returns to the Quaker City after the 1908 season, he expects to put in a busy winter in superintending the erection of a row of dwellings. Peterson is credited with having a shrewd business head for putting through real estate bargains, and he invariably cleans up a few thousand on the side in this way during the cold weather season.

Friends of Jimmy McAleer, in Youngstown, O., have raised a pool of $1,000 to bet that St. Louis will win the American League pennant.

A crowd of 20,738 persons witnessed the double-header between Boston and Detroit at the Hub City yesterday. It was a record crowd for the Boston grounds this season.

Jimmy Jones, of Montreal, is making a strong bid to carry off the batting honors of the Eastern League this season. The prospective sheriff of London County, Ky., has been hitting the ball with great regularity, and at present has an average of .308 for seventy-six games. He is credited with eighty-four hits, including three home runs, one triple and seven doubles.

Charley Wagner is putting up an exceptionally fast game at shortstop for the Boston Americans, and papers in the American League circuit call him "Honus No. 2." In the doubleheader against Detroit yesterday Wagner accepted eleven chances without an error. He is also hitting the ball well, having an average of .243.

Manager Gene McCann, of the Skeeters, is making efforts to land an infielder. He is negotiating with the Boston and Detroit American League clubs for a player.

According to a report from Rochester Al Buckenberger has been offered the management of the St. Paul team, now cellar champions of the American Association. The team is now managed by Tim Flood.

President P. T. Powers, the other day, said that the movement to raise a Father Chadwick memorial fund, with which to have erected a suitable monument for the late patriarch of the national game, is not dead by any means. On the contrary, the project will be revived by the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs in New York next fall. Powers already has received a number of pledges and subscriptions for the fund and stands ready to hand them over to that body when it takes action in the matter.

Hughy Jennings, according to the Buffalo Evening Times, picks the Bisons to win the Eastern League pennant, and names Providence as his second choice.

GOLF.

Although hard pressed by H. Chandler Egan, of the Louisville Country Club, Kenneth P. Edwards retained his lead in the qualifying round of the Western amateur championship tournament, the second eighteen holes of which were played over the Arsenal links Tuesday. Egan registered a total of 74 for his round Tuesday, coming within a stroke of equaling the record score of 73, made Monday by Edwards. Edwards got a total of 79 Tuesday, which with his good record figures for the first round gave him a total of 152 for the thirty-six holes.

Friends of Harry Vardon on the other side have been sympathizing with him over his recent loss. Not long ago his house at Totteridge was beoken into and many valuables removed, including his four open championship medals as well as the one he won in this country.

Before the start of another golf season the Richmond County Country Club will be in possession of one of the longest eighteen-hole courses in the East. The never ending advance of real estate makes another change imperative at the country club, but the shift will prove beneficial rather than otherwise.

As the matter now stands, the first seven holes, including the famous "Wee Drop," will be abandoned at the end of the fall. Work, however, is already under way on new land which will offer advantages that have always been missed on the present outward holes. The new land makes it possible for several long holes, but Jack Pearson said yesterday that several would have to be cut down from the distances originally planned, otherwise the playing length would be more than 6,500 yards for the full round—a trifle too long.

Under the present arrangement there are a number of long walks between greens and tees which will be done away with when the new holes have been added. The greens have already been laid out and seeded down, and the new course will be put into commission next spring.

Richmond County golfers have ever mourned the fact that they have been unable to win the Staten Island championship, but with such an attractive course as they will be able to boast of in future the chances are that good players will join the club, and incidentally increase the chances of the Dongan Hills organization.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, will take his vacation during August.

During the summer the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church is meeting on Wednesday night, the time of the regular prayer service.

The arrangement of the supplies for the First M. E. church during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, on his vacation is in the hands of James R. Joy and as soon as completed they will be announced.

The supplies at the Park Avenue Baptist church during August will be as follows: August 2, Rev. G. M. Shott, Newark; 9, Rev. O. T. Steward, Roxborough, Philadelphia; 16, Rev. F. W. Lockwood, Pittsfield, Mass.; 23, Rev. Asa R. Dilts, Lowell, Mass.; 30, Rev. Judson Conklin, Trenton.

In justice to itself, the New York Times should transfer its news of the progress of the New York-Paris auto contest to its humor columns.

We'll venture the assertion that the excise probers will find some places where the Bishops' law is more disregarded than at Paterson. Just wait until Charles Joel gets at 'em in Atlantic City for instance.

"Jim" Smith has the laugh on "Bob" Davis again. The Jersey City boss is a member of the committee to notify W. J. B. that he has been nominated to stay at his Nebraska home after the election of W. H. T.

It was a lucky day for Middlesex county when Judge Booraem assumed his duties. The size of the punishment he meted out to the "Black Hand" criminals might well be emulated by a fellow jurist not a thousand miles away.

As the Trenton True American is a pretty good sort of a paper, we've been wondering why it is in the hands of a receiver. The reason why is clear now. If you look at the top of its editorial column you will see, "For President, William J. Bryan." Is that enough of a hoodoo?

James E. Martine should have been born and lived in the West. If fortune had thus favored him, the Farmer Orator would have long since reached the United States Senate.—Elizabeth Times.

If such had been his lot, we would have missed a most loveable and picturesque character.

Robert S. Hudspeth, chairman of the State Democratic Committee and member of the National Democratic Committee, gives vent to the unsafe and insane idea that the Democracy of New Jersey has a high and patriotic duty to perform in rallying to Mr. Bryan's candidacy. Will some one please tell us, why a Democrat is duty bound to support a Populist? Mr. Hudspeth has another guess.

The death of Silas Dewey Drake marks the passing of a most original figure in the real estate field in New Jersey. He was original and clever and did a lot of good work but despite it all he never seemed to enrich himself. Probably no other realty boomer in the history of the State gained wider publicity in his day. Drake is dead but the fruit of his efforts lives after him in more than one prosperous community.

NO RAIN FOR 40 DAYS IF PROPHECY HOLDS GOOD

Yesterday was St. Swithin's day and it did not rain, in truth no finer summer's day could be made to order. So if the old tradition is true, there will be no rain for forty days, and the farmers and umbrella makers will vainly rave and gnash their teeth.

St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain,
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain nae mair.

"St. Swithin's day is celebrated on July 15, the anniversary of the translation of his relics. * * * This tradition is founded on a legend that the humble-minded saint had begged to be interred in the open churchyard and not in the chancel of the church (at Winchester, England), as was usual with bishops. Here he remained for over a century, when the monks, thinking it disgraceful that so great a saint should have so lowly a burial place, resolved to move the body into the church. The 15th of July was appointed for the purpose. But on that day a mighty rain storm burst forth and continued for the next forty days. The monks took this as a sign of heavenly displeasure and instead of removing the body they built a chapel over it where it lay.

"Unfortunately for the legend, however, it happens that the formal translation of the relics of St. Swithin from the grave in the churchyard to a magnificent shrine within the cathedral was, in fact, effected on July 15, 971, only 109 years after his death without any meteorological interference."

So it seems it was as difficult, 1,000 years ago, to predict the weather accurately as it is now. Another authority says that "for some unknown reason St. Swithin has been associated in the popular mind with drunkenness," a statement which suggests forty-days on the water wagon.

To return to the lovely weather, yesterday, for about the first time since this summer began, the average temperature was lower than on the corresponding day last year; a splendid day it was.

SHE PLAYED THE PART.

Now Metuchen Is Talking About Amateur Actress.

The whole town of Metuchen is talking today about the performance of amateurs Tuesday night in a production of "The Arabian Knights," a farce comedy. Mrs. Arthur T. Strong, who portrayed the character of a circus girl and who had to smoke a cigarette and drink stage wine and throw her feet on a table and talk toughly, made the greatest hit. She gave a clever character sketch.

While some people were shocked and a minister left the hall during the racy farce, most everybody voted it the greatest amateur show Metuchen has ever had, and it has had a great many.

LIGHTNING KILLS HORSES; PASSES OVER TWO MEN.

Rahway, July 16.—Lightning struck the barn of Charles Mays, in East Rahway, Tuesday night and killed two horses, but spared Mrs. Mays' father, William Drake, and a stableman, who were caring for the animals. The men were alongside the horses when the crash came. The horses were killed instantly.

Mr. Drake was stunned and for a time was paralyzed, but the paralysis proved temporary. He was also hurt by having the body of one of the horses fall on him. The stableman was knocked down but was not stunned and he dragged Mr. Drake from the burning barn, for the bolt set fire to the building.

Mrs. Mays was out for a drive when the storm gathered. She started homeward and was within a block of the barn when it was struck. She said that she seemed to be enveloped in fire, and she supposed the buggy had been struck. That she had a close call was evident later when examination of the vehicle showed that the whip had been split and broken and the whip socket scorched.

The other horses and cattle in the barn were saved, but the hay and grain were destroyed. An automobile which usually was kept in the barn had been removed earlier in the day and this was not burned, although at first it was supposed to have gone with the other contents of the building. The loss is estimated at $4,000, uninsured.

NEW IDEA TICKET.

Names Suggested by Jersey City Committee Ratified.

The central Republican committee, of Jersey City, composed of followers of former Mayor Mark M. Fagan and known as the New Idea faction of the party, met last night at Henkel's Pavilion. The ticket nominated by a committee was ratified and arrangements were made to prosecute an energetic campaign in opposition to the candidates to be placed in nomination by the Regulars. This is the complete ticket:

Sheriff, James W. McCarthy; supervisor, Theodore Haberman; members of Assembly, David F. Lane, Patrick Reardon, Frank S. Kiernan, Dougal Herr, Anton Bleyle, Theodore L. Bierck, Philip Greece, Clarence G. Meeks, William Hindley, Walter Allison, Frank C. Koch, George Mohr; coroner, John D. Crane; street and water commissioners of Jersey City, Andrew J. Knox and George Joers.

All of its candidates were present and declared their intention of making a united fight at the primaries. Former Mayor Fagan made an address which was greeted with applause.

TAFT THANKS MR. LEAKE.

Congressman Eugene W. Leake, of Jersey City, the Democratic representative from the Ninth New Jersey District, who repudiated the nomination of Mr. Bryan and sent a letter to Mr. Taft, offering his services on the stump, received yesterday a reply from Mr. Taft, accepting his offer and thanking him heartily.

Mr. Leake declined to give out the letter for publication. He said he could not do so without first consulting Mr. Taft. Mr. Leake also received a number of letters from all sections of the country. Several from prominent Democrats, commending his course. One letter from an irate constituent, whose name Mr. Leake would not give, said it was rumored that Mr. Leake intended to resign and seek a Republican nomination. Mr. Leake said that this statement was simply ridiculous. He had announced some time ago that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

"Nor will I resign," he added, "in deference to threats and taunts of offended Democrats. While I have repudiated the nomination of Mr. Bryan, I have not abandoned the Democratic Party, nor shall I do so unless it drifts permanently over to Bryanism."

SISTERS ARE WEDDED AT MOTHER'S COFFIN.

Camden, July 16.—Beside the casket, containing the body of their mother, the Misses Laura and Mary Vincellette were recently married by Rev. S. H. Monroe, pastor of Street Methodist church, in accordance with the parent's wishes before she died.

Mrs. Vincellette suffered from an incurable malady, but hoped to live to see her daughters wedded, and preparations for the double ceremony were being completed when Mrs. Vincellette was seized with a mortal attack. Knowing that she had not long to live, she called her daughters, and exacted from them a promise to be married before she was buried. The woman's death occurred a few hours later.

The double wedding was performed in the parlor beside the casket, Miss Mary Vincellette becoming the wife of Elmer Reed, and Miss Laura Vincellette the bride of Paul Hand.

Man and Two Horses Killed.

New Brunswick, July 16.—Martin Dey, forty-five years old, was killed in a thunderstorm at Cranbury Tuesday afternoon. With two other men, employed on the farm of George Wolff, he sought shelter in a wagon shed during a heavy shower. The barn was struck and Dey was killed. Two of four horses in the shed were also killed. Alfred Lawyer, who was working with Dey, was shocked, but escaped death. One of his horses and one of Dey's was killed.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINFIELD AND FANWOOD.

It looks as though the courts would be asked to apportion that $7,500 county road tax between the township and borough, no agreement having as yet been entered into, although several conferences have been held between th township and borough authorities.

A new crosswalk is being laid across Park avenue at the head of Front street. The old walk which has done service for a number of years had got so that it was below the level of the roadbed and in stormy weather was the muddiest part of the road.

George Miller, who has been playing as substitute with the local ball team, will cover left field for the Murray Hill team for the balance of the season.

The greatest game of the season will be Saturday afternoon when the local and Clinton Avenue teams meet again on the home grounds.

Mrs. Frank Hosinger is spending two weeks with relatives in New York.

Miss Isabella Myams is visiting Miss Susie L. Parse of Front street.

Lynus Walpole is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A party of friends surprised Howard Elliot yesterday evening, the occasion being his birtday. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliot, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bowers and their son, Harold; LeRoy Clawson, Harry and Alice Winters, Monroe and May Pyatt, Raymond Payne, Walton Smith, George, Mable and Ethel Pace, Arthur, Charles, Sadie, Louis Randolph and Mrs. Sumner Randolph. Refreshments, games and dancing were enjoyed until after midnight.

The regular meeting of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company will be held tomorrow night. Members are requested to attend.

Mrs. O. Thorne is entertaining Mrs. James Chamberlain and her son and daughter, of Newtown, Pa.

AUTO SERVICE BETWEEN HERE AND BOYNTON BEACH.

The Thompson Auto Company, of Park avenue, has purchased a new twelve passenger automobile wagonette, and commencing today will make non-stop runs between Plainfield and Boynton Beach, leaving Thompson's garage, 413 Park avenue, at 2 o'clock every afternoon, arriving at Boynton Beach at 3 o'clock. A one hour stop-over will be made at the Beach, leaving there at 4 o'clock and arriving in this city an hour later. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays night trips will be made to Boynton Beach, leaving the garage at 7:30 o'clock. A stop-over of an hour and a half will be made at the Beach, arriving home at 10 o'clock. Two trips will be made on Sundays, one at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. When raining the runs will be cancelled.

There is no doubt but that the runs will be popular and well patronized as the fare each way will be nominal and many will desire to take the trip for the auto ride. The trial run was made last night by the way of Oak Tree and Woodbridge and was made in fifty minutes. The return trip was through Rahway and Westfield and was made in one hour. The car was well filled and all had a good time.

Near-Vocalists Kill Sleep.

Residents of North avenue today complained to the police of a nightly annoyance they are submitted to by a delegation of young men who gather in a nearby resort and drive sleep away by discordant singing. One of the complainants stated that unless something was done he would have to change his residence, as he is frequently kept awake until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. He was assured with the others that the near-vocalists would be advised to go to the wods and rehearse.

LOS ANGELES SELECTED FOR 1909 ELKS CONVENTION

Grand exalted ruler, Rush L. Holland; Colorado Springs, Col.

Grand treasurer, Edward Leach, New York.

Grand tyler, Charles E. Decker, Minnesota.

Grand secretary, Fred C. Robinson, Dubuque, Ia.

Los Angeles, Cal., was chosen as the next convention city.

The officers were elected by acclamation with the exception of the grand esteemed loyal knight, A. M. McElwee, of Fort Worth, Tex., who defeated Charles E. Sweet, of Michigan, and grand inner guard, A. M. Taylor, of St. Augustine, Fla., who won from Thomas G. Phalen, of Memphis, Tenn., and John J. J. Grooves, of Port Chester, N. Y.

The selection of the 1908 convention city was hotly contested by Los Angeles and Detroit, the former winning by a fair sized majority. It is estimated that 35,000 people were served with good things to eat and drink at the barbecue yesterday.

Shortly after the opening of the session the Guthrie (Okla.) Lodge, through J. W. Kneisley, presented to the grand lodge a beautiful American flag, prominence being given by the speaker to the forty-sixth star, representing Oklahoma. Great applause followed the presentation and acceptance.

The annual report of the grand exalted ruler, John K. Tener, of Charleroi, Pa., shows that during the year lodges received by affiliation or initiation 46,345 members, 264 were suspended or expelled, 3,208 were stricken from the rolls for non-payment of dues, 5,368 demitted and 2,718 died.

Fifty-four new lodges have been added to the list, with an increase of 29,789 in membership, making the total number of lodges today 1,125, with a total membership of 284,321.

The report shows that ninety-eight members of the grand lodge have died since the Philadelphia meeting.

The grand treasurer's report under date of June 10, shows a balance on hand of $100,029. Total receipts were $224,515, with disbursements of $124,485.

The report of the grand trustees deals with the Elks' National Home at length, showing but one death during the last year, thirty-two residents at the home and the average age of such residents at sixty-four years.

A "session of sorrow" for deceased members was held yesterday.

DR. GROSZMANN HONORED BY AM. ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

The American Academy of Medicine, which is associated with the American Medical Association, at its meeting held in Chicago, appointed Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, of Watchung Crest, an associate member. This appointment has peculiar significance, as Dr. Groszmann is not a practicing physician and in order that it might honor him it was necessary for the society to change its bylaws, which required two years' time.

The change in the bylaws was proposed at the meeting of the society in Boston, at which time Dr. Groszmann made an address on the treatment of exceptional children, being a pioneer in this work in this country. It was for the purpose of admitting this leader of child study research into the Academy that the change of bylaws was made and Dr. Groszmann has just received notice of his appointment. Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, of New York, the leader in the fight against tuberculosis, proposed his name.

Dr. Groszmann has also been reappointed by the Department of Special Education of the National Educational Association at its recent convention in Cleveland which he attended, as chairman of the committee whose purpose it is to prepare a plan for the study of the problem of the exceptional children.

CAMP HOPE MEMBERS ENTERTAIN MANY VISITORS.

The boys enjoying out-door life at Camp Hope, located at Washington's rock, were kept busy all day yesterday entertaining visitors. Fully a score of fond mothers and other relatives, together with numerous friends, made the journey to the mountain plateau and gained an insight to camp routine. Many of them remained for dinner and a number stayed over for supper last night.

Rev. L. R. Howard joined the boys today and he has arranged a number of cross country trips for the remainder of the time. This afternoon the campers walked to Martinsville and tomorrow they will enjoy a junket to Stirling. So far, the health of all the juveniles has remained good and the only accident reported is a bang in the eye that Percy Giddes got last night from a baseball thrown by Willie Marsh.

Among those at the camp yesterday were Mrs. James Penny, Mrs. Joseph Walls, Mrs. James Herron, Mr. and Mrs. David Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. William Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Cratsley, Mrs. Pennington, Joel Pennington, Edwin Howes, Peter C. Sweeney and Philip Braunstein.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A large bell, weighing about a ton, to be used as a fog signal, has been installed at Sharp's Lighthouse at the river front at Paulsboro.

While leading a cow to pasture yesterday Mrs. Jacob Simonson, wife of a farmer on Wheat road, Vineland, was thrown down and dragged by the wrist until one arm was broken.

Peter, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westra, of 89 Paterson street, Paterson, was quite badly injured yesterday afternoon by a falling ladder, which hit the lad on the head and shoulders, rendering him unconscious.

Accused of rifling the suitcase of Joseph Rossie, at an Atlantic avenue hotel, Atlantic City, and taking a diamond stud and other jewelry valued at $700, Geneva Mullen, a Philadelphia girl, was arrested last night and held under $500 bail for a further hearing.

James Heritage, one of the leading business men of Vineland, was stepping into a stall by the side of a spirited horse when he stumbled and fell, frightening the animal so that in its efforts to get away it broke Heritage's collar-bone, jumped on the side of his face and otherwise bruised him.

Adjudged guilty of cruelly beating a horse, Augustus Pitman, of 708 North Twenty-fifth street, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Schmitz in Camden yesterday. John Manning, of the East Side, was fined $5 for wounding a dog belonging to Felix Schill, of 28 North Thirtieth street.

Charles Karkanis, employed at a Paterson confectionery in Main street, while removing a small portable electric fan, yesterday afternoon, from a shelf to a table, got his fingers tangled in the rapidly revolving blades. Four fingers of his left hand were practically shorn of the skin and flesh and the bones were exposed.

Edward Polhamus, of Delmont, who was shot by his daughter Helen when he attempted to murder the family, was reported by the physicians yesterday to be slightly improved, with chances for recovery. The family has requested the authorities to remove Polhamus from the house, as they are in constant fear of their lives while he is near.

Caught in the act of planting a kiss on the cheeks of the niece of his boarding-house mistress yesterday, William Stevenson, of 893 Jefferson avenue, Camden, was so severely reprimanded that he slapped the woman in the face. She had him arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, and he paid the costs before Alderman Rouh. As a witness for the defendant, the niece said she believed that her aunt had no business to interfere.

John Borden, who resides with his wife and little son on a farm between Yardville and Allentown, on a lonely piece of road, had occasion late Monday night to go into his yard, when a negro jumped from a clump of bushes and threw a stone, striking him in the head, after which he dealt him a blow with a club. Borden ran to the house, got a gun and discharged two loads at the fleeing negro. A trail of blood was found yesterday, but no signs of the negro could be found.

Smearing coal tar on the furniture of his home, from garret to cellar, yesterday, Frank Wilmer, of Atlantic City, ruined the household goods, and caused his wife to swear out a warrant for malicious mischief. Rugs, parlor suits and mattresses in beds, together with the carpets and matting on the floor, were practically made worthless. Wilmer refused to make an explanation to Justice of the Peace Williams, who placed him under $1,500 bail, which resulted in his going to jail. Mrs. Wilmer said she had been at odds with her husband for some time.

EDITORS HELD FOR LIBEL.

Philadelphia, July 16.—The four editors and three cartoonists of The Philadelphia North American, headed by E. A. Van Valkenburg, the editor and president of the North American Company, who were last week served with warrants charging them with criminally libeling Mayor Reyburn, of this city, were yesterday held in nominal bail for the next term of court by Magistrate Mecleary.

The hearing lasted less than two minutes. No testimony was taken, the defendants admitting the publications to which the Mayor took exception. Rudolph Blankenburg, a well-known Independent Republican, who has led many reform fights in the city and State, furnished bail for all the defendants.

The Mayor was present at the Magistrate's office and stood in the crowd during the brief proceedings. He was represented by A. S. L. Shields, George S. Graham, and John C. Bell. James Gay Gordon represented the defendants. The publications complained of consisted of one editorial and several cartoons published within the last two years. The Mayor's affidavit says the publications tended to injure his good name and fame and held him up to ridicule.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

The temperance question is one of the uppermost problems occupying the minds of thinking men today. The issue between temperance and intemperance is becoming more direct every day. The fight is on, and the prospect for success along temperance lines was never more promising than today. Over one-half of the United States is already under some kind of prohibition law, and there is no question that many other states will in time give the people a local option law, carrying with it the right of the majority to decide for or against the liquor traffic. Every one who favors this principle has cause for gratitude and hope and may even dream of the day in the no distant future when the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage will be abolished in our entire land. If such a day should ever come (and let us pray and work for it) a long stride will be made toward total abstinence. This will be particularly so among the young. In spite of the best laws the poor unfortunate men who have formed the strong drink habit may find some way of obtaining it in some form. But the young at least will have a much better chance of growing up total abstainers. The open saloon is the supreme place of temptation. Close it and the temptation to become a moderate or intemperate drinker will largely be done away with.

But, while doing all we can through the law, the usual methods of promoting total abstinence should be emphasized, only with greater force.

First.—Public opinion must be aroused and kept aroused. The advocates of the saloon are ever busy. They plead their business interest. But what right has any man to engage in a business that makes many others unfit to attend their business, and as a consequence their wives and children suffer? They harp on the money that they pay for licenses and the revenue that goes from them to the government. They have even been so bold as to declare that the United States government would become bankrupt without the income received from the liquor traffic. All such arguments are nonsense and so understood by thinking people. But so many people let others do their thinking for them that they really believe what is said. Such false claims should be answered by reasonable arguments and the facts in the case. Every one who will visit a prison will find that the large majority of the prisoners are there through intemperance. Paupers, insane persons, orphans and most of those who have to be supported by the state are products of the same traffic. Put the saloon and liquor business off the earth and governments and states would be financially benefited rather than weakened. The people must be made to see these things, and when they do they will rise and drive this curse of all curses from the earth.

Second.—The homes, the church and the Sunday school must continue their good work. The public schools should be included in this list. Training in total abstinence should begin in the home both by precept and example. No matter what parents have been able to do, they have no moral right to tempt their children. The son of a father who drinks moderately at home may fill a drunkard's grave. In thousands of cases has it proved so, and fathers have deeply repented of their carelessness. The church and Sunday school are the greatest temperance organizations in the world. Here moral suasion and pledged total abstinence find their greatest opportunities. The education now given in our public schools is also advancing the number of total abstainers.

Pity the drunkard. Do not make his lot harder by censure and upbraiding. Once he was as bright and hopeful as you, but, alas, in some way he was led astray. Deal with him as you would be dealt with if you should be led into his footsteps. But, above all, be a total abstainer yourself, and do all you can to make others so. You will be tempted. No one escapes under present conditions. You will be no exception. But stand firm by the power and grace of God. You may be so constituted that one glass of any kind of liquor may fire your brain and lead you rapidly to the doom of the drunkard. To please a friend, to be called a "good fellow" by those who will laugh at you behind your back—yea, if the glass be offered in the hand of a fair one, in whose good graces you desire to stand—will you run the risk of becoming a drunkard?

The Way of the Cross.

[Copyright, 1907, by John R. Clements. Used by permission.]

There is a path where pilgrims fare,
Beset with thorn and stone.
Many there be who journey there,
But each one walks alone

The way leads on without the wall
And up a barren hill
Upon whose wind swept slope for all
The cross is waiting still.

Nor tears shall stay the hand of God,
Nor gift nor prayer nor moan.
Many there be who walk that road,
But each one walks alone.

CHORUS.

Yet since He journeyed there one day
When blackening suns grew dim
Many there be who walk that way
And each one walks with Him

"We are getting on."

"Yes, we are getting on, both in years and in folly. What are you doing in a monk's robe? Where is your motley, gay fool?"

"I have laid it aside for the night. On such occasions as this, fools dress as wise men, and wise men as fools; everybody goes about in disguise."

"How would you go about to pick out the fools?"—curiously.

"Beginning with myself—"

"Thy name is also Candor!"

"Look at yonder Cavalier. He wabbles like a ship in distress, in the wild effort to keep his feet untangled from his rapier. I'll wager he's a wealthy plumber on week-days. Observe Anne of Austria! What arms! I'll lay odds that her great-grandmother took in washing. There's Romeo, now, with a pair of legs like an old apple tree. The freedom of criticism is mine to-night! Did you ever see such ridiculous ideas of costume? For my part, the robe and the domino for me. All lines are destroyed; nothing is recognizable. My, my! There's Harlequin, too, walking on parentheses."

The Blue Domino laughed again.

"You talk as if you had no friends here,"—shrewdly.

"But which is my friend and which is the man to whom I owe money?"

"What! Is your tailor here, then?"

"Heaven forbid! Strange, isn't it, when a fellow starts in to pay up his bills, that the tailor and the undertaker have to wait till the last."

"The subject is outside my understanding."

"But you have dressmakers."

"I seldom pay dressmakers."

"Ah! Then you belong to the most exclusive set!"

"Or perhaps I make my own dresses—"

"Sh!" Not so loud. Suppose some one should overhear you?"

"It was a slip of the tongue. And yet, you should be lenient to all."

"Kind heart! Ah, I wonder what all those interrogation points mean—the black domino there?"

"Possibly she represents Scandal."

"Scandal, then, is symbolized by the interrogation point?"

"Yes. Whoever heard of scandal coming to a full stop, that is to say, a period?"

"I learn something every minute. A hundred years ago you would have been a cousin to Mlle. de Necker."

"Or Mme. de Stael."

"Oh, if you are married—"

"I shall have ceased to interest you?"

"On the contrary. Only marriage would account for the bitterness of your tone. What does the Blue Domino represent?"

"The needle of the compass." She stretched a sleeve out toward me and I observed for the first time the miniature compasses woven in the cloth. Surely, one does not rent a costume like this.

"I understand now why you attracted me. Whither will you guide me?"—sentimentally.

"Through dark channels and stormy seas, over tropic waters, 'into the haven under the hill.'"

"Oh, if you go to quoting Tennyson, it's all up with me. Are you married?"

"One can easily see that at any rate you are not."

"Explain."

"Your voice lacks the proper and requisite anxiety. It is always the married woman who enjoys the mask with thoroughness. She knows her husband will be watching her; and jealousy is a good sign."

"You are a philosopher. Certainly you must be married."

"Well, one does become philosophical—after marriage."

"But are you married?"

"I do not say so?"

"Would you like to be?"

"Look at Yon Cavalier, He Wabbles Like a Ship in Distress."

"I have my share of feminine curiosity. But I wonder,"—ruminatingly, "why they do not give masquerades oftener?"

"That is easily explained. Most of us live masquerading day by day, and there might be too much of a good thing."

"That is a bit of philosophy that goes well with your robe. Indeed, what better mask is there than the human countenance?"

"If we become serious, we shall put folly out of joint," said I, rising. "And besides, we shall miss the best part of this dance."

She did not hesitate an instant. I led her to the floor, and we joined the dancers. She was as light as a feather, a leaf, the down of the thistle; mysterious as the Cumaean Sibyl; and I wondered who she might be. The hand that lay on my sleeve was as white as milk, and the filbert-shaped horn of the finger-tips was the tint of rose leaves. Was she connected with the ticket in my pocket? I tried to look into her eyes, but in vain; nothing could I see but that wisp of golden hair which occasionally brushed my chin as with a surreptitious caress. If only I dared remain till the unmasking! I pressed her hand. There was an answering pressure, but its tenderness was destroyed by the low laughter that accompanied it.

"Don't be silly," she whispered.

"How can I help it?"

"True; I forgot you were a fool in disguise."

"What has Romance done to you that you should turn on her with the stuffed-club, Practicality?"

"She has never paid any particular attention to me; perhaps that is the reason."

As we neared the corner I saw the Honorable Julius again. He stretched forth his death's-head mask.

"Beware the ten of hearts!" he croaked.

Hang his impudence! . . . The Blue Domino turned her head with a jerk; and instantly I felt a shiver run through her body. For a moment she lost step. I was filled with wonder. In what manner could the ten of hearts disturb her? I made up my mind to seek out the noble Roman and learn just how much he knew about that disquieting card.

The music ceased.

"Now, run away with your benedictions," said the Blue Domino breathlessly.

"Shall I see you again?" eagerly.

"If you seek diligently." She paused for a moment, like a bird about to take flight. "Positive, fool; comparative, fooler; superlative, foolest!"

After all, there might be any number of blue dominoes in the land; and it seemed scarcely credible that a guest at the Hunt Club would go to a costumer's for an outfit. (I had gone to a costumer's, but my case was altogether different. I was an impostor.) I hunted up Imperial Rex. It was not long ere we came face to face, or, to speak correctly, mask to mask.

"What do you know about the ten of hearts?" I began with directness.

"I am a shade; all things are known to me."

"You may be a lamp-shade, for all I care. What do you know about the ten of hearts?"

"Beware of it,"—hollowly. From under his toga he produced a ten of hearts!

My knees wabbled, and there was a sense of looseness about my collar. The fellow knew I was an impostor. Why didn't he denounce me?

"Is the back of your card anything like this one?"—ironically. "I dare say it isn't. But have your good time, grave monk; doubtless you are willing that the fiddlers shall be paid." And wrapping his toga about him majestically, he stalked away, leaving me staring dumfoundedly after his receding form.

Discovered!

The deuce! Had I been attired like yon Romeo, I certainly should have taken to my heels; but a fellow can not run in a Capuchin's gown, and retain any dignity. I would much rather be arrested than laughed at. I stood irresolute. What was to be done? How much did he know? Did he know who I was? And what was his object in letting me run my course? I was all at sea. . . . Hang the grisly old Roman! I shut my teeth! I would see the comedy to its end, no matter what befell. If worst came to worst, there was always Teddy Hamilton to fall back on.

I made off toward the smoking room, rumbling imprecations against the gods for having given me the idea of attending this masquerade, when it would have been cheaper and far more comfortable to go to the theater.

But as soon as I entered the smoking room, I laughed. It was a droll scene. Here we were, all of us, trying savagely to smoke a cigar or cigarette through the flabby aperture designated in a mask as the mouth. It was a hopeless job; for myself, I gave it up in disgust.

Nobody dared talk naturally for fear of being identified. When a man did open his mouth it was only to commit some banal idiocy, for which, during office hours, he would have been haled to the nearest insane asylum and labeled incurable. Added to this was heat matching Sahara's and the oppressive odor of weltering paint.

By Jove! Only one man knew that the back of my card was unlike the others; the man who had picked it up in old Friard's curio-shop, the man who had come to Blankshire with me! I knew now. He had been there buying a costume like myself. He had seen me on the train, and had guessed the secret. I elbowed my way out of the smoking room. It wouldn't do me a bit of harm to ask a few polite questions of Mr. Caesar of the sardonic laugh.

But I had lost the golden opportunity. Caesar had gone to join the shades of other noble Romans; in vain I searched high and low for him. Once I ran into Hamilton. His face was pale and disturbed and anxious.

"What's the trouble, Hamilton?" I asked, with forced gaiety.

He favored me with a penetrating glance.

"The very devil is the trouble," he growled. "Several of the ladies have begun to miss valuable jewels. Anne of Austria has lost her necklace and Queen Elizabeth is without a priceless comb; altogether, about ten thousand dollars."

"Robbery?" I looked at him aghast.

"That's the word. Curse the luck! There is always something of this sort happening to spoil the fun. But whoever has the jewels will not get away with them."

"What are you going to do?"

"I have already sent for the village police. Now I shall lock all the doors and make every man and woman produce cards for identification,"—abruptly leaving me.

Thunderbolts out of heavens! My knees and collar bothered me again; the first attack was trifling compared to this second seizure. How the devil was I to get out?

I turned instantly. The Blue Domino had come back to me.

"I have been searching for you everywhere," I said gallantly.

"Oh! but that is a black one. Never mind; the fib was well meant."

I led her over to a secluded nook, within a few feet of the door which gave entrance to the club cellars. This door I had been bearing in mind for some time. It is well to know your topography. The door was at the left of the band platform. There was a twin door on the other side. We sat down.

"Have you heard the news?" I asked.

"No. Has some one been discovered making love to his own wife by mistake?"

"It's serious. Anne of Austria and Queen Elizabeth have been robbed of some jewels."

"A thief among us?"

"A regular Galloping Dick. I'm a thief, myself, for that matter."

"You?" she drew away from me a bit.

"Yes. My name is Procrastination."

"Ah, my grave Capuchin, we do not steal time; we merely waste it. But is what you tell me true?"

"I am very sorry to say it is. The jewels were worth something like ten thousand dollars."

"Merciful heavens!"

"It is true, infernally true,"—looking around to see if by chance Caesar had reappeared on the scene (How was I to manage my escape? It is true I might hie me to the cellars; but how to get out of the cellars!) "Have you seen Julius Caesar?" I asked.

"Caesar?"

"Yes, Miss Hawthorne—"

The Blue Domino swung about and leaned toward me, her hands tense upon the sides of her chair.

"What name did you say?"—a strained note in her voice.

"Hawthorne," I answered, taking out the slip of pasteboard. "See! it says that one blue domino was rented of Monsieur Friard at five-thirty this afternoon."

"How did you come by that ticket?" she demanded.

"It was a miracle. I purchased a mask there, and this ticket was wrapped up in my bundle by mistake."

I was confused. "Then I am mistaken?"—my chagrin evident. (All this while, mind you, I was wondering if that cellar-door was unlocked, and how long it would take me to reach it before the denouement!)

"One way or the other, it does not matter," said she.

"Yet, if I could reach the cellars,"—absently. Then I bit my tongue.

"Cellars? Who said anything about cellars? I meant that this is not the hour for unmasking or disclosing one's identity,"—coldly.

"And yet, when Caesar whispered 'Beware the ten of hearts,' you turned and shuddered. What have you to offer in defense?"

"It was the horrid mask he wore."

"Well, it wasn't handsome of him."

"What did you mean by cellars?"—suddenly becoming the inquisitor in her turn.

"I? Oh, I was thinking what I should do in case of fire,"—nimbly.

"That is not the truth."

"Well, no, it isn't. Can you keep a secret?" I whispered.

"If it isn't a terrible one."

"Well, I have no earthly business here. I am an impostor."

"An impostor!"

"Yes. And for the past few minutes, since I heard of the robbery, I've been thinking how I could get out of here upon the slightest notice." While the reckless spirit was upon me, I produced the fatal card and showed the back to her. "You will find that yours is of a different color. But I am not the Galloping Dick; it was only a hare-brained lark on my part, and I had no idea it would turn out serious like this. I was going to disappear before they unmasked. What would you advise me to do?"

She took the card, studied it, and finally returned it. There followed an interval of silence.

"I have known the imposition from the first," she said.

"What!"

She touched the signet-ring on my little finger. "I have seen that once before to-night. No," she mused, "you will not blow up the postoffice to-night nor the police station."

She lifted the corner of her mask, and I beheld the girl I had met in Mouquin's!

"You?"

"Silence! So this is the meaning of your shuffling those cards? Oh, it is certainly droll!" She laughed.

"And are you Miss Hawthorne?"

"I am still in the mask, sir; I shall answer none of your questions."

"This is the finest romance in the world!" I cried.

"You were talking about getting out," she said. "Shall I lend you my domino? But that would be useless. Such a prestidigitator as Signor Fantoccini has only to say—Presto! and disappear at once."

"I assure you, it is no laughing matter."

"I see it from a different angle."

An artist's model, and yet a guest at this exclusive function?

A commotion around the stage distracted us. Presently we saw Teddy Hamilton mount the stage and hold up his hands.

"Attention, ladies and gentlemen!" he called.

Silence gradually fell upon the motely groups of masqueraders.

"A thief is among us. I have had all the exits closed. Everybody will be so kind as to present cards at the main entrance. Three ten-spots of hearts have been tallied on the comparing lists. We have been imposed upon. The police are on the way. Very sorry to cause you this annoyance. The identity of the holders of the cards will be known only to those of us on the committee."

A Supplement to an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance for the assessment of taxes for the year 1908," approved May 4, 1908.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000) as the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district, for the ensuing school year exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools (all amounts apportioned to said school district under and by virtue of Chapter 267 of the Laws of this State for the year 1908 having been applied in reduction of local taxation for said year) and has made two certificates of said amount signed by all the members of said Board of School Estimate, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district, and the other to the Common Council of said city.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled: "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools, and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the sum of Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000) be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purposes aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council, and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year nineteen hundred and eight in the same manner as moneys appropriated for other purposes in this city are required to be assessed, levied and collected.

CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.

HOTEL MAN OBJECTS.

Says Gift to Coleman House Lawn to City Is Illegal.

Notice has been served upon Mayor Appleby, members of the City Council and James A. Bradley by Frank B. Conover, of the Coleman House, Asbury Park, that the lawn in front of the hotel is private property, and while a hotel is maintained upon it cannot be used for a park or for street purposes.

This action follows the action of the Council Monday night when they passed on first reading an ordinance accepting the dedication by James A. Bradley of the ground, now used as a lawn by the Coleman House, and embracing practically all the ground about the hotel not occupied by the building itself.

Originally the land, which belongs to Mr. Bradley, was leased to Sarah Coleman for 999 years upon the yearly rental of $1, and upon condition that a hotel would be erected and the lawn used to beautify it. In case these conditions are violated, it was specified the land should go to the city of Asbury Park to be used as a park.

Baseball and General Sports

BASEBALL.

The West Ends, of Somerville, will have the strong Pennington nine for their opponents at Cammann Field, Somerville, next Saturday afternoon. As there will be no contest at High Bridge, because of a big excursion from there on that day, Kraft and Torpey, the High Bridge battery, have been secured to be in the points for the West Ends against Pennington.

The New Jersey Central baseball team from Jersey City will go to Whitehouse Station on Saturday afternoon to cross bats with the Whitehouse Station A. A.

A. C. Blair Gets the Purse.

The dispute regarding the race at the Driving Park, Fourth of July afternoon, which was won by Adam C. Blair's entry, "Aron B.," has been settled and Mr. Blair has received the purse, $150. The judges made a thorough investigation into the pedigree of the horse and were unable to obtain an information that the animal had ever started in a recognized race and had made a record. Mr. Blair was thoroughly acquainted with the history of the horse when purchased and knew that he was right in entering him in the race on July 4.

TO REDUCE SALOONS.

Samuel Wilson, superintendent of the Civic Righteousness Federation of Hudson county, who has been conducting the crusade against the saloonkeepers who violate the Sunday law, and was an interesting witness before the Excise Commission appointed by Governor Fort, has sent a letter to the commission, in which he recommends:

First—A State Excise Commission, or a direct appeal to the courts to have licenses revoked.

Second—Local option by wards.

Third—The revocation of licenses for failure to obey the law.

Fourth—Fewer saloons in the slum districts.

Fifth—A law forbidding any corporation or individual to hold more than one license, and preventing breweries from running or dominating a string of saloons.

Sixth—The limitation of saloons to one for 1,000 inhabitants where they are authorized by law.

Celebrated Birthday Anniversary.

In honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of Madeline Dorgan, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dorgan, of Spooner avenue, gave a party yesterday afternoon to about fifteen girl friends. The children played games and prizes were awarded Katherine Lynch, John O'Keefe and Ella Guttridge. The young celebrant received a number of gifts. A feature was the playing on the piano by Madeline Dorgan, while the company sang school songs. Those present were Madeline Dorgan, Hazel Todd, Savina Todd, Ella Guttridge, Catherine Lynch, Mary O'Keefe, Helen Bebout, Mabel Jackson, Mary Butcher, Mabel Jackson, Nellie Smith, Kenneth Guttridge, James Strapp, John O'Keefe, Norman Lynch, Francis Keeding, Eugene Caffrey, of this city; Joseph, John and Jerome and Aloysium Willyerding, of Pittston, Pa.

John P. Stevens and family, of Hillside avenue, leave Saturday for Cape Cod, Mass., where they will remain until September.

Mrs. Hugh Hastings, of The Seminary, will leave on Monday for Spring Lake where she will spend the rest of the summer.

Dr. A. F. VanHorn, of West Fifth street, will return on Saturday from Woodburn, N. Y., where he has been spending his vacation.

Miss Harriett Randolph, of Elizabeth, has returned home after a visit of three weeks with Miss Nettie Robinson, of Sandford avenue.

Mrs. L. R. Howard and children, of West Fifth street, left this morning for their summer outing at Kennebec, Me. Mr. Howard will join them on July 23.

Mrs. James R. Blair and children, of Duer street, and Mrs. Adam Blair and son, of Park avenue, leave tomorrow for South Branch, where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. Louise Miller, wife of the late Rev. Robert Miller, of Clinton, Iowa, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Grace Miller, is visiting Mrs. Sarah Randolph and Miss Grace Johnson, of Duer street, sisters of Mrs. Miller.

The condition of J. Howard Leggett, formerly of this city, who recently underwent two severe surgical operations, is slightly improved, and although very weak and emaciated, he is able to sit on the veranda during the day, in charge of his nurse, Mr. Odell, and enjoy the pure bracing mountain air at his home on Western avenue, on the outskirts of Morristown.

TRACKED BY BLOOD STAINS.

Negro Assailant of Jersey Farmer and His Wife Caught.

Blood marks along the trail over which he traveled to make his escape led to the arrest yesterday of Henry Willis, a negro, who tried on Monday to kill John L. Borden, an Allentown farmer, and then attacked Mrs. Borden.

Since the assault a posse of farmers has been searching for Willis and threatening to lynch him if they found him. While the farmers had almost given up the chase County Detective Ellis Parker, of Burlington county, followed Willis by the trail of blood left behind him as the consequence of the injuries inflicted by Borden. Parker captured Willis in the lower part of Burlington county after an all-night hunt. He hustled his prisoner to Trenton to turn him over to the county authorities.

Physicians took eight pieces of lead from Willis' back. He is suffering from a deep gash over the right cheek three inches in length and a wound on the head of a similar character. These are supposed to have been inflicted by a hoe used by Borden.

Removes Pin From Baby's Spine.

Lawrence Cole, seventeen months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Cole, of Bedminster Township, has for four months had a pin in his spine. Dr. M. C. Smalley, of Gladstone, performed an operation on the youngster this week and succeeded in extracting the pin, and now the boy is on the high road to recovery.

Invited to Visit Sea Girt.

The Union County Board of Freeholders has been invited by General Collins of the Second Brigade, National Guard, to visit Sea Girt July 23, at the State camp. The invitation comes from the captains of companies K, C and I. The board will accept, and will probably attend in a body.

MIANTONOMO'S OFFICERS ARE FORMALLY INSTALLED

Deputy Great Sachem John W. Ludgate, assisted by Past Sachems Thomas Parsons and Thomas Connor, installed these officers of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order Red Men, last night: Prophet, George I. Fergerson; sachem, Charles Halliwell; senior sagamore, D. C. Allen; junior sagamore, William Lyons; chief of records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, John Thomas Green; first sannap, Thomas Connor; second sannap, Thomas Parsons; guard of the wigwam, Albert Rhodier; guard of the forest, Frank Leahy; warriors, Peter Sheridan, William Voegel, Frank Kiederling, Christopher Gerlach; braves, Joseph Collins, John Wilson, Samuel Montross and John Hill.

The resignation of Andrew J. Stiglitz was received and accepted, because of poor health, and Mr. Green was put in his place to fill the unexpired term. The tribe received an invitation to visit Nariticong tribe, No. 31, of Somerville, Friday night, July 24, and work the chief's degree. The members will make the trip in a special trolley car.

RESORT FOLK FLOCK TO SEA GIRT CAMP

Last fall when Governor Fort was running for the office which he now holds he ran on a platform declaring for the enforcement of the famous New Jersey "Bishop's bill," which provides for the closing of the saloons on Sundays, and as a result of this part of his campaign he received unusual support from the clergy, regardless of denomination. To show his appreciation of the services of these men he will inaugurate an innovation at the Sea Girt camp by inviting a large number of the wearers of the cloth there as his guests for two weeks from today, which will be the third Governor's day of the encampment.

For next Thursday the guests will be the heads of the various state departments, including the treasurer, comptroller and others, and the various state boards, including the assessors, civil service, taxation, health, forestry, tenement house, water supply and railroad commissions. The new excise investigating board, which has been bringing revelations of law violations to light in all parts of the State, will also be there.

Cornell Murray, the seventeen-year-old son of Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, has taken the fractious horse that threw the Governor off early in the week, and is rapidly bringing the animal around to horse sense. The young man had him out yesterday afternoon and again today, and during evening parade drove him up close to the band. He is rapidly becoming used to the music, and the Governor will probably ride him again next week.

The camp is the Mecca of hundreds of sojourners from nearby resorts every day in the week, and the work of the soldier boys seems to interest the fair visitors, who are much in the majority, as much as the fair visitors interest the soldier boys. The ordinary civilian, no matter whether he be a state official or some well-known person, has not any show when the uniformed men are around. The evening parades attract thousands each night, and many come in automobiles, some in carriages, on the trolleys and trains, and even in farm wagons. A list of those seen each night, put together at the end of the week, would make an excellent social register of the fashionable resorts from Seabright to Point Pleasant.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, who is at Spring Lake with his wife and son-in-law and daughter, is a frequent visitor to the camp grounds, as is Uzal H. McCarter, the president of the Fidelity Trust Company in Newark, who runs down from his summer home on the Rumson road in an automobile. The Governor has a large number of friends at Spring Lake, where he formerly spent his summers, and these are frequent visitors at the camp, also.

The regiment yesterday underwent its usual inspection, under Lieutenant Colonel Charles Boltwood and Major Robert J. Patterson. This afternoon the Governor's review will be held at 4:30, which is three-quarters of an hour earlier than has been the custom in past years. The hour has been set so that the members of the Legislature and others can reach home earlier after the review than they have been able to in the past.

STRIKERS FINED.

Must Pay $2 a Month for Year for Assaulting Non-unionist.

Judge Atwater yesterday sentenced William C. Oberfield, who pleaded guilty to passing worthless checks, to five months in the county jail.

Frank W. Toms, John McDonald and Charles Hoffman, members of the Carpenters' Union, Elizabeth, convicted by a jury of assaulting a non-union carpenter, were sentenced to pay a fine of $2 a month for twelve months and were placed for one year in charge of the probation officer.

EXCISE PROBERS VISIT ELIZABETH JULY 27

Monday, July 27, will be an epochal day in Elizabeth, for Governor Fort's excise investigators, headed by Mayor C. J. Fisk, promise to visit that city on that date. What they will do while in that section is impossible to predict, since their entire official career thus far has been marked by surprises, by original methods of procedure, by uncommonly effective ways of getting at the facts first-hand and not standing on dignity and waiting for witnesses to bring the things before them.

While at Elizabeth the investigators will cover all that section not previously visited north of the Raritan and including New Brunswick. The following Monday they will visit Trenton and afterward Bridgeton, Atlantic City and Asbury Park. At Atlantic City they are expecting a busy time. Mr. Fisk and Mr. Backes have already been there and have long lists of places where the Sunday laws have been violated. The list includes most of the boardwalk hotels. Prosecutor Goldenberg, of Atlantic county, will be subpoenaed.

BLACK HAND CONVICTS THREATEN TRIAL JUDGE

Cery, Filosetto and Denatelli, the Italians sentenced in New Brunswick to twelve years in State prison for sending threatening letters to Rev. Augostino Dassori, of Franklin Park, are in an ugly mood over their sentence. They took it calmly in the Middlesex court on Tuesday morning, but when they reached the jail again, were loud in their imprecations against those responsible for their fate.

Filosetto started it by taking a cigarette from his pocket and saying: "This has got to last me for twelve years."

Then they all got on the job. They made open threats against Judge Booraem when they are released. They were particularly angry because the judge said he gave them the heavy penalty to warn others not to commit similar crimes.

They also promised that when released they would kill Dominick Tenace, the little Italian boy held in jail as a witness, for the murder of whose father Pasquale Delisso is soon to be re-tried.

Dominick, who is a bright lad of fifteen, was in the witness department with Cery before the trial, the "Black Hand" men being separated. Cery gave Dominick a letter to give to Filosetto but the boy gave it to Warden Rogers instead. It was read at the trial where it made a sensation and helped materially to convict the Italians. Cery said in effect: "We must stick together and tell the same story. You must say we got the revolver and blackjack from a tramp we met on the road. If you tell on me I'll tell on you."

Cery did not know Dominick had tricked him until this was read in court.

Yesterday Cery and the others vowed to have the boy's life as soon as they get out of prison. Domonick said he wasn't worrying for he didn't expect to be anywhere within their reach at that time. Warden Rogers was very careful to keep the boy well away from the convicts.

The additional threats made against the Dassoris, of which the Home News told exclusively yesterday, are not thought to be idle by any means and every precaution is being taken to protect the Italian preacher and his family from attack.

Writ of Error.

H. B. Cook, counsel for the Italians, yesterday, filed a writ of error in their behalf, carrying the case to the Supreme Court. It cannot be heard before November.

This means that the men will remain in the Middlesex county jail pending the hearing. Sheriff Church had intended to remove them to the State prison today.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Arizona melons and Georgia peaches, extra fine quality, at Neuman Brothers. Lots of other fruits and vegetables received fresh each day.

—Charles Hall, of Watchung avenue, caused some excitement at the North Avenue station, this morning, when, in attempting to light a cigar the flames set fire to some absorbent cotton which covered an injured thumb. The thumb was wrapped with cotton over which there was a small tin shield. At the instant the inflammable material caught fire Mr. Hall threw off the shield and clapped his hand over the blaze quickly extinguishing it, but not before it burned all the hair off the hand. The incident attracted a crowd of bystanders who thought that Mr. Hall had suffered severe injury.

OUST VOTING MACHINES.

Two More Localities Declare Against the Device.

The vote taken in Morris Township Tuesday for the retention or rejection of the voting machine stood 95 for rejection and 22 for retention.

Although the voting machine was voted away several weeks ago, the election was held at Clayton Tuesday, and when the balots were counted nearly all the votes were found against the machine.

TAX ON CORPORATIONS.

State This Year Will Net Two and One-half Millions.

The third schedule of miscellaneous corporations was filed with the State Comptroller at Trenton yesterday by the State Board of Assessors. The schedule shows the assessments made against 910 corporation from which the State will derive a tax of $170,984.73. There remain yet to be assessed taxes against about 3,000 more corporations.

The State will receive about $2,658,462.10 from the corporations assessed in schedules filed up to date.

Attending Prohibition Convention.

William Lunger, of the borough, as delegate from Somerset county, is attending the tenth Prohibition national convention which opened at Columbus, Ohio, yesterday. No word had been received from Judge Seaborn Wright, of Georgia, as to whether he would accept the Presidential nomination or not. It was stated that the party was organized thirty-six years ago and had spread until today 14,000,000 people live in territory which has outlawed the saloon. Speeches were made yesterday and today denouncing the candidates of the other parties.

Must File Plan of Every Saloon.

The Jersey City Excise Board has directed the inspectors to file plans of every saloon in the city and has had the blank forms prepared with a list of questions for the inspectors to fill out. They must state what obstructions there are to a view of the interior of the saloons and who occupy the rooms over each saloon, if there be any, and what the rooms are used for. It is said that the board will use these plans next year and will deny licenses to every saloonkeeper who does not comply with the law.

TO GET JERSEY JUSTICE

Slayer of Metuchen's Editor-Preacher to Be Placed on Trial Next Week.

GRAND JURY IS SUMMONED.

Prosecutor Berdine at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon issued orders for the Middlesex Grand Jury to return to that city on Monday to consider the murder of Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt, editor of the Metuchen Recorder, who was shot down in front of his house Wednesday by Archibald Herron, now held in jail on a murder charge. It is expected that he will be indicted at that session and that Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen will come there, receive the indictment, take the plea of the prisoner and arrange a date for trial the same week or the week following. According to the program now mapped out Herron is to realize the meaning of Jersey justice.

While Metuchen is mourning the death of the former minister and former borough recorder, the murderer expresses no regret for his act and declares that it will come out later why he did it. He insinuates that others in Metuchen have been hounding him and that the Rev. Mr. Prickitt inflicted a wrong which only a bullet could wipe out.

Several times yesterday afternoon he asked if his wife had called yet. A reporter told him that it was reported in Metuchen that he was a wife-beater and that his wife was through with him.

"It's a lie," he shouted. "I have never ill-treated my wife. I love her and she loves me and she will stand by me in this trouble. I expect her here any minute."

But Mrs. Herron did not call. Toward evening the prisoner became impatient. When a reporter went to the grated door to talk with him the runner told Herron that his wife was at the door. The prisoner hurried out to greet her, and when he realized that the runner had tried a cruel joke he lost his temper, swore and sulked back into his cell.

The autopsy on Mr. Prickitt, which was conducted yesterday by County Physician J. L. Suydam and Coroner Charles R. Moke, assisted by Dr. Alfred L. Ellis, Mayor of Metuchen, showed that death had been caused by the bullet entering and passing through the man's heart. Dr. Suydam found that the bullet had entered the body near the right breast, gone through the heart, struck a rib and was deflected downward. It was found on the left side, just above the waist line and near the surface. It is thought the bullet passed through the liver. It was recovered and found to be a .38-calibre.

That Herron planned the murder months ago is now claimed. He had the pistol at his house for months and kept it loaded. He did not practise with it. He had threatened on several occasions that he would kill Mr. Prickitt, but his friends thought the threats were the idle talk of a man who had been sent to jail for drunkenness and who had never been able to live down the disgrace. He always claimed that he had been wrongly jailed.

No Attempt to Lynch.

There is no truth in the sensational reports sent out today that an effort had been made to lynch Herron. When he was brought to this city in an automobile last night no attempt was made to molest him. As teh automobile came through Albany street, William B. Prickitt, son of the murdered man, was standing at a corner awaiting a car to Metuchen. He had just heard of the murder, and confirmed it by telephone and was on his way to the scene. The automobile stopped and one of the officers jumped out and told Mr. Prickitt of the tragedy. "And there is the scoundrel who did it," said the man, pointing to Herron, who was handcuffed in the car.

Mr. Prickitt turned away and the tears rolled down his cheeks. He could not look at the fellow who had killed his father and he hurried away to his car.

It is believed that Herron will plead self-defense to the crime. He has told one friend that when he got into an argument with the minister the latter raised his cane as if to strike him and that it was then that he acted to save himself.

But the State will show that Herron was a visitor at the jail Wednesday afternoon, where he called upon George Markey, held there for larceny. It will advance the theory that the scenes at the jail brought back to his mind the time he spent there, and that he went back to Metuchen to his house, got his revolver, and at once sought Mr. Prickitt.

Sampson Gibson, an employe of George J. Tobin, who received serious injuries at the freight-house, yesterday morning, when the wheels of a wagon passed over his body, fracturing several ribs, is still in a critical condition at the hospital and it was stated today that the injuries will probably prove fatal.

Although the man was partially conscious when he reached the hospital, he did not remain so long and since then he has been totally unconscious. As far as Mr. Tobin has any knowledge, Gibson has no relatives in this part of the country, at least. He came from New York about five months ago to take a position of driver from Mr. Tobin and he never talked about his previous life or mentioned having had any relatives.

COLORED BAPTISTS IN SESSION AT CALVARY

The annual meeting of the Middlesex Central Baptist Association, colored, which convened at the Calvary Baptist church, yesterday, and will remain in session until Sunday night, is devoted largely to the reports of the various departments as to the spiritual and financial condition of the churches. Rev. D. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick, is the president, and is in charge of the services. This morning there was devotional exercises, followed by short addresses by various ministers of the association, covering the different reports. This afternoon was devoted to prayer and conference and there will be a sermon tonight by one of the ministers.

When the conference opened yesterday, the Women's Auxiliary met first, Mrs. L. L. Croom, of Pennington, president, in the chair. Mrs. Colin Croom, of Pennington; Miss Alice Maynard, of this city, and Miss Medu Drews, of Hopewell, presented reports for the year, showing steady growth in membership and finances. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Rev. D. W. Cannon, of the Ebenezer Baptist church, preached the annual sermon, followed with additional reports of the association.

Last night the services began at 7:30 o'clock with a welcome address by Mrs. G. W. Baily, with response by Mrs. S. Skillman, of Trenton. There were also addresses by Mrs. P. H. Brown and Mrs. Fernando Brown, of this city. Then Rev. R. V. M. Johnson, of Trenton, delivered a missionary sermon. Sunday will be of especial interest to the members of the association. There will be services, morning, afternoon and night, when the conference will close.

Will Take Auto Vacation Trip.

D. S. Alpaugh, of East Sixth street, has purchased a 1909 Stevens-Duryea Little 6, and is so well pleased with it that he has decided to take an extended vacation trip. He will leave here on Monday, July 27, with his family, for Poland Springs, Maine. From July 28 to August 28, the party will be at "Bay-of-Naples-Inn," Naples, Maine. They will leave there August 31, and expect to arrive home September 4. On the trip to Maine the party will go to Waterbury, Lenox and Bretton Woods and will return by the way of Boston.

Will Sell Dairy Products.

Karl M. Ball, who for the past two years has been in charge of the rug department of the White Store, has resigned his position to take one as manager for Clarkhurst Farms, the concern that has leased J. W. Van Sickel's store on North avenue. They will carry a full line of dairy products. The store will be open August 1.

In the City Court.

Robert Hart, Jr., of the West End, had sentence suspended in the city court, this morning, after pleading guilty to drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He was arrested last night by Patrolman Vanderweg at Third and Liberty streets.

Peddled Without a License.

Berick Schreiber, claiming New York as his home, was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, last night, for peddling gas mantles without a license. Judge Runyon let him go this morning on his promise to clear out of town.

Plan a Picnic Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Clark, of Prescott place, will give a picnic party to a number of their young friends tomorrow afternoon. They will journey to Washington rock and enjoy luncheon beneath the trees.

CEREMONY AT STONY HILL

HIGH MASS WAS CELEBRATED.

Parade of Children—Band Concert, Dinner and Fireworks Are Features of the Program.

The unveiling of the statue of "Our Lady of Mount Carmel," at St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, yesterday morning, was marked by the attendance of a large congregation, including members and friends of the parish and many visitors from nearby places. Under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Exener, president of the Rosary Society of the parish, a large number of children formed a procession starting from Berkeley Heights at 9:30 o'clock, reaching the church at 10 o'clock, where they were met by the pastor, Father Schwartz, and the visiting priests.

It was an attractive sight to see the children dressed in white and carrying American flags and they were received with loud applause. The exercises began with the unveiling of the beautiful statue, which occupies a prominent place in the church. Loretta Exener, aged six years, removed the covering of oriental lace, assisted by Carmelia Finzina and Grace Carney, and at the same time three salutes were given by a battery attachment stationed outside the edifice. The unveiling was followed with an interesting lecture on the significance of the occasion by one of the visiting priests.

After these services Father Schwartz was the celebrant of the high mass which was concluded about noon. All then adjourned to Berkeley Heights where dinner was served to all. During the afternoon there was an informal program of music and in the evening there was a fine display of fireworks lasting until 11 o'clock. A feature was the solo singing by Joseph Regan, a boy soloist at St. Peter's church, New York. Great credit is due Mrs. Thos. Exener, who arranged the processional and also decorated the church for the occasion.

GOMPERS CANNOT MISLEAD VOTE OF UNION LABOR

Refusing to follow their labor leader, Samuel Gompers, the members of the Union County Trades Council at a regular session held in Elizabeth, last night, put itself on record as not being especially interested in the outcome of the Presidential election, declaring that they are more particular as to the men who are sent to represent them in the State Legislature and in Congress. It was unquestionably the sentiment of the labor men that they be allowed to vote their party ticket and they practically refused to be bound by any statement made by Mr. Gompers pledging the labor vote for Bryan.

Every effort will be made to see that men who are favorable to the interests of the labor man are nominated and elected in November. These officers were elected:

President, P. F. Dunavan; vice president, John Sheehan; financial secretary, Sydney Ellis; recording secretary, J. J. Dardis; corresponding secretary, George Reiss; treasurer, H. Zimmerman; trustees, William Bedlington, Louis Spinger, Joseph Areis; guide, John Keyes; warden, Louis Springer; delegate to State Federation of Labor convention, J. C. Cosgrove.

Auto Bus Between Plainfield and Boynton Beach.

At 7:30 sharp last night the Plainfield and Boynton Beach automobile bus left the Thompson Garage, carrying 10 passengers. The run was made in 45 minutes to Boynton Beach and 50 minutes, return trip. Everybody enjoyed themselves very much. The bus will run every afternoon, leaving Thompson's garage at 2 o'clock sharp, returning from Boynton Beach at 4 o'clock, arriving back in Plainfield at 5 o'clock. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights it will leave Thompson's garage at 7:30 p. m. sharp. Sundays they will make two trips, one leaving Thompson's garage at 10 o'clock in the morning, and one leaving Thompson's garage at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The fare is 50 cents each way. Children under 10 years half rate. Seats can be reserved in advance by telephoning Thompson's garage. ***

TO TAKE A RELIGIOUS CENSUS OF PLAINFIELD

The Plainfield Ministers' Association, in accordance with a much discussed plan, will soon begin the work of taking a complete census of the city with a view to ascertaining who are the church-goers and who are not. The work is to be done by one yet to be selected and complete data will be obtained not only as to church statistics, but as to Sunday-school attendance as well.

The information to be gathered will include the name and residence of families, language spoken, color, race, number of members, number under twelve, sixteen and thirty years of age, number attending church and Sunday-school and if not attending the name of the church or Sunday-school preferred and the number of communicants in each family.

While the people of Plainfield have always been considered generally of the church-going kind, it is realized by the various pastors that there are a large number who have no religious affiliation, and it is with a view to obtaining definite knowledge along this line that the census is to be taken. The position is taken that every church and pastor will be greatly benefitted in consequence and will enable the Christian workers to follow up their efforts more intelligently.

WHAT PLAINFIELD HAS DONE FOR WORTHY CAUSE

In arousing Trentonians' interest in the Cleveland monument fund, the Trenton True American today says:

"Plainfield, through The Daily Press of that city, has already contributed $291.85 towards the proposed monument to Grover Cleveland, and there are no such ties binding Plainfield to the memory of the late President as there are binding Trenton.

"Mr. Cleveland's home was in Princeton, and Princeton is almost a part of Trenton. The number of his personal friends in Trenton and vicinity is larged than the number in Plainfield. Yet Trenton and Mercer county folk are slower in showing their love for their friend and neighbor, the greatest statesman of his age, than those less closely related to him.

"The Cleveland Memorial Association does not ask large sums. It solicits dollar subscriptions, five-dollar subscriptions, or ten-dollar subscriptions. Its design is to have the people, the plain people, of whom Grover Cleveland was one to the day of his death, build the monument at Caldwell. Grover Cleveland loved his fellow countrymen. His every act was of patriotic devotion to what he conceived to be their best interests. It is fitting that his deeds should be commemorated in a shaft, the expression of the people's appreciation of his great love."

These contributions have been received by The Daily Press, which is authorized by the State committee to collect subscriptions for the Cleveland monument fund:

GREET "PRINCESS ALICE"

"Farmer-Orator" Introduces Jersey Delegation to President's Daughter.

"NICK" LOSES AT POKER?

Former Gubernatorial Nominee Has Long Chat With Son-in-Law Longworth—"Tom" Riley in Luck

The New Jersey delegates and their friends arrived at The Monmouth, Hot Springs, Wyoming, last night to stop over night. They left Canyon hotel yesterday morning, 30 miles away, and arrived at Norris for luncheon. There they met Mrs. Alice Longworth and husband, who are making a tour of Yellowstone.

James Martine, of Plainfield, forgot all about Bryan when he met "Nick," and the "farmer orator" got busy introducing all the other New Jersey delegates and the other Jerseyites to Mr. and Mrs. Longworth.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., had twenty minutes' chat with Mr. Longworth. Six coaches of prominent persons arrived before the Jersey delegates departed, and the Jerseymen spent a pleasant hour.

The only person in New Jersey's delegation who seemed to get "in right" with Mr. Longworth was "Tom" Riley. He seemed to be in great luck. Wednesday evening he met a Jersey City crowd, and yesterday morning his purse, which he has placed in safe keeping under his shirt, looked larger. One more night with same luck and Riley's trip will cost him nothing, it is said.

BIRD-RUHL ASSAULT CASES AIRED IN COURT

The aftermath of the scrap between Howard Bird and William Ruhl at Dunellen Wednesday evening took place in an improvised court room at New Market last night. The events leading up to the fracas on Bird's lawn when he was banged on the head by a stick in Ruhl's hands were thoroughly threshed out before a large crowd of citizens, friends of both participants turning out early in order to get front seats.

Ruhl's charge against Bird was first heard by Justice Clark Rogers, the complaint specifying assault and battery. The plaintiff asserted that he had been attacked by Bird without provocation when he went to his home to get some tools that had been left on the lawn. Witnesses backed up his assertion and Justice Clark announced that he would reserve decision until next Monday.

After this matter had been disposed of, Judge Von Minden assumed charge of the court and proceeded to hear Bird's complaint against Ruhl. The testimony was practically a repetition of what had been given previously as assault and battery was again specified. Bird's appearance bore out his assertion that he had been given a healthy clip on the side of the head with an improvised club as a good part of his cranium was hidden from view by a big bandage. He informed the court that the blow he had received had inflicted a scalp wound that required the services of a doctor to close up. When the evidence was all in, the court held Ruhl in $300 bail for appearance before the grand jury.

The hearing of the two cases brought out some unusual facts relative to what testimony could be submitted and how it should be received. It was revealed that both Justice Von Minden and Justice Rogers had witnessed part of the argument, the former seeing the two men square off at each other on North avenue, Dunellen, Tuesday morning, and the latter having a look-in when Bird got hit on the head. Justice Von Minden also acted as lawyer for Bird when his charge against Ruhl was heard.

Miss Lucretia Fields a Bride.

In the presence of relatives and a few friends, Miss Lucretia Fields, daughter of Mrs. Bettie Fields, and Donald Callender, of this city, were married last night at the residence of the bride's mother, 628 West Fourth street. Rev. J. H. Simons, rector of the colored mission of Grace church, performed the ceremony. The best man was Henry Crite, and the bridesmaid was Miss Lulu Henry. A reception followed and supper was served. The couple will reside on West Fourth street.

Fire In Brass Plant.

Two hose wagons were sent out from fire headquarters, yesterday afternoon, in response to a still alarm for a slight blaze in the Manufacturers' Brass Company plant on Berckman street. It was caused by phosphorous becoming exposed to the air and was extinguished before any damage resulted.

FRACTIOUS HORSE RUNS AWAY TWICE IN SAME DAY

The horse belonging to George J. Tobin, which ran away at the freight house, yesterday morning, severely injuring Sampson Gibson, repeated the performance yesterday afternoon but without hurting anyone. The animal took freight at the tar boiler in front of the Coward building on Park avenue and made a dash toward the railroad, causing a wild scramble on the part of other vehicles and automobiles to get out of the way.

There were two occupants in the wagon, John Neilson and William Polon. The former was driving and sought to stop the horse but without success until Hillside and Evergreen avenues was reached. It was then pretty well winded and was finally brought to a stop. Polon had jumped out of the wagon in the meantime to avoid meeting Gibson's fate. There were no collisions during the long run and Neilson brought the rig back to town without any perceptible damage.

FANWOOD WOMAN FINED FOR USING CUSS WORDS

The hearing of a disorderly conduct case furnished a lot of excitement in Recorder Sheelen's court at Fanwood, last night, and on several occasions the magistrate had to threaten contempt proceedings to restore quiet in the room.

The defendants were Elsie Howell, Mary Flosbach and Dora Floshbach, who were charged by Mrs. Edith Farley with using vile language. All the parties live in the section of Fanwood known as "Handville," located on Hand avenue just off Terrill road. The complaint had its foundation in one of the customary neighborhood quarrels but when Recorder Sheelen attempted to get at the bottom of the affair, everybody tried to talk at once. The accused women persisted in giving the lie to the testimony of witnesses and a typical back-fence argument broke out at frequent intervals. Pounding the gavel had no effect in stopping the flow of words and it was only when the recorder threatened to fine all hands that they subsided.

Mrs. Farley's charge against the three defendants was sustained and in addition to ordering each to pay $10 into the borough treasury, the court warned them not to repeat the offense.

BIKE RIDER HURT IN COLLISION WITH TROLLEY.

Peter Simmons, the well known colored bike rider, received a bad shaking up at 6:35 this morning by colliding with a trolley car at Front street and Mariners place as he was taking a trial spin on his machine. In some way his front wheel swerved and struck the running board of the vehicle, bringing about a bad spill. Simmons was hurled to the roadway and was rendered partially unconscious by the impact while the machine was badly damaged.

The trolley was in charge of Motorman Charles Delahunt and Conductor Patrick Fahy, who picked up the injured man and summoned the police patrol. He was removed to his home on West Front street, where Dr. Pittis fixed him up. While he sustained no broken bones, he was badly cut and bruised and will be kept indoors for a week or more.

Children Working For Charity.

Several enterprising children residing on Watchung and Hillside avenues have been combining work and play to the profit of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain. Last week a lemonade stand at Watchung and Kensington avenues, netted $13 for the worthy charity, which amount has been given to Mrs. Anna M. Most, treasurer of the organization. The names of these charitably-disposed youngsters are Charles Ivins, Katharine Boardman, Hayward Erickson, Rodman Parvin, Yates Boardman and Wesley Johnson.

Plainfielders Witness Prize Fight.

Several sports from this city were among those who witnessed a lively twenty-round fight last night between "Tony" Bender and Howard Smith, both of Elizabeth. The fight, which terminated in a draw, took place on Staten Island, the exact place being kept secret from the police. Both men were in prime condition and those present declare it to be the best fight witnessed in a long time. The spectators included sporting men from New York, Elizabeth, as well as Plainfield.

Widow Granted a Pension.

The widow of Tunis J. Carey, formerly of this city, has been granted a pension of $12 a month, which was obtained through the efforts of Congressman Wood.

MRS. TEAGLE A SUICIDE

DESPONDENCY CAUSE OF ACT.

Young Woman Had Been In Ill-Health and Became Melancholy—Put Bullet Into Her Head.

Mrs. Edith M. Teagle, wife of Walter C. Teagle, of Cleveland, Ohio, an official of the Standard Oil Company, who attemped to commit suicide in Pasadena, California, on Wednesday, lived in this city about two years ago, occupying the Squires residence at Arlington avenue and West Eighth street for some time. The family had many friends here and was highly thought of. Mrs. Teagle was in poor health, but the attempt on her part to take her life was a great surprise to those who know her. It was reported yesterday that she was dying in the Pasadena Hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by herself Wednesday night.

Mrs. Teagle, who is about thirty years old, has resided in Pasadena about two years, having moved from this city there at that time. While her nurse was in Los Angeles making arrangements for a trip to Cleveland she shot herself through the head at her home. She was found several hours afterward by the nurse, a revolver clutched in her hand. Her action is attributed to a fit of melancholia resulting from continued ill-health. Her husband, who has been in Europe for some time, was expected in New York, yesterday. She is the daughter of W. T. Murray, of Cleveland, head of a steel corporation and prominent in financial circles. The immediate danger is from whatever infection the bullet may have carried in its passage, was the opinion of the physician in charge last night.

Excursionists Had a Good Time.

The annual excursion of the Park Avenue Baptist, Congregational and First Presbyterian churches, of this city, and the Dunellen Presbyterian church to Asbury Park, yesterday, was without accident of any kind. Although the day at the shore was a fine one, it would have been far more comfortable had there been a sea breeze. A land breeze all day was not to the liking of the excursionists. The bathing, however, was good, and many availed themselves of the opportunity to take a dip in the ocean.

Methodists Off for the Shore.

The next excursion to Asbury Park from Plainfield will beb that of the First M. E., Monroe Avenue M. E., Grace M. E. churches, of this city; Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel and the Dunellen M. E. church on Thursday, July 23. The train will leave Dunellen at 7:40, Clinton Avenue at 7:50, Grant Avenue at 8:00, and Plainfield at 8:15, and returning leave the shore at 7:15 o'clock in the evening.

New Fire Team Arrives.

The team of horses recently purchased by Chief Doane and Councilman Buxton for the steamer in the fire department, was brought to the city from New York last night. The animals were placed in No. 1 house and were put into service today. Heretofore the steamer has been hauled by a team belonging to Captain Hand who was paid a stated amount for each alarm answered.

Will Attend National Convention.

State President John P. Dulplard and County President John Gavigan, Sr., of the Ancient Order Hibernians, were given a farewell reception in Turner Hall, Trenton, last night, in honor of their departure for Indianapolis, next week, to attend the national convention of the order. It is expected that the local branch of the order will be represented at the approaching convention.

Lad Kicked by Horse Improving.

William Brown, the six-year-old son of Walter Brown, of 1655 South Second street, who was kicked in the face by a horse on Wednesday and taken to the hospital, is improving slowly. There is every indication that the lad will now recover, although his face will be terribly scarred.

Funeral of James H. Burns.

The funeral of James H. Burns, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital, Wednesday, was held in St. Mary's church, this morning. The mass was said by Rev. Father Schiola and was followed by burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

—Towels, 7½c. Levy's sale. ***

—The boards which have been used as a covering in front of Charles Sebring's new building on West Front street have been removed and a handsome store front is now admired by passersby.

Pennsylvania Railroad Bulletin.

TOUR TO YELLOWSTONE PARK AND THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

In northwestern Wyoming in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, lies one of nature's richest treasures—the Yellowstone National Park. Set apart by Act of Congress for the enjoyment of mankind, it is America's greatest show ground. To visit this Park is to see nature in a variety of majestic moods. Mammoth hot springs, with multicolored terraces, cliffs of glass, beautiful lakes, mighty falls, glorious canyons, and geysers of all descriptions, are found in this wonderful region.

On August 24 a personally-conducted tour through the Yellowstone Park to Portland and Seattle, returning through the magnificent Canadian Rocky Mountains, will leave the East by special train over the Pennsylvannia Railroad. Five and one-half days will be spent in the Park, one day in Portland, one day in Vancouver, one day at Field, B. C., one day at Laggan, Alba., one day at Banff, and stops will be made at many other points of interest. The tour will cover a period of twenty-two days.

As an educational trip for either teacher or scholar, this tour is especially attractive, as it covers a section of America rich in scenery and replete with the marvelous manifestations of nature.

The rates, which will cover all necessary expenses, will be $246 from New York, $243.20 from Philadelphia, $241.20 from Washington and Baltimore, $230.80 from Pittsburg, and proportionate from other points.

Preliminary leaflets may be obtained of Agents, and detailed itineraries will be ready for distribution shortly. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the Park of the Nation should make application for Pullman space early, as the party will be limited. Make application through local Ticket Agent or address Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia. 7 17 2 f-w

Cy Young's performance in pitching a no-hit no-run game against New York on June 30 has been duplicated in major league baseball 47 times since 1876. Of the pitchers who has succeeded in turning the trick, Cy Young has accomplished the remarkable feat three times. Cy has only one rival in this respect, Corcoran, of Chicago, who pitched great ball way back in the early 80's. Only five pitchers in the major leagues have succeeded in pitching no-hit no-run games more than once. Richmond, of Worcester, did it twice in '76 and '80. Galvin, of Buffalo, a pitcher of the early 80's also succeeded in pitching two no-hit no-run games. Terry, of Brooklyn, pitched a no-hit no-run game in 1886 and another one in 1888.

Of the present day pitchers there is but one besides Cy Young who has succeeded in accomplishing the remarkable performance more than once. He is Christie Mathewson, of the Giants, who has turned the trick twice. It is worthy of note that Cy Young accomplished the feat first over 10 years ago when pitching for Cleveland. And he is still in the ring and apt to succeed for the fourth time any day. In but two of the games, however, has a man failed to reach first base. In 1880, Richmond, of Worcester, shut out Cleveland without a Clevelander reaching first, and Cy Young turned the trick against the Philadelphia Athletics at Boston on May 5, 1904.

So, with three no-hit no-run games to his credit, and one of them a game in which an opponent failed to reach first base, Cy Young can safely claim the honors of the greatest pitcher the world has ever seen. Cy Young's no-hit no-run game June 30 was the first in the American League since 1905. Following is the categorical record of major league no-hit no-run games:

August 19, 1880—Boston defeated by Corcoran, of Chicago.

August 20, 1880—Worcester defeated by Galvin, of Buffalo.

September 11, 1882—Cincinnati defeated by Mullane, of Louisville.

September 20, 1882—Worcester defeated by Corcoran, of Chicago.

September 13, 1883—Philadelphia defeated by Daly, of Cleveland.

July 27, 1884—Providence defeated by Corcoran, of Chicago.

August 4, 1884—Detroit defeated by Galvin, of Buffalo.

July 27, 1885—Providence defeated by Clarkson.

August 29, 1885—Providence defeated by Ferguson, of Philadelphia.

June 26, 1888—Cincinnati defeated by Seward, of Athletics.

It is quite proper for the Jersey Democrats to be "blowing in their coin" in the West just now, for on November 4 they are destined to "look like thirty cents."

Mr. Taft is busily engaged on his letter of acceptance. He might as well get through with the task all at once by putting the finishing touches on his inaugural address.

Newark has a "Real Democracy," but its tenets would make one of the late Grover Cleveland's cabinets shudder at the now distorted and misrepresented principles of Thomas Jefferson.

According to the press dispatches Mr. Bryan is still anxiously searching for a campaign manager. Here's a job for "The Farmer-orator." Experience has proven that he is the best ever as a conductor of losing games along this line.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith is slightly indisposed, but he will be in fighting trim in ample time for the campaign. No county in the State has a Republican manager who can compare with him. If you don't believe it just ask any politician from Sussex to Cape May.

After issuing an edict against political pow-wows at Sea Girt, yesterday, Governor Fort could not restrain himself from expressing an opinion on Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union. He said that they are both magnificent, generous fellows and the courageous, conscientious kind of men wanted in the Legislature. Both, he added, should be renominated. Somerset and Union bow to none; they know a good thing when they see it, and the Governor may depend upon it that both Frelinghuysen and Ackerman will not only be renominated but will be triumphant on November 3 next.

MEYER AND BUXTON LOWER INTERNATIONAL POSTAGE

George L. Meyer and Sydney Buxton, the two heads of the postoffice department of the United States and England respectively, are to be credited with the reducing of international postage rates between England and the United States.

Sydney Buxton, who has been described as "a really good postmaster general," announced in the house of commons last week that from October next the rate of postage to the United States will be lowered from two and a half pennies an ounce to one penny an ounce, which may result in a loss to the British exchequer of about $650,000 a year, but, on the other hand, may be recouped by the growth of correspondence. Buxton brought about the reduction. In 1897 this country received from America 11,000,000 letters; last year the figures had risen to 20,000,000. Buxton, who was born in 1853 and has sat in the house of commons for a quarter of a century, belongs to the well known Essex family of which Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, Bart., is head. His first wife, who died in 1892, was a daughter of Lord Avebury.

George Von Lengerke Meyer, postmaster general of the United States, was born in Boston, June 28, 1858, was graduated from Harvard university and immediately identified himself with business, being connected with the Old Colony Trust Company and several manufacturing companies. He was a member of the city government of Boston in 1890-1892 and was elected to the Massachusetts house of representatives, where he became speaker of the house. In 1898 he was elected national committeeman, and in 1900 was sent to Italy as ambassador from the United States. From there he was transferred to the post at Russia, from which place he was recalled to enter the cabinet as postmaster general.

CHAFIN AND WATKINS WATER-WAGON TICKET

The Prohibition national convention in session in Columbus, Ohio, nominated Eugene W. Chafin, of Chicago, for President, and Professor Aaron S. Watkins, of Ada, Ohio, was nominated for the Vice-Presidency. Mr. Chafin is the nominee of his party for Governor of Illinois.

William Lunger, of the borough, who is representing Somerset county, as a delegate to the convention, writes The Daily Press inclosing the new Declaration of Independence. This consists of two pictures of Liberty enlightening the world, between which floats an American flag and beneath which are the words, "The Saloon Must Go!" These have been scattered generously throughout the city of Columbus.

In his letter Mr. Lunger states: "I never witnessed such a gathering. The loyalty, nobility and enthusiasm is unbounded. Between 1,000 and 2,000 delegates are in attendance and you can say for me that the liquor traffic in this Christian America is doomed. Very soon it will be outlawed and buried forever.

"The echoes of this convention speak in thunder-tones, and we are determined that we will be heard, as we the Prohibitionists of the United States present to the people the only real issue, the only moral issue that will appeal to the conscientious voter that will be presented in this coming campaign. Today (meaning yesterday) we expect to nominate our candidates and adopt our platform of principles and we claim that the arguments that we advance are unanswerable. We therefore, challenge the world, the orators, speakers and candidates of any and all parties to meet us in a friendly debate on the platform."

JERSEY'S CORPORATIONS.

Over 7,600 Concerns Listed Thus Far for Taxation.

Some insight into the magnitude of New Jersey as a corporation State is given in the third schedule of the assessments against miscellaneous corporations which was filed today with the State Comptroller by the State Board of Assessors. This schedule covers assessments against 910 corporations, amounting in taxes for 1903 to $170,984.73.

The total capitalization of these companies is $209,135,729. Up to date the State board has levied assessments for this years against 7,655 corporations, upon which the tax to be received by the State is $2,658,468.10. The aggregate capitalization of all these corporations runs to the enormous sum of $3,332,735,431.

The schedule filed yesterday is included in the totals given. This list does not by any means conclude the 1908 assessments against this class of corporations, as it was said in the office of the State Board of Assessors today that there were about 3,000 more miscellaneous corporations upon which the State tax is still to be levied.

E. L. Suffren and family, of Sycamore avenue, have gone to the Adirondacks where they will spend the summer.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The lineup of the South Plainfielders for the game tomorrow on the local diamond against Lincoln will be: Harry Sofield, p; Walton Smith, c; Walter Conners, 1b; John McDonough, 2b; Charles Randolph, 3b; Joseph Miller, cf; Patrick McDonough, lf; J. Grant, rf; W. Luthman, ss.

Mrs. P. C. Johnson, of Plainfield avenue, starts tomorrow on a sailing trip up the Hudson River. She expects to be absent about a week.

Helen Cubberley has returned from a visit to Mrs. Voorhees at Asbury Park, and is staying at present with Judge Smith.

Mr. Johnson, whose house was destroyed by fire on Tuesday, has taken a house on Woods road.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Tomorrow's ball game on the home grounds should draw a record breaking crowd, as the game will be the best one of the season. The Clinton Avenue team is putting up a fast game and the local team leads all other teams in this section in the number of games won this season. The Plainfield team will have Randolph and O'Loughlin in the points and Ortlieb or Weiner, with Alberts at the receiving end, will do the trick for the locals.

Willie Deegan got back into the game again on Wednesday, pitching for the All Railroads against Hackensack. Willie was as good as ever, shutting the Hackensack team out.

Every lover of the game should turn out and help root for the locals in the game tomorrow. Game will be called at 3:30.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last night in the Library rooms. Only the regular routine business was transacted.

Henry Broadwell and family, of Newark, were the guests yesterday of Mrs. Augusta Miller, of Front street.

The weekly prayer meeting will be held in the parlor of the Baptist church tonight.

Work has been started on Phillip Jahn's new house on Park avenue.

THE FORUM.

P. S. C.'s Selfish Schedule.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Far be it from me to attempt to join the ranks of the opponents of corporations, but may we not at least demand that they give us a service commensurate with what we give them.

The promises of the Public Service Corporation in regard to improved service, paving of tracks and schedules in return for the liberal franchise granted to them seem to be totally unfulfilled.

Twice recently while attempting to catch my train by means of the Netherwood line, I have met a car which, attempting to follow the line of least resistance has found it upon the sidewalk, and been consoled with the sage advice, "If you hurry you can get the main line at Fourth street."

The new schedule, which, I have been told saves the P. S. C. the cost of five men, is really useful in these dull times, as a dispeller of ennui.

One can divert his mind in attempting to discover at what time he may leave his home to catch a car, or arrive at a given point as well by this means as by the old fifteen puzzle. The answer is the same in both cases; give it up.

We have fifteen thousand people inconvenienced for the saving of five men's wages. The P. S. C. evidently regards us as brachycephallic Boeotians, and for all we do about it I think we are.

Flags at Half Mast.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The Government regulations regarding the use of the National flag state that when displayed at half-mast it shall be lowered from the top of the staff a distance equal to to the depth of the blue field.

A number of flags in Plainfield are at "half-mast" in memory of ex-President Cleveland, but they occupy almost any place but the correct one on the staff; most of them being in the undignified position of half way down (or up) the pole.

A word in the columns of your valued paper would doubtless remedy this. Our flag, when displayed, should not be flown in an undignified position.

Mrs. Herron says that her husband talked wildly about revenge when he got back from jail in September, 1906, where Mr. Prickitt had sent him. "But he was crazy then," she added.

The funeral of Mr. Prickiltt will be held tonight at 7:30 from the residence of his son, Charles A. Prickitt. The Rev. George C. Wilding, of Perth Amboy, will conduct the services, assisted by the Rev. Bensan Crowcroft and the Rev. Dr. James Mason, of Metuchen, and District Superintendent Randolph, of this city. The interment will be in Mt. Holly tomorrow morning.

NO POLITICS AT SEA GIRT, GOVERNOR FORT DECREES

Governor Fort was much provoked at Sea Girt yesterday over the statement that appeared in one of the New York newspapers to the effect that he had called a conference of politicians to meet there. He dictated the following statement relative to the observance of Governor's day:

Representatives of the newspapers at Sea Girt will do me a personal favor if they will state that it is the wish of the Governor that the public should know that the gatherings ehere on various days on his invitation are not political conferences and that no political conferences are being called by the executive at Sea Girt. The Sea Girt encampment and the cottage occupied by the Governor belong to all the people of the State.

In my invitations, whether special or general, I do not regard political lines and do not intend to do so while I am Governor. I want the Democrats to feel that they are just as welcome at Sea Girt as Republicans. Of course, it will be impossible to prevent men interested in politics from talking with one another, but there will not be any political conferences at Sea Girt called by me, or participated in by me. I want this to be accepted as final and to be acted upon by all. Sea Girt is not a political headquarters.

LLOYD'S INSURANCE AGAINST W. J. BRYAN

Fearful of a crash in stocks should Bryan be elected Wall street, New York, firms have taken out $500,000 insurance against that event with Lloyds, of London, within the last two days, and $1,000,000 more is awaiting acceptance in the office of Bertschmann & Maloy, the New York agents of the great English firm. The insurance is at ten per cent. Some days ago, a member of the insurance firm said today, a big manufacturer who believed his business might be hurt by Bryan's election asked if Lloyds would insure him against that contingency.

Cable messages to London brought the information that Lloyds would. But they wanted twenty per cent. That was too much, said the manufacturer, and ten per cent. was finally agreed on. Then the manufacturer placed $10,000. If Bryan wins he gets $90,000 back.

Tidings of the deal soon spread, and in one day Bertschmann & Maloy wrote insurance for $445,000. It is believed on the stock exchange that Lloyds will be swamped with business if their rate holds.

TERMINAL FOR JERSEY CITY.

P. S. Will Build One to Cost More Than Hoboken's.

Jersey City, July 17.—In addition to building a half million trolley car terminal over the Hudson tunnel entrance at Hoboken, the Public Service Railway Company is making plans to construct a larger and more costly terminal at Exchange place, Jersey City, where the main tunnel station on the New Jersey side of the river has been constructed under the Pennsylvania Railroad station. An entrance opening on Exchange place has been constructed, but the Public Service Company is planning with the tunnel company to convert the working tunnel across and under Exchange place into an underground passageway for trolley passengers.

This tunnel extends from the station under the train shed to York street, having an opening at the rear of the trolley sheds. It is planned to erect a large terminal building with tracks on the lower floor and offices for the company on the upper floors. Plans will also be made to connect this building with the Pennsylvania ferryboats, so that persons preferring to use the ferryboats may have an easy means of reaching the boats.

It is further planned to change some of the Jersey City trolley lines so that some of them will terminate at Henderson street and Newark avenue, where there will be another station for the tunnel.

Arrested for Desertion.

Thomas Higgins, of Jersey City, who has been working in New Brunswick for some time, was arrested yesterday morning and taken to Jersey City on a charge of abandoning his wife.

Safe Under 1,000-Pound Weight.

Samuel Schomenberg, a Roebling employee, was knocked down by a 1,000-pound weight at the mills in Trenton yesterday. Fellow workmen expected to find him crushed to death, but instead saw that the weight was merely resting on him lightly, the bulk of it being sustained by a coil of wire which served as a spring. The victim was finally extricated and taken to a hospital, where it was found that he was not much hurt.

Stolen Horse Recovered.

TENANTS CLAIM MEN HAD THREATENED ARSON.

Jersey City, July 17.—Upon statements of tenants in the flat house at 89 Morris street, this city, Robert Bennikitz and Anton Allminos, both occupants of a floor in the house, were arrested early this morning charged with arson.

Several days ago, it is stated, Bennikitz was heard to say that he would set fire to the house. He made this threat on several occasions, it is claimed. Early yesterday morning the tenants were aroused by a cry of "fire." An alarm was immediately turned in and when the firemen arrived, they discovered the Bennikitz apartment ablaze and a strong odor of oil permeated the hallway.

After a struggle the fire was extinguished, and following the oil clue, the police got busy and made a thorough investigation. The statements of several persons in the house led to the arrest of the two men.

When arraigned before Judge Farmer in the First Criminal Court they stated that the fire started by the upsetting of a lamp. They said that they had engaged in a heated argument, and in an effort to demonstrate a point, Bennikitz, in raising his arm, upset the lamp. The men were held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

STRANGER ENDS LIFE BY LEAP INTO NEWARK BAY.

Jersey City, July 17.—By jumping off the Lehigh Valley Railroad bridge spanning Newark Bay early yesterday morning an unidentified man committed suicide. His body has not been recovered.

The drowned stranger was seen walking across the structure by men employed on the drawbridge spanning the channel, and one of them was surprised to see the fellow suddenly leap from the north side of the bridge, about midway between the Greenville section of this city and Newark. He sprang into the water fully clothed.

Before a signal could be flashed to the nearest boathouse the man, who made no effort to swim, and thus convince the bridge man that he had accidentally fallen overboard, sank from view. It is believed that his body has been washed in a southerly direction by the outgoing tide.

TRAINING FOR JERSEY SEAMEN.

Naval Reserve Boys Start for Hampton Roads for Duties Along Coast.

Camden, July 17.—In order that the young tars can be taught to be seamen by men who know how, the Naval Reserve steamers Silvia and Vixen started today for Hampton Roads. The former is the Pennsylvania craft, while the Vixen belongs to the New Jersey tars. The Silvia will be in charge of J. N. Mitcheson, who will have 120 boys, while the Vixen will have a still larger number.

After reaching Hampton Roads the boys will be transferred to the United States cruiser Yankee for more active sea duties off the coast, especially in firing, boat launching and other duties which will be taught by a board of naval experts, detailed for the purpose by the Navy Department. The Bureau of Navigation detailed the Yankee for the maneuvers of the naval militia along the Atlantic coast. Her itinerary will be as follows: Alexandria, July 13-17; Hampton Roads, July 18-19; Chesapeake Bay, July 19-27; Alexandria, July 28-29; Hampton Roads, July 30-31; Newport, August 2-8; Gardiner's Bay, August 8-17; Newport, August 18-19; Boston, August 20.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN, GIVES COUNTY $300.

County Collector Edward P. Mount, of Mercer, is in receipt of $300 conscience money, handed to him by a Trenton priest with the simple remark that it was from a conscience-stricken parishioner.

The priest refuses to give the name of the parishioner, and the collector will not give the name of the priest. The money has been placed in the general account, as the county never before received such a contribution and has no conscience fund.

Saloon Men A-Flutter.

Saloonkeepers who have heard of the contemplated visit of the Excise Commission to Elizabeth on Monday, July 27, are afraid that some of the commissioners have been there already and have secured facts which may not be to the benefit of the dealers. Anyhow, from now on the Sundays will be "dry" and the resorts on Staten Island will do a big business.

BOYS HAVE MARY'S PHOTOS.

Put on Buttons from Picture Filched by Girl Friend.

Mary Mark is 16 and pretty. She lives at Fourth avenue and Palmer street, Elizabeth. A few days ago Johanna Manjer, one of her friends, is alleged to have entered Mary's home and taken a photograph of Mary from the mantelpiece. Then Johanna took this photo to New York and had a number of photo buttons made from it. These buttons she is alleged to have sold to several of Mary's boy friends for five cents each.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the

BOYNTON

can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

SOME NEAR NATURE FAKES.

A tragedy has happened in the study of M. Clemenceau, the French Premier. He had two favorite dogs, one a splendid griffon and the other an equally fine Russian greyhound. M. Clemenceau lavished attentions on the griffon, regardless of the significant grows of the greyhound. The griffon had been favored with several chocolates more than the greyhound. In a burst of jealousy the greyhound threw itself upon its too fortunate rival and strangled it.

Shunganunga Ray says he was once fishing in Cedar Creek, a small tributary of the Cottonwood river in Chase county, Kansas, when he dropped a $10 gold piece in the water and saw a bass swallow it. That was five or six years ago and since then he has fished assiduously for that particular bass every year. A week ago last Saturday he caugt it. On opening the fish Shunganunga says he not only found the original $10, but $3.56 in small change, the same being teh interest that had accrued while the money was on deposit in the fish. Shaunganunga says it was one of the best investments he ever made.

Sir Frederick Bridge, who has been crossing the Rockies to Vancouver, B. C., has had an exciting adventure. One night his train stopped for repairs. Sir Frederick, not being able to sleep, began upon the revision of the Wesleyan hymn book, which he is unlertaking. Soon he heard a noise under his couch. Then he perceived a paw and then the head of a bear. Sir Frederick threw the bed clothes over the bear's head and made for the door, firing the hymn book at the animal's nose as it emerged. The bear seized the book, tore in in two and leaped through the window, carrying the portion Sir Frederick had begun to revise. He is carrying back the other half for perservation in the Westminster Abbey library.

A parrot as the principal witness in a Cincinnati court of justice was the novel scene witnessed in the office of Magistrate Maus late Monday, the parrot being replevied by its alleged owner. When the witnesses were sworn the parrot, as though intentionally, raised its right wing. The owner declared the parrot could say many things, and the bird then took the stand and said:

"Breakfast is ready," "Good morning, ladies;" "All well today?"

Magistrate Maus went no further, but awarded the parrot to the person who replevied it. The parrot apepared to be as well pleased over the ruling as any one present and chattered freely whenever spoken to.

The Frankfort Zoological Garden is well known for the success attained there in breeding the larger varnivora. Last spring a puma gave birth to three cubs, which she tried to rear, but her yield of milk failed. Eleven days after birth, says a correspondent of the Field, two of the cubs were found dead in the den, and the mother died on the following day. An attempt was made to bring up the surviving cub on the bottle, but as this was unsuccessful, a cat that was suckling four kittens (two of which were taken away) was supplied as a foster mother. She took at once to the cub, which in four weeks' time was able to feed on scrapped meat, and a week later the foster mother was removed from the den to save her from the rough endearments of her sturdy fosterling. During the summer the young puma and its foster brother shared the den, and their gambols were a source of great entertainment to the visitors.

JELLIED VEGETABLES.

"Jellied vegetables are particularly suitable for a luncheon or supper dish to be served as an accompaniment to almost any kind of cold sliced meat," says Fannie Merritt Farmer in Woman's Home Companion. "Remove the jelly to a serving dish and surround with the slices of meat overlapping one another; then garnish with celery tips. Cold meat needs to be very thinly sliced to be at its best, therefore do see to it that the cloiset can boast of sharp knives, for without them the work cannot be perfectly done. Soak one tablespoonful of granulated gelatine in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water and dissolve in one cupful of boiling water; then add one-fourth of a cupful each of sugar and vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one teaspoonful of salt. Strain, cool, and when beginning to stiffen add one cupful of celery cut in small pieces, one-half cupful of finely shredded cabbage and one and one-half canned pimentoes cut in small pieces. Turn into a mold and chill thoroughly."

MARK THE LINGERIE.

If city summerers before going to out-of-town resorts would remember to mark their underwear and other garments that will visit the laundresses of such regions perplexities for themselves and the washerwomen would be reduced most materially.

The two-letter initial tape that comes in all combinations at notion counters is practically for persons who cannot embroider their initials or names on every piece. Entire names and three-letter initials are made to order at moderate prices. For college girls the entire names save a world of trouble. The work of sewing such tapes on is almost nil.

We complain bitterly of the laundress, her carelessness and her downright recklessness, but do we always do our part?

Silence and then a murmur which soon became a buzzing like that of many bees.

The Blue Domino suddenly clutched my arm.

"Please take me away, take me once! I'm an impostor, too!" of us!

was disaster. I give you my solemn word, there was nothing I regretted so much as the fact that I hadn't gone to the theater.

But I am a man of quick thought and resource. In the inelegant phrasing of the day, me for the cellars!

"Come," said I to the girl: "there's only once chance in a hundred, but we'll take it together."

"Together? Where?"

"Why to the cellars. I've a pocketful of matches. We can make a try.

"Have You Heard the News?"

For, if there's a thief around, and we are caught and proved impostors—Well, I leave you to imagine!"

"I will go with you," she replied resolutely.

The gods were with us. The door leading to the cellars was not locked. I opened it, passed the girl before me, and closed the door.

"I am frightened!" she whispered.

"So am I," I offered, to reassure her. "You are not afraid of rats, are you?"

"No-o!"

"Bully!" I cried. Then I laughed.

"How can you laugh? It is horrible!" she protested.

"You would come, though I heard your uncle warn you. Look at it the way I do. It's a huge joke, and years from now you'll have great fun telling it to your grandchildren."

"I wish, at this moment, I could see so far ahead—What was that?"—seizing my arm.

Click!

Somebody had locked the door behind us!

CHAPTER IV.

In other words, we had departed the scene of festivities none too soon. I could readily understand why the door had been locked; it was not to keep us in the cellars; rather it was to prevent any one from leaving the ball room by that route. Evidently our absence had not been noticed, nor had any seen our precipitate flight. I sighed gratefully.

For several minutes we stood silent and motionless on the landing. At length I boldly struck a match. The first thing that greeted my blinded gaze was the welcome vision of a little shelf lined with steward's candles. One of these I lighted, and two others I stuffed into the pocket of my Capuchin's gown. Then we tiptoed softly down the stairs, the girl tugging fearfully at my sleeve.

There was an earthly smell. It was damp and cold. Miles and miles away (so it seemed) the pale moonshine filtered through a cobwebbed window. It was ghostly; but so far as I was concerned, I was honestly enjoying myself, strange as this statement may seem. Here was I, setting forth upon an adventure with the handsomest, wittiest girl I had ever laid eyes upon. If I extricated her neatly, she would always be in my debt; and the thought of this was mighty pleasant to contemplate.

"Do you know the way out?"

I confessed that, so far as I knew, we were in one of the fabled labyrinths of mythology.

"Go ahead," she said bravely.

"I ask only to die in your highness' service,"—soberly.

"But I do not want you to die; I want you to get me out of this cellar; and quickly, too."

"I'll live or die in the attempt!"

"I see nothing funny in our predicament,"—icily.

"A few moments ago you said that our angles of vision were not the same; I begin to believe it. As for me, I think it's simply immense to find myself in the same boat with you."

"I wish you had been an anarchist, or a performer in a dime museum."

"You might now be alone here. But, pardon me; surely you do not lack the full allotment of the adventurous spirit! It was all amusing enough to come here under false pretenses."

But I had not reckoned on any one's losing jewels."

"No more had I."

"Proceed. I have the courage to trust to your guidance."

"I would that it might be always!"—with a burst of sentiment that was not wholly feigned.

"Let us go on,"—impatiently. "I shall not only catch my death of cold, but I shall be horribly compromised."

"My dear young lady, on the word of a gentleman, I will do the best I can to get you out of this cellar. If I have jested a little, it was only in the effort to give you courage; for I haven't the slightest idea how we are going to get out of this dismal hole."

We went on. We couldn't see half a dozen feet in front of us. The gloom beyond the dozen feet was Stygian and menacing. And the great grim shadows that crept behind us as we proceeded! Once the girl stumbled and fell against me.

"What's the matter?" I asked, startled.

"I stepped on something that—that moved!"—plaintively.

"Possibly it was a potato; there's a bin of them over there. Where the deuce are we?"

"If you swear, I shall certainly scream!" she warned.

"But I can swear in the most elegant and approved fashion."

"I am not inclined to have you demonstrate your talents."

"Aha! Here is the coal-bin. Perhaps the window may be open. If so, we are saved. Will you hold the candle for a moment?"

Have you ever witnessed a cat footing it across the snow? If you have, picture me imitating her. Cautiously I took one step, then another; and then that mountain of coal turned into a roaring treadmill. Sssssh! Rrrrr! In a moment I was buried to the knees and nearly suffocated. I became angry. I would reach that window—

"Hush! Hush! The noise, the noise!" whispered the girl, waving the candle frantically.

But I was determined. Again I tried. This time I slipped and fell on my hands. As I strove to get up, the cord on my gown became tangled about my feet. The girl choked; whether with coal dust or with laughter I could not say, as she still had on her cambric mask.

"Forgive me," she said. And then I knew it was not the coal dust.

"I'll forgive you, but I will not promise to forget."

"Merciful heavens! you must not try that again. Think of the noise!"

"Was I making any noise?"—rubbing the perspiration from my forehead. (I had taken off my mask.)

"Noise? The trump of Judgment Day will be feeble compared to it. Surely some one has heard you. Why not lay that board on top of the coal?"

A good idea. I made use of it at once. The window was unlatched, but there was a heavy wire-screen—nailed to the sills outside. There was no getting out that way. The gods were evidently busy elsewhere.

"Nothing doing," I murmured, a bit discouraged.

"And even if there was, you really could not expect me to risk my neck and dignity by climbing through a window like that. Let us give up the idea of windows, and seek the cellar doors, those that give to the grounds. I declare I shall leave by no other exit."

"It was very kind of you to let me make an ass of myself like that. Why didn't you tell me beforehand?"

"Perhaps it's the angle of vision again. I can see that we shall never agree. Seriously, I thought that if you got out that way, you might find the other exit for me. I am sorry if my laughter annoyed you."

"Not at all, not at all. But wouldn't it be wise to save a little laughter to make merry with when we get out?"

I stepped out of the bin and relieved her of the candle; and we went on.

"You did look funny," she said.

"Please don't!" I begged.

Soon we came to a bin of cabbages. I peered in philosophically.

"I might find a better head in there than mine," I suggested.

"Now you are trying to be sarcastic," said the girl.

We went on.

Apples! Well, my word, she was a cool one! I picked up one, polished it on my sleeve, and gave it to her.

"I'm hungry," she said, apologetically.

"And plucky, too," I supplemented, admiringly. "Most women would be in a weeping state by this time."

"Perhaps I am waiting till it is all over."

"You had better take off your mask." In fact I felt positive that the sight of her exquisite face would act like a tonic upon my nerves.

"I am doing very well with it on. I can at least keep my face clean." She raised the curtain and took a liberal bite of the apple—so nonchalantly that I was forced to smile.

"Here's a box," said I; "lets sit down while we eat. We are safe enough. If any one had heard the racket in the coal bin, the cellar would have been full of police by this time."

"Proceed. I Have the Courage to Trust to Your Guidance."

And there we sat, calmly munching the apples, for all the world as if the iron hand of the law wasn't within a thousand miles of us. It was all very amusing.

"Are—are you the man they are hunting for?" she asked abruptly.

"I never stole anything more terrible than green apples—and ripe ones"—with a nod toward the apple bin.

"Pardon me! I feel very guilty in asking you such a question. You haven't told me your name."

"Haven't I? My name is Richard Comstalk. My friends call me Dicky."

"Dicky," she murmured. "It's a nice name."

"Won't you have another apple?" I asked impulsively.

"My appetite is appeased, thank you."

An idea came to me. "Hamilton said there were three tens of hearts. That meant that only one was out of order. Where did you get your card?"

"That I shall tell you—later."

"But are you really an impostor?"

"I should not be in this cellar else."

"You are very mystifying."

"For the present I prefer to remain so."

We tossed aside the apple cores, rose, and went on. It was the longest celler I ever saw. There seemed absolutely no end to it. The wine cellar was walled apart from the main cellar, and had the semblance of a huge cistern with a door opening into it. As we passed it, the vague perfume of the grape drifted out to us.

"Let's have a bottle," I began.

"Mr. Comstalk!"

"By absent-treatment!" I hastened to add.

"You will make a capital comrade—if we ever get out of this cellar."

"Trust me for that!" I replied gaily. "Be careful; there's a pile of empty bottles, yearning to be filled with tomato catsup. Give me your hand."

But the moment the little digits closed over mine, a thrill seized me, and I quickly bent my head and kissed the hand. It was wrong, but I could not help it. She never spoke nor withdrew her hand; and my fear that she might really be offended vanished.

"We are nearly out of it," I said exultantly. "I see the cellar stairs on ahead. If only those doors are open!"

"Heaven is merciful to the fool, and we are a pair," she replied, sighing gratefully. "It seems strange that nobody should be in the cellar on a night like this. Hark! They are playing again up stairs in the ball room."

"And wondering a whole lot where that third ten of hearts has gone."

"But, listen. How are we to get back to the trolley? We certainly can not walk the distance in these clothes."

"Oh, that carryall will come to our rescue. We are weary and are leaving early, don't you know. That part is simple; the complicated thing is to shake the dust of this cellar."

"What a big furnace!" she exclaimed, as we came into view of the huge heating apparatus. "And there's more coal."

A man stepped out from behind the furnace and confronted us. A red bandana covered the lower part of his face and his hat was pulled down over his eyes. But I recognized him instantly. It was the fellow with the villainous pipe! Something glittered ominously at the end of his outstretched arm.

"If you make any noise, sir, I'll have to plug you, sir," he said in polite but muffled tones.

The candle slipped from my fingers, and the three of us stood in darkness!

CHAPTER V.

There was a clicking sound, and the glare of a dark-lantern struck my blinking eyes.

"Pick up the candle, sir," said the tranquil voice from behind the light.

I obeyed readily enough. Fate was downright cruel to us. Not a dozen feet away was liberty; and now we were back at the beginning again, with the end nowhere in sight.

"Shall I light it, sir?" I asked, not to be outdone in the matter of formal politeness.

"Yes, sir, doubtless you will need it."

I struck a match and touched the candlestick.

"Burglar?" said I. (For all my apparent coolness, my heartbeats were away up in the eighties!)

The girl snuggled close to my side. I could feel her heart beating even faster than mine.

"Burglar?" I repeated.

"A political job?" thunderstruck.

"Yes, sir; I am an inspector of cellars,"—grimly. "I couldn't get around to this here cellar earlier in the day, sir, and a fellow's work must be done."

Here was a burglar with the sense of humor.

"What can I do for you?" I asked blandly.

"Firstly, as they say, you might tell me what you and this lady are doing in this lonesome cellar."

"Say 'sir,' when you address me."

"Yes, sir."

"The lady and I were playing hide-and-seek."

"Nice game, sir,"—grinning. "Were you trying to hide under the coal?"

"Oh, no; I was merely exploring it."

"Sir."

"You're a cool hand, sir."

"I am gratified to learn that our admiration is mutual. But what are you doing here?"

"I was ascertaining if the law was properly observed, sir," shaking with silent laughter.

"But what puzzles me," I went on, "is the fact that you could gather the gems in that garb." For I was positive that this was the Galloping Dick every one was looking for.

"I don't understand a word you say, sir. I'm an inspector of cellars, sir, not a jeweler. So you and the lady was playing hide-and-seek? Come, now, what is your graft? Is all the push here to-night?"

"That depends,"—cursing under my breath that I wore a gown which hampered my movements. For, truth to tell, I was watching him as a cat watches a mouse.

"Well, sir, we of the profession never interferes with gentlemanly jobs, sir. All I want of you is to help me out of here."

"I am not a burglar."

"Oh, I understand, sir; I understand completely. A gentleman is always a gentleman, sir. Now, you can return to that coal bin. I was just about to make for it when you lit that candle."

"Why not leave by the cellar doors?"

"I have my reasons, sir; most satisfactory reasons, sir. I prefer the window. Get along!"—his tones suddenly hardening.

I got along.

"The lady may sit down, sir," he said courteously.

"Thank you, I will," replied the girl, plumping down on an empty winecase. (She afterward confessed that if she had not sat down on the box, she would have sat down on the cellar floor, as a sort of paralysis had seized her knees.)

I stepped into the coal bin and rested the candle on the little shelf for that purpose. I was downright anxious to see the fellow safely away. There wasn't room in that cellar for the three of us. His presence doubly endangered us and multiplied the complications. I was in no position to force the gems from him. A man who has ten thousand dollars' worth of jewels on his person doesn't stop at shooting; and I possessed a healthy regard for my skin. I opened the window and caught it to the ceiling by a hook I found there.

"There is a stout screen, my man."

"Take this, sir, and cut it out."—handing me a pair of wire clippers, holding his lantern under his arm meanwhile. The muzzle of the revolver, during all this time, never wavered in its aim at my head.

I went to work at the screen and presently it fell inward.

"Is that satisfactory?"—with impressive irony.

"You are the most perfect gentleman that I ever see, sir!"

COLBY TO RAYMOND.

Senator Invites Opponent to Attend Political Meeting.

Senator Everett Colby has written to First Assistant Prosecutor Thomas L. Raymond, of Essex, who aspires to Mr. Colby's job, inviting him to attend the opening of the "new idea" campaign at the New Auditorium, Newark, July 23. Mr. Raymond has replied to the effect that the letter reached him just as he was going away on a business trip and that he intended to take a vacation on his return.

The text of Colby's invitation was not made public, but it is understood that even if he were not going away Raymond would not avail himself of the opportunity to attend the meeting. He is said to take the view that as the "new ideaites" have already announced themselves for Colby their minds are made up on the Senatorship, and that beyond that he has no desire to take part in what may be construed as a factional caucus or conference.

It is probable, however, that Colby will renew his invitation to his opponent.

The Laurel A. C. would like to arrange a twilight game with the Jr. O. U. A. M.

Laurels Defeat All-Plainfield.

The Laurel A. C. defeated the All-Plainfields on Hope Common, last night, in the first of a series of twilight games, by the score of 16 to 2. The All-Plainfields in an effort to win obtained the Mono A. C. infield, but this failed to help them to any extent. Davis and Bird, of the Monos formed the battery for the All-Plainfields, while Hamman and Kyle were in the points for the Laurels. The features of the contest were the playing of Harry Pasch, of the Laurels, and P. Kiely, of the All-Plainfields. The score by innings:

Plainfield vs. Orange Tomorrow.

During the past week the Orange Y. M. C. A. team, which will meet the local association nine on Crescent Oval, tomorrow, has taken a big brace and with a new battery of excepional ability, promises to make Plainfield hustle to win tomorrow's contest. The teams are now tied for first place in the State Association League and the result will be of vital importance to the local players. Scott and Loizeaux will be the battery for Plainfield and they can be depended upon to do their share toward winning the contest. The Orange aggregation is considered one of the strongest in the league and as in basketball they will make every effort to remain on top.

GOLF.

A bogey handicap will be the scheduled event at the Plainfield Country Club, tomorrow, and there will be the weekly dinner-dance in the evening.

Weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups and the regular play for the challenge trophies will be the attraction at the Park Golf Club, tomorrow.

The two match rounds in the Western Amateur golf championship at Rock Island, Wednesday, proved the undoing of several crack players. H. Chandler Egan, the champion, was defeated by John D. Cady, the local representative, by 4 up and 3 to play. The next surprise was furnished by Warren K. Wood, of Homewood, former United States North and South champion, who lost to the Rev. Paul R. Talbot, of Wichita, Kan., by 4 up and 3 to play.

It is a noteworthy fact this season that more ministers are engaging in the game of golf than ever before. They find it to be a healthful exercise and one in which they can participate without any unjust criticism. The Park Golf Club seems to be the mecca for local ministers, as usual, among those who play there being Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Dr. H. K. Carroll and Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

The fact that many of the members of the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club are out of town on their vacation, is noticeable on the course, although the home guard turns out in goodly numbers each week to take part in the regular events.

In a majority of cases those who are away from home follow the game on other links and in this way keep in condition so that when they return in the fall they are able to jump in and contest for honors on their own course.

The Westfield Golf Club is experiencing a successful season and the increasing membership enjoys playing over the course these fine summer days. The place is also popular on Sundays and holidays.

TENNIS.

An invitation men's doubles tennis tournament will be played on the courts at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow in which many outside players of not have entered.

In the presence of a big crowd of enthusiastic rooters, the Blackville and Darktown baseball teams met on Hope Common, yesterday afternoon, and crossed bats for a purse of $10. The Darktowns won out by a score of 16 to 11. Something like $7 in bets changed hands on the result and in explaining the defeat to the angry losers, Captain John Taylor asserted that the Blackvilles couldn't play nine men and the umpire.

"Gee Wah" Willis and "Pop" Nelson were on the firing line for the Blackvilles and Charlie Mason and Ed Vail held the points for the Darktowns. A feature of the game was the unceasing regularity with which Lew Peterson, first baseman for the Blackvilles, dropped the balls that were thrown to him. In the next game Lew will wear gloves smeared over with fish glue.

After the contest was over, "Gamey" Nelson, the dean of Plainfield's colored baseball players, challenged the winning team to a match with the Veterans, recently organized by Charley Cline. The defi was accepted and a date will be set for the game within a few days.

New Arrangements at P. C. C.

Under the management of the house committee of the Plainfield Country Club, Miss Helen C. Scott is now in charge of the clubhouse and restaurant, and dinners and luncheons are now obtainable at reasonable prices. Members are requested to assist the management in placing their orders for meals before 8:30 o'clock in the morning. Arrangements can be made for special dinners and luncheons except on Saturdays and holidays. A stage will meet cars on the hour and half-hour and there will be dancing Saturday evenings until further notice.

JERSEY'S POLITICIANS IN A BASEBALL GAME

Notables that were aplenty at Sea Girt yesterday in response to Gov. Fort's invitation to members of the Legislature and State officials to have luncheon with him at the "Summer Capital." Thursday afternoon hundreds from coast resorts north and south of Sea Girt witnessed a game of baseball, in which the Governor, United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, Congressman John J. Gardiner, Chancery Clerk Vivian M. Lewis, State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, President Thomas J. Hillery of the Senate and others high in officialdom endeavored to beat a team made up of members of the House of Assembly. No one knows whether they succeeded or not.

Governor Fort, with two strikes called on him, sent the ball out between first and second for a two-base hit that was big league.

Senator Briggs put a hot grounder into right field. There was so much substituting and so many changes in umpires that it is doubtful if the winners will ever be proven.

History will show that Colonel Austen Colgate, of Orange, the Governor's personal aide, carried his more than 200 pounds of avoirdupois around the field on a three-base hit just as he used to do when a strapling Yale undergrad.

Congressman Gardner is a southpaw. He held the bat as if it were a crab net, but surprised everybody by driving a ball into the ground near the pitcher's box.

"Uncle Dan" Voorhees was easily the moving spirit of the game. He and the Governor's son and secretary, Leslie R. Fort, arranged the contest. Camp stools marked the bases and were courteously surrendered to new arrivals by the basemen from time to time.

Most of the officials showed some knowledge of the sport. "Uncle Dan's" curve was there and his only break was when he ran to third base with second clutched tightly in his right hand.

Professor Henry D. Thompson, of Princeton University, Assemblyman from Mercer county, delayed matters a little after a base hit by carrying the only bat to first with him.

Assemblyman H. Stacy Smith, of South Orange, was twice at bat and twice clouted the leather in the general direction of Spring Lake. "Uncle Dan" protested against him after that.

Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Union, in the box, showed a disposition to put Chancery Clerk Lewis out while that official was rushing madly toward first. The lanky Union county man picked up Lewis' grounder and threw it to Assemblyman Philip Daab, who was resting peacefully on the camp stool that represented the initial bag. It was aimed true, and hit Daab in the chest.

The spectators the next instant beheld a 200-pound legislator, a camp stool and the ball in an inglorious tangle, that wasn't straightened out until Lewis had made second safely.

The Assemblymen did most of the fielding for both "teams." There were several batteries. Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, pitched first, with Senator Hillery catching. Moxon twirled, with Chancery Clerk Lewis and Senator Frelinghuysen behind the bat most of the time. "Uncle Dan" Voorhees played shortstop and right field. Assemblyman James A. Lyon, of Morris, played second, and Assemblyman Kirstein, of Union, third base. Judge Franklin W. Fort, of East Orange, played without partiality, holding down first some of the time.

To say the least, the game was informal.

"BOP" FITZSIMMONS ISSUES A CHALLENGE.

Stanley Ketchell's claim to the middleweight championship title has been disputed by Bob Fitzsimmons, of Dunellen, N. J., who issued a challenge yesterday at Seattle to the Montaan lad for a twenty-round contest to be decided in Spokane.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., has "called off" its meetings for the summer. They will be resumed in September.

CALLS NEGRESS "MRS." IN COURT; FINED $5

The use of "Mr.," "Miss" or "Mrs." when applied to negroes, will not be tolerated by Judge Edwin R. Cochrin, in Municipal Court at Wilmington, Del., and after announcing yesterday morning that he would fine any one for contempt of court who violated this ruling, he had occasion to apply the rule.

He had just finished making his announcement, when a negro, who was being tried on a breach of the peace charge, in making a statement, addressed a negro witness named Sarah Archer os "Mrs." Archer.

Christopher Brooks, the offender, was fined $5 for contempt of court. On the charge of breach of the peace, Brooks was placed under a $500 peace bond.

FOR LESS DIVORCE BAKE BETTER BREAD

"Better bread making would lead to fewer divorces," said Dr. H. M. Wiley, of the Government's "poison squad," who yesterday addressed the American Biscuit Makers' Association at Atlantic City.

"Good bread, in my opinion," he added, "would help to solve the American evil of divorce. If the bakers make good bread and then educate the people to buy it the great destroyer of domestic happiness, dyspepsia, will be removed and we will hear no more of the divorce problem."

Dr. Wiley declared to the bakers that much of the bread sold today is unfit to eat; that the much chemicalized flour is used; that he cannot see the reason for coloring flour, and that it was the Government's intention to have flour sold the color nature intended it to be; that bleaching injures the flour.

He said that eggs imported from China in cans, broken months before being used in cakes and bakeries, had been outlawed, and that the Government held to the theory that anything that is not fit to eat raw is not fit to eat mixed in food stuffs. He declared no food should be artificially colored.

JERSEYMEN SAVE HOBART MAINE HOME.

Lake Mooselookmeguntick, Me., July 17.—The summer home here of United States Senator William P. Frye, which he occupies jointly with Garret A. Hobart, Jr., of Paterson, N. J., narrowly escaped destruction yesterday from a forest fire. The building was saved after hard work by volunteer firemen, led by the Senator and Mr. Hobart. Mrs. Garret A. Hobart, Jr., is the grand-daughter of Mr. Frye. When the alarm was given, motor boats came scurrying to the scene from all directions. The patrons of the Mooselookmeguntic House also turned out.

Among the firement were Dr. E. T. Stradman, of Hoboken, and son; Ten Broeck and F. Cahill, of Jersey City; C. L. Harrison, of Philadelphia; Charles Wylie, N. J. Miller and Harry Sturgis, of New York. Among the ladies who viewed the struggle and encouraged the workers were the Misses Louise and Katherine Curalli, of Jersey City.

PROBERS' VISIT DATE FOR ELIZABETH NEXT WEEK.

The date of the Elizabeth visit of the State excise probers, of which Mayor Fisk is chief, originally set and announced for July 27, is now an uncertain quantity. Thursday afternoon the Commission decided to take July 27 for its investigations at Trenton. No attempt was made to select definitely another date for going to Elizabeth, although July 22, 23 and 24 were all considered.

When the excise commissioners take testimony in Trenton Monday, July 27, they will summon witnesses not only from Trenton but also from Burlington and Hunterdon counties. The probe will be officially inserted in Newark next Monday. The first Monday in August the commissioners will conduct a hearing at Camden, and then a week later, or August 10, at Atlantic City. The following week prohibition Asbury Park will be quizzed.

ELECTION OFFICIALS INDICTED.

Hudson County Grand Jury Acts in Republican Primary Case.

The Hudson County Grand Jury went before Judge Blair in Jersey City yesterday and handed up several indictments. These included the regular Republican election officers who presided at the primaries held on April 28 for the election of delegates to the Republican State convention.

The charges of fraud upon which the indictments were based were made by the New Idea Republican, who alleged that the regulars had stuffed the ballot boxes. They presided at all five wards in Hoboken and in the First, Fourth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth wards of Jersey City. The names of the indicted men will not be given out until Judge Blair causes warrants for their arrest to be served.

NEW DATA COMPILED ON STATE MINERALS

State Geologist Kemmel has just issued the first of a series of geological atlases in conjunction with the United States geological survey, which is intended to ultimately cover the whole state of New Jersey.

The first volume just from the press contains numerous maps and descriptions of an area of land in the northern section of the State, west and southwest of New York city, and comprising something over 900 square miles. This location, known as the Passaic quadrangle, includes besides Staten Island and other parts of Greater New York, the cities of Newark, Hoboken, Jersey City, Paterson, Elizabeth, Passaic, Plainfield, Rahway and Perth Amboy, as well as many towns and villages in these various vicinities.

The area thus illustrated by the authorities is shown in a folio consisting of a topographic reproduction, three geologic maps, a sheet of half-tone pictures and twenty-seven pages of text prepared by Geologists N. H. Darton, W. S. Bayley, R. D. Salisbury and H. B. Kummel and will be sold by the State geologist for the cost of the paper, printing and binding. Parts of the Hudson, Passaic, Hackensack, Elizabeth, Rahway and Raritan rivers are described in the maps and text as are also the upper and lower New York bays, Newark bay, Kill von Kull and Arthur Kill.

In the text is explained the character of the various rocks of the area, the same being classified according to age, and their origin is discussed with reference to thickness and strata, the distribution of formalities, origin of elements of the geologic structure and their chemical and mineralogical nature. The geological history of the region is given at length and accounts of the effects of the glacial period are especially complete. Economic resources of the locality are likewise discussed, with particular reference to the iron ores, graphite, building stone, road metal, limestone, clay, sand, gravel and peat that are to be found in the ground.

DYED HIS HAIR TO ESCAPE.

Italian's Red Crop Came Out Black, but Police Got Him.

As to the result of an effort to make arrests in the case of the assault Thursday night on Policeman John Geary, at Paterson, who was badly injured by a number of Italians in the Sandy Hill section of the city, John Parr, of 105 Bond street, was shot in the right knee. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Parr was shot from an alley at 66 Cedar street while the police were trying to arrest Toney Mike and William Fusco, three brothers, who are said to have taken part in the assault on Policeman Geary. The three brothers were finally hustled to the station house through a crowd of threatening Italians.

Antonia Laid, of 113 Beech street, who is charged with being one of the chief assailants of Policeman Geary, was arrested last night. He had dyed his hair, which is red, a jet black, but did not make a good job of the dyeing.

RIVER PURIFICATION HALT.

Elizabeth Council Finds That the Bids Are Defective.

It is unlikely that work on the cleansing of the Elizabeth River will be commenced this year. The Elizabeth City Council has learned that the bids for the cleansing contract are defective and new bids must be submitted. The bids provide for an intercepting sewer and pumping station.

At present the river is in a bad condition. It is proposed to construct a trunk and lateral sewer with which to divert the sewage from the river. In Revolutionary times this river was a limpid stream and navigable the full length of the city.

Trenton Banks to Claim Exemption.

The Trenton Bankers' Association has recommended to the banks composing the association to claim exemption on non-taxable securities which are held by them to the amount of one-half their surplus. This recommendation is the result of a recent decision of the Court of Errors, to the effect that all non-taxable securities which are held by national banks are exempt from taxation.

"Strange Man" at South Plainfield.

MRS. EDDY IS 87 YEARS OLD.

Christian Scientist Does Not Observe Borthday, But Is Congratulated.

Boston, July 17.—The fact that this was the birthday of Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy did not outwardly disturb the founder of Christian Science, though it is said that, naturally enough, she does not think much of birthdays or of their cumulative effects.

In accordance with her wish there was no observance of the anniversary at Chestnut Hill, where she now lives. She devoted herself as usual to her writing, seated in the bay window of her study in company with her two secretaries. Mrs. Eddy was, however, unable to stay telegrams of congratulations and flowers which came to the house from admirers near and afar, while the postman brought numerous letters from close friends.

Mrs. Eddy was born in Bow, N. H., eighty-seven years ago, and she appears to be in fair health and vigorous for one of her age.

Fire Alarm Breaks Lose.

A break in the fire alarm whistle at the electric light station at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon startled the whole town, giving the impression that there was a big conflagration. There was no fire and the trouble was caused by the breaking of the attachment which holds the steam in check awaiting alarms.

VOTING MACHINE PROTEST

Mr. Swackhamer Says They Are Unreliable and Unconstitutional.

BOROUGH DECIDES ON TUESDAY

Former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Somerset county, like Mayor Samuel Townsend and other prominent residents of North Plainfield, does not believe that the automatic voting device is any improvement on the time-honored paper ballot. Mr. Swackhamer sounds a strong protest against the further use of the machine, whose fate so far as North Plainfield is concerned will be decided at an election on Tuesday.

"That these machines are unreliable," said Mr. Swackhamer, "has been established by evidence reported in the newspapers all over the country, and errors have been pointed out which have thworted the will of the people, and contravened the intention of the voters.

"It is manifest that a designing person, possessed of ordinary mechanical skill, could so manipulate these machines as to reverse the order and change the result of the election, and thereby give the office to the man whom the people had rejected.

"I do not mean to insinuate that such a thing would be done, for experience has demonstrated that the ordinary politician is an honest man, and would not descend to such base practices? I am only speaking of the possibility in case a different class of men were in charge of such a contrivance.

"If a man, after turning the crank, should swear that he had voted for a certain candidate, he would be close to the boarder line of perjury; for while he knows what he intended to do, he knows not what he did, 'for having eyes, he see not.' Like a rifleman shooting at long range, who gets himself in position with the aid of his guides, summons up all his nerve force, and lets fly, taking his chances on the result.

"Is this the vote contemplated by the framers of our constitution and laws? The courts of Massachusetts have decided that this method of voting is unconstitutional and void. The independence of the voter is destroyed, and many are practically disfranchised.

"It would seem that the originator of this contrivance, was aiming to compel a strict party vote, and to effectually prevent the cutting of a ticket. The freedom of the voter in this respect, is practically taken away, and no matter how black the fraud, or gross the error, the result as announced is a finality, and there can be no recount.

"Immense sums are charged for these machines, and if they are continued in operation, large profits will be gained by the party furnishing them to the State; but this is no reason why the people should be forced to pay the bill and submit to the inconvenience and humiliation of settling the great questions of government through the instrumentality of a machine.

"It may be well to consider why this method of voting was first opposed by the politicians and favored by the people, and is now favored by the politicians and opposed by the people.

"If there is one thing that is sacred to the voter, it is the secrecy of his ballot; yet who will deny that the click of the lever in the cutting of his ticket, is as intelligible to the ear of the listener, as is the click of the telegraph to the ear of the operator."

Hospital Benefit.

Walter During and George Terrell, perhaps two of the best known conductors along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad, are at the head of a movement to furnish a room in the new wing of Somerset Hospital, Somerville, now in course of construction. Railroad employes along the line are chipping in and the room will not only be furnished but every want of it, such as bed linen and toweling, will be supplied. The room is not to be reserved exclusively for the use of railroad employes, but will be for the public in general. The trustees of the hospital have accepted the offer.

CO. K GOES TO SEA GIRT

Plainfield's Soldier Boys Have a Jolly Time at Armory on Eve of Departure.

ONE WEEK IN SEA GIRT CAMP.

Assigned to Twenty-four Hours' Guard Duty This Year—What They Will Be Required To Do.

Prior to going into camp at Sea Girt, today, the privates of Co. K entertained the commissioned and non-commissioned officers at the armory on West Front street, last night. It was a gala night for the soldier boys and they gave their guests a royal good time. The entertainment consisted of a minstrel show by seven members of the company, Arthur Dow, Harry Holmes, Frank Hermann, Robert Reid, George Rittenhouse, Norman Loughlin and William Jameson.

Mr. Dow was the interlocutor, and Messrs. Harry Holmes and Frank Hermann were the end men. Each one was called upon to do his little "stunt," and it provided an abundance of fun for all. Among the guests present were Lieut. Pearsall and Captain W. K. Browning. There were character songs, lots of new jokes and several choruses. After the entertainment all enjoyed a supper provided by the privates and it was well along toward midnight when the happy affair was concluded.

The members of Co. K to the number of sixty-eight left Plainfield on a special train at 12:50 this afternoon for Sea Girt, under the command of Captain H. B. Kitchell. When the train reached this city it brought Co. M, of Somerville, and at Elizabeth, Cos. I and C will join the soldier boys. Immediately upon reaching Sea Girt the different companies will go into camp and the next week the daily routine will be as follows:

First call for reveille, 5:30; reveille, 5:40; assembly, 5:45. Formation under arms. Roll-call, result to be reported to the officer of the day, and ten minutes' instruction in manual of arms; mess call, breakfast, 6:30; sick call, 7:00; fatigue call, police camp, 7:05; guard mount, first call, 7:45; assembly, 7:50. For the purpose of instruction, each company will be subdivided into four details and the guard will be mounted in accordance with the principles for separate details in paragraphs 507 to 522, infantry drill regulations. Drill call, first call, 8:30; assembly, 8:40; recall, 10:30.

Between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30 a. m., bathing will be permitted north of the rifle range, under the supervision of an assistant surgeon. School call, 11 o'clock; recall, 11:45; mess call, dinner, 12 noon; drill, first call, 1:50; assembly, 2:00; recall, 3:30; first call, regimental parade and retreat, 5:25; assembly, 5:30; mess call, supper, 6:30; guard mount, first call, 7:45; assembly, 7:50. The company will be inspected on its own parade by its commanding officer, and marched to the post of the guard by the senior lieutenant. Tattoo, 10:00; call to quarters, 10:45; taps, 11:00. Check roll-call, result to be reported to officer of the day.

All service calls will first be sounded by the bugler at Brigade Headquarters, and then repeated by the musician of the infantry guard from a position near the guard tent. Divine services, Sunday, July 19, church call, Catholic services, 7:30 a. m. All desiring to attend this service will report to Captain Carey, Co. E, at his quarters, and proceed to the place of service. Church call, service, service at Governor's cottage, 10:30. Regimental formation, without arms, except officers in command and proceed to the place of service.

This is the first year since the organization of the local company that the entire membership has been able to go into camp. It is possible that one or two members may not go to Sea Girt today, but they will join the rest of the boys tomorrow or Monday. Another honor conferred on Co. K this year is that the boys have been picked to do guard duty, under the same regulations as followed in the regular army. They will be on duty for twenty-four hours during their stay in camp.

The local militia is looking forward with great interest to meeting Major W. B. Martin at Sea Girt, word having been received that he will reach camp the latter part of next week. They are anxious to give their former captain the proper kind of a reception following his great work abroad.

While Co. K is in camp it is expected that a large number of Plainfielders will visit Sea Girt, and they will be assured of a hearty welcome should they find time to call on the local company.

"LONG LIVE THE KING!"

"I tell you what I do up in Plainfield. If I want anything done I send for the man and say so. I tell him 'you obey the laws or get out,' and he obeys."—Mayor Charles Joel Fisk's remark as chairman of the State Excise Commission at Jersey City, Tuesday, July 7, 1908.

MURDERED EDITOR BURIED

SLAYER WAITS FOR HIS WIFE.

She Keeps Away from Jail and Will Not Endeavor to Aid Him, It Is Believed.

There was alarge attendance last night at the funeral of the Rev. Samuel S. B. Prickitt, who was murdered at Metuchen on Wednesday afternoon by Archibald Herron. The Rev. George C. Wilding, of Perth Amboy, conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. Benson Crowcroft and the Rev. Dr. J. B. Mason, of Metuchen, and District Superintendent Randolph, of this city. The casket was almost hidden with floral tributes. Services were held at the home of Charles A. Prickitt, at Metuchen, as his house is larger than that of his father.

While the services were being conducted Herron, the murderer, was impatiently awaiting at the jail for his wife, who has not been to see him since the shooting. He continually says that he is sure that his wife will stick to him, but she has not shown enough interest in him thus far to visit him.

It was thought yesterday that Herron means to take advantage of the insanity plea. When Warden Rogers told him yesterday that he would probably be tried on July 27 and that he should consult his lawyer, he replied that he would do nothing until he saw his wife, and added:

The tone in which he said it made the warden think that the man has no idea that he is in the shadow of the electric chair. He has seemed unconcerned about himself and is worrying more about his wife.

Mrs. Herron has told Detective Fouratt of her husband's acts at the house and of his anger against Mr. Prickitt. It is thought in Metuchen that she will not go to the man's defense. It is said that he has ill-treated her for years, and that she has no love or sympathy for him.

The State expects the trial to be short. It has three witnesses of the incidents immediately before and after the shooting, and one boy who saw the shooting. The State has also the bullet which Herron fired from a revolver in his room when officers were pursuing him, and the one which killed Mr. Prickitt, to show that they were fired from the same revolver. The State also has evidence that the murderer had been practising with a revolver for five months, which, it thinks, will wipe out any plea of insanity.

Common Council's Next Session.

Although it has been the custom of the Common Council to meet several times during the month, the members will not hold another session until the regular one, Monday night, August 3.

GAMBLING DEBT LEADS TO A POLICE COURT CASE

John Smith, a chauffeur residing on East Fourth street, swore out a warrant at Police Headquarters, yesterday, for John Coon, better known as "Cooney," charging him with assault and battery. The complaint was served and the matter was to have been heard in the city court this morning, but owing to the illness of Judge Runyon no session was held. As a result the case will probably remain in abeyance for a couple of months as Smith leaves this afternoon for Cape Cod, Mass., with his employer to remain until September.

According to the complainant's story, he was twice assaulted by "Cooney," the first time at Fourth and Sycamore streets on Tuesday night last and the second on Watchung avenue, near North, on Wednesday night. Smith is about half the size of the other man and he declared that if it hadn't been for the help of sympathetic bystanders he would have fared badly. He explained "Cooney's" desire to pummel him by stating that he has failed to pay the latter a gambling debt of $65. The money was wagered on a pool game one night last May but Smith did not produce the coin when he lost because he had won a similar bet of $75 a little before and was unable o collect. He offered to pay "Cooney" a little on account until he could get what was coming to him but the former insisted that he be paid all or none.

Since that night, Smith told Judge Runyon, "Cooney" has "laid for him" and he made the complaint in order to prevent his waylaying him at every opportunity.

OWL CLUB'S OUTING.

Nine members of the Owl Social Club left this morning for Lake Hopatcong, where they will occupy Rose Villa at Nolan's Point until August 1. The party included George Smith, George Schlick, Jacob Schlick, Frank Jellig, George Mead, Harry Wierenga, Charles Ryder, Edward Mattell and George Green. Other members of the club will visit the cottage at odd times and next Saturday and Sunday a house party will be held.

The Owl Club is a comparatively young organization but has been active in a social way the past two seasons. The membership now numbers about twenty and is steadily growing. Heretofore it has been the custom of the club to camp out in summer but the idea of cottage life for the vacation sojourn was broached this year and the present outing was the result. In the event of its proving successful the villa will probably be secured for the entire season in 1909.

Assemblyman Says Grover Cleveland Should Serve as a Model.

LOCAL FUND NOW NEARLY $300.

Union County Legislator Hopes That Cleveland's Motto Will Be Accepted as a Principle of Our Government.

Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, has sent his check for five dollars to The Daily Press for the Cleveland monument fund. His contribution brings the total collected through this paper up to $296.85. The mite boxes have not been opened for a week and it is safe to say that they will swell the amount to over $300.

In a letter enclosing his contribution, Assemblyman Kirstein says: "The proposition has my unqualified approval. Grover Cleveland was a figure commanding the admiration of all our citizens, regardless of party affiliation. His rugged honesty, sincerity of purpose and determination to do the right as he saw it, merits our highest praise, and is worthy of the thoughtful consideration of all servants of the people. I hope that his slogan, 'public office is a public trust,' will ever be regarded as an accepted principle of our government."

HE HAD PLEADED "NON VULT."

Judge Booraem Sentences Him to Sixty Days in Jail and to Pay a Fine of $250.

Charles Wyckoff, hotel-keeper of Dunellen, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail and to pay a fine of $250 by Judge Booraem at New Brunswick yesterday morning, on a charge of selling liquor without a license. Wyckoff, who pleaded non vult a few weeks ago, was stunned by the sentence, having expected to get off with a light fine. His counsel, Senator George S. Silzer, was also surprised, and accompanied the man from the Court House to jail and tried to console him.

Wyckoff's place, about the most pretentious hotel in Dunellen, is on South avenue and Chestnut street. It is a new place and has a wholesale license. Application was made for a retail license, but the court refused it.

Senator Silzer told the court that Wyckoff had simply been behind the bar one day in place of the man who ran the place, and had sold half a pint of whiskey, which had been carried from the hotel. He pleaded non vult because he was technically guilty and desired to save the State the expense of a trial. "He might have stood trial with," began the Senator.

"Peculiar results," interrupted Prosecutor Berdine, referring to the disagreements and acquittals in cases where men have been tried for illegal selling.

Mr. Berdine held that Wyckoff and a man named Trainor, who was also indicted, had been selling liquor at retail; that his officers had bought liquor there, and that the place had been conducted as an ordinary drinking saloon. Detective Hoffman, of the prosecutor's office, said that he had seen fifteen men at the bar drinking, with glasses and bottles on the bar. He had been there on two occasions.

"You have been a resident of this county a number of years," said Judge Booraem to the hotel man, "and you seem to be an intelligent man, and you must have known that you were doing wrong when you sold at retail without a license. You are also well informed enough to know that the court has denounced violations of the liquor laws and has declared that so long as those laws are on the statute books they must be enforced and that the court has said that he will punish violators severely. To permit violations to go unpunished would not only be a miscarriage of justice, but it would be unfair to the men who pay their licenses and comply with the law. It is the duty of the court to show that the liquor laws will be enforced, so that those in the future who contemplate violating the law will know the punishments before them."

AUTO IN A COLLISION

OCCUPANTS GETS A SHAKING-UP

Preferring to smash his machine rather than run down a woman who stepped in front of him and became confused, Sidney Corby, of Morristown, han his big touring car into a fire hydrant at Park avenue and Front street at 11 o'clock this morning. The radiator became jammed hard and fast and the occupants of the auto, two women beside the driver, were given a shaking up by the sudden stop, but were not hurt. The car was pushed away from the plug by a crowd of men and was afterward taken to a garage for repairs.

Mr. Corby came down Front street in the machine, numbered 19,818, and turned into Park avenue just as a wagon pulled across his path. He swung sharply to the right only to find that a woman about to cross the street was directly in front of him and wavering as to which direction to take. The sidewalk was the only alternative for Mr. Corby and without an instant's hesitation he sent the machine over the curb, missing the woman by a few inches. Her name was not learned as she hurried away during the excitement.

An old man was standing on the sidewalk near the hydrant became greatly excited when the big car bounded over the flagstones and made a wild leap for safety. When the danger had passed he insisted that the owner of "the pesky machine" should be arrested. Patrolman Charles Flynn succeeded in convincing him that Mr. Corby had acted in the best manner possible under the circumstances.

The corner where the accident occurred is a dangerous one and similar mishaps are barely avoided almost every day. The crossings are generally crowded and as the brick pavement is almost always wet from sprinkling, any kind of a sharp turn will send an automobile skidding into the curb. On two occasions, last week, big touring cars hit the same hydrant that stopped Mr. Corby's.

ELIZABETH'S REPUBLICANS ENDORSE E. R. ACKERMAN

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, was endorsed for a renomination and election at a meeting of the Elizabeth Central Republican Committee, held at Elizabeth, last night, and Captain Robert Kirkland was also endorsed as a candidate for sheriff.

The committee, with one exception, expressed itself against the further use of the voting machine and agreed to do all in its power to have it abolished.

There was a preliminary discussion of a big Republican meeting planned to be held in Elizabeth during the middle of August and the committee decided to assist in making it a success. James White, as chairman of the committee, urged all Republicans to work together for by united effort there would be no doubt as to the success of the ticket in November. Assemblyman John R. Moxon and County Clerk James C. Calvert also made remarks.

Hurt In Carriage Upset.

A horse belonging to C. A. Leveridge, of Sherman avenue, and driven by the owner, became frightened at a trolley car at Fourth and Sycamore streets, this noon, and overturned the carriage to which it was attached. Mr. Leveridge and his son were thrown out and the former was severely cut and bruised. He was assisted to Miller's drug store for treatment. The carriage was badly wrecked before the horse was caught. The younger Mr. Leveridge, who was in the rig, was the owner of the auto destroyed by a fire in the garage at his home Wednesday night.

New Bridge For River Styx.

Newton, July 18.—The Sussex County Board of Freeholders visited the River Styx bridge, in Byram Township, Thursday, in accordance with a resolution passed at a meeting last week. An inspection was made of the structure. After a contest of some years the Supreme Court recently decided that the bridge was county property, and the county must maintain it or provide a new structure. The officials found it in a dangerous condition, and it was the general opinion no more repairs should be put on the old structure, but a new bridge built. The board met yesterday afternoon to dispose of the matter. Following a dinner at the Hopatcong House, the freeholders boarded the private launch of Mayor Edwards, of Hopatcong Borough, and were treated to a ride around the lake.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Robert Peacock, a lawyer of Florence, has announced his candidacy for auditor of Burlington county.

The Millville Board of Health took final steps to compel all property owners to connect with the city sewage plant at its meeting Wednesday night.

The Millville Board of Health Wednesday night granted the petition of the St. Mary Magdalen church to construct a cemetery on Malaga turnpike.

John Crammer, of Glassboro, is the victim of five bad gashes in his hand, the result of an explosion of a bottle in which he was trying to place a stopper.

A wind that arrived from somewhere blew down into Paterson early yesterday morning a veritable snow storm of white moths, or "dusty millers," as the children call them.

Ground was broken yesterday at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street, Bayonne, for a new clubhouse for the Republican Club. It will be two stories high, of brick, and will cost $14,000.

The committee of freeholders, of Salem county, appointed to investigate the present method of lighting the county almshouse has reported that it finds the oil lamps unsafe and recommends electric lights.

The DeMaris family reunion was held at Pitman yesterday. This family is one of the largest and oldest families in South Jersey, the original settlement being in the neighborhood of Bridgeton, now known as Cedarville.

While bathing in Maurice river, at Bricksboro, yesterday, Harry Thompson, of Mt. Holly, struck his head on a sunken log. His cousin, James Charge, of South Millville, brought him to the surface. He was unconscious for nearly an hour.

Charles Canova, a grocer's clerk in the employ of Angelo Valtz, of 373 Straight street, Paterson, slipped and fell down a stone stairway leading to the cellar of the store yesterday afternoon and sustained a complete fracture of the right knee cap.

Mayor Nichols, of Clayton, has at last solved the problem of automobile speed regulation. No officers are needed in this scheme. The new street crossings catch the autoist and inflict the punishment by bursting a tire or damaging a machine.

A trolley car on the Camden and Trenton Railway yesterday wrecked a shelving wagon on the outskirts of Bordentown, and the driver, Joseph Green, an aged man, was badly injured. He was taken to St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton.

Falling down stairs at the home of Professor J. Wesley Hughes, of Millville, Mrs. Abigail Borden, widow of Steelman Borden, was fatally injured. It is supposed that she was stricken with apoplexy. Dr. Wade dressed severe wounds about her head, but owing to her advanced age she suffered intensely and died shortly after the accident.

Decisive disapproval of the frequency of stabbing affairs, which have given Atlantic City police much trouble, was expressed by Judge Higbee yesterday, when he sentenced George Logan to three years in the penitentiary at Trenton. Logan stabbed the foreman of the Hygeia Ice Company, who discharged him for negligence. He nearly fainted when sentence was pronounced by the court.

DENTIST SUES FATHER FOR DAUGHTER'S BILL.

Jersey City, July 18.—Dr. F. C. Barlow, a dentist, of 646 Jersey avenue, Jersey City, has brought suit against George Richter, a contractor, living at 237 Seventh street, that place, to compel payment of a bill for $68. This sum, Dr. Barlow alleges, is due him for filling twenty cavities in the teeth of Miss May Richter, twenty years old, daughter of the defendant.

Payment of the bill is refused, it is alleged, on the ground that Miss Richter went to the dentist without permission or direction from either of her parents. The suit was heard in private yesterday before District Court Judge James S. Erwin in his office in the Commercial Trust building here.

Dr. Barlow presented a chart showing the work that had been done on Miss Richter's mouth. The young woman testified that she had told her mother she was going to the dentist to have a tooth treated. Her mother made her no reply. She went to Dr. Barlow and had the work done. Mrs. Richter corroborated her daughter. She said her husband made her a weekly allowance, and, while it was sufficient for ordinary household expenses, it would not cover a dentist's bill of that magnitude. She had not told her daughter to go to Dr. Barlow.

—Councilman H. D. Hibbard, of East Seventh street, has purchased a Buick automobile.

TAKES HIMSELF TO JAIL.

"Scrapper" Welsh Carried His Commitment to Paterson.

Thomas Welsh, a familiar character, best known to the police as "Scrapper" Welsh, was sent to jail by Police Justice George H. Dalrymple at Passaic yesterday, and carried his own commitment. Welsh entered the court intoxicated, and Justice Dalrymple asked him what ought to be done with him.

Welsh said he needed a little straightening out, and that a short term in the county jail would fix him up. Justice Dalrymple committed him for five days and was about to send an officer to Paterson with him, when Welsh declined to be accompanied. If he couldn't go alone he wouldn't go at all, he said. He was given the commitment, paid his own carfare to Paterson, entered his cell in a jocular mood and said he would be better off upon emerging.

ELIZABETH'S TAX BUDGET.

Including County and State Dues, It Will Reach $759,000.

The City Council of Elizabeth has received the report of its finance committee, containing the annual budget. The total amount for city appropriations is $497,996.82.

Many additional expenses to the city in the way of improvements to streets and parks, as well as the contemplated Elizabeth river improvement and the new recreation pier, made it difficult to keep down the tax rate.

Estimating county and State expenses the total amount to be raised by taxation this year in Elizabeth will be $759,000, an increase of $30,000 over last year. There will be no increase in the tax rate.

IMPURE MILK AT LINDEN?

Health Board Told It Is Causing Epidemic of Dysentery.

The health department of Elizabeth is investigating the report that there is an epidemic of dysentery among the employes of the new Standard Oil plant at Linden, caused by impure milk.

One employe had the milk analyzed, and found it contained a heavy percentage of chalk and water.

Elizabethans Safe in Wreck.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Schirrefs, of 312 South Broad street, Elizabeth, who were in the wreck of the White Mountain Express at Greenwich, Conn., have telegraphed to their relatives at Elizabeth that they escaped uninjured. Mr. Shirrefs, who is superintendent of the grain elevator of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Jersey City, was going with his wife to Wilmington, Vt.

ALLEGED THIEVES HELD.

Elizabeth, July 18.—Frank Buga, Peter Remeske and Anton Jankowske were arraigned in police court Thursday charged with breaking open and robbing slot gas meters, at Elizabeth. The trio, it is charged, have been operating nearly three months, and in that time they are blamed for the robbery of twenty meters.

Jankowske, in addition, is accused of stealing $100 from Anthony Patrick, a Polander, who lives at Elizabethport. The police declare that Jankowske fled from this city and then wrote to Patrick that he was having a bully time with his money, which was the man's savings for a year. All three prisoners were committed in default of $30 bail.

SAYS HE STARVED FAMILY.

On Wife's Complaint Butcher Is Committed to Jail.

Max Chinkinsky, a Hebrew butcher, was sent to jail at New Brunswick Thursday because his wife swore that he was starving his family. The butcher claimed that the high price of meat had ruined his business and that he could not make enough money to satisfy his wife.

The man is the father of Joseph Chinkinsky, the boy who died on the Richmond Street Synagogue steps last August after a fight with five other boys, who were recently acquitted of the charge of atrocious assault. The defense claimed that the boy's body had been so poorly nourished that a fall in the steps could have produced death. It was practically charged that the boy had been starved to death.

Levies on Dentists' Trunks.

Asbury Park, July 18.—Mistaking some trunks belonging to the dental exhibitors for the effects and properties of the "Mr. Bluebeard" and "Don Jose" theatrical troupes, which are here, Constable Jinks attempted to levy upon the exhibitors' outfits late Thursday afternoon. He soon discovered his mistake, however, and placed the embargo on the scenery of the "Mr. Bluebeard" company for the purpose of satisfying a board bill which the proprietor of the Lake View Hotel claims some of the chorus girls related to Mr. Bluebeard owe him.

Ask Bail in Murder Charge.

Judge Atwater reserved decision yesterday on the application of counsel for Thomas Flannigan and John Sullivan, of Elizabeth, for bail on a charge of wilful murder in connection with the drowning of Joseph Nastis. Counsel declared that the intent of malice was absent.

ELK MEMBER WEARS BIGGEST MERRY WIDOW HAT.

St. Paul, Minn., July 18.—When N. A. Ritz, of Walla Walla, Wash., appeared in the Elks parade at Dallas Thursday he wore the largest Merry Widow in America. It was sixty inches in diameter and has a crown a foot high.

"Wish I had a good josh hat to wear in the Dallas parade," Mr. Ritz remarked two weeks ago as he sat in the smoking compartment of a Pullman bound for Sioux City.

"If you'll wear the hat I send you I'll furnish you one," remarked a man sitting near by. Introductions followed, and Mr. Ritz found that he was talking to Joseph Stronge, of St. Paul, a wealthy hat manufacturer.

"I'll make you a hat the like of which there is not in all America," Mr. Stronge said.

"Make it and I'll wear it, or I'll buy the best suit of clothes in America for you," agreed Mr. Ritz.

The hat was shipped to Dallas by express for Mr. Ritz. It followed the accepted Merry Widow style, and was so large that the shipping room clerks had to build a special crate with a cupola on the top to protect the crown. A pound of glue was required to complete its manufacture, and at Mr. Stronge's big St. Paul factory they put 400 yards of straw braid, three-quarters of an inch wide, into what is accepted as the most astonishing Merry Widow ever created, and probably the largest ever built in the world. Mr. Ritz paid about $10 express charges, but had a hat that made every Elk in the parade turn green with envy.

NO PAIN FROM BROKEN LEGS.

Aged Paralytic's Injuries Not Discovered Until Long After Fall.

Owing to the fact that she has been a sufferer from paralysis for the past two years, Mrs. Joseph R. Weir, of 713 Cookman avenue, Asbury Park, felt no pain when she fell out of bed at her son's home and fractured both of her legs Wednesday. Her injuries were not discovered until Thursday, when Dr. H. S. Kinmonth called. Mrs. Weir is considered in a critical condition owing to her advanced years. She is seventy years old. About a year ago she broke her hip and since that time has been confined to her bed.

Wednesday she rolled from the bed when no one was in the room, and when she was placed on her couch her weak condition was considered due solely to the shock of the fall, as it was not known any bones had been broken.

Clinton Avenue will journey to Scotch Plains this afternoon and make every effort to retrieve lost honors there. It is said that a visiting team always had a hard time winning at the 'Plains, but if the Clinton Avenues can put up the kind of ball they did last week, they will come home victors. Scotch Plains, it is said, will strengthen up for today, by using Johnson, of Garwood, in the box, and "Chick" Cruzius at short.

The local fans should go to the Oval this afternoon if they want to see a good game. The Y. M. C. A. and Orange association teams will cross bats and endeavor to break the tie now existing. Manager Listman is sure that his aggregation will be equal to the occasion and will be able to defeat Orange, even though the latter club has a new battery and has strengthened up in other positions. The game will be called at 3:45 o'clock and there will be plenty doing to interest the crowd.

Here's a good one for the enthusiastic fans to work on: How many single hits is it possible for a team to make in a full nine-inning game without scoring a run?

Shifts of players of more or less importance are daily occurrences in the big leagues and serve to keep the fans on edge and enthusiastic about the teams, while at the same time they are of benefit to the teams themselves. But in these shifts there is occasionally a stumbling block, and such a one has cropped up now over the transfer of Unglaub from the Boston Red Sox to the Washington Nationals. Unglaub says he won't put on a Washington uniform until he is assured that he will receive the same salary as the Boston team paid him and makes mention of the fact that he has received an excellent offer from the Stockton, Cal., baseball club, which he will accept tonight unless he hears from Manager Cantillon. Cantillon, on the other hand, says that Bob has no cause to fear a cut in salary, as he personally assured him that Washington would assume his contract in case the deal was put through.

The ranks of the Philadelphia Athletics are to have two additions in the persons of Barr, a pitcher, and Jackson, an outfielder, both members of the Greenville, S. C., club of the Carolina Baseball Association. Barr is reported to be the best pitcher in that organization and Jackson heads the list of batting averages; so if they join Connie Mack's squad after August 12, when the Carolina association season closes, they may prove of much advantage to the team.

Fielder Jones, of the Chicago White Sox, is in receipt of another communication from Frank Smith, the deserting pitcher. Smith had the nerve to say he would come back if he was allowed all the back pay which he forfeited by going home. He reported that he was in fine condition, but it is hardly probable that Jones will fall for that bait if Smith insists upon the pay clause.

GOLF.

Members, subscribers and guests are eligible to the annual tournament of the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club, the next fixture of the Metropolitan Golf Association schedule, on August 6, 7 and 8. Entries close with Supt. O. D. Seavey at the club on August 5 and for the handicap on August 7. This is always one of the largest and liveliest of the tournaments, for as the sets qualify in eighths it is over in two days and Saturday is clear for the annual thirty-six hole handicap. The field is always of high quality and the tournament is often a trial ground for the college boys' against the more seasoned players. W. J. Travis won last year and it is a favorite course with the golfing wizard. The qualifying round will be at eighteen holes for a low score prize and to gain eligibility to four divisions. Match play begins in the afternoon, the semi-final and final round being on August 7. There will be a cup and runnerup prize for the first eight and first prizes only for the second, third and fourth eights. There will be two prizes in the handicap, one for the best gross and the other for the best net score, but the same player cannot win both trophies.

Aleck Smith, the former open champion, has been on tour in the Adirondacks. On Tuesday at the Cobble Hill Golf Club, Elizabethtown, he made the new record for the course of 32.

In playing off the tie for the July cup with Mrs. G. F. Palmer, the new record for women of the Montclair Golf Club course of 44, 50-94 was posted to the credit of Mrs. Francis E. Donohue. Mrs. Donohue, who formerly played at the Glen View Club, is now a member of the Montclair Golf Club and at scratch in the handicaps.

SOUTH ORANGE FLAGMAN MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH.

Brittain W. Vanderhoff, a flagman on the South Orange night drill train, was crushed to death in the Lackawanna yards west of High street, at the Passaic and Delaware junction, West Summit, early yesterday morning.

The flagman had ridden the caboose of his train on a siding, and supposed that the caboose was far enough along the track to allow the remainder of the train to pass an another track. The train was backed in and caught Vanderhoff, who was standing alongside the caboose, crushing him between a car and the caboose. His breast was crushed in and every rib in the unfortunate man's body was broken. It is believed death resulted almost instantly. The body was picked up by the train crew and taken to Brewster's undertaking room at West Summit.

Vanderhoff, who was twenty-six years old, lived in South Orange with his wife and three small children. The victim's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderhoff, who live near Mt. Tabor, called at the undertaking rooms yestreday, after which they notified their daughter-in-law of the accident. County Physician Westcott granted a permit for the removal of the body to South Orange.

"Long live the King!"

The second of Judge William N. Runyon's series of cartoons appears in this issue. The popular judge, a genius in many lines, today presents his bosom friend, Mayor Fisk, to those who would enjoy a merry laugh. "Laugh and the World Laughs With You."

At the request of many readers who enjoyed his series on "The Apostles' Creed," The Daily Press has obtained from Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring a particularly instructive and interesting series on "Heaven." The first number of these edifying discourses appears in this issue. They will be continued weekly.

Oh, that we had more jurists like Booraem! In the Middlesex court yesterday he demonstrated for the second time within a week that he is the right sort of a man to pass judgment upon the guilty. No placing the convicted one in charge of a probation officer, nor letting him go "scott free" under a suspended sentence. This upright jurist knows that to put a stop to the spread of crime, he must measure out such a sentence that will punish the offender and deter others from committing like offenses. For sending "black hand" letters to a minister, Judge Booraem committed the culprits to a twelve years' term in the State prison. For violating the provisions of the Bishops' law, he sent the guilty one to jail for sixty days besides levying a fine. Jail is the proper place for those who will not respect the law, and Judge Booraem has proven himself a refreshing novelty in New Jersey because he has taken that position.

THE HEAVENLY WORLD!

First of a Series on Heaven by

REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

Paul, in his letter to the Corinthians, says: "The things that are seen are temporal and the things that are not seen are eternal." Did you ever think that you are living in two worlds at the same time? You are well aware of the fact that you are living in a material world, a world of the strenuous life, a world that takes so much of your energies, and your brain power, that you have very little time, energy or thought to spend upon a world of the imagination. Yet, if the Apostle is right, you are living, at the present moment, in a world that is just as real as this world that is so evident to the senses. Paul, in another place, says it is more real; for his counsel to Timothy is "Lay hold on the life that is real." In other words, while you are living in this world, live in touch with the other world. Both of these worlds exist today; this world that we call the practical world and that takes most of our energies but which, at the same time, is passing away; and the unseen world that will never pass away.

The fact that we do not see the spiritual world is no evidence that it does not exist.

Taylor, in his remarkable book called the "Physical Theory of Another Life, says: "Within the space occupied by the visible universe, and on all sides of us, there is existing and moving, another element, fraught with another species of life, not open to the cognizance of those who are confined to the condiditons of animal organization; this second universe is not less real than the one we are conversant with; our plants perforate the structure of this invisible creation; our suns do not scorch its plains, for the two collateral systems are not connected by any active affinities."

That Taylor's theory is not a dream is very evident from what Professor Young more recently has said with regard to the universe. He remarks that there may be worlds unseen, and unknown pervading each other in the same space. There may be, too, millions of spiritual creatures, pervading this atmosphere, living and active, and yet, making no impression on our senses.

Our five senses convey information to us of only a small part of God's universe. I am so very limited, even, in what my senses reveal to me of this physical world, that I do not hear all the sounds that are about me. I perceive certain vibrations of things that are within the limits of my powers. I might hear the flowers grow if my sense of hearing could record all kinds of vibrations. It is said a dog can hear a whistle a man cannot hear. I have no doubt that man has latent within him other senses which will become more thoroughly developed in the other world. He has, however, today, that which brings him into touch with this other world. Men have called it a sixth sense, the sense of faith. It is through this sense that man becomes acquainted with the fact that he is living in a spiritual world, and he is to trust the evidence of this sense in its domain as he trusts the evidence of the other senses in their domain. There is something which tells a man's faith that God is round about him in such a way that he need not be dismayed.

I think it was the philosopher Kant who said, that heaven is not so much another place as it is another view.

The poet, Wordsworth, expressed his consciousness of a spiritual presence in these lines of his "Prelude:"

"I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts: a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round oceans, and the living air
And the blue sky, and the mind of man;
Amotion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought
And rolls through all things."

There is something more than a world of sense; there is a spiritual world which is the real world and with which it is our privilege to come into touch. The heavenly world lies about us,—hidden from our eyes, because it is hidden by the things of sense. It is not some place newly created, for it is where God dwells with his angels.

I confess that this thought is uplifting to me, that the heavenly world with its inspiration and comfort is round about me, and that I can come in touch with it while I am living in this material world. I do not think I should be any nearer to God in the most distant planet than I am here. The things that are seen are not sufficient for man's need. Read in the fourth chapter of Paul's Second Letter of the Corinthians of the trying things that came into his life. What was his inspiration? I am not looking, he said, at the things that are seen, I am looking at the things that are not seen. May the Lord open the eyes of our faith that we may see and know and have fellowship with God and have the joy and the peace which this temporal world of sense can neither give us nor take away from us.

Company M of Somerville sent a large delegation of soldier boys at noon today for the week's camp at Sea Girt. They were in charge of First Lieutenant Albert E. Case and paraded a few of the principal streets of the town before taking the special for the shore.

Hundreds of people from Somerville will attend the camp next week to see the workings of a military outfit. The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders will visit the camp in a body, including Counsel John A. Frech, Clerk Arthur P. Sutphen and County Engineer Joshua Doughty, at the invitation of Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan.

Captain George R. Kochler, of Co. M, who is taking the regular army examinations at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., according to word received in Somerville, has passed the physical and drill exercises and is now engaged in taking mathematics, which will requir about five days.

GOSGROVE FOR SENATOR.

Socialists Name Him to Run Against Ackerman.

The Elizabeth city and county convention of the Socialist party was held in Columbia Hall, Elizabeth, last night, when the platform of the National Socialist party was endorsed and candidates were nominated for local and State offices. Those nominated are as follows:

State Senator, Christopher Cosgrove, of Roselle; Assembly, Charles Zaitlach, of Westfield; William Walker and Isaac Evans, of Elizabeth; Sheriff, Max Theimar, of Elizabeth; Coroner, John Conklin. Gustave Themar was nominated for Mayor of Elizabeth. The other nominations were left to the county committee.

Herbert S. Brokaw, who was graduated at Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., June 17, with the degree of civil engineer, passed an examination at the Albany State Civil Service Commission and is located at Sprakers, N. Y., in the interest of the company.

Penmanship

To listen to some teachers of penmanship, you would think there is some patent way to learn to write, but there is not. If you cannot write well, it is because you cannot control your hand. We show you how to do this, give you the correct form of letters, and then, if you will practice faithfully, you will soon become a good writer. We have a skilled penman at the head of the penmanship department in this school.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours; Morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p. m., followed at 8 o'clock by the evening preaching service. The pulpit will be occupied by a supply, no regular pastor having as yet been called.

The home team and Clinton Avenues are having it out on the local diamond this afternoon. The game is the third in the series of five games, each team having a victory to its credit.

Mrs. Maria Noble, who has been visiting her son, William B. Noble, of Park avenue, has returned to her home in Newark.

The annual union excursion of the several Sunday-schools from here and Westfield will be held Thursday of next week.

Benjamin Clark, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital for several weeks, is reported as improving slowly.

The "Old Guards" are arranging to hold their annual clam bake during the early part of August.

Rev. W. W. Dieterick will lead the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

Lynus Walpole has returned from a visit of several days with friends in Brooklyn.

DUTY OF PLAINFIELDERS AS HUGH FOX SEES IT

Hugh F. Fox has sent a check for five dollars to The Daily Press for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp Fund. The total received for the camp on the mountains now aggregates $29.50.

"With a view to enjoying a comfortable vacation myself," says Mr. Fox, "I enclose a contribution for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp. Plainfield's hospitality to city waifs is of course something to be proud of, but she must take care of her own poor children."

Children's Lawn Party	$15.00
Charity Circle	5.00
Hugh F. Fox	5.00
Friends' School Classes	4.50

For the Netherwood Fresh Air Home:

S. A. George	$5.00

Contributions for these deserving charities will be received, acknowledged and promptly transmitted to the proper authorities by The Daily Press, following its annual custom.

HOPE CAMPING PARTY RETURNS THIS AFTERNOON.

After enjoying a most delightful week of out-door life, the members of Camp Hope, which has been located at Washington rock, will pack up their outfit and return to town this afternoon. The trip has been highly successful in every respect and will undoubtedly be the forerunner of many others to the same place. The site is an ideal one, yet convenient to the city.

First Baptist Church Supplies.

The supplies at the First Baptist church during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, will be as follows: July 19, a. m., Rev. Charles Fountain; p. m., union service, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea will preach; July 26, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of Lincoln; August 2, Rev. Dr. Howard Grose, of New York; August 9, Rev. Dr. F. W. Lockwood, of Pittsfield, Mass.; August 16, Rev. W. T. Dorwood, of Stelton; August 23, Rev. Dr. F. W. Lockwood, of Pittsfield, Mass.; August 30, Rev. Philip Strong, of New York; September 6, Rev. Dr. Howard Grose, of New York.

Even Money on This Game.

Even money is being wagered on the Clinton Avenue-Scotch Plains game to be played at the 'Plains this afternoon. Last night a delegation of sports from the 'Plains came to town with $125 and it was quickly covered, one local man placing $45 that the Plainfield boys would win. There is such rivalry between the teams that it promises to be one of the most exciting of the season with rare possibility of a full nine innings being played without a dispute. Edward Hand, of Scotch Plains, has been agreed upon by both teams as the umpire.

COLORED BAPTIST ASSN. CHOOSES NEW OFFICERS

The Middlesex Central Baptist Association, colored, which has been in session at the Calvary Baptist church, this week, elected these officers yesterday:

President, Rev. E. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick; vice-president, Rev. J. L. Burton, of Trenton; secretary, Rev. D. W. Cannon, of Plainfield; corresponding secretary, Rev. L. L. Croom, of Plainfield; treasurer, Rev. G. W. Baily. The officers were installed by Rev. George Morris, of Morristown, president of the State convention, after which Rev. G. W. Baily delivered an address of welcome, after which the missionary sermon was delivered by Rev. W. L. Crawley, of Asbury Park.

During the session these visitors were introduced: Rev. G. E. Morris, president B. Y. P. U.; Rev. P. W. Ross, Rev. J. W. Mitchell, Rev. E. M. Eliott and Rev. R. L. Harris. The president delivered his annual address, which reviewed the work of the past year in detail and embodied many suggestions for improvement, all of which were referred to the committee on recommendations.

This was followed with an address by Rev. Dr. G. E. Morris, president of the State convention on development and progress, showing for what the Baptist church stands. He declared that all stood for the Baptist doctrine which is one Lord, one faith and one baptism.

Rev. W. T. Watkins, president of the State B. Y. P. U., made an address, emphasizing the importance of the work being done by the young people, and urging the necessity for proper training. Treasurer Rev. W. B. Reed and Rev. T. R. Redd also made remarks.

Last night's session opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. D. W. Cannon, and Mrs. Secilia Crews, after which the welcome address was delivered by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Baily, responded to by Rev. J. L. Burton, vice-president. The doctrinal sermon was preached by Rev. R. W. Crawley, of Asbury Park. The association comprises thec olored Baptist churches in Mercer, Somerset, Hunterdon, Middlesex and Union counties.

A short session was held this afternoon, largely for prayer and conference.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock there will be praise services led by Rev. P. W. Ross, of Westfield, and Rev. Edward Hickenbotham, of Trenton. At 11 o'clock there will be the educational sermon by Rev. H. H. Mitchell, of Elizabeth. The afternoon services will begin at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Mrs. G. Moody, of New Brunswick, and Miss Mattie Kattes, of Rahway. At 3 o'clock there will be a platform meeting under the auspices of the Missionary Union, Mrs. L. L. Croom presiding. There will be short addresses by women of the different circles composing the Union. The evening service will begin at 7:30 o'clock, with devotional exercises by Superintendent L. Booker, and Robert Green, of this city. The sermon will be delivered by the president, Rev. R. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick, after which the conference will close. The committee of arrangements comprise Rev. G. W. Baily, chairman; L. W. Booker, Scipio Whindleton, William Ramsob and Ferdinand Brown.

FUNERAL OF S. D. DRAKE WAS HELD YESTERDAY.

Funeral services for Silas D. Drake, whose sudden death occurred Wednesday evening at his home in Bound Brook, took place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday at his late home. The officiating clergyman was Rev. I. Newton Phelps, of Bound Brook. The body was taken to Elizabeth today for interment in Mr. Drake's family plot. The committal was read at the grave by Rev. Mr. Phelps. Mr. Drake died suddely while seated on the porch of his home, reading a newspaper.

Alfred J. Everitt Entertains.

Alfred J. Everitt entertained a number of friends at his home on Fairview avenue, last night. The evening was spent in playing games and with vocal and instrumental selections. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Jennie Dresselt, vocal solos by Miss Nora Schenck and Alexander Dresselt, after which refreshments were served and the party broke up about midnight. Among those present were the Misses Allie Richardson, of Belleville; Eleanor Griggs, of Ringoes; William Watts, of Westfield, and Dollie Bolsterle, Clara King, Florence King, Jennie Dresselt, Georgiana Galloway, May Koller, Mildred Everitt, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kenney, Mrs. M. E. Everitt, Mrs. M. E. Bolsterle, Mrs. Sarah Coddington and Henry and Alexander Dresselt and C. F. Windham, of this city.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

J. H. Manning, former secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will speak at the Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock.

Rev. P. H. Murdick, the brilliant young minister of the Woodbridge M. E. church, will occupy the pulpit at Grace M. E. church tomorrow morning and night.

Rev. Frank A. Smith, formerly the pastor of the First Baptist church in Somerville, but now of Haddonfield, has announced that he has declined a call to become pastor of the First Baptist church at Duluth, Minn.

HOUSEKEEPERS SHOULD HAVE SEWING ROOMS.

The woman who begins her housekeeping with the idea of doing her own sewing must have one room set aside as a sewing room.

There is no question but that it is cheaper to "make one's own clothes," and to do the sewing for the household at home. For the woman who is deft with her needle sewing at home is not a difficult task, while the sheer daintiness of pretty little dresses for children and the fascination of lingerie and shirtwaists and summer frocks make sewing often the most delightful of housewifely occupations.

But the sewing room, whose furnishing cost but little, is a necessity.

The first essential for such a room is that it should be exceedingly light. Where there are two windows the sewing machine would naturally be placed at one, while the necessary working paraphernalia would be arranged about the other.

Bare painted flowers are best, but a suitable covering, if the floor is rough, is corp carpet, as this is warmer to the feet in winter than linoleum, and yet it quite easily swept up after the day's work is done. Footsteps for the feet are really necessary, while the window curtains must be of the casement order, which can be drawn right back to the extreme sides to admit of as much light as possible. The wall paper had best be a light color, so that it reflects brightness from the windows.

A good table, such as one would purchase for a kitchen or nursery, must be provided for cutting out, a couple of smaller tables being very useful for the sewers to spread their odds and ends upon. A fairly broad window shelf is also a desirable addition to the room of this description, and on this window shelf should rest a large, substantial, well-filled pin cushion, while at the sides of the window hooks would hold the regulation number of scissors, etc., required by workers.

On this window sill should also rest a shallow box, in which the various odds and ends necessary to dressmaking might be found with ease, such things as bones, tapes, buttons, etc., forming too bulky a bundle to be contained in the ordinary work basket.

The chairs should be low to be comfortable. Those with wooden arms are good to provide resting places for cottons and thimbles. Plush-covered chairs will accumulate the pieces of fluff and dust in a very unpleasant fashion. A higher chair with a straight back will be required for the sewing machine, while another most convenient item in the sewing-room is the block figure upon which the trying-on of bodices and skirts may be accomplished.

There should be a mirror which can be easily moved to obtain the best light, when necessary.

For the accommodation of garments in process of construction or needing repair, it is a good plan to get an ordinary broomstick and have it fixed at either end to flat wooden boards, which in their turn are supplied with substantial legs. On this pole have a generous number of those small wooden shoulders which can be purchased for about 6 cents apice, and on these the dresses and coats can hang.

Shelves for small supplies and a box ottoman for remnants and bundles of lining, as well as a knee board, will be found very useful.

THE USE OF LACES.

Women adore lace, for which reason it is not to be wondered at that this season they are using it so lavishly. At present nothing appears more alluring than lace coats, and, happily, one can easily be constructed with an ordinary coat pattern, hough, like everything else, the dainty finish, perfect fit and trimming must be carefully considered. Many graceful lace coats are made of all-over lace and the cutaway shape is used. The coat may be a very simple affair, depending upon crochet buttons and bands of silk for a finishing touch. Of course, the trimmings are all of white.

Then the sleeveless coat of filet is recognized as one very pretty affair, giving to a jaunty evening suit a very artistic and attractive finish. The armholes are widened in some instances, or finished with lace, often Venetian lace and satin bands.

The slashed coat is easily constructed. It is a trifle more elaborate, often depending upon satin cords placed in military style to give a desired trimming. Black cords and frogs will be found on many dressy lace coats, and often velvet bows.

Dust the Piazza.

A dry floor mop, made similar to the dishwater mops, is as indispensable adjunct to the piazza. By wiping the piazza with this every morning the fine dust is taken up and the necessity of mopping it with water often is done away with.

When Women Talk.

Behold the air, it groweth dense
With adjectives profound, intense;
The sun is dimmed by brilliant wit,
All nature's vanquished, bit by bit,
And men in trembling silence sit—
When the women talk.

HINTS FOR THE FRECKLE VICTIMS.

The simplest and safest lotion for reducing the coloring of "cold" freckles is lemon juice. If your skin is not too tender, apply the lemon juice plain; if the skin is tender and reddens under the touch of lemon acid, mix glycerine and rose water in equal proportions and add lemon juice as strong as your skin will endure it. This amount can be ascertained only by actual test.

If you have only a few freckles and these far apart, touch each freckle with a fine camel's hair brush dipped in the lemon lotion, say night and morning. If the freckles are peppered thickly all over your face or in certain parts of the face, dip a clean bit of old lines in the lotion and mop the affected parts with it.

This same treatment may be used by the girl who is bothered by summer freckles only. In her case, the lemon juice will cause the annoying blotches to disappear entirely, while it will only fade "cold" freckles.

But even more important than the use of this lotion is your care of the skin whenever you go out, either for summer sports or mere walking or driving. Prepare the face carefully. First rub a good cold cream thickly into the pores of the skin. Massage this in as thoroughly as if you were taking your daily beauty treatment and wipe off and excess of cream with a clean piece of old linen. Then apply carefully a pure face powder.

As to powder, if you are not sure as to the ingredients in the one you ordinarily use, make your own powder. It will cost you just as much as the proprietary article, but you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it will not injure your skin.

MIDSUMMER CARE OF THE FLOWER BEDS.

Keep cutting off the dead wood.

The limit to the life of a palm is said to be 250 years.

The crimson rambler should be in every garden. It flowers about a week later than the general run of roses.

Wistaria trained to stakes of about six feet in height and tied fast for two or three years, from stifff stems, becoming small bushes, in which shape they flower profusely and are much admired.

Keep dead leaves and flowers picked from the plants.

Rhododendrons thrive best in a shady light loam, and should be in the shade in the afternoon.

The soil for tuberous begonias should be kept moist, but must not have a very large amount of water at a time. They should never be watered when the sun is shining on the foliage, as the leaves are apt to drop when they are watered directly on the foliage.

The fucssia is a summer bloomer.

Keep the flower garden well weeded.

The geranium leads the list of bedding plants.

It should be made a rule to water the plants every evening.

Queassia tea is recommended for worms on climbing honeysuckles.

It is claimed that where ants come in large numbers they can be driven away by placing a few drops of carbolic acid here and there on the soil. The odor is offensive to them.

Poppies grow on a shady, gravelly, clayey, or on the most fertile soil, and bloom brilliantly during this and next month. The seeds should be sown late in summer or fall, in sunny places, never attemut to transplant.

THE MENTAL ATTITUDE TOWARD HOUSEWORK.

Housework should be regarded as one of the means of making one a broader, healthier, nobler woman. Work of any kind, if approached in the right spirit and performed to the best of one's ability, gives enjoyment and culture, says able Talk.

The wrong attitude produces a cramped condition. By resisting and complaining one becomes narrow and inferior. How many say "I hate housework," "I dislike cooking," "I despise washing dishes," "I detest sweeping and dusting." If housework, cooking, dishwashing, sweeping and dusting have to be done, why grumble and complain? The work only seems more difficult, more hateful and takes longer to do. Why not, then, do the necessary things cheerfully, and therefore easily and quickly?

As an aid to acquiring the right mental attitude, bring science and art into household tasks and thus lift them above drudgery. Try new ways of doing things. Be original. Because your mother or neighbor does a thing in a certain way it does not follow that there is not an easier and better. There are continual advances in domestic science as well as in astronomy, electricity and philosophy. Combine beauty with use. A useful thing is not of necessity homely, even if it is a bowl, a pot or a pan.

Find out the essentials and non-essentials. Let such things as can be slighted be slighted a little. Don't think that because it is Friday you must sweep the house from top to bottom whether it really needs it or not. Don't neglect the new book or the concert simply because you must put a few extra tucks in Susie's new dress. To quote: "What's the use of making discord in our family by working every minute, when we can not be 'worked to death' and keep our tempers, too."

A WOMAN DOCTOR MAY BE A SUCCESS.

"The life of a woman doctor is perhaps harder than the life of the average woman, and yet I think it is the most interesting life that a woman can live. That is the way it seems to me, anyhow." This is what Dr. Laura Hughes has to say in the Boston Post about her profession, one of the most discussed which women enter.

Dr. Hughes is one of the most prominent women doctors in Boston. She is a clubwoman, an acknowledged authority among her colleagues and the president of the Spanish War Nurses, which is the modern organization taking the place of the Red Cross Nurses.

She has a splendid personality, a tall, commanding figure, and a ready sympathy and interest which makes itself felt immediately and its possessor one of the women who is a leader among men as well as among women. She has a beautiful home and a host of friends. It is not strange that Dr. Laura Hughes should be happy in her profession.

"There is a great deal of studying to do, a great deal of practice to have had and knowledge to be assimilated before one can be a successful doctor, and yet I think the end is worth the pains," she says. "There is hardly any other profession, which brings one so close to people, in touch with so many kinds and conditions. Women love that instinctively. They like to get inside stories; they like to know what lies back of the lives they come in contact with.

"A woman likes to feel that she is doing good, too, and I know of no way in which she can do so much good as by being a doctor.

"It has been said that a woman's health is not strong enough to permit her to go through the hardships which a woman doctor has to endure. I should not advise a woman not in the best of health to enter the profession, but a normally healthy woman is quite safe.

"It is quite natural for some women to seek a career rather than a quiet home life. The doctor's profession is an outlet for these women.

"It means that she has to be a college graduate, which takes four years, and then her medical course takes four years. She is not a young woman by any means when she becomes a full-fledged doctor. Her hospital training comes after her medical training, and the years that are usually the sweetest of a girl's life are given to the work she has chosen.

"And yet she is happy in that work. She never reaches the utmost heights, and also she has something to work toward. That means that her ideals are never taken away from her, and while a woman has ideals to work toward she is happy.

"To be a doctor a woman has to decide to make a great sacrifice, but her reward is even greater in proportion."

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

The Hedjaz Railroad (932 miles long) has reached the holy city of Medina. When it will be completed to Mecca is rather problematical. September 1, the anniversary of Abdul Hamid's accession to the caliphate, a new mosque near the Medina station will be thrown open to the true believers.

Denmark grows about 100,000 pounds of not very good tobacco yearly, and smokes all of it in pipes that have very long stems. The Danes do not like our American tobacco; they say it's too strong, and they prefer the Brazilian or Javan product in cigars. Nowadays they are smoking Russian, English and Egyptian cigarettes at the rate of about 100,000,000 a year.

N. Neymarck, of France, has made detailed estimates of the world's negotiable securities. For twelve European countries his aggregate is $75,000,000,000; for the United States $35,514,000,000, and for Japan, $1,563,000,000. He estimates the total population of these countries at 565,500,000, and therefore assigns an average of $196 per person of this paper wealth.

They have discovered a way to thin out the obnoxious English sparrows in Erie, Pa. Two owls, which had taken possession of one of the squirrel houses in a tree on the Court House lawn at Erie, have launched forth into the sparrow-eradication business. Janitor Avery noticed that the number of birds was rapidly diminishing, and Monday discovered the secret when he had occasion to look into the squirrel house. He found the place literally filled with bones and feathers, which had formerly constituted parts of the anatomies of sparrows.

According to the Electrician, the committee appointed in connection with the rebuilding of the Russian navy has decided to utilize the public contributions which have been subscribed for the purpose of rebuilding the warships in establishing wireless telegraph stations at eighteen points on the Baltic coast line. Orders, it is said, have already been given for the equipments.

The Gas Mantle.

When your gas burns poorly, probably the mantle is black. If so, remove the globe, get a salt shaker, and with it sprinkle salt on the mantle, as much as will cover it, then light the gas and let it burn till all the black is off. Then replace the globe. Cleaned thus the mantle should be as good as new again.

BY HAROLD MACGRATH

AUTHOR OF THE MAN ON THE BOX ETC.

The girl laughed hysterically.

"Now what?" The fun was beginning to pall on me.

I obeyed him to the letter.

"Thanks!" With the agility of a cat he leaped up and wriggled through the window. He turned. "Good night, sir. Sometime maybe I'll do the same for you, sir."

"Go to the devil!" I snarled.

"My, my! What a temper, sir! I wouldn't have thought it of you, and a nice lady in speaking distance!"

He disappeared.

The girl laid a hand on my arm.

"You have acted very sensibly, Mr. Comstalk. If you had not, it is quite certain he would have shot you."

"What Can I Do for You?"

"It would have been a good thing for me if he had. He has gone, and the jewels have gone with him. I hadn't the least chance; the wretch! He probably came disguised as a plumber, and nobody suspected him."

"But if he possessed the ten of hearts, why should he have left this way?"

"Possibly my idea was only an imitation of his. There must have been at least a dozen tens of hearts. My dear young lady, I would give a good deal if you were well out of this. I believed my plan was for the best, and instead I have simply blackened the case against us. I have been too adventurous. The situation looks very serious just now. Of course, in the long run, we shall clear ourselves; but it will take some fine arguing to do it, and possibly half a dozen lawyers."

"It is a terribly embarrassing predicament; but since we started out together, we'll hang together." She held out her hand to me. "It will be fun to extricate ourselves with full honors."

"You're a brick!" And I pressed her hand tightly.

"Now, I wonder why the burglar didn't try those cellar doors?" she murmured.

"By dove, I'll soon find out! Come on! There's hope yet."

This time we reached the stone steps without interference. I gave the candle to the girl, cautiously put a shoulder against one of the doors, and gave a gentle heave. It was not locked. Through the thin crack I looked out upon the bright world of moonshine and crystal. Instantly I permitted the door to settle into its accustomed place. I readily understood the burglar's reasons. Seated upon a box, less than a dozen feet away, and blissfully smoking one of the club's cigars, sat a burly policeman. So they had arrived upon the scene!

"What is it?" asked the girl, as I motioned her to retreat.

"The worst has come; the police!" —dramatically.

"Gracious heavens, this is frightful! We shall never get out now. Oh dear! Why did I ever come? It will be in the papers, with horrid pictures. We ought not to have left the ball room. Our very actions will tell heavily against us. Awful!"

"Now, don't you worry. They will not take any notice of you, once they set eyes upon me. Homo sum! They are looking for me. There's only one superfluous ten of hearts. I have it."

"But I shall be found with you, and the stupid police will swear I am an accomplice." She wrung her hands.

"But no jewels will be found upon us," I argued half-heartedly.

"They will say we have already disposed of them."

"But the real burglar—"

"They will say that he came into the cellar at our bidding."

This girl was terribly reasonable and direct.

"Hang it! I know Teddy Hamilton, the M. F. H. He'll go my bail, and yours, too, for that matter. Come, let's not give up. There must be some other way out."

"I wish I might believe it. Why did I come?"—a bit of a wail stealing into the anger in her voice.

"This is Tom Fool's Night, and no mistake," I assented ruefully.

"But I am a bigger fool than you are; I had an alibi, and a good one."

"An alibi? Why on earth, then, did you follow me? What is your alibi?"

"Never mind now. We should still be in this miserable cellar,"—briefly.

What a night! A am so ashamed! I shall be horribly compromised."

"I'll take the brunt of it all. I'm sorry; but, for the love of Heaven, don't cry, or I shall lose what little nerve I have left."

"I am not crying!" she denied emphatically. "My inclination is to shriek with laughter. I'm hysterical. And who wouldn't be, with police officers and cells staring one in the face? Let us be going. That policeman outside will presently hear us whispering if we stand here much longer."

There was wisdom in this. So, once again I took the candle, and we marched back. There wasn't a single jest left in my whole system, and it didn't look as if there was ever going to be another supply. We took the other side of the furnace, and at length came to a flight of wooden stairs, leading somewhere into the club. It was our last chance, or we should be obliged to stay all night in some bin; for it would not be long before they searched the cellars. If this flight led into the kitchen, we were saved, for I could bluff the servants. We paused. Presently we ascended, side by side, with light but firm step. We reached the landing in front of the door without mishap. From somewhere came a puff of air which blew out the candle. I struck a match viciously against the wall—and blundered into a string of cooking-pans! It was all over, the agony of suspense!

Blang! Rumpity-bumpity-blang-blang!

I have heard many stage thunders in my time, but that racket beat anything and everything this side of siege-guns.

Instantly the door opened and a policeman poked his head in. Before I had time to move, he grabbed me by the arm and yanked me—into the ball-room! The girl and I had made a complete circuit of the cellars, and had stumbled into the ball-room again by the flight opposite to that by which we left it. Cheerful prospect, wasn't it? The adventure had ceased to have any droll side to it.

"Aha!" cried the base minion of the law. "Here you are, then! Hello, everybody! Hello!" he bawled.

Caught! Here we were, the Blue Domino and myself, the Grey Capuchin, both of us in a fine fix. Discovery and ejection I could have stood with fortitude and equanimity; but there was bad business afoot. There wasn't any doubt in my mind what was going to happen. As the girl said, there would be flaring head-lines and horrid pictures. We were like to be the newspaper sensation of the day. Arrested and lodged in jail! What would my rich, doting old uncle say to that, who had threatened to disinherit me for lesser things! I felt terribly sorry for the girl, but it was now utterly impossible to help her, for I couldn't help myself.

And behold! The mysterious stranger I had met in the curio-shop, the fellow who had virtually haunted me for six hours, the fellow who had masqueraded as Caesar, suddenly loomed up before me, still wearing his sardonic smile. At his side were two more policemen. He had thrown aside his toga and was in evening dress. His keen glance rested on me.

A detective! And Heaven help me, he believed me to be the thief! Oh, for Aladdin's lamp!

CHAPTER VI.

I stood with folded arms, awaiting his approach. Nonchalance is always respected by the police. I must have presented a likely picture, however—my face blackened with coaldust, cobwebs stringing down over my eyes, my Capuchin gown soiled and rent.

CERTAIN RESULTS.

Many a Plainfield Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Plainfield. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Albert Naylor, music teacher, of 436 East Fifth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I resorted to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills for same, as I had been told that they were a cure for such pain as I had been having. I took only two boxes before the pains left me, and was soon feeling first-class in every respect. I have often endorsed and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to those suffering from backache as I was."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for te United States.

"So you took a chance at the cellars, eh?" inquired the detective urbanely. "Well you look it. Will you go with us quietly, or shall we have to use force?"

"In the first place, what do you and your police want of me?" I returned coolly.

He exhibited his star of authority.

"I am Haggerty of the Central Office. I want you for several things."

Several things? I stared at him stupidly. Several things? Then it came to me, with a jar like an earthquake. The story in the newspaper returned to my vision. Oh, this was too much, altogether too much! He took me to be the fashionable thief for whom half the New York police force were hunting. My sight swam for a moment in a blur.

"What is it you think I have done?" I demanded.

"You have, or have had, several thousand dollars' worth of gems on your person to-night."

I shrugged. The accusation was so impossible that my confidence returned.

"Mr. Haggerty, you are making a stupid mistake. You are losing time, besides. I am not the man for whom you are hunting. My name is Richard Comstalk."

"One name or another, it does not matter."

"Plenty of gall," murmured one of the minions of the law, whom I afterward learned was the chief of the village police.

I surrendered it. A crowd had by this time collected curiously about us. I could see the musicians on the stage peering over the plants.

"The thief you are looking for has gone," said I. "He escaped by the coal window." By this statement my feet sank deeper still.

"What did I tell you?" cried Haggerty, turning to his men. "They had an accomplice hidden in the cellars."

"I beg to inform you that you are making a mistake that will presently cost you dear,"—thinking of the political pull my uncle had in New York. "I am the nephew of Daniel Witherspoon."

"Worse and worse! said the chief of police.

"We shall discuss the mistake later and at length. Of course you can easily explain how you came to impose upon these people,"—ironically. "Bah! the game is up. When you dropped that card in Friard's and said you were going to a masquerade, I knew your game in a minute, and laid eyes upon you for the first time since I began the chase. I've been after you for weeks. Your society dodge has worked out, and I'll land you behind the bars for some time to come, my gay boy. Come,"—roughly.

"I request Mr. Hamilton to be called. He will prove to you that you are greatly mistaken." Everything looked pretty black, I can tell you.

"You will see whom you please, but only after you are safely landed in the lockup. Now, Madame," — turning swiftly upon the Blue Domino, "what is your part in this fine business?"

"It certainly has no part in yours," —icily.

Haggerty smiled. "My skin is very thick. Do you know this fellow?"

She shook her head. He stood undecided for a space.

"Let me see your card."

"I decline to produce it,"—haughtily.

Haggerty seemed staggered for a moment. "I am sorry to annoy you, but you must be identified at once."

"And why?"—proudly. "Was it forbidden to go into the club cellars for such harmless things as apples?"

Apples! I looked at her admiringly.

"Apples?" repeated Haggerty. "Couldn't you have sent a servant for them?"

She did not reply.

"You were with this clever gentleman in the cellars. You may or may not be acquainted with him. I do not wish to do anything hasty in regard to yourself, but your position is rather equivocal. Produce your card and be identified—if you really can."

"I refuse!"

"Then I shall ask you to accompany us to the hoom up stairs till the police patrol arrives."

"I will go,"—quietly.

"Nonsense!" I objected. "On my word of honor, I do not know this lady. Our presence in the cellar was perfectly harmless. There is no valid reason for detaining her. It is an outrage!"

"I am not going to stand here arguing with you," said Hagerty. "Let the lady produce her card; let her disclose her identity. That is simple enough."

"I have already given you my determination on that subject," replied the girl. "I can very well explain my presence here, but I absolutely decline to explain it to the police."

I didn't understand her at all. She had said that she possessed an alibi. Why didn't she produce it?

So the two of us left the gorgeous ball-room. Every one moved aside for us, and quickly, too, as if we had had the plague. I looked in vain for Hamilton. He was a friend in need. We were taken into the steward's office and the door was shut and locked. The band in the ball-room went galloping through a two-step, and the gaiety was in full swing again. The thief had been rounded up! How the deuce was it going to end?

"I can not tell you how sorry I am to have mixed you up in this," I said to the girl.

"You are in no manner to blame. Think of what might have happened had you blown up the post-office!"

She certainly was the least embarrassed of the two of us. I addressed my next remark to the great Haggerty.

"Did you find a suitable pistol in Friard's?"

"A man in my business," said Haggerty mildly, "is often found in such places. There are various things to be recovered in pawnships. The gentleman of this club sent me the original ten of hearts, my presence being necessary at such big entertainments. And when I saw that card of yours, I was so happy that I nearly put you on your guard. Lord, how long I've been looking for you! I give you credit for being a clever rascal. You have fooled us all nicely. Not a soul among us knew your name, nor what you looked like. And but for that card, you might still be at large. Until the lady submits to the simple process of identification, I shall be compelled to look upon her as treat her as an accomplice. She has refused the offer I have made her, and she can not blame me if I am suspicious, when to be suspicious is a part of my business." He was reasonable enough in regard to the girl.

He turned to the chief of the village police, who was sitting at the desk ordinarily used by the club steward.

"No reporters, mind you."

"Yes, sir. We'll see that no reporter gets wind of the capture."

"For you, Mr. Haggerty," he said.

Haggerty sprang to the telephone and placed the receiver to his ear.

"What?" we heard him exclaim. "You have got the other fellow? A horse and carriage at once!"

"Take mine," said the chief excitedly. "What is it."

"My subordinate at the railway station has just landed the fellow with the jewels. Mighty quick work. I must hustle in to town at once. There'll be plenty of time to attend to these persons. Bring them to town the moment the patrol arrives. The gems are the most important things just now."

"Yes, sir. You can rely upon us, Mr. Haggerty. Billy, go down with Mr. Haggerty and show him my rig."

"Good!" said Haggerty. "It's been a fine night's work, my lads, a fine night's work. I'll see that all get some credit. Permit no one to approach the prisoners without proper authority."

"Your orders shall be obeyed to the letter," said the chief importantly. He already saw his name figuring in the New York papers as having assisted in the capture of a great thief.

I cursed under my breath. If it hadn't been for the girl, I am ashamed to confess, I should have cursed out loud. She sat rigid and motionless. It must have been a cruel ordeal for her. But what was puzzling me was the fact that she made not the slightest effort to spring her alibi. If I had had one! Where was Hamilton? I scarcely inclined to the idea of sleeping in jail in a dress-suit.

Haggerty departed. A silence settled gloomily down on us. Quarter of an hour passed. The grim-visaged police watched us vigilantly. Half an hour, three-quarters, an hour. Far away we heard the whistle of an outgoing train. Would I had been on it! From time to time we heard faint music. At length there was a noise outside the door, and a monment later Hamilton and two others came in. When he saw me, he stopped, his eyes bulging and his mouth agape.

"Dicky Comstalk?" he cried helplessly. "What the devil does this mean?"—turning to the police.

"Do you know this fellow, Mr. Hamilton?" asked the chief.

"Know him? Of course I know him," answered Teddy; "and I'll stake my last dollar on his honesty."

"What?" We Heard Him Exclaim.

(Thanks, Teddy!) I began to breathe.

"But—" began the chief, seized with sudden misgivings.

Wake Up!

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

"Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep," is essential to the health and vigor of body and mind. But our moral and spiritual natures need no sleep. Love, faith, hope, humility need never slumber. Hence in heaven we shall be able to serve God day and night. The spiritual will have the supremacy. The untiring will be forever active.

In the ninth verse of the previous chapter Israel is trying to wake up Jehovah. "Awake, awake; put on strength, O arm of the Lord." The words of our text is God's answer to that prayer. "Awake, awake; put on thy strength, O Zion." "Wake up yourself," says the Lord. "I am not asleep. No attribute of mine needs repose. I am ready, willing, waiting to exert my power, whenever you fulfill the conditions I have imposed." We have not by prayer or exertion to induce God to bless us. But prayer and exertion God requires for our good. It would be no kindness in him to bless sleeping Christians. They would not know it, if he did. Let us inquire:

1. What are the signs of sleep?
2. What are the causes of sleep?
3. Why should we awake?

The Signs of Sleep.

Inactivity. If a man remains motionless on the lounge for three or four hours, I take it for granted that he is asleep. If he should continue in that motionless condition for three or four days, I should pronounce him dead. If a Christian does nothing for Christ, he is asleep. If he persists in his course of uselessness, it is a fair presumption that he is no Christian at all. Life will express itself. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Insensibility to Slight Impressions. If I wished to learn whether a man were asleep, I would not fire a cannon over him. Awake or asleep, he would be aroused by that. I would whisper to him or touch him gently. The fact that you are startled by the cannon-boom of great crime is no proof that you are awake. But how are you affected by what the world calls little sins? Disobedience of any kind makes the wide-awake Christian smart with pain.

Ill-Directed Effort. People talk and walk in their sleep, but it is all to no purpose. Their talk is incoherent, and their walk without aim. When pastor and people, with all their preaching and activities, have no blessing, it is, because they are asleep.

Causes of Sleep.

Inactivity. One is not apt to go to sleep while he is moving about. A Christian active in winning souls will not go to sleep. His activity will keep him awake. Go to work. Exercise your mental, moral and spiritual limbs.

Atmosphere. Certain climates put people to sleep. So there are moral and social atmospheres that seem to be very good, but Christians who go into them fall asleep. Prove to me that the atmosphere of the theater, the ballroom and the club are as good as the prayer meeting; that first-class people go to these places; that men and women whose characters are above reproach patronize them; the fact remains that these good people are, as Christians, sound asleep. They are not awake to winning souls, converting the heathen, building up the church.

Why We Should Wake Up.

It Is Harvest Time. Christ looked out upon the fields and declared that they were ripe, waiting for the sickle. To-day the fields are larger and the grain just as ripe. Shame, shame, a thousandfold, on the Christian who sleeps and takes his rest, while the fields in which he might reap many golden sheaves are all around him.

It Is a Time of War, and the Enemy Is Wide Awake. While we sleep, the citadels of truth are being taken. Our very children are made captive by the enemy.

We Are Watchmen, Placed by the Lord on the Walls to Give the People Warning. Sleep is treason. For the private soldier to fall to sleep in the midst of battle is bad enough, but for the sentinel on whom depends the safety of the army to sleep at his post is criminal. And doubly criminal is it, when those we love are in danger. A father walked out through the fields with his little bright-eyed boy, and lay down to rest in an inviting shade. He fell asleep, while the child played in the grass around him. But on waking, he could not see the boy. He called, and only echo answered. Frantic with dread, he rushed to the edge of a precipice, and saw on the rocks below the mangled form of his darling child. Could he ever forgive himself for sleeping, when he ought to have known the nearness of the danger? Father, mother, that may be your portrait. Are you at ease in your mind, sound asleep, while your children are sporting on the edge of the precipice of infidelity, drunkenness, or worse? Wake up, and seek their salvation.

NEWARK CLUB STICKS TO THE AM. AUTO CLUB

Trustees of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, at a meeting on Thursday night, considered thoroughly the question of that organization's position with reference to the New Jersey State federation, the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, and at the conclusion of their deliberations decided to stand by the State organization, adopting the following set of resolutions:

"Whereas, Statements have recently appeared in the press representing that the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club was about to sever its relations with the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey and also its relations with the American Automobile Association, and

"Whereas, Statements have also appeared that this club was not in accord with the policy of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey in testing the constitutionality of the law; therefore be it resolved:

"First—That this club is and always has been loyal to the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey and expects to remain so, believing that the fundamental principle of organization is absolutely necessary for the success of all undertakings.

"Second—That this club is in hearty accord with the management of the American Automobile Association and has no intention whatever of severing its relations with the association, but desires to co-operate with it in its efforts to better automobilists and automobile interests.

"Third—That this board is in hearty accord with the proposed suit to test the constitutionality of the law, and to subscribe its necessary pro rata share of the expense of same in compliance with the wishes of the members of the club as expressed by a resolution unanimously passed at the annual meeting of the club on May 4, 1908.

"Fourth—That copies of these resolutions be sent to the secretaries of the American Automobile Association and Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, and to the press."

It is understood that a meeting of the associated clubs will be held in a few days to effect a reorganization, to just what an extent is not known. That the New Jersey club will take a more prominent and responsible part in the federation hereafter is a certainty, however. The question of finances of the federation, which was the cause of some members suggesting the withdrawal from the State body because the relations of the local club with the American Automobile Association were thought to be hampered by membership, has been satisfactorily settled, and it is understood that a broader policy will be adhered to by the associated clubs, and that a closer organization between the many clubs of New Jersey will be brought about, which will benefit mutually the individual clubs and the State federation.

As far as any stories of the local club resigning from the American Automobile Association are concerned, that subject has never been hinted at in New Jersey papers, and was suggested by the automobile man of a New York paper who found news dull one day last week. His article was widely copied until it grew from a suggestion into an absolute statement. The feeling between the Jersey club and the "Three A's" has always been cordial, and whatever friction there has been in the case of the New Jersey federation has arisen principally because the members of the Newark club failed to get the membership cards in the A. A. A. to which they were entitled. This matter, too, has now been amicably settled.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

One of our cows came in from the pasture at 6 p. m.. Not satisfied with her present stand, took a stroll up a flight of a narrow stairway consisting of twenty-five stairs, and made herself comfortable in the fresh mowed hay, and left us the job of her transfer down to her old stand. We gave her a nice comfortable sleigh ride, not forgetting that it took us two hours time, three men's labor, two cow chains before we was able to have her safely landed at her sleeping parlor. We thought she may today again like to make a promanade upstairs, but when brought to the stairway shoto her head and went all alone to her stationary sleeping parlor. This happened Thursday, July 16, 1908, on the farm of Mr. Latzke, Rahway road.

LAUNCH CUT IN TWO.

Five Girls Rescued by Crew of the Uncle Dan.

Lake Hopatcong, July 18.—The Uncle Dan, a seventy-five-foot launch, named for State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees and owned by the Bertrand Island Transportation Company, in charge of Captain Ivan King, yesterday in trying to make a landing at Lee's Pavilion, Nolan's Point, struck the Nell, a twenty-one-foot boat owned by Theodore King, squarely amidships and cut her in two just behind the boiler and engine.

The smaller boat had five young girls as passengers. The boat sank immediately, until the framework of its canopy caught on the bow of the Uncle Dan and supported the wreck. Captain King hauled the five girls, then in water above the waist, to safety over the bow of the Uncle Dan to safety. King then pushed the wreck of the Nell to shore, where it now is, a total loss.

LAST OF THE IDES' GANG SENT TO STATE PRISON

Ollie Rose, a member of the notorious Dutch Ides gang, which was broken up by the killing of the leader in Newark and the imprisonment of several members, was sentenced at New Brunswick yesterday to one year and six months in State prison by Judge Booraem on a charge of carrying concealed weapons at New Market on December 5, 1907. He pleaded guilty and asked that his case be disposed of at once and said that while he had been wild in the past he had reformed—had spent five of the happiest months of his life since his reformation and pleaded for another chance.

Judge Booraem said that the prisoner had served time in the Reform School and a two-years' sentence in State prison and when arrested at New Market had escaped from the officer and had later been recaptured. The prisoner, he said, had belonged to a gang of desperadoes—highwaymen—and that any clemency would be a failure of duty on the part of the Court. Two officers took Rose to and from the court house and had the nippers on him. No one man was willing to risk a chance with him.

CASH FOR FAST LINE.

Announcement was made at Passaic yesterday that $60,000 had been subscribed to the project to build a high speed electric road connecting this section of New Jersey with the metropolis. The money was raised in Passaic yesterday.

Malcolmm R. McAdoo, president of the New York and North Jersey Rapid Transit Company, and John R. Lee, of Paterson, were at Passaic with credentials from Colonel William Barbour and others, who are interested in the construction of a high speed surface trolley line between Paterson and Suffern. Colonel Gilbert D. Bogart, of Passaic, was invited to become a director of the company, and subscribed $20,000 toward the capital stock of the concern. Others who subscribed are John Hemion and Dr. Cornelius Van Riper, of Passaic. The $60,000 mentioned as having been raised by Messrs. Lee and McAdoo is said to have been pledged.

The plan is to build a trolley line over its own right of way, so that high speed can be developed between Paterson and Suffern. When this is done the plan of building an elevated electric line from Paterson to New York, as already made public, will be developed. The terminal will be in Bergen county, across the Broadway bridge from Paterson temporarily. Passengers from above Paterson will be transferred to Paterson or New York via the Hudson River Line. The main stem of the Suffern-Paterson road will be built to New York at the completion of the latter. The plan is to run the trains through the tunnels into the metropolitan terinals.

Builds Chapel In Woods.

Mrs. Edward Balbach, Jr., of Newark, is building a handsome private Episcopal chapel in the woods at the rear of her home in Bernardsville. It is of gothic architecture and constructed entirely of stone and iron, and is patterned after a chapel in the Bavarian woods seen by her while traveling abroad.

NEW AUTO NUMBERS FOR NEXT YEAR IN NEW JERSEY

Next year the numbers of automobiles will be entirely changed: the background of the "tag" will be changed and the numbers will run from 1 up. Since up to July 1, this year, the Commissioner has issued 14,000 licenses to car owners against 6,000 for the same time last year, some one's number after January 1, 1909, will be 14,000 and something.

This announcement came from the Commissioner of Motor Vehicle J. B. V. Smith, who, after his experience of the present year, retaining old numbers and changing others, has arrived at the conclusion that the best thing to do is to wipe out the slate and start anew with 1.

Mr. Smith's assistants, Messrs. Johnson and Gallagher, have been busy men during the year and especially since the summer opened, during two months the exchequer at Trenton from registration and license fees has received upwards of $66,000 and still applicants pour in. As the officials point out within one year New Jersey has added to her crops of automobiles 8,000, over last year's figures, what next year will run up to they rae afraid to hazard even a guess.

GAMBLING DEN AT LAKE HOPATCONG?

Morristown, July 18.—Governor J. Franklin Fort is after the gamblers at Lake Hopatcong, where, it is said, are resorts siilar to those which once flourished in Long Branch. Incidentally the county authorities here are waking up and making moves toward the lake. It is not believed they will probe very deeply, as it is said that behind the gamblers is a powerful coterie of politicians.

The Governor has inforation, so it is declared, that a man from New York recently lost $15,000 at a roulette table, and losses ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 are frequent. Letters giving such information are said to have been sent to the Executive, and unless the county officials move quickly it is probable they will hear from Governor Fort.

The most luxuriantly furnished gambling house is situated within 100 yards of the Hotel Breslin. It is run under the name of the "Hopatcong Club." It is a two-story frame building. On the first floor are the roulette table and drinking places, while on the second floor are sleeping apartments and poker rooms. Tom Regan is in charge of the establishment, but "membership" tickets, it is declared, are obtained from the proprietor of the hotel. On the outside of this clubhouse is a sign: "Hopatcong Club now open for ladies and gentlemen. Committee." Many women are said to have lost considerable money over the tables, and every night since the place has been opened it has been filled with gamblers.

Another charge is made against the local authorities, that they have taken no effective means of compelling the hotels to observe the Bishops law on Sunday. Almost all of the places do a big Sunday bar business.

Pioneer Newspapers.

In celebrating its centennial the St. Louis Republic gives a list of newspapers now published that have more than a century of existence. There are sixty papers in the list, four of which are printed in New Jersey. These are the Elizabeth Journal, started in 1779; the Newark Star and Advertiser and Sentinel of Freedom, dating from 1796; the New Brunswick Times, 1792, and the Trenton State Gazette, 1792. All these papers originally were weeklies. Elizabethtown was in the county of Essex until late years, when Union county was carved out of Essex. The Elizabeth Journal was patriotic during the Revolution, and when the British raided the town the plant was temporarily removed to Chatham. The Sentinel of Freedom, now 112 years old, still flourishes as the weekly edition of the Star and Advertiser, and has its circulation in the rural sections of the State. On its subscription list are names that have appeared there for generations.—Newark Star.

A Representative Senator.

After a term as representative of Union county in the State Senate, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, has consented to be a candidate for re-nomination to the upper branch of the Legislature. His decision to accept a second term meets with the approval of his constituents and of the party leaders.

Senator Ackerman's record in the upper house has demonstrated the fact that he has a business man's outlook, and a scholar's mind. He is not a dreamer. He has never attempted to place upon the statutes impractical measures; he understands men, and he understands the theory and practice of law. He has placed thirteen laws on our statutes, including the civil service bill, and has introduced 72 per cent of the bills which have been considered by the Legislature. This is part of his work of achievement, but, in large, it is difficult to reckon by statistics just what the Union Senator has accomplished for the State. He has and will continue to be a working force for good. He is a man of influence, and his opinions carry the weight of authority. Any measure that has his approval is certain of substantial support. With such a record, Senator Ackerman's nomination will be equivalent to an election, for citizens of Union county, irrespective of party, will be glad for the opportunity of returning him to the place which for three years he has so conscientiously and ably filled.—Westfield Standard.

RUN DOWN BY CYCLIST.

Youth in Bayonne Hospital Injured Internally.

Alfred Fay, a young man of 792 Broadway, Bayonne, is in the City Hospital, suffering from internal injuries, and the police are searching for the rider of a motorcycle who ran him down on Avenue C near Thirty-eighth street Thursday night. The cyclist was going at a rapid rate and gave no warning of his coming. The machine struck Fay and knocked him unconscious.

The rider was thrown from his wheel, the handlebars of which were bent by the collision, but he jumped on again and rapidly rode off toward Jersey City. The police have a good description of cycle and rider.

Body of Child Bather Recovered.

The body of Annie Hall, ten years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, of the Paterson Plank Road, was recovered from Berry's Pond here late yesterday afternoon. She was drowned while swimming with her sister last night.

PRIMER ON PRIMARY LAW

Union Co. Republican Committee Issues Handy Digest For the Voters' Use.

BY CHARLES N. CODDING.

It Tells What Offices Are to Be Filled, How and When Candidates Are Chosen—The Election Machinery.

Throughout New Jersey the primaries and elections this fall will be in many respects more important than in previous years owing to the fact that for the first time there will be put into operation the new primary law under which candidates for municipal, country and State offices will be nominated directly by the vote of the people.

In order that the people at large may have early, full and accurate knowledge of the election laws as they now stand, Deputy Supreme Court Clerk Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, has prepared a digest thereof as they will affect the contests for offices at the primaries on September 22, and at the election on November 3. The booklet is published by direction of the Union County Republican Committee.

Mr. Codding outlines the entire election machinery, including the working of the new primary law, as follows:

Tuesday, September 1—Board of Registry and Election, except in the city of Elizabeth, meet at 10 a. m. and begin house-to-house canvass.

Monday, September 7—Last day to file with County Clerk petitions for nominations of county officers.

Tuesday, September 8—Board of Registry and Election, except in the city of Elizabeth, meet from 1 to 9 p. m., to revise the registry.

Wednesday, September 9—Last day to file with Municipal Clerk petitions for nominations of city, ward, township and borough officers.

Tuesday, September 22—Primary day, 1 to 9 p. m., in every municipality in the county; Boards of Registry and Election in Elizabeth hold the first registration day for personal registration of voters, from 1 to 9 p. m.

Tuesday, October 6—Boards of Registry and Election in Elizabeth meet from 1 to 9 p. m., for registration of voters.

Tuesday, October 20—Boards of Registry and Election in Elizabeth meet from 1 to 9 p. m., for the last time, for registration of voters.

Tuesday, October 27—Broards of Registry and Election, except in the city of Elizabeth, meet from 1 to 9 p. m., for the last time, to revise the registry.

Tuesday, November 3—Election day throughout the county.

RIG OWNERS CLAIM AUTO CAUSED RUNAWAY.

While Patrolman John Kelley was standing at Park avenue and Sixth street, at 5:30 yesterday afternoon, he sighted a runaway horse coming toward him. He captured the animal and starting back down the avenue found that it belonged to the Messrs. Rosenthal, of Plainfield avenue. The owners claimed that they had been run into by an automobile belonging to J. G. Cramer, of 70 Lenox avenue, East Orange.

Mr. Cramer remained on the scene and declared positively that he had not struck the Rosenthal rig. The horse gave a sudden jump after he had passed in front of it, he said, and because of flimsy harness pulled itself clear of the wagon and ran away. His story was corroborated by witnesses and an inspection of the vehicle failed to show that it had been hit. The harness was found to be tied up with pieces of twine and very flimsy as he said.

The Rosenthals were insistent, however, and asserted that they had been crowded into the curb and that the horse had been hurt in the collision. Mr. Cramer was allowed to go on after giving his name and address and the owners of the rig assert that they will sue for damages.

Committed to State Hospital.

Christian Sprich, a resident of Essex street, whose mind has been failing for the past year, was found wandering about South Plainfield by Marshal Reilley at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. He was brought to police headquarters here and this morning was removed to the State Hospital at Morris Plains, preparations having been made for the committment several days ago. Mr. Sprich is a nephew of the late Christian Schephlin and was employed at the Potter Press Works for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Arrive.

FISK EXCISE PROBERS TO MEET AT ELIZABETH

After deliberating for some time over a schedule for this week's investigations the State excise probers have decided to meet in Elizabeth, Wednesday next, after concluding the work begun at Newark today. This date was officially announced in a letter received by County Clerk James C. Calvert, with a request that a room in the Courthouse be set aside on that day for the commissioners. The session, which will be open to the public, will begin at 10 o'clock.

The excise records of the city of Elizabeth will be open to the inspection of the probers, who notified City Clerk John Kenah, of that city, to be present on that day with all the necessary books and documents. A list of all the licenses in the county was sent to the commissioners last week by the County Clerk.

HE KILLS HIMSELF IN GRIEF OVER HIS WIFE.

Herman Unger, seventy years old, of Unger Brothers, of Newark, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself with a revolver, on the shore of the Raritan River, near his home, one mile from Bound Brook. Grief over the death of his wife was assigned by his relatives as the reason for the deed.

He left his house at 10 o'clock in the morning and walked to the Raritan River. A neighbor who heard a shot, followed Mr. Unger and found him lying dead near the river. He had killed himself by placing the muzzle of a revolver in his mouth and pulling the trigger.

Charles Mercier in Trouble.

Charles Mercier, of the borough, while engaged in playing a game of pool at the Arlington Hotel at Somerset street and Greenbrook road, Saturday night, became involved in a heated argument with Proprietor Fabbman. He was ordered to leave the place, but refused to do so. Then Mr. Fabbman telephone the police and when an officer arrived he found Mercier on the sidewalk in front of the hotel, who was still in a quarelsome mood. The young man was arrested and when arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning sentence was suspended.

Picnicked at the Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus W. Clark, of Stebbins place, celebrated the eleventh anniversary of their wedding, Saturday, by giving a picnic to a party of young friends at Washington Rock. The trip was made by way of Dunellen by trolley and several hours were spent in playing games beneath the trees and enjoying the splendid view of Plainfield. Refreshments were served in convlusion and the trip home was hastened because of the threatening weather.

Assessors Meet Tomorrow.

Union county's assessors are hard at work collecting figures for the annual assessment. The assessors will meet in the City Hall, Elizabeth, tomorrow to compare figures and report the progress made. The assessment books must be turned in to the County Board for the Equalization of Taxes. In view of the fact that there has been but little building going on this year, the ratables will not show as much increase as at some times past.

Made Marked Impression.

Rev. Charles Gilbert Mallery, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., who occupied the pulpit in the Reformed church yesterday morning and delivered an excellent sermon on "Fruitful Discipleship," took his text from the fifteenth chapter of St. John and the fifth verse.

—Arizona melons, Georgia peaches, fancy plums and many other fruits at Neuman Brothers. Fresh, vegetables received every day. Prices lower than ever this week.

FRELINGHUYSEN WILL RUN

On Eve of Departure For Europe He Announces His Candicay For Renomination.

STANDS ON HIS OWN RECORD.

Nothing to Say About Issues Just Now But Predicts Big Sweep for Party in State and Nation.

On the eve of his departure for Europe on a business trip, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen has announced that he will accept renomination to the Legislature. He has no statement to make on the issues but rests his case on his record at Trenton in going before the people of Somerset county for another term.

By reason of his zealous work in behalf of the agriculturists throughout the State and his firm and conservative position in all matters regarding business interests generally, which have marked his course at Trenton, it was naturally expected that the people of Somerset would demand that he further sacrifice his own private interests by going back as their representative in the Upper House. Not until today, however, did he announce his decision. When seen by a Daily Press man, he appeared to be enthusiastic over the situation in New Jersey and in the country at large, but this is the natural condition with the conservative optimist of Somerset.

"Yes," said Mr. Frelinghuysen in no uncertain tone, "I will be a candidate at the primaries on September 22, for the nomination of State Senator."

"How about a statement as to your views?"

"I have nothing to say just at present," replied the Senator. "If the party honors me with the nomination, I will have something to say then in the shape of a letter. This will be in addition to the customary formal statement to be made by the county executive committeemen, who by the way will be named at the same primaries."

"Somerset county sent me to the Senate three years ago and I have tried to live up to the confidence in me they thus showed. They know my record and in announcing my candidacy I rest my case on my record for their decision. All I can add ord for their decision. I hope the people will come out at the primaries, the first of the kind ever had, and vote for the man of their choice."

Though Senator Frelinghuysen would say nothing about the local situation, he waxed enthusiastic when asked what he thought of the outlook in the State and Nation.

"What do I think of the probable result in New Jersey?" repeated the Senator. "Why, without any doubt, both branches of the Legislature will be strongly Republican, just bank on that. I say this because the people are thoroughly in touch with the situation and admire the wise, conservative and progressive policy of the Republican party in New Jersey, and, moreover, are delighted with having such a fearless, conscientious and able Governor as Mr. Fort. I want to predict now that the majority in New Jersey for the Republican party will be one of the greatest ever known and when the news is flashed across the continent on election night shouts of joy will go up wherever the people are gathered together."

Offers Reward for Lost Money.

Charles Schermerhonn, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company's office at the North Avenue station, who lost his pocketbook Friday night, today offers $25 reward for the return of the pocketbook intact. It contained $125 in cash, endorsed check for $14.37 on Potter Printing Press Company, payment on which has been stopped and several railroad passes and other papers which are of value to Mr. Schermerhorn. The book was either lost or taken while Mr. Schermerhorn was on his way home from the office at 6 o'clock Friday night.

Merry Time at Idylwylde.

Idylwylde, the former home of Peter Ritter at Fanwood, was a scene of a mid-summer's night festivity on Saturday evening. Refreshments were served on the lawn to about eighty guests from Jersey City, Elizabeth, Roselle, Cranford, Westfield, Fanwood, Plainfield, Scotch Plains, and Willow Grove. Dancing, games and phonograph selections by Mrs. John Brick were the features of the evening. The affair was arranged by Miss Maida Brick and Miss Anna Manning.

Netherwood Camp Services.

The Gospel service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, yesterday afternoon, was in charge of J. D. Loizeaux, and the address was delivered by Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

COP CLIMBS IN WINDOW TO ARREST DEFIANT WOMAN

Bridget Doran, a middle-aged woman residing on West Third street, near Liberty, was fined $8 or twenty days in the city court, this morning, on a disorderly conduct charged preferred by Roundsman Morris Riggins. The fact that a couple of witnesses failed to appear when the case was called is probably all that saved her from a long term in jail as from all accounts she had the neighborhood where she lives in a turmoil for a couple of hours Saturday night.

The police were told over the telephone by nearby residents at 11 o'clock that Mrs. Doran was beating a child to death and the screams of the juvenile made sleep out of the question. Roundsman Higgins was sent down to see what the matter was, but when he reached the house, the woman refused to let him in. She locked all the doors and then piled furniture against them to make sure that he was kept off the outside. The officer went away to figure on a plan of action and while he was absent the child was again subjected to a flogging. Once more the neighbors rushed to the 'phone and one more Higgins came back only to find that all was quiet within the Doran domicile.

The officer tried to gain entrance to the house but the furniture still blocked every entrance and for the time being he was forced to admit defeat. Mrs. Doran thought she had him baffled for all time and sought to follow up her victory by hurling defiance mixed with cuss words through one of the windows. That furnished an idea to the roundsman and almost in a jiffy he had gotten into the house by the window route. Mrs. Doran was nabbed but it was 1 o'clock before the officer got the furniture away from a door in order to get her out.

The child she had been beating, a boy eight years old, and a smaller girl, were turned over to the neighbors to keep. Mrs. Doran had not paid her fine up to noon and it is possible she may have to serve the twenty days.

UNION SERVICE HELD BY 4 CONGREGATIONS

The third union service for the month in which the congregations of the Trinity Reformed, First Presbyterian, First M. E. and First Baptist churches joined, was held last night at the First Baptist church, and was well attended. Rev. Charles Fountain, who occupied the pulpit in the morning, was in charge of the service. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, read the Scripture lesson and Rev. Charles Gilbert Mallery, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., who preached at Trinity Reformed church in the morning, offered prayer.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, who took for his theme "Assurance," the text being part of the first verse of the fifth chapter of the First Epistle of John. It was a strong discourse and was helpful and inspiring to the congregation. The services closed with prayer and the benediction by Dr. McCrea. During the services the chorus choir of the church rendered special anthems, with solo numbers by the soloists of the choir. The fourth and last union service will be held Sunday night at Trinity Reformed church and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will preach.

Gibson Will Probably Recover.

Simon Gibson, who was severely injured at the freight-house last week, when a wagon ran over his body fracturing several ribs, is reported at the hospital to be improving slowly, although pneumonia has developed. The physicians in charge believe that the man has a good chance to recover unless there should be further complications.

Auto Kills Valuable Dog.

A valuable terrier dog, belonging to Thomas Sullivan, of Park avenue near Eighth street, was run over and killed by an automobile opposite the owner's home yesterday afternoon. Mr. Sullivan reported the matter to the police in the hope that the driver of the machine might be apprehended.

Senator Frelinghuysen's Trip.

BALL FANS IN A BATTLE

Famous Donnybrook Outdone at Saturday's Clinton Ave. Scotch Plains Game.

FIST FIGHTS BY THE DOZEN.

Umpire's Decision Starts the Trouble and Angry Bettors Roam Over the Diamond Hitting Heads.

Something like a thousand people journeyed to Scotch Plains to see the village team play a baseball game with the Clinton Avenues, of this city, Saturday afternoon, but if a census was taken it would probably show that half of them witnessed one of the greatest exhibitions of amateur pugilism ever pulled off in this section of the State. Of the other 500, most of them were members of the gentler sex who hustled off the field to get out of the danger zone and who went so fast their escorts failed to keep up with them and then stayed behind to help out in the pounding bee. The baseball game was purely a secondary matter and if the short story writer wants a subject he can start right in on "Donnybrook Outdone, or Come on Boys, Here's a Head That Hasn't Been Hit."

Accounts vary as to how many battles took place because the scene of action was just like the three-ring circus, "too much going on at once to see it all." Anyway, anybody who didn't get his money's worth can have it back by applying to the management. Inquiry at local drug stores today revealed the fact that more arnica, adhesive plaster, new skin and remedies for black eyes had been sold since Saturday than would sink a ship. And great snakes, how the dentists are chuckling. One surgeon whispered in our ear today that he has already mended three fractured jaws and his brother-professional across the way has a job putting pivot molars back that will keep him busy for a month. The hospital dispensary will have a report ready Thursday.

Fight talk was in the air long before the game was called but nothing startling happened until the third inning. A decision against Plainfield by Umpire Edward Hand over a questionable line drive started the ball rolling. His ruling met with disfavor and the crowd told him so in a very few words. Anybody who attempted to back him up might as well have tried to monkey with the buzz-saw because they got all that was coming to them. It was biff here, bang there and swat somewhere else all over the diamond. The less timid rooters stood on the benches and gurgled. "Aint it awful, Mabel" while the women only hit the high places in their bee-line for the first out-going trolley, direction of no consequence.

After an hour's delay and three good five round bouts in which six sturdy devotees of the national game were put hors du combat, the game was started again. But there was very little doing in the baseball line after that. The fighting fever seemed to sweep over the crowd like a prairie fire in the grass and any man who didn't slam his fist against the first face that came near him went down and out, that was all. The Scotch Plains police force was there—resplendent in a bright new uniform—but he stood about as much chance in quelling the trouble as a snowball has in—er-er-Paterson.

The only time the bluecoated department took a hand in the fray was when aged Constable Walpole got caught between a bunch of flying fists and went down and out. The officer finally fought his way to him and carried him over to the billboard near the corner, where he was propped up and fanned with a helmet to restore circulation. An excited citizen, who is more to be pitied than censured, ran up to the officer and asked why he didn't get over to the battle ground and arrest someone.

"What, me?" asked the cop in genuine surprise, "no siree, not me," and he returned to his job of stirring up atmosphere for his prostrate friend. Wise officer, that—he's had experience.

Constable John Manley, of this city, saw a particular friend getting an awful beating and foolishly tried to effect a rescue. Today John can tell just how it feels to have your wind shut off and get a knee pressed in your stomach. He showed a twenty-five-year insurance service medal badge to bear out his assertion that he was a constable, honest to goodness, but his indescretion came near costing him a doctor's bill. He was pulled away in the nick of time and today is seeking the man who saved his life in order to reward him.

"Jack" Coon, or "Cooney" as he is known, took a star part in the proceedings and created havoc with well

MAN SERIOUSLY HURT BY FALL DOWN STAIRS

Albert Rajotti, who is engaged in the manufacture of brick at Dunellen, fell head-long down a flight of stairs at his home, Saturday night, fracturing his collarbone and breaking several ribs. He was found at the foot of the stairs in an unconscious condition by members of the family and Dr. T. H. Platt was summoned. The broken bones were set and the man made as comfortable as possible. While his injuries are serious, it is believed that he will recover.

Mr. Rajotti had aroused himself from his slumbers and started for the stairway when he accidentally slipped off the landing and fell headlong to the bottom. In falling he awoke the members of the family who hastened to his assistance, and summoned a physician.

P. P. A. MAKES APPEAL FOR MORE MEMBERS

The Plainfield Protective Association, whose object it is to promote the public welfare of the community, today makes an appeal for more members. The fees have been reduced and the organization points to its record in having the P. S. C. reduce the price of gas and electricity. Gas is to be reduced further on January 1 next, the P. S. C. having promised to charge one dollar per thousand feet.

G. W. V. Moy, as treasurer, makes this report:

Receipts—Received from retiring treasurer, $1,589.92; dues from members, $80; interest on bank balance to Dec. 1, 1907, $11.22; interest on bank balance to March 1, 1908, $11.63; total, $1,692.77; disbursements—Rent of Casino, $10; printing and stationery, $52.25; postage stamps and stamped envelopes, $97.36; addressing envelopes, etc., $15.56; one portfolio, $3; Miss E. B. Hartridge, overpayment of dues, $5; total $173.17; balance, $1,519.60.

DIVULGES INCOME; SHE QUIETS GOSSIP.

To still the tongue of gossip, which Lillian Virginia Alberts McCabe, of Newark, Saturday took the people of that city into her confidence and told in a public statement the source of her income.

Mrs. McCabe is extremely young, natty in dress and is often seen in an automobile. Also she is the possessor of jewels of value.

The source of Mrs. McCabe's display, she says, is a legacy of $16,000 left her by a great-uncle, Nathan Rogers, of New York.

"There was some doubt I would get the legacy my uncle left me," explained young Mrs. McCabe, "because it was his wish that I should not marry before I was 18. But when I was 15 I eloped with Patrick McCabe, of Orange. He was 18.

"Now those who have been wondering where I obtained the money I spend on myself can know that every dollar of it is from the income from my great-uncle's legacy."

GUARDS SAVE BOY.

He Was Being Carried to Sea By Swift Current.

Thousands of visitors to Atlantic City were excited over the rescue of Charles Hastings, seven years old, of Philadelphia, who was caught in the current and was being swept to sea when Life Guard Stokes started after him. For fifteen minutes the guard swam at his topmost speed behind the lad, who was fast becoming exhausted and terror-stricken. When the guard picked the boy up there was a cheer from a thousand throats.

Following Stokes, Brown, Rogers and Small, with lifeline and buoy, caught up with him at the end of Young's Old Pier and brought Stokes and the lad ashore. The boy was sent to a cottage on South Carolina avenue. Beyond his scare and the swallowing of some salt water, he was unharmed.

Alan Wilson's Funeral.

The body of Alan Wilson, son of Col. John F. Wilson, who died in Scotland on Sunday, July 5, arrived yesterday on the Steamship Caledonia, and was taken at once to Baltimore, where the funeral service and burial will be held tomorrow morning. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will officiate.

Excursion Without a Loss.

The annual excursion of the Sunday-schools of the Park Avenue Baptist Congregational, First Presbyterian and Dunellen Presbyterian churches, last Thursday, was a financial success, each church clearing a small amount over their expense account.

FIERCE FIGHT OVER WOMAN

Jealous Wooer and Supposed Rival, Both Seriously Hurt, Are Taken to Hospital.

FAST AND FURIOUS COMBAT.

Ira W. Bowers, Sr., and Marton Rogers, at First Thought to Be Dying, Will Likely Recover.

Following an assault and counter-attack at East Third and Church streets, late Saturday night, Ira Bowers, Sr., aged fifty years, of 252 East Third street, and Martin Rogers, 25 years old, of 220 Church street, were removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, each one in a dying condition from injuries inflicted by the other. The latter nearly expired from loss of blood caused by long, jagged knife-wounds in the head, chest and side, while Bowers' face was beaten to a jelly. His nose was split open and broken, his mouth distorted and torn and the remainder of his features smashed out of all human semblance. The condition of both men was serious until last night but today they were reported as recovering.

According to the police version of the affair, Bowers was the aggressor in the fracas and sought to kill Rogers through jealousy, both having been paying attention to a woman living almost directly opposite where they fought. The elder man was somewhat intoxicted and laid in wait for his rival at 11 o'clock as he was on the way to the stables of the Union Beef Company to water his horses. Bowers jumped at him from behind a tree, knife in hand, and began cutting and slashing like a madman.

The first swing of the knife inflicted a gash in Roger's head, just above the right ear, fully six inches long. Before he could recover from his surprise, the weapon was drawn down his side from the arm to the hip, cutting through the clothing and tearing the flesh so badly that the muscles protruded. Almost beside himself with pain and rage, Rogers jumped at Bowers and a fight began for the possession of the knife, during which the younger man was repeatedly slashed in the chest and back.

Rogers' youthfulness triumphed over his drink-laden assailant, but instead of using the blade after getting it, he proceeded to beat him with his fists. Bowers was knocked flat on his back and though blood was pouring from Rogers' wounds in great pools on the sidewalk, he paid no heed to them in his desire to seek revenge. According to the only witness of the fight, a boy named Hook, fourteen years old, he rained blows upon his adversary until he became unconscious. Even then, the terrible pounding continued until part of Bowers' face had been struck again and again. Young Hook eventually recovered from his fright sufficiently to run for the police and encountered Patrolman Kelley near headquarters. The latter proceeded to the scene and picked up Patrolman McDonald on the way.

When the officers reached the corner, Bowers was still on the ground unconscious with Rogers standing over him.

"I struck him," the younger man exclaimed, "but not until he had stabbed me. I hope I've killed him and if I haven't I'll finish him at the first move."

There was no danger of Bowers moving as he was in the last stages of insensibility. The police had to place him on a stretcher to get him in the patrol wagon and for the time being they thought he had expired. Rogers succumbed to loss of blood as they were busy with the other man and sank back against a fence. Kelley bound up his wounds temporarily and both were taken to police headquarters where Dr. Pittis looked after them before they were removed to the hospital. The authorities stated yesterday that but for their rugged constitutions, the injuries each man had sustained would have proved fatal.

The police conducted an investigation all day yesterday and are satisfied that the woman mentioned is back of Bowers' attack. Rogers has been in Plainfield only five weeks, coming here from East Orange, but it is declared that his assailant looked upon him a a rival almost from the time he secured lodgings in the neighborhood where all the parties live. Bowers' side of the affair has not yet been given as his condition has been too serious to permit the officials to talk to him. He is a widower and has a family of grown sons and daughters.

The Bicycle Thief Again.

Harry Hook, of Watchung avenue, reported the theft of his new Pierce racing bicycle to the police yesterday. It was taken from the hallway of his home in the rink building some time Saturday afternoon. The machine is a costly one and was purchased new two months ago.

WESTFIELD.

W. H. Quackenbush will make an attempt to revive bicycle racing in Westfield. He is getting up two road races, to be run in Westfield on August 8, a one-mile scratch race and a ten-mile handicap. When bicycling was at the height of its popularity Westfield had riders that were known on all the tracks of the Eastern States.

The Sidewalk Committee of Westfield Council assures the residents of Mountain avenue that none of the trees along that avenue will be cut down to make way for the new sidewalk except those in front of the cemetery.

Morning and evening services at the Westfield Methodist church yesterday were conducted by Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace church, Plainfield.

J. E. Folsom, of Newark, will lecture at the Westfield Baptist church tonight on the work of the Baptist missions.

Westfield Council will hold a meeting tonight.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Martin Rose, of Terrill road, met with a painful accident Saturday night at his home. Mr. Rose had just hitched up a young and fractious horse and started to drive to town. As he was driving out of the yard the animal plunged and in some way threw its driver out into the road, breaking his collarbone. Drs. Westcott and Pittis were called and set the fracture.

The local ball team put up a great game back of Turner in the game with Clinton Avenue, Saturday afternoon. The three new players, Turner, Carlstrom and Busher, strengthened the team materially, especially at the bat.

Rev. Mr. Shumby, of Lynn, Mass., preached at the Baptist church, yesterday, at both the morning and evening service.

Robert Jahn, of Perth Amboy, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Robert John, of Park avenue.

Mrs. Frank Hosinger, of Park avenue, has returned from a visit with relatives in New York.

Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street, entertained friends from out of town yesterday.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the church parlors.

STRENUOUS WOMAN IN JAIL.

Resented Demand of Debt and Choked Mrs. Geyer.

Mrs. Mary Geyer and her daughter, Ruth, of Trenton, had a taste of the strenuous life late Saturday night and in consequence Mrs. Mary Franks is under bail to answer to the next Grand Jury on a charge of assault and battery.

Mrs. Geyer and her daughter went to Mrs. Franks' house on Morgan avenue, to collect the weekly installment on a piano which Mrs. Geyer had sold to Mrs. Franks. She said that as soon as she entered the Franks home she was set upon by Mrs. Franks, who beat and choked her and finally threw her bodily into the street. This she followed up with a go at Ruth. Only the arrival of other residents of Morgan avenue, Mrs. Geyer says, saved her and her daughter from complete annihilation by Mrs. Franks.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES UNITE.

Newarker Elected President of State Federation.

The Right Rev. Bishop McFaul attended the organization, yesterday afternoon, of the State Federation of Catholic Societies at Atlantic City. Thirteen counties were represented. These officers were elected: President, Charles H. Seelman; vice president, Robert Scheltz, Paterson; secretary, Philip J. Campbell, Trenton; financial secretary, James Gibney, Phillipsburg; treasurer, Edward Sanborn, Jersey City; organizer, Henry Suelett, Trenton.

Horse Bite May Cost Man His Arm.

William Hunt, proprietor of a livery stable at Paterson, is in the General Hospital in that place, suffering from a bite from a horse. The animal fastened its teeth in the man's hand. Hunt's condition is critical, as the arm is swollen to twice its normal size and the discoloration extends to the shoulder. To save the man from blood poisoning it may be necessary to amputate the arm. The horse is being watched.

New Jersey's State Dental Society elected these officers Friday at Asbury Park: President, F. G. Gregory, of Newark; vice-president, C. H. Dilks, of Trenton; secretary, Charles A. Meeker, of Newark; treasurer, Henry A. Hall, of New Brunswick. Doctors Meeker and Hull were re-elected. The new executive committee consists of Henry Fowler, of Harrison; Harvey Iredell, of New Brunswick; Wallace F. Naylor, of Somerville, and W. W. Hawke, of Flemington. Dr. Alphonse Irwin was recommended to Governor Fort for appointment as a member of the State Board of Dental Examiners. The legislative committee named by the retiring president, Dr. Woolsey, consists of J. E. Duffield, of Camden; F. L. Hindle, of New Brunswick; C. H. Dilts and E. H. Ginnelley, of Trenton, and J. S. Vinson, of Newark.

BRIDE DIES ON HONEYMOON.

Married Only Two Days, Young Woman Victim of Acute Indigestion.

While on her honeymoon at Swartswood Lake, Mrs. Lillian Brand, bride of Herbert Brand, of the Newark Salvage Corps, died yesterday from acute indigestion. The couple were married six days ago by the Rev. Oscar E. Braune, pastor of the German Lutheran church, of Newark. The bride was Miss Lillian Bohlberger, of No. 162 Morris avenue, Newark.

The couple arrived at the Lakeside House on Wednesday to spend their honeymoon and shortly thereafter the bride complained of feeling ill. A physician was summoned, but her condition grew worse. Dr. Livingston S. Hinckley, the family physician, of Newark, was sent for, and found that she was beyond relief.

JERSEYMEN PLAY BASEBALL IN WEST.

Politicians on Tour Through the Yellowstone Take Time to Engage in a Game.

New Jersey's delegates to the Denver convention and their Democratic friends, now touring the West, played baseball at historic Yellowstone Park Saturday. It was Jersey City against the rest of the State of New Jersey, and Jersey City won, after a five-inning battle, by the score of 9 to 7.

The game was saved in the fifth inning, when, with the bases full, Eugene F. Kinkead made a splendid running catch of a liner from Wright's bat. This made the third out. There were three on base at the time.

The State players went under the name of Newark. Former Congressman Allan Benny pitched for Jersey City, and had them all guessing. Alderman Wright, of Newark, twirled for the State players. The teams lined up as follows:

Newark—Wright, pitcher; Fletcher, catcher; Connors, first base; Burns, second base; Le Vine, third base; Hinchliffe, shortstop; Ryan, centre field; Hinchliffe, left field; Reilly and Dunn, right field.

Jersey City	1	5	0	3	x				—9

THREE NEWARKERS HURT IN SMASHUP.

Returning Home Wagon Is Struck by Train at Railroad Crossing In Elizabeth.

Three Newarkers narrowly escaped death and all were seriously injured when a fast Long Branch express train from New York collided with a peddler's wagon at Elizabeth late Saturday night and dragged the vehicle for two blocks. They are:

Samuel Vernakous, 27, 271 Prince street, injury to spine.

Young Rothmann, who is a son of Samuel, was asleep in the wagon when the crash occurred. He was dragged with the vehicle a considerale distance. All were unconscious when removed to the Alexian Hospital here, but soon revived. After having their wounds dressed they were taken home.

The crash was due to the darkness. It occurred at a grade crossing at Pine street. The peddlers were on their way back to Newark after disposing of a load of vegetables. The wagon was demolished and the horse badly injured.

USED BABY BOTTLE ON FITZ.

Spokane, Wash., July 20.—From a go-as-you-please rough and tumble scrap Saturday night in the alley back of the Pautages theatre, Bob Fitzsimmons, late heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, emerged with an ugly cut four inches long in his scalp and Clarke Walker, manager of the theatre, came out with the marks of half a dozen of the Cornishman's blows.

Fitzsimmons' wounds were caused by a blow from an infant's nursing bottle in the hands of the irate manager. Both were arrested and gave bonds to apear in court today. The trouble arose over an uncomplimentary article in an afternoon paper, which Fitz alleges was prepared by Walker, because of his having planned to give boxing exhibitions contrary to the terms of his vaudeville contract, which expired Saturday.

Serves Drinks and Dies.

After serving drinks to three friends in the saloon of Andrew Blackford, in Trenton, Elmer Wagner, 28 years old, bartender, fell to the floor dead. Wagner gave no indication of illness and was chatting gaily with his friends after placing their drinks on the bar. Suddenly he placed his hand over his heart and fell.

CORNERSTONE ROBBED TWENTY-FOUR YEARS AGO.

Theft Discovered When Workmen Raze Jersey City Lutheran Church.

The theft of the contents of a copper box in the cornerstone of the old St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran church, in Fairview avenue, Jersey City, twenty-four years ago, was discovered Saturday by workmen who are removing the old church to make a site for a new edifice.

They informed the Rev. Gottlieb Andreae, the pastor, who has a memorandum of the articles placed in the box when the cornerstone was laid, on June 22, 1884. Coins, historical documents and papers were taken. The box was left covered only by boards overnight and the next day was sealed without further examination.

DID NOT KNOW NAME OF MAN SHE HAD MARRIED.

A woman who declared she did not know her husband's name applied Saturday morning in the Elizabeth police court for a warrant for his arrest. She did not give her own name, but said her husband had assaulted her.

She was told she would have to prefer formal charges and declared herself ready to do so. Police Court Judge Mahon prepared to fill in the blank complaint, and asked the accused man's name. "I don't know his name, really I don't," she repeated in response to his amazed questioning, for he thought he had not heard correctly the first time.

She was told that no warrant could be issued for "John Doe" in a case of that sort, and the woman left the police court.

D. S. VOORHEES TO QUIT.

State Treasurer Will Not Run for County Clerk Again.

State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees' term as clerk of Morris county will expire next fall, and he will sever a connection with the office the longest in the history of the State. From 1870 to 1893 Mr. Voorhees was deputy county clerk, and he has been clerk since 1898. Upon his election to the State Treasurership he decided to retain his office in Morris county because of factional differences there.

The succession to his county office lies between former Assemblyman John M. Mills and Deputy Clerk E. Bertram Mott, with the chances favoring the former.

HUDSPETH BEGINS FIGHT.

Calls Democratic State Committee to Meet Tuesday.

Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth sent out notices Saturday calling a meeting of the Democratic State committee at his offices in the Union Trust Company Bank Building, Jersey City, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The meeting will mark the opening of the Bryan and Kern campaign in New Jersey. Mr. Hudspeth said it would be the most aggressive campaign ever waged in this State and that nothing in his power would be left undone to make it so.

Mr. Hudspeth also sent a letter to Job H. Lippincott, chairman of the Young Men's Democratic auxiliary committee, urging an immediate start in the proposed work of establishing Democratic clubs in all parts of the State. The plan is to have one or more clubs in each county.

One of the first things the State committee will attend to will be the opening of a permanent headquarters for the campaign. It will be in Jersey City, but there will also be a South Jersey branch headquarters either in Trenton or Camden.

SON TRIES TO KILL MOTHER.

Goes Insane Suddenly and Attempts to Strangle Her.

Asbury Park, July 20.—Joseph Fobey, of 161 Silvan avenue, became temporarily unbalance mentally yesterday morning and nearly killed his mother before help reached her. Fobey was arraigned in Police Court here a week ago because he had been acting strangely.

He was taken with an insane frenzy while he was in the kitchen where his mother was washing dishes yesterday morning, and tried to strangle her. When help came, it required the strength of three men to tear him away. He is now under the care of physicians, who are conducting a test of his sanity.

Plainfield, N. J., July 20, 1908.

Plainfield's contribution to the Cleveland monument fund has now passed the $300 mark through the generosity of Samuel Huntington, whose check for $5 was received by The Daily Press today, $296.85 having been previously acknowledged by this paper. There are many other liberal Plainfielders who have not subscribed as yet to this worthy cause, which is absolutely devoid of any political significance but it is fair to assume that they will be heard from before long. Governor Fort, Senators Kean and Briggs and several hundred other representative men of New Jersey form the committee in charge of the undertaking and funds are being gathered in every town in the State. Mr. Cleveland was the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States and it is proposed to erect a monument to h is memory in his native State.

aimed blows. "Shorty" Laggren can testify to the fact. "Bunnet" Newman, of the West End, would like to know who disrupted his face and Manager Frentz, of the 'Plains baseball team, will never, never seek to restore order in a delegation like that of Saturday's. "Jim" Dawe is another one who got caught betwixt and between and came out with a chewed-up ear and half his clothes.

But why go on. These are only part of the proceedings while the baseball game was making a bid for recognition. After the contest was over—the game, of course—the battle of the bullies began with renewed ardor. Six fights were noted at one time, anywhere from two to ten in each, and the only safe spot was a mile away. It was late Saturday night before order was restored in the village.

Leaving all joking aside, the exhibition was one of the worst that has ever taken place at a local baseball match and can be traced directly to the gambling element that attended. Fully a thousand dollars was wagered on the result and when the Plainfield aggregation saw the score going against them they acted like a lot of East Side rowdies. They ran about flaunting money in the faces of spectators and offering to bet this, that and the other thing. A word against them or their views spelled fight and the innocent had to suffer as well as those who were inclined to be pugilistic. No arrests were made or have been yet but it is stated on good authority that Justice Clark's court will be busy some night this week.

CAMDEN HELPS TRENTON.

Depletes Her Population to Add to Trenton's.

During the taking of the Federal census of 1900 there was keen rivalry between Trenton and Camden for supremacy. Trenton was foxy and held back until it was sure that by counting in the population of the State prison it could beat Camden. Should Camden continue sending its population to Trenton as fast at it has been lately, there will be little doubt about the result of the next census between the two cities.

Nine residents of Camden arrived in Trenton Saturday and will continue to reside there, at least until after the next census has been taken. The Camdenites will reside in the State Prison, and the terms of the nine will aggregate thirty-two years. The jail at present adds 1,351 to the population of the city, being 109 more than at this time last year. Of these fifty-two are women.

OBITUARY.

Captain Henry McCrea.

Captain Henry McCrea, of the United States Navy, who was in command of the battleship Georgia during the cruise of the North Atlantic Squadron to the Pacific coast, died at half-past three o'clock yesterday morning of Bright's disease in the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn. He leaves a wife and one son, Elislie McCrea, the latter of this city.

Mrs. Mary Matilda Vail.

Mrs. Mary Matilda Vail, widow of Ira R. Vail, died last night at the home of her son, Edward Vail, of Elmwood place. She was sixty-seven years old and had been ill a long time. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Mrs. Grace Ellen Weeks.

Mrs. Grace Ellen Weeks, widow of J. F. Weeks, died Saturday night at her home on Grant avenue, near Ninth street. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in charge of Rev. A. E. Finn and the body will afterward be sent to De Ruyter, N. Y., for burial.

GUARDSMEN DISAPPOINTED.

Expected Great Social Season at Summer Capitol.

When the discovery was made that an appropriation of $3,000 for entertaining at the Sea Girt camp ground was included in last winter's budget for the Adjutant-General's department, there was joy among the high officers of the National Guard at Sea Girt, for they conjectured that Governor Fort was planning to be a royal host during his stay at Sea Girt this summer. The enlargement and renovation of "The Little White House" on the camp ground still further confirmed this surmise.

Apparently, however, those who were figuring on a bigger time than usual during the National Guard encampment have made a miscalculation, for "The Litte White House" is being used exclusively for the comfort and privacy of Governor Fort's family, and the Governor's personal staff, accustomed to take their meals at the commander-in-chief's table, now eat with the general staff officers.

Inasmuch as Governor Fort has rented his Spring Lake cottage for the summer, it seems as though he had planned to spend the entire season in the State house at Sea Girt. Those who have been disappointed in their social expectations of this summer's encampment are naturally inquiring what the $3,000 appropriation for entertaining was intended for and what is to be done with it.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

W. E. Kinney has a fine collection of photographs of the different sections of the parade, which he took on Independence Day. That of the Middlesex volunteer fire company is especially good.

The Sunday-school sessions and morning services at the Baptist church will be suspended during the month of August. The Christian Endeavor Society will conduct the evening services.

Corporal H. J. Manning and Privates Edward Horn and Arthur Randolph are at Sea Girt for the week with Company K.

The ball game between South Plainfield and Lincoln terminated in favor of the latter club. The score stood at 16 to 8.

Mrs. Oscar Thorne and Mrs. James Chamberlain spent a week-end visit with friends and relatives in Flemington.

P. F. Kane is rebuilding the barns and carriage houses on the Stewart place which he lately acquired.

POLITICAL NOTES.

James E. Martine will return from his western trip tomorrow morning. He will be the guest of honor at a dollar dinner to be given at the Hotel Kensington tomorrow night.

State Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, will leave on Wednesday for Europe, where he goes on business. He will return on August 18.

Eugene W. Leake, the Democratic Representative who has refused to support the nomination of Bryan, is the recipient of many congratplations on the stand he has taken from Republicans and Democrats. The Hudson Congressman has received hundreds of letters, some approving of the course he has taken and others demanding that he resign at once. Mr. Leake, however, will serve out his term.

Hudson county Democrats are now wondering whether E. F. C. Young, the financier, will support Bryan. Eight years ago Mr. Young was a member of the Democratic State Committee, but he openly refused to support the Nebraskan then.

There will be many changes in the Assembly next year, and if Theodore Gibbs, one of Camden county's representatives, sticks to his present intention of not being a candidate for re-election, the House will lose a picturesque figure. "Uncle Dory," as he is familiarly called, is the oldest member of the Assembly both in age and in service. He is now in his sixth term, and says that he has had enough of the Legislature and that he is going to step aside to give some of the young fellows in his county a chance. "Uncle Dory" holds the House record for moving the previous question, he having made this motion oftener than all of the other Assemblymen combined at the last session. Whenever the discussion of a bill became too lengthy or threatened to result in a snarl, he was always on his feet with the familiar: "Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question."

"There is not the slightest question as to the result in the Nation," said Mr. Frelinghuysen, when his opinion was sought in that connection. "The Republican party will receive a splendid majority. Mr. Taft is a man of marvelous executive ability and has long since demonstrated that fact. His record is indeed a noble monument. As a Federal judge, and as Governor-General of the Philippines he distinguished himself most exceptionally. His work in straightening out matters in Cuba and in the Panama are known to every man, woman and child, and last of all as Secretary of War he has stamped his name indeliably on the pages of American history. We know he will make a great President and will receive a majority that will be flattering to him and creditable to the American people."

Senator Frelinghuysen is the father of the pure food law and of the automobile legislation. He has served on many important committees in the Senate and his efforts are to be seen in many fine laws enacted during the three years he has spent at Trenton. Only last week, Governor Fort volunteered the information to a New York newspaper man that the Somerset man was one of the most conscientious, hard-working and conservative members of the Legislature and that he hoped his constituents would send him back to aid him at Trenton.

BICYCLIST KILLED

Brake Chain Snaps and He Runs Into Trolley Car.

Henry Vandenbergh, 35 years old, was riding down Hillman Hill, Paterson, on a bicycle last night, when the brake chain snapped. Unable to control the machine, Vandenbergh collided with a trolley car on Belmont avenue and was crushed to death, the body being wedged under the car.

A score of women pleasure-seekers on their way to Belmont Park were overcome, and several of them became hysterical.

COURTS DON'T ENFORCE THE "BISHOPS LAW"

While the excise probe has only been on for two weeks in this State, enough has been developed to show that there is wholesale violation of the bishops' law; that out of 250 arrests for violations, but thirty indictments and five convictions have resulted; that the excise boards are failures in regulating the liquor traffic, and that the brewers about own the entire saloon business of the State.

In the face of these things, with the added facts that grand juries are loath to indict and petit juries loath of convict, there is likely to be some sweeping recommendations by Governor Fort to the Legislature this winter, as to means for compelling the enforcement of the bishops' law.

It will be pointed out that the present method of allowing the sheriff to draw grand and petit juries is a failure, and the federal jury commission system will be urged as the only correct one for taking the courts out of politics. This federal jury commission system is to place the drawing of juries in the hands of two persons of opposite political faith, and they are to be men of the highest rectitude in the county.

The investigation, as it grows older, will show that the brewers are in politics for the sake of their wares; that they care less for public opinion than most other merchants, and that the stoppage of Sunday beer has caused a shrinkage of fully 24 per cent. in their weekly trade. Enough evidence is now in the hands of the commission to show these figures of percentage to be true.

Governor Fort will also, based on the investigation disclosures, reiterate his demand for a State Board of License Revocation, which board will have power after hearing, to revoke any license granted in any municipality of the State, no matter by excise boards, the county courts or Councils. The liquor question has not been downed in Jersey, as many think, and the local optionists believe that they have made substantial headway this summer.

NEW YORKER A FAVORITE.

Duranto Miller May Win National Rowing Championship.

Springfield, Mass., July 20.—With the national regatta on the Connecticut river course less than four weeks away, rowing sharps are getting right down to cases in picking favorites and the general opinion is that Champion Harry S. Bennett, of Springfield, will have as hard a task in holding his title this year as he had in winning it last year. Former Champion Frank B. Greer, of Boston, and Durando Miller, of New York, are the men generally picked as standing the best chances of leading Bennett at the finish.

Miller in particular is being boomed by New Yorkers as being timber to take the championship laurels. He represents the New York Athletic Club and last year had little difficulty in capturing the association singles in Philadelphia. New York judges of rowing are planning a big killing when the race comes off, for they are prepared to back Miller, and there is no doubt that they will get plenty of takers here in Bennett's home town.

Jim Ten Eyck, the veteran Syracuse University coach, is down to give Frank Greer all the coaching he calls for, even though Ten Eyck has been engaged to coach the two sons of E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate. Bennett is in good shape now and would be ready to defend his title tomorrow. As usual, he is his own tutor, but his admirers cannot figure defeat for him here on the course where he picked up sculling.

There is no question that knowledge of the course counts for something and this advantage will be Bennett's for the first time in his career as far as an important race is concerned. He will have other worthy opponents besides Miller and Greer, and no matter how numerous the entries may be the scullers will see as soon as they strike the course that every man will have an equal chance to win.

Entries from as far south as New Orleans and as far west at St. Paul are assured, and it is probable that Scholes, of Toronto, Can., will be a contestant, too. Scholes is to compete in the Olympic games and expects to return in time for the national regatta. As entries do not close until August 1 many of the clubs are keeping their promising men under cover.

WIFE BEATEN TO DEATH.

Found in Hut Near Suffern Golf Links—Husband Missing.

Mrs. Stephen De Groot, one of the colony of Jackson whites living in huts near the Suffern Golf Club's grounds, just over the New York State line in Bergen county, was found beaten to death early yesterday in her home.

It is known that Stephen De Groot, the woman's husband, went to his home late Saturday night intoxicated, and soon after his arrival he had a violent quarrel with his wife. He disapepared from the hut before the body was found, but the Bergen county authorities say they will have no trouble locating him.

JERSEY Y. W. C. A. WELL REPRESENTED AT CONFERENCE.

In Eastern Division Conference at Lake George—Trenton Had the Largest Delegation.

The 1908 conference of workers in the Young Women's Christian Association brought to a close last week at Lake George was attended by a number of New Jersey women. All associations in the astern division of te National Young Women's Christian Association were asked to send delegates, and nearly 450 were present. Trenton, with thirty-two members in attendance, had the largest delegation; Pittsburg came second with twenty-eight, and to Newark ment the honor of being third, twenty women from that city attending. Associations in Newton, Plainfield, Passaic and Paterson were represented. New Jersey was well to the fore in all the deliberations of the conference. Besides the addresses, Bible study and parliaments, there were social features that added greatly to the pleasure of the delegates.

Dr. John Douglas Adam, of East Orange, preached the conference sermons last Sunday.

Mrs. R. L. Jenkinson, president of the Newark Young Women's Christian Association, which now numbers more than 2,000 members, is second vice president of the National board of directors. During the Lake George session she presided at a council of all Y. W. C. A. directors present, and in other ways had a prominent part in the conference.

SECOND SUNDAY AT THE STATE CAMP

Camp Fort, Sea Girt, July 20.—Church services yesterday morning attracted a big crowd of visitors from all along the shore. Some were here as the special guests of Governor Fort, and sat on the porch of the Exuctive cottage with his family and his staff, while others remained in the automobiles and carriages which brought them here. The members of the regiment formed in camp and, headed by the band, marched to the cottage, each man carrying a camp stool instead of a gun.

The Rev. John Handley, of Vineland, preached the sermon, acting as chaplain in the absence of the Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook, the regimental chaplain, who is ill at his home in Elizabeth. Music was furnished by the regimental band, and the audience sang, "Come, Thou Almighty King," "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "Nearer, My God, To Thee." Trooper B. C. Lippincott, of the Second Troop, sang a solo. In private life the latter is a minister at Red Bank.

The only other thing which the soldiers did yesterday, besides seeking pleasure in the afternoon, was to go through their paces in the regular evening parade. This brought the usual big Sunday crowd from all over this part of the State, some being noticed who came from as far as Rumson, twenty-five miles north of Sea Girt. Colonel Dungan, of the Second Regiment, reviewed the soldier boys, and they made an excellent showing.

Battery B, of Camden, arrived late yesterday, tired but happy at the thought of sleeping on cots. They left Camden early Friday morning in company with Troop A, of the United States army, from Fort Meyer, and marched all the way. The trip was without particular incident, but gave the men plenty of practical service. Captain Samuel G. Barnard was particularly pleased with the soldiers, and said his command had acted splendidly, as did Captain Hennessey, of the regular command. On Friday night they camped at Jobstown, Burlington county, and Saturday night near Lakewood, in Ocean county. The men were rather sore and stiff after the long ride, but aside from that the health of both men and horses is fine.

Before the Third Regiment and Second Troop left camp Saturday afternoon, Governor Fort sent communications to Colonel John A. Mather, of the regiment, and Captain Edwin Field, of the troop, complimenting them on the work they had done in camp. He told Captain Field that President Roosevelt, who had seen the troop at the Cleveland funeral at Princeton some weeks ago, had spoken of the soldierly bearing of the men, which tickled the troopers considerably.

For the first time in many years there was a brigade review here Saturday, owing to the fact that after the arrival of the Second Regiment the outgoing Third had considerable time at its disposal before entraining for home.

SCHOOL BOARD INDICTED.

Jersey Officials Accused of Trying to Defraud Town of $105,000.

The Hudson County Grand Jury has found eleven indictments against the nine members of the West New York Board of Education. All are charged with conspiracy to defraud the town out of $105,000. . . . . .

Two other indictments are against the president of the board, John Leserman, and Henry Muehrlein, for malfeasance.

The indictments charge that the board placed in the hands of Harry E. Hayes, of Cleveland, town bonds for $105,000 without receiving compensation from him. There is also an indictment against Hayes.

The other trustees are Otto Griesbeck, Michael Healey, Michael O'Shea, Charles Von Schalscha, Rubin Brewer, William Gauley and James Mulhane. They will probably be arraigned early next week.

Small-sized Riot at Excursion.

Newton, July 20.—A number of negroes on the colored excursion from Morristown to Cranberry Lake Saturday engaged in a general rough-and-tumble fight, with razors, bottles and fists, in the bar-room of the hotel at that place, and as a result mirrors were broken, glasses smashed and many rioters cut and bruised. Constables Paddock and Corning knocked down a number of the contestants with their clubs before order was restored. To prevent a further outbreak the hotel was closed for a time. No arrests were made.

32 Launches For Uncle Sam.

Thirty-two gasoline junction box launches are being constructed by the Electric Launch Company, of Bayonne, for the War Department and will be used in connection with submarine mine planting. The boats will be stationed at the various forts along the sea coast. They will be thirty-two feet in length, nine feet beam and draw three feet of water. They will be equipped with two-cylinder twelve-horsepower engines and will attain eighteen miles an hour. The boats will be completed by April 1 next.

MOSQUITO CHASER SAVES MAN.

Held By Wrist, Cyclist Pours Fluid Into Dog's Threat.

Samuel Guernsey saved himself from being severely bitten by a bulldog at Richfield yesterday morning with a bottle of mosquito exterminator. When he accidentally struck a bone the dog had been eating in the street with his bicycle the beast sprang for him.

As the animal held him by the wrist and refused to release his grip, he pulled out the bottle and poured the contents down the animal's throat. Immediately the dog let go his hold and in great agony dashed along the street. Guernsey's wrist was not badly hurt.

Decoy Dog Lures Victims.

Elizabeth, July 20.—The dog-catchers for the city have hit upon a new scheme for capturing unlicensed canines. The catchers made their appearance on the streets Saturday with a trained dog standing on the back of the horse that draws their wagon. At intervals the dog would bark furiously and the noise brought all the dogs within hearing, which then fell an easy prey. So successful was the ruse that in less than two hours the wagon was filled.

Harborer of Girls Sentenced.

James Ewing and Michael Hoke, Hopewell railroaders, recently convicted of harboring all night in a railway tower two girls who had escaped from the State Home for Girls, were sentenced by Judge John Rellstab at Trenton yesterday. Hoke was given three months in the county workhouse and the costs of his trial and a fine of $100 was imposed. Ewing got two months at the workhouse and the same fine and costs.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HURRIED HOUSEKEEPER.

A little milk added to the water in which silver is washed will help to keep it bright.

A few drops of lemon juice added to scrambled eggs while cooking will improve them.

Never throw away small quantities of gravy, sauce, etc., if they are perfectly sweet. They all come in for making stews, soups or gravies.

Household brushes last much longer if washed regularly. Remember that they should never be allowed to rest on the bristles.

Scale or crust can be prevented in a teakettle by keeping a marble in the kettle.

A suspected sample of ground coffee may be tested in this way: Place a teaspoon of the coffee in a wineglass containing water. If a part floats and part sinks it is adulterated.

If soot falls upon the carpet or rug, do not attempt to sweep until it has been covered thickly with dry salt. It can then be swept up properly, and not a stain or smeer will be left.

When boiling milk, put two tablespoonfuls of water in the pan first, and let it boil. Milk boiled in this way will never burn to the bottom of the saucepan.

If salt is sprinkled over the range before frying is commenced, there will be no disagreeable odor if the fat spatters over.

To mend a crack on the inside of a range, use a filling made of equal parts of wood ashes and common salt, moistened with water. This will prove hard and lasting.

Do not wash oilcloths or linoleum in hot soapsuds. Wash them with tepid water, and wipe with a cloth dampened in equal parts of cold milk and water.

In order to have potatoes always white, the saucepan in which they are boiled should never be used for any other purpose.

When roasting or baking meat in the oven place in the dripping pan a dish of water to prevent the gravy burning or boiling away.

A generous lump of soda placed in pots and pans in which fish, cabbage, onions and other strong smelling foods have been cooked will thoroughly cleanse and make them smell sweet and fresh.

Teapots that are made of metal, if unused for some time, will often give a musty flavor to the tea when next used. This may be prevented by placing a lump of sugar in the teapot before putting it away.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR PRESERVING DAYS.

Preserving time falling as it does in hot weather, is not specially enviable occupation; therefore it should be done with as little discomfort as possible.

Don't wait until the heat of the day to get at it. It is better to rise at 5 or 6 o'clock and enjoy a nap with a clear conscience later. Some women don not finish their preserving until evening from lack of an early start.

See that your fruit is absolutely fresh. If bought from a reliable dealer much waste is avoided.

Do not dump fruit into scales or kettle without picking it over; one or two spoiled pieces will ruin an entire lot of preserves.

See that you have plenty of sugar in the house. It is never wasted, while waiting to send to the grocer's in the midst of work is temper-trying.

Boiling sugar and water before the fruit is put in makes more delicate preserves. The fruit itself need not be kept so long. More can be done at a time in this way.

Skim carefully at the first boil if you would have clear preserves. There is an art in skimming; some cooks waste much of the syrup by going needlessly deep.

Be sure that the preserves are sealed from the air. Let the steam escape and the fruit cool before tying up.

Weigh, don't guess, in measuring, or, at least, weigh the first lot, put it into a measure of some sort and see just how far that quantity reaches. The remaining fruit and sugar can be gauged by that at a saving of time.

There has been no special improvement on the old-fashioned method of putting paper dipped in brandy over the fruit and then tying it with paped lids.

Pouring melted paraffine over the top of preserves is also good. Care must be taken that there is a thick layer with no holes or thin places. Tin lids or screw tops can be used with this.

"It is impossible, I tell you," interrupted Hamilton. "I know this gentleman is incapable of the theft. There is some frightful mistake. How the dickens did you get here, Dicky?"

And briefly I told him my story, my ears growing inch by inch as I went along. Hamilton didn't know whether to swear or to laugh; finally he laughed.

"If you wanted to come, why didn't you write me for an invitation?"

"I shouldn't have come to your old ball, had I been invited. It was just the idea of the lark."

"We shall have to hold him, nevertheless," said the chief, "till everything is cleared up. The girl—"

Hamilton looked at the Blue Domino.

"Madame, will you do me the honor to raise your mask?"

She did so; and I saw Hamilton draw in his breath. Her beauty was certainly of an exquisite pattern. He frowned anxiously.

"I never saw this young women before," he admitted slowly.

"Did you receive your invitation through the proper channels?" asked Hamilton.

"I came here to-night,"—coldly, "on the invitation of Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds, who sailed for Europe Wednesday."

Here was an alibi that was an alibi! I was all at sea. Hamilton bowed; the chief coughed worriedly behind his hand. The girl had told me she was an impostor like myself, that her ten of hearts was as darkstained as my own. I could not make head or tail to it. Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds! She was a law in the land, especially in Blankshire, the larger part of which she owned. What did it all mean? And what was her idea in posing as an impostor?

The door opened again.

"The patrol has come," said the officer who entered.

"Let it wait," growled the chief. "Haggerty has evidently got us all balled up. I don't believe his fashionable thief has materialized at all; just a common crook. Well, he's got him, at any rate, and the gems."

"You have, of course, the general invitation?" said Hamilton.

"Here is it,"—and she passed the engraved card to him.

"I beg a thousand pardons!" said Hamilton humbly. "Everything seems to have gone wrong."

"Will you guarantee this man?" asked the chief of Hamilton, nodding toward me.

"I have said so. Mr. Comstalk is very well known to me. He is a retired army officer, and to my knowledge a man with an income sufficient to put him far beyond want."

"What is your name?" asked the chief of the girl, scowling. It was quite evident he couldn't understand her actions any better than I.

"Alice Hawthorne," with an oblique glance at me.

I had been right!

"What is your occupation? I am obliged to ask these questions, Miss."

"I am a miniature painter,"—briefly.

Hamilton came forward. "Alice Hawthorne? Pardon me, but are you the artist who recently completed the miniature of the Emperor of Germany, the Princess of Hesse, and Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds?"

"I am. I believe there is no further reason for detaining me."

"Emperor of Germany?" echoed the now bewildered chief. "Why didn't you tell all this to Mr. Haggerty?"

"I had my reasons."

Once again the door opened. A burly man in a dark business-suit entered. His face was ruddy and his little grey eyes sparkled with suppressed ire. He reminded me of Vautrin, the only difference being that Vautrin was French while this man was distinctly Irish. His massive shoulders betrayed tremendous strength. He was vastly angry about something. He went to the chief's desk and rested his hands upon it.

"You are a nice specimen for a chief of police, you are!" he began.

"And who the devil are you?" bawled the chief, his choler rising.

"I'll tell you who I am presently."

We all eyed him in wonder. What was going to happen now?

"Which of you gentlemen is Mr. Hamilton?" asked the new-comer gruffly.

Hamilton signified that he was the gentleman by that name.

"Some ladies at your ball have been robbed of their diamonds I understand?"

"About ten thousands dollars' worth."

"Look here, sir," cried the chief, standing up and balling his fist, "I want you to explain yourself, and mighty quick. You can't come into my presence in this manner."

"Bah! You have just permitted the cleverest rascal in the state to slip through your butter-fingers. I am Haggerty."

The chief of police sat down suddenly.

CHAPTER VII.

The consummate daring of it! Why the rascal ought to have been in command of an army. On the Board of Strategy he would have been incomparable!

There followed a tableau that I shall not soon forget. We all stared at the real Haggerty much after the fashion of Medusa's victims. Presently the tension relaxed, and we all sighed. I sighed because the thought of jail for the night in a dress-suit dwindled in perspective; the girl sighed for the same reason and one or two other things; the chief of the village police and his officers sighed because darkness had suddenly swooped down on them; and Hamilton sighed because there were no gems. Haggerty was the one among us who didn't sigh. He scowled blackly.

This big athlete looked like a detective, and the abrupt authority of his tones convinced me that he was. Haggerty was celebrated in the annals of police affairs; he had handled all sorts of criminals, from titled impostors down to petty thieves. He was not a man to trifle with, mentally or physically, and for this reason we were all shaking in our boots. He owned to a keen but brutal wit; to him there was no such thing as sex among criminals, and he had the tenacity of purpose that has given the bulldog considerable note in the pit. But it was quite plain that for once he had met his match.

"I don't see how you can blame me," mumbled the chief. "None of us was familiar with your looks, and he showed us his star of authority, and went to work in a business-like way—By George! and he has run away with my horse and carriage!"—starting from his chair.

"Never mind the horse. You'll find it safe at the railway station," snarled Haggerty. "Now, then, tell me everything that has happened, from beginning to end."

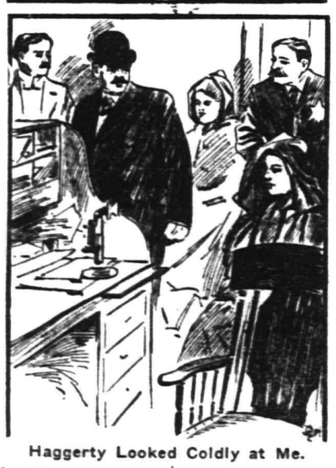
And the chief recounted the adventure briefly. Haggerty looked coldly at me and shrugged his broad shoulders. As for the girl, he never gave her so much as a single glance. He knew a gentlewoman without looking at her twice.

"Humph! Isn't he a clever one, though?" cried Haggerty, in a burst of admiration. "Clever is no name for it. I'd give a year of my life to come face to face with him. It would be an interesting encounter. Hunted him for weeks, and today laid eyes on him for the first time. Had my clumsy paws on him this very afternoon. He seemed so willing to be locked up that I grew careless. Biff! and he and his accomplice, an erstwhile valet, had me trussed like a chicken and bundled into the clothes-press. Took my star, credentials, playing-card, and invitation. It was near eleven o'clock when I roused the housekeeper. I telegraphed two hours ago."

"Telegraphed!" exclaimed the chief, rousing himself out of a melancholy dream. (There would be no mention of him in the morrow's papers.)

"Yes, telegraphed. The despatch lay unopened on your office-desk. You're a good watchdog—for a hen-coop!" growled Haggerty. "Ten thousand in gems to-night, and by this time he is safe in New York. You are all a pack of blockheads.

"Used the telephone, did he? Told you to hold these innocent persons till he went somewhere to land the accomplice, eh? The whistle of the train meant nothing to you. Well, that whistle ought to have told you that there might be a mistake. A good officer never quits his prisoners. If there is an accomplice in toils elsewhere, he makes them bring him in, he does not go out for him. And now I've got to start all over again, and he in New York, a bigger catacomb than Rome ever boasted of. He's not a common thief; nobody knows who he is or what his haunts are. But I have seen his face; I'll never forget him."



Haggerty Looked Coldly at Me.

The chief tore his hair, while his subordinates shuffled their feet uneasily. Then they all started in to explain their theories. But the detective silenced them with a wave of his huge hand.

"I don't want to hear any explanations. Let these persons go," he commanded, with a jerk of his head in our direction. "You can all return to town but one officer. I may need a single man," Haggerty added thoughtfully.

"What are you going to do?" asked the chief.

"Never you mind. I have an idea; it may be a good one. If it is, I'll telephone you all about it when the time comes."

He stepped over to the telephone and called up central. He spoke so low that none of us overheard what he said; but he hung up the receiver, a satisfied smile on his face.

The girl and I were free to go whither we listed, and we listed to return at once to New York. Hamilton, however, begged us to remain, to dance and eat, as a compensation for what we had gone through; but Miss Hawthorne resolutely shook her head; and as there was nothing in the world that would have induced me to stay without her, I shook my head, too. It seemed to me I had known this girl all my life, so closely does misfortune link one life to another. I had seen her for the first time less than eight hours before; and yet I was confident that as many years, under ordinary circumstances, would not have taught me her real worth.

"Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds will never forgive me," said Hamilton dismally, "if she hears that I've been the cause, indirectly and innocently, of turning you away."

"Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds need never know," replied the girl, smiling inscrutably. "In fact, it would be perfectly satisfactory and agreeable to me if she never heard at all."

"I will call a conveyance for you," said the defeated M. F. H. "I shall never forgive you Dicky."

"Yes, you will, Teddy. A loving-cup, the next time we meet at the club, will mellow everything."

Quarter of an hour later Miss Hawthorne and I, wrapped in buffalo-robes, our feet snugly stowed away in straw, slid away, to the jangle and quarrel of sleighbells, toward Moriarty's Hollywood Inn. The moon shone; not a cloud darkened her serene and lovely countenance. The pearly whiteness of the world would have aroused the poetry in the most sordid soul; and far, far away to the east the black, tossing line of the sea was visible.

"What a beautiful night!" I volunteered.

"The beginning of the end."

"The beginning of the end? What does that mean?"

"Why, when you first spoke to me, it was about the weather."

"Oh, but this isn't going to be the end; this is the true beginning of all things."

"I wish I could see it in that light; but we can not see beauty in anything when hunger lies back of the eyes. I haven't had anything to eat, save that single apple, for hours and hours. I was so excited at Mouquin's that I ate almost nothing."

"You are hungry? Well, we'll fix that when we get to Moriarty's. I'll find a way to waking him up, in case he's asleep, which I doubt. There will be cold chicken and ham and hot coffee."

"Lovely!"

"And we shall dine with the gods. And now it is all over and done, it was funny, wasn't it?"

"Terribly funny!"—with a shade of irony. "It would have been funnier still if the real Haggerty hadn't turned up. The patrol had arrived."

"But it didn't happen. I shall never forget this night,"—romantically.

"I should be inordinately glad to forget it completely,"—decidedly.

"Where's your romance?" I asked.

"I'd rather have it served to me between book-covers. As I grow older my love of repose increases."

"Do you know," I began boldly, "it seems that I have known you all my life."

"Indeed!"

"Yes. Why, I might really have known you all my life, and still not have known you as well as I do this very minute,—and less than a dozen hours between this and our first meeting. You are as brave as a paladin, wise as a serpent, cool, witty—and beautiful!"

"Shall I ask the driver to let me out?" Then she laughed, a rollicking joyous laugh.

"What is so funny?"

"I was thinking of that coal-bin."

"Well, I didn't permit a lonely potato to frighten me," I retorted.

"No, you were brave enough—among the potatoes."

"You are beautiful!"

"I am hungry."

"You are the most beautiful girl—"

"I want something to eat."

"—I ever saw! Do you think it possible for a man to fall in love at first sight?"

"Oh, nothing is impossible on Tom Fool's night. Positive, fool; comparative, fooler; superlative, foolest. You are marching on with your degrees, Mr. Comstalk."

"You might call me Dicky," I said in an aggrieved tone.

"Dicky? Never! I should always be thinking of paper collars."

"I wish I were witty like that!"

She snuggled down beneath the robes.

An artist's model, thought I. Never in this world. I now understood the drift of her uncle's remark about her earning capacity. The Alice Hawthorne miniatures brought fabulous prices. And here I was, sitting so close to her that our shoulders touched: and she a girl who knew intimately emperors and princesses and dukes, not to mention the worldly-rich. I admit that for a moment I was touched with awe. And it was beginning to get serious. This girl interested me marvelously. I summoned up all my courage.

"Are—are you married?"

"No-o."

"Nor engaged to be married!"

"No-o. But you mustn't ask all these questions."

"How would you like to ride around in a first-class motor-car the rest of your days?"

She laughed merrily. Possibly it was funny.

"Are you always amusing like this?"

"Supposing I were serious?"

"In that case I should say you had not yet slipped off your fool's motley."

This directness was discouraging.

"I wonder if the ten of hearts is lucky, after all," I mused.

"We are not in jail. I consider that the best of good fortune."

"Give me your card," said I.

She gave me the card, and I put it with mine.

"Why do you do that?"

"Perhaps I want to bring about an enchantment,"—soberly.

"As Signor Fantoccini, or as Mr. Comstalk?"

"I have long since resigned my position in the museum; it was too exciting."

She made no rejoinder; and for some time there was no sound but the music of the bells.

Finally we drew up under the colonial porte-cochere of Hollywood Inn and were welcomed by the genial Moriarty himself, his Celtic countenance a mirror of smiles.

"Anything in the house to eat?" I cried, shaking the robes from me.

"Anything ye like, if you like cowld things. I can hate ye a pot of coffee on the gasolene-burner, and there's manny a vintage in the cillars."

"That will be plenty!"—joyfully, helping Miss Hawthorne to alight.

"Sure, and ye are from the Hunt Club!"—noting our costumes. "Well, well! they niver have anny too much grub. Now, I'll putt ye in a little room all be yersilves, with a windy and a log fire; cozy as ye plaze. Ye'll have nearly two hours to wait for the car from the village."

We entered the general assembly-room. It was roomy and quaint, and somewhere above us was the inevitable room in which George Washington had slept. The great hooded fireplace was merry with crackling logs. Casually I observed that we were not alone. Over yonder, in a shadowed corner, sat two men, very well bundled up, and, to all appearances, fast asleep. Moriarty lighted a four-branched candelabrum and showed us the way to the little private dining-room, took our orders, and left us.

"This is romance," said I. "They used to do these things hundreds of years ago, and everybody had a good time."

"It is now all very wicked and improper," murmured the girl, laying aside her domino for the first time; "but delightful! I now find I haven't the least bit of remorse for what I have done."

In that dark evening gown she was very beautiful. Her arms and shoulders were tinted like Carrara marble; and I knew instantly that I was never going to recover. I drew two chairs close to the grate. I sat down in one and she in the other. With a contented sigh she rested her blue-slippered feet on the brass fender.

"My one regret is that I haven't any shoes. What an adventure!"

"It's fine!" Two hours in the society of this enchanting creature! It was almost too good to be true. Ah, if it might always be like this—to return home from the day's work, to be greeted warmly by a woman as beautiful as this one! I sighed loudly.

Moriarty came with the chicken and ham and coffee.

"If ye would like, it won't be a bit of trouble to show ye George Washington's room; or"—with inimitable Irish drollery—"I can tell ye that he dined in this very room."

"That will serve," smiled the girl; and Moriarty bowed himself out.

His departure was followed by the clatter of silver upon porcelain. Of a truth, both of us were hungry.

"I was simply ravenous," the girl confessed.

"And as for me, I never dreamt I could be so unromantic. Now," said I, pushing aside my plate, and dropping sugar into my coffee, and vainly hunting in my pockets for a cigar, "there remains only one mystery to be cleared up."

"And what might this mystery be?" she asked. "The whereabouts of the bogus Haggerty?"

"The bogus Haggerty will never cross our paths again. He has skipped by the light of the moon. No, that's not the mystery. Why did you tell me you were an impostor; why did you go to the cellars with me, when all the while you were at the ball on Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds' invitation?"

She leaned on her elbows and smiled at me humorously.

"Would you really like to know, Signor? Well, I was an impostor." She sat with her back to the fire, and a weird halo of light seemed to surround her and frame her. "Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds accidentally dropped that invitation in my studio, a few days before she sailed for Europe. I simply could not resist the temptation. That is all the mystery there is."

"And they still think you were there rightfully!"

"You are no longer mystified?"

"Yes; there is yet another mystery to solve: myself." I knew it. Without rhyme and reason, I was in love; and without rhyme or reason, I was glad of it.

"Shall you ever be able to solve such a mystery?"—quizzically.

"It all depends upon you."

Scotch Plains Team Administers Stinging Defeat to Plainfield's Crack Nine.

TEN TO NOTHING THE SCORE.

The Clinton Avenues went down to defeat at Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon by a score of 10 to 0, in the third game of the series between these teams. Owing largely to the fact that the home team was stronger with the stick and was strengthened by a semi-professional pitcher from Brooklyn, as well as a new third baseman and short-stop, the Plainfield boys were outclassed. Excitement was at fever heat throughout the contest as the supporters of the clubs had backed them to the limit.

Turner, who pitched for the 'Plains, had the Indian sign on his opponents, fanning seven and allowing but four hits, while Randolph, appeared to have lost his cunning for the time-being. He fanned but three men and ten hits were gathered off his delivery. No doubt the few questionable decisions, together with the constant fighting on the part of some of the spectators, had its effect on the Plainfielders, for they did not put up their regular game. In the fifth inning O'Loughlin suffered a severe injury to his hand and he was succeeded by Jack Martin, Jimmie Montross going to short.

The contest opened with Clinton Avenue to the bat. Barnes fanned and Brit. Martin connected for a single to left field, followed by Emery who was thrown out at first as was also Jack Martin, retiring the side. Flannery then opened for the home team, but he died on first on a grounder to short. Joe Albert struck out, and Baldwin was thrown out at first by Emery. In the second inning Moffett hit a slow grounder to short and died at first, while Scott, who had patience, walked, stole second, but was caught at third on O'Loughlin's hit to short, which shut off further prospects of a tally.

Busher for the 'Plains placed a hit in the first base territory and went out at the initial bag, H. Albert filed out to left-field and Frentz followed suit. Schott up on the third, hit to pitcher and Randolph failed to find the ball and sat down. Barnes drove the ball to left field for two bases, Brit. Martin walked, but as Emery fanned, there was nothing doing for the visitors.

In their half of the third the home team got busy. Allen popped a fly to Barnes and was out, and Carlston went out on a trow from pitcher to first. Turner was then given a pass, stole second, and Flannery also walked, both scoring on Joe Albert's hit to left field. Baldwin died at first, on a throw of the pitcher to Barnes. It was Albert's hit that started the trouble, but after a long delay the game continued.

Jack Martin first up in the fourth, was thrown out at first by the third baseman. Moffett walked, bpt Scott was out on a fly to right field and O'Loughlin went out on a fly to third base. In their half, the 'Plains scored again. Busher hit to Brit. Martin and was an easy out at first, and Emery threw Albert out at first on a line drive. Frentz then made two bagger, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Allen's two bagger to right-field. Carlston hit to Jack Martin and was safe on Barnes' error, he dropping the ball. Albert was caught trying to steal third.

Opening the fifth inning, Scott fanned, Randolph did the same and Barnes flied out to short. Then Turner got a hit, stole second, and Flannery was safe on first on a bunt to Randolph. Joe Albert hit to pitcher and Turner was thrown out at the plate. Baldwin flied out the left-field, but Schott made a bad throw, which Montross fumbled and threw over the grandstand, Flannery and Albert scoring on the error, and Busher closed the inning by striking out.

The visitors failed to score in their half of the sixth, and the home team did no better. After blanking Clinton Avenue in the seventh, the home club tallied two more runs. Turner flied out at third. Flannery walked, stole second and same home on Albert's hit to right field. Baldwin then hit to short and Busher hit to the pitcher, Albert scoring, H. Albert walked and Frentz went out on a hit to third base.

Clinton Avenue failed to score in either the eigth or ninth innings, but the 'Plains chalked up three more in the eigth, making a total of ten runs. The score:

IOLAS OUTCLASSED BY ST. MARY'S TEAM

In a well-played game, St. Mary's team defeated the Iola Club, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 3, on Hope Common. The Iolas, although putting up a good contest, were outclassed. Hannon was a puzzle to the Iolas. He allowed but four hits, one being a scratch. He retired twelve men on strikes, Harding, their heaviest batter, being fanned three out of four times at the bat. Hallard was touched up for a total of ten hits, including two doubles, by Hannon and Kiely.

The feature of the contest was a catch by Kyle. Trying for a high pop-fly, he tripped and while lying on his back caught the ball. Mottley also pulled off a fine play, making a long line throw from deep left and catching a runner at the plate. The score:

Orange's Victory Means That the Local Team Loses Its Tie For First Place.

SCORE ELEVEN WAS TO FIVE.

Plainfield Finds No Difficulty In Making Errors—Conover Is Hammered and Peacock Takes His Place.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team dropped from its position of tie with Newark for first place, on Saturday, when it was defeated by the Orange association nine by the score of 11 to 5, on Crescent Oval. There were rumors that Orange had strengthened up, but no one appeared to expect such a landslide. While the visitors were gathering hits, Plainfield was bunching errors, making a total of eight, and Orange walked away with an easy victory.

"Hub" Conover started the game for Plainfield, but the pace got too warm, and it was decided to give Peacock a chance. He did a little better, but the visitors had their eye on the ball and continued to drive out the hits without any regard for the feelings of the opposing team. In some respects it was a comedy of errors, Plainfield failing to put up its usual snappy game, while the absence of Will Schoonmaker was also felt.

Cole, of the visiting team, held the home team to seven hits and he not only fielded his position well but was supported by the team in a faultless manner, not an error being charged to the aggregation. As a result of the game, Orange improves her standing, having a total of three victories and two defeats, while Plainfield has five victories and two defeats. The score:

Orange.

POINTS SCORED TO DATE IN THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

Under the system of scoring which is advocated by James E. Sullivan, president of the American Athletic Union of the United States and the American commissioner appointed by President Roosevelt, as the only true one, and which was in vogue at the revival of the Olympic games in Athens, 1896, and followed in Paris, 1900, St. Louis in 1904, and Athens in 1906, based on 5 for first place, 3 for second and 1 for third, the points to date are as follows:

United States	40
United Kingdom	54
*Canada	1
*Australia	1
Sweden	12
Norway	4
Greece	3
France	1
Finland	1

*Points scored by Canada and Australia will be credited to United Kingdom.

PARK GOLF PLAYERS IN WEEKLY COMPETITION

The only event at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups, the play for the challenge trophies being postponed to another date. Although there was a large field out, many of the regulars were absent, being away on vacations. The scores, as a rule, were low and the game was greatly enjoyed.

The best cards returned in the play were as follows:

Leon R. Thurlow, 97, 11—86; Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 103, 16—87; W. V. Byard, 101, 13—88; E. E. Gano, 91, 3—88; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 98, 7—92; J. B. Betts, 114, 22—92; Walter C. McNaughton, 97, 5—92; W. R. Baber, 100—694; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 104, 9—95; Miss Grace A. TenEyck, 131, 30—101.

S. H. PATTERSON BEATS BOGEY BY THREE UP

The bogey handicap scheduled for the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, attracted a number of contestants to the course, who made every effort to beat the "colonel" who had a score of 79. Stuart H. Patterson was successful, being 3 up on bogey, with a score of 89, 13—76, while Arthur Murphy nished second with a score of 86, 10—76, being 2 up on bogey. The competition was an interesting one throughout, it always is when an effort is made to beat bogey.

The social features at the clubhouse during the afternoon and evening, combined to afford much pleasure for the members and their friends and the dinner-dance in the evening attracted a large number of young people, who enjoyed the cool breezes at this popular place.

MATINEE RACE MEET AT THE DRIVING PARK

Another successful matinee race meet was held at the driving park, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club. The attendance was large, including people not only from Union county, but other parts of the State, as well, who enjoyed the fine exhibition. The entries included some of the best horses in this section.

The judges were Nelson B. Giles and Nate Robins; the timers, Dr. Butler and George Forgorson, while William Hudson was the starter. There were three events on the card and all were run off in good time. The summaries:

SOMERVILLE'S WEST ENDS LOSE TO PENNINGTON NINE.

The West Ends, of Somerville, were vanquished Saturday afternoon at Cammann Field by their old rivals from Pennington by a score of 4 to 2, although they put up a much better game in the field than their adversaries. Two home runs in the eighth inning turned the trick for the visitors. The attendance a the game was very large and the faithful are rooting hard for the West Ends to win another contest. Although the team has played gilt-edged ball all summer it has had poor luck and the victory column looks rather slim.

The score was:

Pennington .1 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 0—4 8 5
West Ends .0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 5 1

Dunellen Wins Ten Inning Game.

The Dunellen Field Club defeated the Climax F. C., at Dunellen, Saturday, by a score of 7 to 6, in a fast ten-inning contest that was marked by considerable hitting and brilliant fielding. Russell and Dodwell formed the battery for Dunellen, and the Terry brothers were in the points for the Climax A. C. A feature of the contest was a triple play by the home team, Garretson, Miller and Jennings taking part. Next Saturday Dunellen will play the Highlanders and after that they will be ready to meet the Y. M. C. A. or any other team of like strength.

Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno and daughter, Miss Emma Ryno, of Codington avenue, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Easton, Pa.

NEWARK NINE LOSES TO MONO AGGREGATION

The Mono Field Club added another victory to its long string on Saturday when it defeated the Weston Electric Company's team at Newark, by a score of 5 to 3. Sherwin pitched for the Monos and he held his opponents safe and allowing but eight hits, while the Plainfield boys got a total of sixteen hits off of Van Volkenburg. The score:

WHITEHOUSE DEFEATS JERSEY CENTRAL'S TEAM.

The New Jersey Central A. C. baseball team of Jersey City met defeat at Whitehouse Station, Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 1, in a close and exciting game up to the fifth inning, when the home team scored four runs on a combination of errors and safe drives. The Whitehouse twirler, Harney, allowed the visitors but two singles and succeeded in fanning twelve of them. The score by innings was:

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AND DINNER AT P. C. C.

There were seventeen teams in the invitation tennis tournament, men's doubles, at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, and the play led up to the semi-final round, with William Wadsworth and Willard Wadsworth, W. S. Charlock and W. B. Craigin, Jr., N. F. Charlock and G. W. Case and Vaughn McGee and William Barlow tied for honors. The tie will be played off on Saturday. The tournament was witnessed by a gallery of about one hundred enthusiasts and at the dinner that followed in the clubhouse covers were laid for eighty.

The result of the tournament follows:

First round—A. D. Beers and H. T. Eaton defeated S. W. Merrihew and G. S. Grosbek, 6-4, 6-4.

Second round—W. Brown and F. W. Goddard defeated Anderson brothers, 6-4, 6-3; William Wadsworth and Willard Wadsworth defeated T. M. Day and T. M. Day, 3d, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2; W. S. Charlock and W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated J. H. Kyte and P. C. Langdon, 6-2, 6-2; A. D. Beers and H. T. Eaton defeated W. L. Ranson and M. D. Rae, 4-6, 6-4, 6-0; W. Lester Glenney and W. A. Bours defeated C. B. Tyler and H. S. Brown, 6-1, 6-4; N. F. Charlock and G. W. Case defeated G. S. Ring and A. L. Otterson, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3; William Barlow and Vaughn McGee defeated Chester Briggs and Monroe Long, 6-4, 6-2; C. Barnes and C. J. Brainard defeated S. W. McAneny and H. Bartlett, 6-4, 6-2.

Third round—Brown and Goddard were defeated by William Wadsworth and Willard Wadsworth, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4; M. S. Charlock and W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated A. D. Beers and H. T. Eaton, 6-2, 6-2; N. F. Charlock and G. W. Case defeated W. Lester Glenney and C. J. Brainard, 6-4, 6-2.

CHURCH DIDN'T BET.

But It Will Win $1,000 if Bryan Is Not Elected.

If William Jennings Bryan is elected President of the United States the Third Presbyterian church of Trenton will lose $1,000. The church has not made an election bet on Taft, but the latter's election next fall would mean that the church's organ fund would be increased by $1,000.

Last spring, when the Rev. A. J. Weisley, pastor of the church, was on his way to attend the Presbyterian General Assembly at Kansas City, he met an enthusiastic admirer of Bryan. After extolling the virtues of his favorite the admirer stated to Mr. Weisley that if Bryan was not elected he would give the Third church $1,000. When asked about the matter Mr. Weisley said the incident happened as stated.

"But," he added, "I never expect to get the money."

He declined to say whether his last remark meant that he felt sure of Bryan's election, or referred to his lack of faith in the man who made the offer.

EXCISE PROBE IN ESSEX

Fort's Commission Delves Into the Saloon Traffic and Gets Startling Information.

BREWERS ARE ALL POWERFUL.

Already the Bishops' Law Enforcement Has Been Proven a Travesty On Justice—Not Generally Respected.

A large audience greeted the State Excise Commission when it began its probe into excise conditions in Essex county yesterday in the Newark City Hall. All the commissioners were present with the exception of Kearney Rice. Most of the witnesses were police officials, and the line of questions asked by Mayor Fisk and Mr. Backes indicated a desire to find out just how many back rooms there were attached to the saloons in Essex county, particularly in Newark. The commission adjourned, to meet in Elizabeth tomorrow.

William Harrigan, president of the Newark Police Board, said that he had given orders to the police chief that the Bishops' law must be enforced to the best of his ability. He said the board received monthly reports from the chief, who, in turn received weekly reports from the captains, which showed that some places were suspected of not obeying the law. A letter he had sent to police captains was read. It stated that violations of the Bishops' law were prevalent and that poolrooms were in existence. These must be stopped, the letter read, as the board would hold the captain and his men personally responsible.

"By the way," said Mr. Backes just as Mr. Harrigan was about to leave the stand, "What is your business?"

Mr. Harrigan said he was a mineral water manufacturer.

"And are most of your customers saloonkeepers?" asked Mr. Backes.

"Yes," responded Mr. Harrigan.

James F. Connolly, City Clerk of Newark, said that 1,367 saloons were needed in 1907 to quench the thirst of the citizens of Newark. The city had no fixed period when licenses expired, as in Jersey City, and at each meeting of the Excise Board many licenses came up for renewal. The license fee was formerly $250, but when the Bishops' law was enacted this was raised to $500. The board which increased the license fee was appointed by a judge of the Common Pleas, but this board was declared unconstitutional and the subsequent board, appointed by the Mayor, reduced the price of licenses to $400.

"Didn't Mr. Haussling promise the saloonkeepers that if he was elected Mayor he would reduce the license fee to $400?" asked Mr. Backes.

Mr. Connolly said he did not know, but admitted that he heard the story. The City Clerk said that in his opinion the public good did not require such a large number of saloons.

The testimony of William Tompkins, who has been an excise inspector for five years, was interesting. He said that 254 licenses had been paid for in cash, and ninety-four by applicant's own check, leaving the balance, something like 990, to be paid for by the brewers. According to Mr. Tompkins, the brewers did not give up a license if the saloon did not pay, but transferred it to another person and gave him a chance to make the place a paying one. One license, he said, had been transferred five times in one year. Mr. Backes, looking over the records at this point, found that two licenses had been transferred five times, three had been transferred four times, and a large number twice. It also developed from Mr. Tompkin's testimony that saloon brokers did a prosperous business in Newark.

Michael Corbitt, chief of police, told the commission that he was doing his best to enforce the law, but believed there was some Sunday selling. He thought the law pretty strict, but he had less trouble now with Sunday brawls than before its passage. He thought the city could get along with less saloons. Captains Ryan, of the 1st Precinct; Christie, of the 3d; Vogel, of the 4th, and Uphaus, of the 5th, and Acting Captain Ebert, of the 2d Precinct, also testified before the commission. Their testimony related mostly to back rooms, the captains freely admitting that they existed in their precincts, but did not think they came under the law. Mayor Fisk suggested that the chief of police get from the Excise Board a ruling defining a back room.

Captain Uphaus caused somewhat of a stir when he asserted that the grand jury gave him no help in enforcing the law. All the police captains agreed that it was easier to maintain order with less saloons.

Chief of Police William H. Bamford, of West Orange, said he had no special instructions to look after back rooms. West Orange supports

FIGHT VICTIMS UNDER GUARD AT THE HOSPITAL

Inquiry at Muhlenberg Hospital today elicited the information that Ira Bowers, Sr., and Martin Rogers, who inflicted severe injuries upon each other at Third and Church streets, Saturday night, were steadily recovering but that it would be at least a week before either would be able to leave the institution. Bowers is hurt the most and when he does get out, it will be a long time before his features will resume anything like their natural shape. The physicians assert that his face was actually beaten to a pulp and he will be scarred for life by the smashing of his nose. Rogers' principal injuries are three long knife wounds in the head and side, from which he lost a great quantity of blood.

The police have formally declared both men under arrest and they will be watched while at the hospital. As it is, they have to be kept far apart and closely guarded as Rogers is still in a vindictive mood. The attack made upon him by Bowers has roused his hatred beyond all bounds and he continually asserted yesterday that he would again pummel him if given the chance. Rogers is in the main ward while Bowers is kept in a separate room.

The story of the assault will be heard in the city court when the participants are in a condition to be arraigned. The police have secured the name of the woman that inspired Bowers' jealousy, leading him to lay in wait for Rogers, and it is said that she will be called to testify. It is declared that she witnessed a part of the fight as it took place almost in front of her home.

Rogers lived at 226 Church street and not 220, the number first given the police, and was employed as driver by the Plainfield Boof Company. He has been in Plainfield only five weeks but during that time had conducted himself in a sober and industrious manner.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BRANCH AT HOPE CHAPEL NOW

Following the annual custom during the months of July and August, the directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room have established a branch station at Hope chapel for the convenience of the large number of people residing in West End, who find it inconvenient to visit the library on Park avenue. One feature of this is that it gives the school children in that part of the city an opportunity to get books needed in their studies. At other times of the year the library has an arrangement whereby books are sent to the various schools.

Miss Bessie Phillips, one of the substitutes at the Public Library, has been put in charge of the branch station because of the fact that she is thoroughly acquainted with conditions in the West End, as well as the people.

Independent entirely of this station and having no connection at all with the Public Library, the officers of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church have transferred the Sunday-school library of about 2,000 volumes to Hope chapel, to remain there while extensive improvements are being made at the church. These books will be available to people in that part of the city under the customary regulations and should be of pleasure and profit to those who care to read the best books. The library was taken to the chapel last night.

BENJAMIN CLARK DIES AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

Benjamin Clark, a life-long resident of Scotch Plains vicinity, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday afternoon. He had been undergoing treatment for a heart affection for two weeks past. Mr. Clark was sixty nine years old and was the son of Robert and Sarah Cook, who were among the pioneer residents of New Providence township. He was a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted in Company B, Thirtieth N. J. Vols., and serving with distinction in many of the most important battles of the conflict.

Mr. Clark was prominent in Scotch Plains affairs during his life and was widely known in Plainfield. He leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. Peterson, of Newark, and two sons, John Ernest Clark, of Scotch Plains, and David Clark, of Montclair.

The funeral will be held at his late home on Prospect avenue, Scotch Plains, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. It will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Mulford, of All Saints church, and burial will be in the family plot in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

Philip Swain and daughter, Miss Edna Swain, of Craig place, are registered at the Hotel New York, Asbury Park.

NO PARTY ENDORSEMENTS

Republican County Committee Kills Resolution Advocating Approval of Candidates.

TO BE LEFT TO THE VOTERS.

No Public Meetings Until After the Primaries—Codding Explains the Primary Law.

An attempt on the part of certain members to secure the adoption of a resolution recommending the endorsement of nominees by the executive committee, caused a lively discussion at the regular meeting of the Union County Republican Executive Committee at Elizabeth last night. The sentiment was so strongly against the resolution that it was finally withdrawn by James White, the acting chairman, who introduced it and no further efforts will be made in that direction.

County Clerk J. C. Calvert and Charles N. Codding were among those who took a decided stand against the resolution, believing that it would be an unwise policy to influence voters by having the committee endorse any particular candidate. Both declared that the voters should have the right to say who shall be nominated and that the party organization should not interfere. Hamilton F. Kean shared their views.

It was afterward explained by Mr. White that he had offered the resolution for the purpose of having the question thoroughly discussed and having the county committee go on record of being either in favor or against the idea.

It was decided not to hold any public meetings until after the primaries and the various candidates are nominated, and it was also the opinion of the committee that the campaign should not be formally opened before September 1. Mr. Codding explained some of the perplexing features of the new primary law and every effort will be made to acquaint the voters with the law before the primaries are held.

The committee endorsed the action of the Republican national convention in nominating W. H. Taft for President and J. S. Sherman for Vice-President, and pledged itself to do all in its power to elect the straight Republican ticket in November.

MARTINE DOLLAR DINNER AT KENSINGTON TONIGHT

Mayor Charles J. Fisk will act as toastmaster at the dollar diner to be given at the Hotel Kensington tonight in honor of James E. Martine, who is expected to return this afternoon from the Denver convention. The reception to the "farmer-orator" is a non-partisan affair in which fifty of his personal admirers will participate.

Former Judge William A. Coddington will respond to the toast "Our Guest," while former Assemblyman Samuel Sherman Swackhamer will talk on "Great men."

The committee on arrangements consists of James Buchanan Colvin, Charles Sturtevant, Joseph W. Harringan, J. A. Staats, John P. Owens, J. V. F. Dilts and P. J. Reville.

BASEBALL RIOT VICTIM SUSTAINED A BROKEN RIB

Constable Robert Walpole, one of the victims of the mob that broke loose at the Scotch Plains-Clinton Avenue baseball game Saturday, has been found to be injured more severely than was at first supposed. A close examination by Dr. F. W. Westcott shows that he has sustained a broken rib and that because of his advanced age is suffering greatly from shock. He is confined to his home under the physician's care and will feel the effects of his rough treatment for a long time.

The names of many of the rowdy Plainfielders who started the trouble and kept it up are known to the 'Plains authorities but no action against them has been taken as yet. The individuals who were attacked have refused to make any complaint and the matter will have to be brought to an issue by the authorities. Just when this will be done has not been stated but the people of Scotch Plains are determined that the gang shall not go unpunshed and will call upon the Township Committee to act, if necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Dufford, of West Front street, are entertaining at Camp Mohegan Miss Minnie Clawson and Miss Hattie Dafford, of Middle Valley, and Harold Brownell, of this city.

ARCHIE HERRON INDICTED

Metuchen Man Who Shot Down the Rev. S. B. D. Prickitt, to Be Tried Monday.

CALLS IN VAIN FOR HIS WIFE.

Paper of Which Murdered Minister Was Editor Will Be Run by His Sons.

Archie Herron, the murderer of the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt at Metuchen last Wednesday, was indicted for murder in the first degree by the Grand Jury at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon, and the indictment was at once handed in to Justice James J. Bergen. Herron looked worn and haggared as he was brought into the crowded courtroom. Prosecutor George Berdine read the indictment to him and asked him how he pleaded.

"I stand before you guilty of no crime," said Herron, looking at the judge and trying to assume an air of bravado.

"The clerk will enter a plea of not guilty," ordered the justice.

"Have you counsel?" asked the court, addressing Herfron.

"No, I haven't seen counsel yet," was the reply.

"Can you employ counsel, or do you want the court to assign counsel?"

"I want to see my wife first. I do not want to plead until I see her. I sent for her this morning, but she has not come yet. She will be here this afternoon."

"Answer my question," demanded the court. "Have you money to employ counsel?"

"I can get counsel, but I want to see my wife first."

"Do you want the court to assign counsel?"

"I will consider that. You do not want an answer right away, do you? I'll see my wife about it."

"You must understand that you are to be tried next Monday. You should secure counsel at once to take charge of your case. You understand now, do you, that you are to be tried on Monday?"

"If you insist on going on at that time I guess I'll have to go on."

Justice Bergen and Judge Booraem held a short consultation and then Justice Bergen announced:

His Wife Shuns Him.

"Judge Booraem thinks, and I think, that the court should assign counsel in this case. I will assign Judge C. T. Cowenhoven. You understand that if you do not want him you can discharge him and secure your own counsel."

Then Herron was led back to jail, muttering that the would talk it over with his wife. But his wife did not call upon him in the afternoon and has not been to see him since his arrest. She declares that she will not have anything to do with him, but that the law must take its course.

The man's action in court yesterday afternoon confirms the belief that a plea of insanity will be entered in his behalf. He did not appear as if he realized his position. He seems to be laboring under an impression that he had a right to shoot the man who sent him to jail a couple of years ago.

In line with Metuchen's plan of cleaning out its insane men, Daniel C. Whalen, a hotel-keeper of that place, was taken to the asylum at Trenton yesterday. Whalen, who considerable property in Metuchen, has been acting queerly for some time, and last week threatened his wife. She was so frightened that she consulted Dr. Ellis, the Mayor, and he and Dr. Ramsey, of Perth Amboy, committed the hotel man to the asylum.

The Metuchen Recorder, of which the murdered minister was editor, is to be continued by Charles A. Prickitt and William B. Prickitt, sons of the deceased, for the benefit of the widow.

The Grand Jury yesterday heard only five witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Prickitt and their son, who saw the shooting and the incidents which led up to it; County Physician J. L. Suydam, who performed the autopsy, and Marshal Fouratt, who made the arrest.

No Half Holidays During August.

Because of the shortness of time to complete arrangements with the various tradesmen, there will be no 12 o'clock closing of local stores Saturdays during August this season. This was decided at the meeting of the Merchants' Association held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. It was decided that the August meeting of the association be omitted and the next regular meeting will be held in September.

—Commencing tomorrow night and continuing for the remainder of the month and during August, Neuman Brothers' store will be closed at 6 o'clock.

VOTING MACHINES' KNELL

Borough Voters in Both Districts Casting Ballots For Their Abolishment.

BIG VOTE AT SPECIAL ELECTION

North Plainfielders are today deciding the fate of the voting machines at a special election in accordance with a call made several weeks ago. The voting has been as heavy as for a regular election, and up to 2 o'clock, 113 votes had been cast in the First district, and 150 in the Second.

The polls opened at 6 o'clock. Voters of the first district are casting their ballots at borough police headquarters. William Rowley and Daniel Gulick are judges of election in this district. Fred Koller and Chas. Wood are the inspectors. There was a good rush of voters at train time, and eighty-seven ballots had been cast up to 10 o'clock. Voting in the second district was also lively in the early part of the day, and ninety-one votes were recorded there at 10. The polling place is at 90 Somerset street, and these election officers are serving: A. D. Pope and Levi Kline, judges; L. B. Bodine and J. A. Davie, inspectors.

An apparent majority of the voters of both parties seems to favor the abolishment of the machine method of balloting. If the mechanical ballot instrument is done away with in North Plainfield as a result of the election, it will mean, according to the State law, that the voting must be by paper ballot until changes on the voting machine now in use have been made. That is, it will be impossible to hold another election and to again use the vote machines unless some changes are made in the machine. If, on the other hand, the balloting today results in the retention of the machines, another election may be called to again decide the question of their retention after two years have passed.

Mayor Townsend said today that he favors a voting machine in elections, but does not endorse the retention of the machine now in use. "I should like to see a machine adapted which will be on the Australian ballot system, with a lever for every candidate's name. I do not like the party lever arrangement on the machines we now have, or the method of turning down the lavers to scratch the ticket. A lever to directly control every candidate's name would not take up much more room, would not consume much time, and would be so simple as to be understood by every voter."

HARRY OSTERMOOR WEDS MISS JESSIE D. VOORHEES

Miss Jessie Darling Voorhees, of Cranford, and Henry Gregory Ostermoor, of this city, were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Alice T. Voorhees, in Cranford this afternoon. Rev. Dr. Franklin Green, pastor of the Cranford Presbyterian church, officiated. Miss Marion Eiber, of Brooklyn, was maid of honor, and Samuel T. Stains, of New York, best man.

About forty intimate friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony. The presents were both costly and numerous. Following the wedding a reception was held, previous to the departure of the couple on their honeymoon tour.

Mr. Ostermoor is the son of Mrs. Margaret Gregory Ostermoor, and is one of Netherwood's most popular young men. He is engaged in business in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ostermoor will spend their honeymoon at the Thousand Islands. They will reside in Belvidere avenue after September 1.

Judge Newcorn Plans Vacation.

Judge William Newcorn announced yesterday that sessions of the district court will be held on Thursday, July 23, and Monday, July 27, and there will be no further sessions until Thursday, August 20, as he is planning to take a vacation in the meantime.

Theatrical Offerings.

"The Three Twins," one of Gotham's greatest successes this season, has been booked by Manager Counihan for a performance at the New Plainfield theatre on August 31. The Labor Day attraction at the popular playhouse will be "The Follies of 1907," one of the greatest money-makers in the theatrical world.

Doorman Thomas McCue, of police headquarters, is enjoying his annual vacation on a farm near Bridgeport, Conn.

RUN OVER BY WAGON, DRIVER DIES IN HOSPITAL

Simon Gibson, who received serious injuries in a runaway accident at the freight-house, last week, died suddenly at Muhlenberg Hospital at 4:20 o'clock this morning. He was apparently recovering from his injuries, and although pneumonia developed, as it frequently does in such cases, the physicians in charge believed that he would get well. A sudden change for the worse during the early hours of the morning was noticed and despite the fact that every known remedy was used, Gibson failed to respond to the treatment and he passed away quickly.

The injuries which caused Gibson's death were received at the freight-house, where the man, who was employed by George J. Tobin, had been sent for some goods. He was standing in the wagon, when something frightened his horses. The sudden dash of the team caused Gibson to lose his balance and in an effort to catch hold of something he grabbed the cover which extended over the seat. This came out of its fastenings and fell on the horses and they ran away, throwing Gibson off the wagon, the wheels of which passed over his body.

When Gibson was admitted to the hospital an examination disclosed several broken ribs and other internal injuries. He remained unconscious for several days, but on Saturday he regained his senses and those in charge believed he would recover as there was a marked improvement in his condition. This morning an autopsy was performed to ascertain the exact cause of death. It is ascribed to an internal hemorrhage, produced by a rupture of the kidneys.

Gibson so far as known has no relatives in this part of the country. He came from New York about five months ago and took a position as driver for Mr. Tobin. Arrangements will be made during the day for the care and burial of the body.

STATE MERCHANTS TO CONVENE HERE TONIGHT

Delegates for the convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of New Jersey began to arrive in town today, and the organization will hold a preliminary meeting at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall tonight. The convention proper begins tomorrow; the headquarters will be the Hotel Iroquois and sessions will be held morning and afternoon. It is expected that forty or fifty delegates from various cities and towns in the State will be in attendance.

Mayor Fisk has consented to speak at the preliminary meeting tonight to which the public is invited. City Judge William N. Runyon has also been asked to speak. Members of the local Merchants' Association will attend the meeting in a body, in accordance with a ruling at their regular meeting last night. M. C. Van Arsdale, J. Hervey Doane and H. C. Levy form the entertainment committee from the local association. At the next regular meeting the question of affiliation with the State association will be considered.

These are the officers of the State association: James P. A. Waldron, of Jersey City, president; E. H. Lytle, of Delanco, vice-president; Henry Gray, of New Brunswick, treasurer; James Findlay, of Jersey City, secretary.

New Students at Drake College.

The following young people entered Drake College for the complete course this morning: Wilhelm Kline, Plainfield; James Capano, Joseph Romano, Bound Brook; Misses Mary Conroy, Carolina Maass, Plainfield. Young people who are thinking of entering business college this fall would do well to begin now. A special discount of 10% will be given to all students who enter before September 1st. Drake College is the finest equipped business college in Plainfield. A visit to this school will convince you. ***

To Whitewash Washington Rock.

Following his annual custom, William N. Pangborn, of Linden avenue, is again circulating a subscription list to raise a fund for improvements at Washington Rock. In connection with the yearly whitewashing of the historic monument, it is planned this year to cut away considerable underbrush and branches so that the rock will be clearly visible from Dunellen, as well as from all parts of the valley.

Funeral of Mrs. Vail.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Matilda Vail, who died Sunday, will be held at the home of her son, Edward Vail, of Elmwood place, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. J. H. Willett, of Westfield, and Miss Maude Tarry, of Springfield, are guests at Camp Westfield.

FOWLER IS A CANDIDATE

Fifth District's Congressman "Will Accept Responsibility" If Party Really Insists.

HE GIVES OUT A STATEMENT.

Has Long Been Honored By His Party, Which Is Not Now Likely to Compel Him to Serve It Any More.

Representative Charles N. Fowler is anxious to be returned again this year to Congress from the Fifth district. He has been in Congress for twelve years and has not been successful in having his pet ideas regarding currency put in effect. During the recent session his measure was pigeon-holed as at previous sessions. He has not been particularly conspicuous and has often been referred to as "the Absentee-Congressman." In reply to a question as to whether or not he intended to seek a renomination, Mr. Fowler said:

"My position now is precisely what it always has been. If the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional district see fit to again honor me by a nomination, I shall accept the responsibility with the keenest sense of appreciation, and with the earnest desire, if elected, to serve my district and my country well. It would be a source of peculiar satisfaction to me to make the fight by the side of William H. Taft, and subsequently to assist him in carrying out his policies. I have known him intimately for thirty years, and he is my ideal of American manhood."

Mr. Fowler is of the opinion that William J. Bryan, in the present campaign, will be the worst beaten candidate that ever came before the people.

"The nomination of Mr. Bryan is just what the Republicans desired," said Mr. Fowler. "It is just what a very large contingent of the more conservative Democrats also desired. These Democrats, like the Republicans, realize that William J. Bryan, with his vagaries, has been one of the best assets of the Republican party for the last twelve years; and they hope and believe that his defeat this year will be crushing and final. On the one hand we have intelligent, progressive policies, but essentially conservative, the prospect of sound money legislation and the preservation of the protective policy with the revision of the tariff; on the other hand we have radicalism run mad, rank free trade, Government issue of money or greenbackism, and yet not half of Bryan's erratic political possibilities ever hinted at." It is said to be quite unlikely that the Fifth district will insist on Mr. Fowler's renomination.

GEORGE BALL TO VOTE FOR "PEERLESS ONE"

George Ball, of Scotch Plains, who is busily engaged in the practise of law in this city, is a Bryan convert. The former member of the Republican county committee says that there will be no occasion for his withdrawing from the race for an Assembly nomination on the Republican ticket this year as he intends to support the Nebraskan for the Presidency.

"I am even more enthusiastic than James E. Martine," said Mr. Ball today when asked to state his views on the forthcoming campaign. "Bryan will be elected without a doubt. I always admired the man personally and will, for the first time, vote the Democratic ticket. I know of others that will do the same thing."

Mr. Ball will attend the dinner to be given tonight at the Hotel Kensington in honor of James E. Martine. He says he is still a Republican.

INVITED TO LUNCH.

Mayor Fisk Receives Honor at Governor's Hands.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk has been invited by Governor Fort to be present Thursday at a luncheon which the Governor will give at his cottage at Sea Girt. This will be "Governor's Day" at the shore, and there will be regimental reviews, parades, etc. Members of the Board of Freeholders have been invited by Geenral Collins to be present on that day.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Cox.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Cox, widow of Isaac S. Cox, died this morning at her home at Clinton avenue and Third street. She was seventy-one years old and leaves a son, Howard Cox. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Peter K. Dilts, of Duer street, one of the bookkeepers at Boice, Runyon & Co.'s office on Park avenue, has not been to business in over a week on account of illness. He is improving now, however.

ARRESTS UNDER NEW LAW.

Three Disorderly Persons Rounded Up After Woman Had Assaulted Marshal.

Netcong, July 21.—The first arrests under Netcong's new disorderly ordinance were made Saturday, when Stewart Sanford, "Readdy" Shurr and Mrs. Elizabeth Hendershot, all of Stanhope, were apprehended by Marshal Smith, charged with being intoxicated and disorderly at Dell's Grove, where they and others have been in the habit of congregating to drink beer. The complaint was made by the owner, who has repeatedly warned them to keep away.

Warrants are out for a number of others, who escaped when the marshal and deputies raided the grove. The two men submitted to arrest peaceably, but Mrs. Hendershot put up a lively fight; demolishing a heavy umbrella over the marshal's head, and wound up by lying down and refusing to move. As the borough has no patrol wagon the attempt to place her under arrest was temporarily abandoned, but shortly afterward she was seen walking along Main street past the recorder's office and was taken in. The men were released on payment of costs, but Mrs. Hendershot was fined $5.75, which she could not pay, and was placed in the lock-up for a time, until Proprietor F. J. Lovely, of the Mansion House, for whom she has worked, furnished security in the sum of $50 for her appearance for a hearing on the charge of assaulting an officer.

—In a scrimmage with William Dolton, of Trenton, and Charles Haywood, of Hartford, Conn., scorers on the rifle range at Sea Girt, Lieut. Charles Peterson, of Co. K, of this city, was struck in the face, Saturday night, and Dolton had his thumb cut slightly with a bayonet. Lieut. Peterson was on duty at Post 1. Dolton and Haywood were out after taps, and when they attempted to enter camp they were stopped by Peterson, and the scrimmage followed. The young men were put in the guardhouse for the night.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

In the near future we will give to our readers the first installment of a remarkable series of detective stories taken from the cases of the Pinkertons. These stories are not only founded on truth, but are true in every detail, and cover cases of historic interest in this country. There are six stories in the series as follows:

THE NORTHAMPTON BANK ROBBERY
THE SUSQUEHANNA EXPRESS ROBBERY
THE POLLOCK DIAMOND ROBBERY
THE ROCK ISLAND EXPRESS ROBBERY
THE DESTRUCTION OF THE RENOS
THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE BANK ROBBERY

Cleveland Moffett has given the touch of a master hand to the telling of these stories, but he has not attempted to make fiction of them.

The Stories are Attractively Illustrated

OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS—CLOSED SATURDAYS AT NOON

Reasons Why You Should Buy Furniture During July and August

First of all there is no furniture shop in America where better furniture can be bought than here.

There is no greater variety in any other establishment that we know of.

There is no superior collection of styles and designs—none more thoroly fresh and new.

Instead of being made for "sale" purposes, the furniture in the July Sale comes from the best and foremost factories of the country and is made for our regular stock upon which we depend for our year in and year out business and reputation.

Our regular pricings are notably low—lower in fact than are asked in other high class houses.

All these things being clear, the fact that practically every piece of furniture in the store is offered at reduced prices this month of July becomes an important one to all thoughtful, economical home-makers.

If furniture is needed and its purchase contemplated, it will unquestionably pay to buy it now while prices are cut 10 per cent. to 33⅓ per cent.

Sofa; mahogany frame; suitable for library; upholstered in English Morocco Leather; 6 feet long; a first-class article; regular price $156.00; July price $100.00.

Bedstead; full size; made of prima vera mahogany; plain design, inlaid; regular price $76.50; July price $25.00.

Small Table; fancy shape top; size 22x30; has one drawer with brass handles; made of prima vera mahogany; natural finish; inlaid; regular price $28.00; July price $14.00.

Mahogany Sofa; 6 ft. long; highly polished; upholstered in neat pattern of velour; regular price $89.00; July price $60.00.

O'Loughlin's hand is not so seriously injured but that he expects to catch for Clinton Avenue on Saturday. No bones were broken as at first supposed.

The local Y. M. C. A. team will play the Summit association nine at the latter place Saturday, it being one of the league contests. Plainfield is now in second position with five victories and two defeats.

With more practice Peacock would make a valuable twirler for the Y. M. C. A. team.

The Orange Y. M. C. A. team has taken a wonderful brace since its first appearance against the Plainfield boys.

Since he recovered from that slump on the first trip West Mathewson has been pitching great ball. He has pitched in ten winning games and three losing ones since June 1 and has shut out opponents four times in that period.

Twenty-two runs in two successive days were scored against the world's champions last week. The Phillies made eleven in a game, and the McGrawites made eleven more the next day.

Lots of folks seem bent on counting the Browns done for simply because they lost two straight to the Highlanders. That doesn't follow at all. Any other team would have lost those two the way the New Yorks hit the ball.

The New York Nationals are sticking up near the front tenaciously. If they are within as close striking distance by the first of September as they are now, they will have excellent chance for the pennant, for their closing weeks will be on home grounds.

According to a baseball official who knows, purchase prices for minor league players are running pretty stiff this season. The $11,000 paid by the New York Nationals for Pitcher Marquard is a sample. That amount was paid too. One American League club bid $8,500.

In a recent game here Jack Sheridan refused to stand for a quick return by an opposing pitcher. Conroy was at bat, and the ball came over the plate when Conroy was unprepared. Sheridan refused to call it anything, which is a good plan of procedure for strikes put over the plate when the batsman isn't looking.

Philadelphia had two successive days of cyclonic scoring and clouting last week. The Athletic-Detroit games of Friday and Saturday produced 39 runs and 53 hits. In the Friday game Ty Cobb made three runs, two singles, two doubles and a triple. Ty may admire to the full his own ability, but he's got a good deal of ability to admire.

July has been an active producer of extra inning games in the American League. On the 1st Cleveland and St. Louis played a twelve inning game, on the 5th they played an eleven inning game, on the 6th Washington and Chicago played a thirteen inning game, on the 9th the Athletics and Browns played a twelve inning game, on the 10th Washington and Chicago played a sixteen inning game and on the 11th the Athletics and White Sox battled for sixteen innings.

Double headers have been lost to date by big league teams as follows: National League—St. Louis to Chicago, New York to St. Louis, Cincinnati to New York, Boston to Pittsburg, Boston to New York, Brooklyn to New York, Cincinnati to Chicago, St. Louis to Pittsburg, Philadelphia to Boston, St. Louis to Philadelphia, and Pittsburg to New York. American League—St. Louis to Detroit, Boston to Washington, New York to Boston, Detroit to Cleveland, New York to Washington, New York to Detroit, Washington to Chicago, Cleveland to New York, New York to Cleveland, and Washington to St. Louis. Holiday games are not included. The New York Nationals, having won four double headers, lead in this respect.

GOLF.

Golfers the world over have received word of the proposed memorial to Tom Morris, who died at St. Andrews, Scotland, in May. The death of this veteran has removed from the world of sport an admirable figure, and it is not surprising that a memorial should be raised in St. Andrews by her golfers and citizens.

A committee has been formed, consisting of the members of the committee of management of the Royal and Ancient Club, the members of the green committee of the St. Andrews links, the provost of St. Andrews and the captains of St. Andrews, Thistle, University and New Club, for the purpose of collecting subscriptions and of deciding after the subscriptions have been received on the form of the memorial.

In a circular letter the committee says that it realizes with pleasure that it is its privilege to invite all golfers and all golfing societies to join in this undertaking. Already a movement has been started in New York, and word has been received that all contributions sent to Charles Kirchner, No. 126 Nassau street, New York city, will be forwarded to the other side in one amount, as coming from American golfers.

Dates have been announced for the amateur championship tournament of the White Mountains, to be held at the Waumbek Golf Club, Jefferson, N. H., August 27, 28 and 29. There will be a qualifying round on the first day, and contestants will be classified into three sixteens for match play on the following days. On the last day there will be a 36-hole medal play handicap.

Some of the most prominent professional and amateur golfers have signified their intention of competing on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week in an invitation tournament at the Maplewood Golf Club, Maplewood, N. H. A professional and amateur foursome is also on the schedule.

Among the "pros" to take part are Alec. Ross, the national open champion; Alec Smith, of Nassau, former title holder; George Law, of Baltusrol, the Metropolitan open champion; Dave Hunter, Essex County Country Club; Gilbert Nichols, Alec Campbell, Tom McNamara, David Brown, Orrin Terry, Donald Ross and Jack Jolly.

In this tournament, a year ago, Nichols won the professional event, and incidentally established a competitive record of 69. Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the national champion, carried off chief honors among the amateurs. The most prominent amateur to enter thus far for this week's tournament is J. G. Anderson, former Massachusetts title holder.

The annual fixture for the Taconic cup, over the links of the Ekwanok Country Club, July 23, 24 and 25, conflicts with the Maplewood tournament. Competition for the First President's cup at Ekwanok, will take place August 12-15, while the Equinox and the Orvis cups will be played for September 10-12.

CITY WINS LIGHTING FIGHT.

Morristown Private Plant Compels Capitulation of P. S. C.

When the stockholders of the Public Service Corporation meet in Newark tomorrow, its 900 year lease of the electric lighting plant and franchises in Morristown will be turned over to the Morris & Somerset Electric Company, and thus will end a bitter fight lasting more than a year between the citizens of the town and the Public Service people.

Complaint was made that the company charged a high rate for light and gave poor service. At times the town was in utter darkness because of the neglect of the company. Protest after protest was made without result, and finally mass meetings were held at which the company was roundly denounced.

Seeing an opportunity for a rival company, a number of local and Somerset county capitalists formed the Morris & Somerset Electric Company. Property was purchased on Abbott avenue, and an electric light station erected. The new company had no trouble in getting in, and although the Public Service declared it would stay in Morristown and fight, it has changed its plans and agreed to stay out of Morristown, Mendham, Hanover, Chatham and Bernard townships.

MAN HUNT NEAR PATERSON.

Posse After Man Who Lured Girl Away and Attacked Her.

The Paterson police are hunting for a man who lured sixteen-year-old Lillian Slechner, of Maryland avenue, Paterson, into the woods near Little Falls under the pretense that he was taking her to his home to engage her as a nurse girl.

He appeared in answer to an advertisement inserted by the girl's parents in a local newspaper.

"My wife is an invalid," said he, "and I want a nurse girl to take care of a two-year-old boy."

He seemed pleased with Lillian and persuaded the mother to let the girl accompany him, saying that he wanted his wife to see her, and that she need not begin work until Monday. He told Mrs. Slechner that his home was on the Notch Road.

Soon after the man had left with the girl her mother became suspicious and started out along the Notch Road, but could find no trace of the stranger or his home. Later the girl's parents notified the police.

Last night the girl returned home weeping. She said the stranger took her in a trolley car to Little Falls. He led her into the woods and then abandoned her.

BEATEN, STABBED, ROBBED.

Summit Hostler, Who Meant to Sail for Europe Saturday, Tells of Rough Usage.

Summit, July 21.—Owen Fox, a hostler, employed in a local livery stable, is a patient in Overlook Hospital as the result of having been set upon and badly beaten in New York Saturday. Fox had procured passage for Ireland and went to New York Saturday, expecting to sail about noon. Having some time on his hands Fox says he went about making some purchases and visited several saloons.

In one of the saloons, Fox says, he was set upon and beaten, and when he revived, late Saturday, he found himself in a hospital in New York with seventeen stitches in a stab wound he had received.

About $800 had been taken from Fox, but a roll of over $800 in cash, which he had tied about his body, was overlooked by his assailants.

Fox came to Summit Saturday night and was taken to Overlook Hospital.

—J. F. Garretson, of West Fourth street, expects to return on August 1 to his position as baggagemaster at the North Avenue station.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The New Jersey Legislature will see no more of Assemblyman Firth, of Warren county. The irrepressible Joe considers that two terms in the lower house is sufficient honor for him, and so he will step aside to allow the nomination to go to some other Democrat. However, he expects to run again this fall for re-election as mayor of Phillipsburg. Sizing up his political prospects, the assemblyman-mayor says: "Win? Why, of course, I'll win; they can't beat me."

The Democratic State Committee is in session today at Chairman Robert Hudspeth's office in Jersey City. The principal work of the meeting is the selection of permanent headquarters. The Auxiliary Democratic State Committee also meets today.

Praise for the Essex Troop.

Col. J. L. Chamberlain, inspector-general's department, U. S. A., in his report to Captain A. J. Bowley, U. S. Field Artillery, aide-de-camp to Major-General Grant, who was at the camp of instruction at Pine Plains, New York, states that in discipline, military courtesy and soldierly bearing the Essex Troop acquitted itself in a very creditable manner, and in the performance of duty, zeal and intelligence they were conspicuous.

CO. K ON THE RIFLE RANGE

Plainfield's Soldier Boys at Sea Girt Are Pleased With the Rations.

TRANCHAND FEEDS 'EM ALL.

State Camp, Sea Girt,, July 20.

The boys of Co. K put in their first day of hard work yesterday after a quiet, restful Sunday and they are following the routine, almost as rigorous as that of the 'regulars.' One thing that has helped the boys to forget home and mother and to banish lonesome feelings, is the excellent food being served. The breakfasts consists of potatoes, beeksteak, coffee, bread and butter, while for dinner, the menu comprises corned beef and cabbage, boiled potatoes, bread, butter and coffee. The evening meal consists of pork and beans, cornstarch pudding, bread, butter and coffee.

The boys have their appetites with them and there is nothing left worth speaking of after each meal, and besides the bracing sea air is refreshing, especially during the long, hard drills, and a majority always find time to take a good dip in the ocean after their arduous duties.

Lieut. A. I. Littell has rigged up an elegant shower bath at the head of the company street. This is put to good use in initiating the "Rookies," as well as serving its purpose. Walter M. Sampson, a former corporal, was a visitor in camp yesterday and spent the night in company quarters. He was invited by Private Holmes to visit 'our pump,' which he did and with little ceremony the former corporal was properly initiated.

The entire company has been ordered to appear on the rifle range today and Lieut. Littell expects Co. K to make its usual good showing.

Sergeant Tranchand is making himself popular through his libarality to the privates. He is not at all stingy with the contents of the 'blue box.' Every private who stops at the sergeant's tent gets a bottle of ice cold soda or a lemon stick.

Several women friends from South Plainfield are expected to visit Corporal Manning on Thursday, and the members of the company are looking forward to some fun. Manning will entertain his company by showing them the rifle range and camp, and afterward he will give a 'Dutch dinner.'

Private "Jess" Dayton has been dubbed the 'biggest kicker' in camp and his companions declare that unless he changes his tactics soon they will relieve him of his auburn-colored moustache, an adornment he prizes above being a soldier man. Private Palmer has been selected as orderly to the colonel for the week, and of course, he feels his position keenly. His actions are a little too much for the rest of the boys and if they continue he may be treated to a ducking in the ocean, clothes and all.

OLD GUARD.

forty-five saloons, but the chief thought the town could get along with fewer—about twenty, he said. Alexander S. Green, chief of police of Irvington, said the law was strictly enforced, but admitted that "near beer" was sold at an amusement park in his town. Asked what "near beer" was, he said it tasted like one-third real beer and two-thirds water.

Early in the day a letter from Prosecutor Wilbur Mott, who is on vacation, was read. In this letter Mr. Mott recommended that the county officers, as well as the local police, be held responsible for the enforcement of the excise law. He said the Bishops' law had been observed rigidly since its passage, but that there had been some isolated violations. He said there might be a great many more arrests for violations, except for the fact that there was a Sheriff in office who was not in sympathy with the law.

Other witnesses were Chief of Police Washer, of Orange; Cornelius G. Kidder, of the Orange Excise Board, and Joseph McDonough, town clerk of West Orange.

Enlarged Field at Peddie Institute.

Former graduates of Peddie Institute, who reside here, will be interested in the announcement that a two-acre extension to the athletic field at Hightstown has been purchased. The institute will be reopened in the fall as a school for boys, with Edgar O. Silver, of East Orange, as president. Heretofore, the institute has been co-educational. The recently acquired land will provide space for two football gridirons and three baseball diamonds. The running track is also to be lengthened to a full quarter of a mile.

OWL CLUB COTTAGER GETS LOST AT HOPATCONG

Reports from Lake Hopatcong indicate that the members of the Owl Club are now comfortably settled in Rose Villa at Nolan's Point and that the pretty cottage is already a mecca for visitors. The young men have it decorated with suitable insignia befitting their title and it is one of the most atractive places along the water front.

The club had a big scare yesterday by the mysterious disappearance of "Reverend" George Smith, of Grandview avenue, who is one of the party. He started from Nolan's Point Sunday night to escort a young lady to her home, supposedly only a short distance away, but failed to return. When he was still missing at breakfast time yesterday morning, the members formed themselves into searching parties and went all about the lake but returned without getting a trace of him. On looking in the dining room, they discovered a pile of dishes that had seen service and a peep into the ice box revealed a Mother Hubbard state of affairs. This aroused their suspicions and going further they found that the "Reverend" had returned during their absence, eaten everything in the larder and then gone to bed. He explained when roused up that he had gotten lost after seeing the young woman home and had wandered about all night. It was decided that in the future, Chief Cook George Schlick and Bottle Washer George Mead should accompany him on all junkets as a bodyguard.

The first day's dinner at the cottage was composed principally of sh, caught by the expert anglers, Jacob Schlick and George Mead. One of the finny members landed by them was a perch, said to be the largest taken from the lake this year.

Saved Boy's Life at 'Patcong.

Rowing out to the rescue of a small boy who became exhausted while trying to swim across Great Cove at Lake Hopatcong yesterday afternoon, Clarence E. Teel, of North avenue, who is sojourning at the lake, dragged the boy into his boat after the swimmer had sunk twice beneath the surface The boy had crossed the cove a short time previous, but thought he could swim the distance without the corks. Teel saw him sink exhausted and calling to a by-stander, rowed out just in time to save him.

Great Words of Americans.

The Wednesday evening devotional topics for a month at the First Baptist church will be as follows: July 22, "I propose to fight it out along this line if it takes all summer," U. S. Grant; July 29, "God must have loved the common people, he made so many of them," Abraham Lincoln; August 5, "We have met the enemy and they are ours," Oliver H. Perry; August 12, "I would rather be right than President," Henry Clay. The services will be under the auspices of the Young People's Society, directed by Dr. Norman H. Probasco.

Belleville Girl Missing.

Ada Castle, sixteen years old, who lives with her uncle, Cornelius Shea, at No. 92 William street, Belleville, has been missing from her home for two days, and her relatives are much alarmed. The girl went out for a trolley ride, and no one has seen her since she went away.

Woman Tries Suicide.

Mrs. Annie Stiles, 24 years old, of 656 Newark street, Hoboken, tried to kill herself this morning by drinking iodine at the home of her friend, Mrs. Mack, 33 Morris street, Jersey City. She was taken to the City Hospital. Her condition is critical.

FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A delightful perfume may be made by mixing together two drops of ambergris and one ounce of spirits of wine.

When the fingers are stained from peeling fruits dip them in strong tea, rub them with a nail brush, then wash in warm water.

To soften and perfume the bathing water mix together four ounces of alcohol, one half-ounce of ammonia and one drachm of oil of lavender. A few drops of this mixture will be sufficient for a bowl of water.

A good formula for skin food: Two ounces of rosewater, two ounces of almond oil, one-half ounce of white wax, one-half ounce of spermaceti.

Her Limitations.

"These pianos look too cheap," said the young woman with the picture hat, her eyebrows contracting slightly. "Show me some of the best you've got."

"Yes, ma'am," said the salesman. "May I ask how high you care to go?"

"Me? Oh, I only go to G, but I want one with all the octaves, just the same."—Chicago Tribune.

The Difference.

What is the difference between (1) a gardener, (2) a billiard player, (3) a gentleman, and (4) a sexton?

Answer—The first minds his peas; the second minds his cues; the third minds his p's and q's; and the fourth minds his keys and pews.—The Catholic Fortnightly Review.

An Authority.

Bibbs—I understand that you lost money on that chicken raising experience of yours?

Boggs—Yes, I did; but I expect to get it all back again. I'm writing a book on how to raise chickens.—Herald and Presbyter.

SAFE ICE CREAM

WITHOUT CHURNING

Think of simply placing the ingredients in a freezer and later finding the contents frozen into the most delicious CREAMS OR ICES. All without labor. All without the usual danger of ptomaine poisoning. Our method of aerating the cream in this wonderful freezer does it.

BUY THE SANITARY CRYSTAL GLASS ICE CREAM FREEZER 1.25

Pour the cream into the glass freezer. Glass, instead of tin, prevents any poisonous chemical action. Pack in crushed ice and salt. Set aside until frozen. That is easier than grinding for even ten minutes. Lift jar from ice pack. Under a faucet rinse off salty water. Push the rod against false bottom. Slice. If you do not wish to use all put covered freezer back on ice. The cream may be kept a week by renewing ice pack.

WAS GLAD TO GET AWAY.

Beckenstein Preferred the Patrol Wagon to Staying at Home With Warring Wife.

Abram Beckenstein, a tailor living on Liberty street, was arrested on complaint of his wife by Patrolman Vanderweg last night. The woman, who is twice the size of her husband, asserted that he had been beating her and that she had been subjected to continual abuse. At a hearing in the city court, this morning, Beckenstein produced witnesses to show that it was the wife who was at fault in the matter as she was insanely jealous of him and kicked up a row at the least provocation. Judge Runyon also noted the comparison in sizes and decided the defendant would have a hard time of it in beating his better half. Sentence was suspended.

When Beckenstein was taken into custody, the patrol wagon was backed up to his door to take him to headquarters. He climbed into the vehicle with an apparent air of relief and noting Patrolman McDonald on a seat, he exclaimed with a wave of his hand in wife's direction:

"By golly, old man, I'm glad to get away from here;" and then he settled back to enjoy his ride.

FIRST CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION TO-DAY.

The first civil service examination under the New Jersey civil service law was held yesterday in the Assembly chambers, State house, in Trenton, when Chief Examiner Frank B. Jess examined five applicants for the place of clerk to the Civil Service Commission. Results of the examination will be made known later.

While an examination for the clerk to the commission was not necessary under the law, the commissioners determined that it would be well to have the first application of the act affect the body which is to administer the law.

The salary of the clerk will be $900 a year. The appointment could have been made now without application of the civil service examination, as the law does not become operative until October.

Preparing for Excise Commission.

Preparing for the opening session of the State Excise Commission at Elizabeth, tomorrow, Chief of Police Tenney, of that city, accompanied by Chief of Police Kiely, of this city, was busy yesterday serving subpoenas on persons whose presence will be required when the commission convenes. It was reported at the county seat yesterday that among those to be called will be General D. F. Collins; also several ministers, the city attorney and other officials of Elizabeth. As far as outward appearances are concerned there is no anxiety being shown as to the outcome of the investigation. It is said that Elizabeth was "dry" on Sunday, and has been for some time. Just what the investigation will develop those interested in the matter refuse to discuss.

Louis Mulford Undergoes Operation.

Louis Mulford, who, engaged in a playful scrap with Clarence Drake, the agent at the Grant Avenue station, some time ago, during which he was shot in the side by the latter, was hurried to the hospital, this morning suffering from a serious attack of appendicitis, which necessitated an immediate operation. The attack had no bearing on the other trouble, although he still carries the bullet which entered his side. At the time the physicians located the piece of lead, but because it was found in a vital spot decided not to remove it as long as it was not giving the young man any trouble.

Fight on Bayonne Recordership.

The Sun Dodgers, composed of Bayonne Republicans, have decided to demand that a straight out-and-out Republican be nominated by the Republican party for recorder. The members who voted for the resolution are opposed to the indorsement of Recorder Hyman Lazarus, who has always been a Democrat, but was indorsed three years ago by the Republicans after having been nominated by the Democrats. Councilman Aaron Melnker, ex-Judge Horace Roberson and Max L. Solinsky are being boomed for the nomination. Hugh H. Mara, editor of "The Bayonne Herald," will oppose Lazarus for the Democratic nomination.

SWELLS CLEVELAND FUND

E. T. Wilson Commends the Enterprise of The Daily Press.

PLAINFIELD HAS GIVEN $311.

Before End of Week, It Is Likely That Local Fund Will Reach $400—State Association Is Active.

More money was received today for the Grover Cleveland monument fund, E. T. Wilson having sent his check for $10 to The Daily Press for the purpose. In following the patriotic action of others who have given loyal support to the worthy cause, Mr. Wilson writes to this paper:

"We think you are to be commended for the effort you are making to honor the name of the late President Cleveland."

Adding Mr. Wilson's subscription to the amount previously acknowledged, Plainfielders have already contributed through this paper $311.85. Before the end of the week, it is not unlikely that the total fund here will reach at least $400.

There are many patriotic Plainfielders who have not subscribed as yet to this worthy cause, which is absolutely devoid of any political significance but it is fair to assume that they will be heard from before long. Governor Fort, Senators Kean and Briggs and several hundred other representative men of New Jersey form the committee in charge of the undertaking and funds are being gathered in every town in the State. Mr. Cleveland was the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States and it is proposed to erect a monument to his memory in his native State.

The first meeting of the Cleveland Memorial Committee appointed by Mayor McBride, of Passaic, will be held in that city July 23 at 10:30. The duties of the Passaic members will be to collect contributions for the erection of a memorial at Princeton to the late ex-President Grover Cleveland. The movement is fostered by the Cleveland Memorial Association.

The committee appointed by Mayor McBride consists of fourteen men from his city; three from Passaic and one from the townships, as follows: Paterson—George Arnold, Nathan Barnest, Henry F. Bell, Christian Braun, Joseph W. Congdon, Michael Dunn, Eugene Emley, John W. Griggs, John Hinchliffe, William Hughes, William I. Lewis, Christopher Kelley, William C. Martin and Frank Van Cleve. Passaic—Robert G. Bremner, John O'Leary and Bird W. Spencer. Townships—William B. Gourley.

Former United States Senator John F. Dryden is president of the Cleveland Memorial Association and the other officers are former United States Senator John Smith, Jr., vice president; Daniel S. Voorhees, treasurer; and Henry D. Winton, secretary. The executive committee is composed of Richard V. Lindabury, Governor John Franklin Fort, former Governor Franklin Murphy, Peter Campbell, George W. Fortemeyer and George H. Hartford.

H. D. Winton, of Hackensack, secretary of the Cleveland Memorial Association, announced yesterday that the following sub-committees had been appointed:

Asbury Park—J. Lyle Kinmouth, Frank Appleby.

Ocean Grove—Dr. A. E. Ballard, General John C. Patterson.

Trenton—Frank S. Katzenbach, Bayard Stockton.

Salem—Charles Mecum.

Lakewood—Captain A. M. Bradshaw, Senator Harrison.

Toms River—George H. Holman.

Rahway—H. B. Rollinson, Fred B. Hyer.

Paterson—Mayor McBride, General J. Congdon.

Morristown—D. S. Voorhees, R. B. Foote.

Bender Brothers Had a Bout.

Moses and Aaron Bender, brothers, were arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Payne with fighting at Front and Somerset streets, last night. They acknowledged they had been "caught with the goods" and were fined $5 each. The scrap was brought about by remarks the wives of the brothers had been making about each other.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Bottlers' wagons from Camden, it is said, continue to irrigate the arid boat-house district of Gloucester, despite the new law.

While chasing some boys whom he caught stealing produce from farmers' wagons, Chief of Police Goan, of Gloucester, fell and was severely injured.

During a fight at Moorestown late Saturday night Joseph Callahan, twenty-four years old, of 902 Penn street, Camden, had his jaw broken and was attended at Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Six-year-old Katie Clusa, of 56 Barclay street, Paterson, fell down stairs in her home yesterday and sustained contusions to her back. She was attended by the physicians at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The wife of Walter Foulk, city official and prominent contractor of Vineland, died yesterday from a fractured skull received by being thrown from her carriage while showing Philadelphia friends about Vineland on June 7.

The corner-stone of the $15,000 convent of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Seventh and Federal streets, Camden, was laid Sunday by Rev. John A. Brady, of South Amboy, a personal friend of Dean B. J. Mulligan.

A three-months-old baby, well dressed, was found lying in bushes near Washington Park Saturday night and was turned over to the matron of the park. The child is pretty and bright, and several people are ready to adopt it.

Harry Moyer, an Atlantic City carpenter, who had been long out of work, has been missing since last Monday, when he is supposed to have started for Ocean City to secure work, and his young wife, who is left with two small children, fears that he may have met with foul play.

Barnard Keys, 2001 Arlington street, Camden, was shot in the chin by his son yesterday in defense of his mother. The lad used a blank cartridge and Keys' face was burned by the powder. It is alleged by the police that Keys, while intoxicated, attacked his wife. Young Keys was locked up and the injured man was taken to the Cooper Hospital.

Captain "Japh" Townsend, of Somers Point, while on the Fishing Banks, a few miles out from Ocean City, says he saw a launch, containing a man, sink in the ocean, about fifty yards from Townsend's boat. Townsend declares that as quickly as possible, he went to the scene of the accident, but could find no trace of either man or boat. All he could discover was a seven-foot car.

Frank Fetters, of Whitings, swallowed laudanum in mistake for other medicine and was fast falling to sleep when his condition was discovered by his wife, who kept him alive by walking him until she was too weak to keep up that exercise. She then tied one of his legs to a rope and attaching it to a horse dragged him about until the effect of the drug wore off. Fetters was somewhat bruised by his experience.

George N. Van Doren, of 535 Mediterranean avenue, Atlantic City, has just been made defendant in a suit for divorce brought by his wife, Georgiana Van Doren, on the ground of desertion. The wife also wants alimony, saying that she does not have the means to support herself. Van Doren was formerly proprietor of the Tremont House at Trenton. He fell out with the licensing authorities, and when he built a hotel, opposite the Tremont House, the new house could not get a license. Since that time he has been tending bar in Atlantic City.

Trolley cars with the old-fashioned side seats, which the upper end of the State has discarded, have been put on the Pensauken branch of the Public Service Corporation, and all of the modern cars have been withdrawn. These cars have wooden backs to the seats, making them doubly uncomfortable to passengers taking the five-mile ride from Camden. Heretofore it has been the policy of the company to put cars of this character on the short and unimportant runs. A petition signed by 500 persons will be sent direct to the home office of the company, at Newark, asking for better cars.

As the Gloucester ferryboat Peerless was leaving the dock at Gloucester City Saturday night on her midnight trip, a fight started among her passengers. The captain signaled the engineers to reverse the engine and bring the boat back to Gloucester. After this was done the police were summoned. Four men and two women were placed under arrest. The women were later released. The men gave their names as Bernard Schultze, Joseph Schultze, Frederick Able and Charles Drerewosk, all of Philadelphia. One of the men was suffering from several stab wounds in the head which had been inflicted by a pocket knife.

LARGER ATHLETIC FIELD.

Two-Acre Extension to Be Made to the Grounds at Peddie Institute.

Hightstown, July 21.—Principal R. W. Swetland, of Peddie Institute, has just completed negotiations with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey G. Rue, of this place, for a two-acre extension to the Peddie athletic field. The extension adjoins the present field on the south, and forms a strip of 200 feet wide the whole length of the field.

The present grandstand will be moved and the new field graded to conform to the grade of the old one. This will give ample space for two gridirons in the football season and for two or three diamonds for baseball. The running track will also be enlarged to a full quarter of a mile. During the past four years, under the coaching of Frank H. Gorton, now coach at Rutgers College, and the famous old basketball star, John D. Plant, of Bristol and North Philadelphia fame, the Peddie athletic teams have made an enviable record. Coach Plant and Captain B. Russell Murphy, of Millville, are expecting a strong team on the gridiron this fall.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 1st, 1907, and approved by the Mayor July 1st, 1907.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 3 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 1st, 1907, and approved by the Mayor July 1st, 1907, be amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessmen's for benefits, the Common Council of the city do hereby, pursuant to the authority of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled 'An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same,' approved June 13, 1898, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of forty coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Forty Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall be dated September 1st, 1907, shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable as follows, that is to say, on the first day of September of each of the years 1910 and 1911 four bonds of $1,000 each, and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1912 to 1918, both inclusive, two bonds of $1,000 each, and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1919 to 1924, both inclusive, three bonds of $1,000 each, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the city, attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds, and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds."

Adopted by the Common Council July 13, 1908; approved by the Mayor July 13, 1908.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Congressman William Hughes, of the Sixth New Jersey district, expects to be re-elected this fall to a third term in the house. His friends declare that there isn't a Republican in Passaic, Bergen or Sussex, forming the Sixth district, who can poll sufficient votes to relegate Congressman Hughes to private life.

Former Governor Werts, the last Democrat to occupy the office of chief executive of New Jersey, was one of the distinguished men who were entertained by Governor Fort down at Sea Girt last Thursday. The former governor has grown to look quite venerable during the last few years, his hair and moustache being snow white. While a guest of the present Governor, the former governor was asked how he sized up the political situation in New Jersey this year. "Oh, pshaw, I don't know much about these things nowadays," he replied. "I believe, however, that Bryan will get the united and harmonious support of his party in this state this campaign."

As a result of the direct primary law enacted by the lact legislature, there will be only two kinds of political conventions held in New Jersey this fall—the state convention to nominate candidates for membership in the electoral college and the district conventions to nominate candidates for election as representatives in the lower house of congress. Primmary day this year will be September 22, at which time delegates will be chosen to sit in these conventions. Since the adoption of the primary law in this state, it has been customary to hold the various conventions within a few days after the election of delegates, and this rule will doubtless be followed this year. The only business to come before the state conventions will be the selection of electors—two from the state-at-large and one each from the 10 congressional districts. Unless precedent is upset, the state conventions will be tame affairs. The honor of serving as a presidential elector is a distinguished one, but it has never been sought for at the cost of a political contest. So far as the Democratic convention is concerned, the presidential electoral honors will probably be apportioned among simon-pure Bryanites.

On next Friday afternoon the Regulars of Essex county will hold a conference and will probably agree on a list of candidates to be supported at the primaries. These names will beb presented for approval to the county committee, which meets on Friday night, and the campaign in Essex will be officially under way.

ELIZABETH NOT WHOLLY DRY.

"Bishops' Law," However, Was Much Better Observed Sunday Than Usual.

While it was not a dry Sunday in Elizabeth day before yesterday the law was much more strictly observed than it has been for the past six weeks and to no saloon could admission be gained unless the applicant was known to the proprietor.

The cause for this renewal of vigilance was the knowledge that the State excise probers will invade Elizabeth tomorrow for a session of one day. Anyhow, their coming visit has had the effect of scaring the Excise Board and the saloon-keepers, who feel anxious as to what the outcome will be.

The inquisitors have subpoenaed Mayor Ryan, Chief of Police Tenney, Police Captains Peters and O'Leary, the excise commissioners, the Police Committee of the Board of Aldermen, Charles P. Riess, foreman of the last grand jury; J. W. Whelan, foreman of the previous grand jury, together with a number of other prominent citizens, to testify as to the manner in which the excise law is being enforced in Elizabeth.

The police authorities say in their own defense that they are doing all the law permits them to do to have the excise statute observed. They have reported, they claim, violations of the screen clause of the "bishops' law" only to find that a jury afterwards, either acquitted the offenders or else disagreed as to a conviction, while in cases where the police caught saloon-keepers doing business on Sunday in only a couple of instances, did the Excise Board revoke the offenders' licenses.

In most of the cases the board, by a majority vote, refused to convict the law-breakers, although the police claim the evidence they presented was conclusive as to his guilt. As the session to be held by the excise probers will be open to the public, it is likely there will be a very large attendance at the hearing.

Dwelling Burned at Roselle.

The house owned by Joseph Nestler, on Ninth avenue, Roselle, which was occupied by an Italian family, was destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. During the fire one of the women fainted. Dr. Strickland attended her. Her husband was prevented by onlookers from entering the burning house to save his goods. The origin of the fire is not known. The house adjoining, owned by John Smith, was badly scorched.

Measuring a Story.

"Sam," asked the first messenger boy, "got any novels to swop?"

"I got 'Big Foot Bill's Revenge,'" replied the other.

"Is it a long story?"

"No. You can finish it easy in two messages."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

AUTHOR OF THE MAN ON THE BOX ETC.

"Mr. Comstalk, you will not mar the exquisite humor of our adventure by causing me annoyance. I am sure that some day we shall be very good friends. But one does not talk of love on eight hours' acquaintance. Besides, you would be taking advantage of my helplessness; for I really depend upon you to see me safe back to New York. It is only the romance, the adventure; and such moonlight nights often superinduce sentimentality. What do you know of me? Nothing. What do I know of you? Nothing, save that there is a kindred spirit which is always likely to lead us into trouble. Down in your heart you know you are only temporarily affected by moonshine. Come, make me a toast!"—lifting her cup.

"You are right," said I. "I am a gentleman. But it was only consistent that, having been the fool, I should now play the ass. Here's!"—and I held up my cup.

But neither of us drank; there wasn't time.

For the door opened quietly, and in walked the two men we had seen upon entering the Inn. One of them gently closed the door and locked it. One was in soiled every-day clothes, the other in immaculate evening dress. The latter doffed his opera hat with the most engaging smile imaginable. The girl and I looked up at him in blank bewilderment, and set our cups down so mechanically that the warm amber liquid spattered on the tablecloth.

"This Is Romance," Said I.

Galloping Dick and the affable inspector of the cellars stood before us!

CHAPTER VIII.

"The unexpected always happens," began the pseudo-detective, closing his hat, drawing off his gloves and stuffing them into a pocket. "As a friend of mine used to say, it is the unexpected that always surprises us. We never expected to see these charming masquesaders again, did we, William?"

"No, sir," said William, grinning affably, "we didn't. The gentleman was very nice and obliging to me, sir, when I was in the cellars."

"So I understand. Now," continued the late Mr. Haggerty, with the deadly affability of a Macaire, "I beg of you, Mr. Comstalk, I beg of you not to move or to become unduly excited. Physicians tell us that excitement wastes the red corpuscles, that is to say, the life of the blood."

"Your blood, sir, must be very thin," I returned coolly. But I cursed him soundly in my mind. William's bulging side-pocket convinced me that any undue excitement on my part would be exceedingly dangerous.

"William, you can always tell a gentleman," said the chief rogue admiringly. "A gentleman always recognizes his opportunities, and never loses his sense of the balance of things."

"And he is usually witty, too, sir," William assented.

"What do you want?" I demanded savagely.

"For one thing, I should like to question the propriety of a gentleman's sitting down to dine with a lady without having washed his face. The coal-dust does not add to your manly beauty. You haven't a cake of soap about you, William, have you?"

"No sir." William's face expressed indescribable enjoyment of the scene.

The girl's mouth stiffened. She was struggling to repress the almost irresistible smile that tickled her lips.

"In times like these," said I, determined not to be outdone, "we are often thoughtless in regard to our personal appearances. I apologize to the lady."

"Fine, fine! I sincerely admire you, Mr. Comstalk. You have the true spirit of adventure. Hasn't he, William?"

"He certainly has, sir."

"Comes to a private ball without an invitation, and has a merry time of it indeed. To have the perfect sense of humor—that is what makes the world go round."

"Aren't you taking extra risk in offering me these pleasantries?" I asked.

The Master Rogue Lighted a Cigarette.

"Risks? In what manner?"

"The man you so cleverly impersonated is at the club." I do not know what prompted me to put him on his guard.

The rogue laughed lightly. "I know Mr. Haggerty's habits. He is hustling back to New York as fast as he can. He passed here ten minutes ago in the patrol, lickety-clip! He wishes to warn all pawnbrokers and jewelers to be on the lookout for me to-morrow. Ten thousand in a night!"—jovially.

"A very tidy sum, sir," said William.

"A fourth of which goes to you, my good and faithful friend."

"Thank you, sir," replied William.

Two cooler rogues I never wish to meet!

"But wouldn't it be well, sir, to hasten?" asked William.

"We have plenty of time now, my son."

"You have not entered this room," said the girl, her terror slipping from her, "simply to offer these banalities. What do you wish?"

"What perspicacity, Wiliam!" cried the rogue, taking out a cigarette case.

"I don't know what that word means, sir, but as you do, it seems to fit the occasion proper enough."

"It means, William, that this charming young lady scents our visit from afar."

"I had a suspicion, sir, that it might mean that." William leaned against the wall, his beady eyes twinkling merrily.

The master rogue lighted a cigarette at one of the candles.

"Pardon me," he said, "but will you join me?"—proffering the handsome gold case.

I took a cigarette and fired it. (I really wanted it.) I would show up well before this girl if I died for it. I blew a cloud of smoke at the candle-flame. There was a sparkle of admiration in the girl's eyes.

"Mr. Comstalk, my respect for you increases each moment." The rogue sat down.

"And to whom might this handsome case belong?" I asked, examining it closely.

"Oh, that has always been mine. There was a time,"—blowing rings at the candelabrum,—"when I was respected like yourself, rich, sought after. A woman and a trusted friend: how these often tumble down our beautiful edifices! Yes, I am a scamp, a thief, a rogue; but not because I need the money. No,"—with retrospective eyes—"I need excitement, tremendous and continuous,—excitement to keep my vigilance and invention active day and night, excitement to obliterate memory.

"But we can't do it, my friend, we can't do it. Memory is always with us. She is an impartial Nemesis; she dogs the steps of the righteous and the unrighteous. To obliterate memory, that is it! And where might I find this obliteration, save in this life? Drugs? Pah! Oh, I have given Haggerty a royal chase. It has been meat and drink to me to fool the cleverest policeman in New York. Till yesterday my face, as a criminal, was unknown to any man or woman, save William here, who was my valet in the old days. I have gone to my clubs, dined, played billiards; a fine comedy, a fine comedy! To-morrow William and I sail for Europe. Miss Hawthorne, you wear one of the most exquisite rubies I have ever seen. Permit me to examine it."

The girl tore the ring from her finger and flung it on the table. I made a move as though to push back my chair.

"I wouldn't do it, sir," warned William quietly.

My muscles relaxed.

"Do not commit any rash action, Mr. Comstalk," said the girl, smiling bravely into my eyes. "The gentleman would not appreciate it."

The master rogue picked up the ring and rolled it lovingly about his palms.

"Beautiful, beautiful!" he murmured. "Finest pigeon-blood, too. It is easy worth a thousand. Shall I give you my note of exchange for it?"—humorously. The girl scorned to reply. He took out a little chamois bag and emptied its contents on the table How they sparkled, scintillated, glowed; thousands in the whitest of stones! How he ever had got his fingers on them is something I shall never learn. "Aren't they just beautiful?" he asked naively. "Can you blame me for coveting them?" He set the ruby on top of the glittering heap. It lay there like a drop of blood. Presently he caught it up and—presented it to the girl, who eyed him in astonishment. "I only wanted to look at it," he said courteously. "I like your grit as much as I admire your beauty. Keep the ring."

She slipped it mechanically over her finger.

"But you, my dear Mr. Comstalk!" he cried, turning his shining eyes upon me, while his fingers deftly replaced the gems in the bag.

"I have no jewelry," I replied, tossing aside the cigarette.

"But you have something infinitely better. I am rather observant. In Friard's curio-shop you carelessly exhibited a wallet that was simply choking to death with long yellow-boys. You have it still. Will you do me the honor?"—stretching out his slim white hand.

I looked at William; he nodded. There wasn't the slightest chance for me to argue. So I drew out my wallet. I extracted the gold-bills and made a neat little packet of them. It hurt, hurt like the deuce, to part with them. But—!

"Game, William, isn't he? Most men would have flung the wallet at my head."

"Oh, he is game, sir; never you doubt it, sir," said the amiable William.

"I have some silver in change," I suggested with some bitterness.

"Far be it that I should touch silver," he said generously, did this rogue. "Besides, you will need some thing to pay for this little supper and the fare back to New York." My bills disappeared into his pocket. "You will observe that I trust you implicitly. I haven't even counted the money."

William sniggered.

"And is there anything further?" I inquired. The comedy was beginning to weary me, it was so one-sided.

"I am in no particular hurry," the rogue answered, his sardonis smile returning. "It is so long since I have chatted with people of my kind."

I scowled.

"Pardon me, I meant from a social point of view only. I admit we would not be equals in the eye of the Presbyter."

And then followed a scene that reminds me to this day of some broken, fantastic dream, a fragment from some bewildering nightmare.

CHAPTER IX.

For suddenly I saw his eyes widen and flash with anger and apprehension. Quick as a passing sun-shadow, his hand swept the candelabrum from the table. He made a swift backward spring toward the door, but he was a little too late. The darkness he had created was not intense enough, for there was still the ruddy glow from the logs; and the bosom of his dress-shirt made a fine target. Besides, the eyes that had peered into the window were accustomed to the night.

Blang! The glass of the window shivered and jingled to the floor, and a sharp report followed. The rogue cried out in fierce anguish, and reeled against the wall. William whipped out his revolver, but, even from his favorable angle, he was not quick enough. The hand that had directed the first bullet was ready to direct the second.

All this took place within the count of ten. The girl and I sat stiffly in our chairs, as if petrified, it was all so swiftly accomplished.

"Drop it!" said a cold, authoritative voice, and I saw the vague outlines of Haggerty's face beyond the broken window-pane.

William knew better than to hesitate. His revolver struck the floor dully, and a curse rolled from his lips. Immeriately a heavy body precipitated itself against the door, which crashed inward, and an officer fearlessly entered, a revolver in each hand. This tableau, which lasted fully a minute, was finally disturbed by the entrance of Haggerty himself.

"Don't be alarmed, Miss," he said heartily; "it's all over. I'm sorry for the bullet, but it had to be done. The rascal has nothing more serious than a splintered bone. I am a dead shot. A fine night!"—triumphantly. "It's been a long chase, and I never was sure of the finish. You're the cleverest rogue it has been my good fortune to meet this many a day. I don't even know who you are yet. Well, well! we'll round that up in time."

Not till the candles again sputtered with light, and William was securely handcuffed and disarmed, did I recollect that I possessed the sense of motion. The smoke of powder drifted across the flickering candles, and there was a salty taste on my tongue.

"Horrible!" cried the girl, covering her eyes.

The master rogue and his valet were led out into the assembly-room, and we reluctantly followed. I saw it all now. When Haggerty called up central at the club, he ascertained where the last call had been from, and, learning that it came from Hollywood Inn, he took his chance. The room was soon filled with servants and stable-hands, the pistol-shot having lured them from their beds. The wounded man was very pale. He sat with his uninjured hand tightly clasped above the ragged wound, and a little pool of blood slowly formed at his side on the floor. But his eyes shone brightly.

"A basin of water and some linen!" cried the girl to Moriarty. "And send all these people away."

"To yer rooms, ivery one of ye!" snapped Moriarty, sweeping his hands. "'Tis no place for ye, be off!" He hurried the servants out of the room, and presently returned with a basin of water, some linen and balm.

We watched the girl as she bathed and bandaged the wounded arm; and once or twice the patient smiled. Haggerty looked on approvingly, and in William's eyes there beamed the gentle light of reverence. It was a picture to see this lovely creature playing the part of the good Samaritan, moving here and there is her exquisite gown. Ah, the tender mercy! I knew that, come what might, I had strangely found the right woman, the one woman.

"You're a good little woman," said the rogue, his face softening; "and a good woman is the finest thing God ever placed upon earth. Had I only found one!" He turned whimsically toward me. "Are you engaged to marry this little woman?"

"No."

"Surely you love her!"

"Surely I do!" I looked bravely at the girl as I spoke

PLAN NOW FOR THE AUTUMN FLOWERS.

The forehanded gardener is planning for her fall buttonhole bouquet now by buying chrysanthemum cuttings.

The culture of hardy chrysanthemums is simple. They need little care, and can be planted in any situation, so that the soil is rich. They are best propogated from cuttings, which should be made at any time from October to May. The cuttings may be obtained from any florist. They should be inserted singly in pots or sandy soil, and as soon as they are rooted they should be set outdoors in their permanent location.

Chrysanthemums of the pompon type, of which each plant produces from forty to fifty blossoms, an inch or two across, are many of them hardy enough to remain out all winter in central and southern latitudes. The blooms often remain in good condition until long after Thanksgiving.

These plants are the most capable of resisting frosts of any flowers. Their pecular merit is that they bloom long after successive frosts have denuded the landscape. Their vivid colors are so unlike anything else at that season that they are indispensable in the carefully made garden.

The flowers are not ruined until their petals have been wet and frozen stiff. The plants ahe necessarily used for mass effects, as great size is not to be expected. Masses of red and brown side by side make a striking combination. Crimson and pink varieties should be kept by themselves because their colors are variable, and they make a violent contrast with the yellows.

TAKE CARE OF THE WATCH.

The young graduate drew forth a fine gold watch.

"Please regulate this," she said.

"A graduating present, eh?" said the watchmaker. "Now, listen and I'll give you some pointers about how to keep this watch in fine condition.

"Wind it in the morning instead of at night.

"At least once a year have it oiled. Remember that its balance swings 18,000 times a year—all on one little drop of oil. A wheelbarrow wouldn't stand such treatment; it would shriek for lubrication; but the small voice of the watch cannot be heard.

"After mending or cleaning examine your watch's screw heads and frames. If they are scratched the workman has been careless. He is a man to be avoided. Patronize him no more.

"Don't grumble if your mainspring breaks. This accident is due to some unknown condition of the weather. There are mainsprings epidemics, like influenza ones. Just now such an epidemic is afoot. I have taken out sixty fractured mainsprings this week."

CRAZE FOR MONOGRAMS.

The girls are busy just now embroidering the left sleeves of their tailored shirtwaists with their monograms or initials. The emblems are placed just below or just above the elbow on the left sleeve, and the work is done in solid color or in two tones, usually a color such as blue, red, green or brown with white.

Similar monograms are being worked on Italian silk undervests, and other nnderwear, some of the designs used being very elaborate. Scroll or flower wreaths inclosing monograms, separate initials or full names are put on the upderwear. The work is done in white or in delicate shades with white. It is also a fancy, especially with college girls, to embroider the handkerchiefs with the full name written in the hand of the owner and merely outlined or worked in over-and-over stitch.

Very Severe.

A cable dispatch, describing young Jay Gould's tennis victory in England, says: "His railroad service was especially severe."

Persons who travelled over the Erie road a generation ago will be apt to see in this the influence of heredity.—Judge.

CLINTON AVENUES WILL PLAY NATIONALS OF PERTH AMBOY

Manager Dorflinger has arranged a game for Saturday on Crescent Oval with the Nationals, of Perth Amboy, considered one of the strongest aggregations in the State in the semi-professional class. Mullen, who has an established reputation for pitching hitless games, will be on the slab for the visitors and he will be supported by a team of exceptional strength. The names of the members are all familiar to the fans and they can be assured of seeing a first-class exhibition.

The Clinton Avenues will present their regular lineup, with possibly the exception of a catcher. O'Loughlin, who suffered an injury to his hand at the 'Plains, may not be able to go behind the rubber, and Manager Dorflinger has his lines out for a backstop of unusual strength. He wants to give the fans the best possible and is leaving nothing undone to accomplish his purpose. With the exception of the backstop position on the local team, the lineup for Saturday will be as follows:

Clinton Avenue—Barnes, 1b; B. Martin, 2b; Emery, 3b; Jack Martin, ss; D. Scott, cf; Moffett, rf; Schott, lf; Randolph, p.

Beers Wins Singles' Match.

Albert D. Beers, of the Country Club, won his way into the third round of the Sunday-school Athletic Association tennis tournament in singles yesterday afternoon, when he defeated S. Burdick in straight sets, 6-0, 6-0. The match was too one-sided to be interesting. Beers meets Wilbur Dunning tomorrow in the third round. Paired with Monroe H. Long, of the Park Club, he will play Fred McClintock and Fred Grey in the doubles tomorrow afternoon to determine which pair shall go into the semi-final round.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The members of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church have about completed the improvements at their edifice on West Fourth street, and the new arrangement, which includes a large vestibule with added room for an entrance, will be used on Sunday for the first time.

The Middlesex Central Baptist Association, colored, closed its annual conference at the Calvary Baptist church, Sunday night, after a four days' session, the most successful in the history of the association. The program as announced on Saturday was followed Sunday morning, afternoon and evening, and included several strong sermons by well-known divines in the association. The conference closed Sunday night with a sermon by the president, Rev. R. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick. It was decided to hold the next annual conference in the Ebenezer Baptist church, New Brunswick, July 16, 1909.

HEAD CAUGHT IN DOOR BY FREIGHT CAR JOLT.

Paterson, July 21—John J. Fisher, manager for a local express firm, who was badly hurt near Dover, Friday, was brought to his home here, at 665 East Twenty-ninth street, Saturday. Both his ears were torn and his jaws nearly dislocated.

Early last week Mr. Fisher sent his family up to Newton to remain there for the rest of the summer in a cottage. He was anxious to take one of his fast horses and a carriage there, and, hiring a box car for the purpose, he had his horse and carriage placed in the car on Friday, which car was attached to one of the trains that went up country in the morning.

The horse in question is one to which Mr. Fisher is greatly attached, and he got in the box car with the animal. Mr. Fisher had his head out of the opening and the unexpected application of the brakes caused the door to slam, Mr. Fisher's head being caught between the door and the jamb.

Mr. Fisher was rendered unconscious, fell backward into the car and lay unconscious for some time. He became rational as the train neared Dover, and when it stopped he was just about able to crawl to the door and call for assistance. Several persons who were standing on the station platform carried him to a carriage, in which he was hastily driven to the office of Dr. Hood. Later he was taken to Newton and kept in a hotel there over night.

SURPRISE SIGNAL TESTS.

A report on the operation and observance of automatic signals during a series of surprise tests conducted by the operating officials of the Lehigh Valley Railroad on all divisions of that line during the month of June, shows signals purposely disarranged to stand at danger for 128 trains, normal but with upper light extinguished for 18 trains, normal but with lower light extinguished for 17 trains, and that in each instance, without exception, the engineman brought his train to a full stop.

These surprise tests are made without the knowledge of the engineman, and therefore are to be relied upon as indicating the general practice of enginemen in the observance of signals. The tests are repeated at irregular intervals in order to keep up the efficiency of the service.

COURT RECORD BROKEN IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY

All Middlesex county records were broken at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon, four men charged with murder being in the courtroom at the same time, awaiting to be arraigned before Justice Bergen.

Frederick Lang, who murdered his niece, Katie Gordon, in Piscataway township a couple of years ago because she would not marry him, was resentenced to be hanged on Friday, September 25. In the meantime an attempt will be made to have him declared insane. As soon as the resentence was pronounced Sheriff Church made arrangements for the hanging, and named the following jury as witnesses: Deputy Sheriff William Carman, of Metuchen; Joseph Miller, Deputy Surrogate D. W. Clayton, of Plainsboro; Charles Hermann, Dr. Charles B. Burnett, of South River; Harold E. Pickersgill, Harry O. Bishop, Richard A. Peltier, of Perth Amboy; Dr. J. L. Suydam, of Jamesburg; Charles H. Rogers, C. W. Sedam, of New Brunswick; William Oberman, of Deans.

Paul Herman, of Carteret, pleaded not guilty of murdering Nicco Marinshek at Carteret. Henry B. Cook was assigned as counsel and trial set for September.

Lawrence Messerole, who pleaded not guilty of murdering his father, Isaac Messerole, in New Brunswick, told the court that he could not employ counsel, and asked to have Henry B. Cook retained. The request was granted, and trial set for September 21.

KING OF JAILBREAKERS ACQUITTED OF A CRIME

Thomas Dolan, of Woodbridge, who has the State record as jail breaker, was acquitted of a charge of breaking and entering the machine shop of the Spra Spring Terra Cotta Company at Perth Amboy, in the Middlesex Count Court, at New Brunswick, yesterday. Besides having been in jail several times and having served one term in State prison, Dolan is entitled to some consideration for his jail-breaking experiences. When jail-breaking was popular in Middlesex county he was a sort of a hero among the local fraternity. But jail-breaking seems to have gone out of style as an amusement, just as ping-pong waned.

Dolan got his first experience at the Woodbridge lock-up. His father, who was an orderly and respected resident of that place, was compelled to put his boy away at times to give him a chance to sober up. Dolan always got away until he became lazy, and then he simply broke out to get a drink and returned to the lock-up. Once, when he was in need of a place to sleep off a jag, he broke into the lock-up and the warden in the morning found one more prisoner than he had locked up for the night. On another occasion the warden found the lock-up looking like a rough-housed barroom when he opened it in the morning. Dolan, who was a prisoner there, was dead drunk. He had broken out during the night, raided a saloon, carried a lot of bottled stuff back with him and treated the other inmates of the jail.

When he was brought to the county jail he broke out of that, too, being handy at the sport until he lost the energy of youth.

WOULD FREE MAN WHO CALLED NEGRESS "MRS."

Through the efforts of persons said to be Republican politicians, habeas corpus proceedings were instituted yesterday morning at Wilmington, Del., by Herbert L. Rice, an attorney, in behalf of Christopher Brooks, a negro, who is serving forty days in the workhouse for contempt of court in addressing Sarah Archer, a negress, as "Mrs." in the City Court room in that place last Thursday after Judge Edwin R. Cochran had declared that he would not permit a negro to be addressed "Mr.," "Miss" or "Mrs."

The petition, which was filed in the office of Prothonotary Speakman, directs the workhouse trustees to produce Brooks in court on Thursday, charging that he is being unjustly detained. Argument will be heard before Resident Judge Spruance.

Following the filing of the petition, Judge Cochran yesterday afternoon ordered Chief Warden Crawford of the workhouse to remit the contempt fine imposed upon Brooks, and a bail bond for his release on the breach of the peace charge was also sent to the warden, but owing to the absence of Judge Spruance the warden would take no action.

"Does Prohibition Pay?"

The Summer Institute of the New Jersey W. C. T. U. will be held at Ocean Grove today and tomorrow, when the "White Ribboners" will be out in full force. Tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, county president of the Union, will conduct a symposium on the subject, "Does Prohibition Pay?" There will be other speakers on the same subject. The institute will be held in the large auditorium in Ocean Grove and during the two days session many noted speakers will be heard.

FORT FOLLOWING CUSTOM IN USE OF THE $3,000.

Governor Not Using State Appropriation for Personan Entertainment.

Governor Fort was much surprised to learn yesterday at Sea Girt that a story had been printed in which he was accused of using for his personal entertainment the appropriation made by the Legislature for his use at Sea Girt.

He gave out the following statement:

"It is true that the supplemental appropriation bill of 1908 contains a provision which reads as follows: 'For expenses incident to the running of the Sea Girt cottage during July and August, and to entertainments at Sea Girt during the encampment and rifle tournament, a sum not to exceed $3,000, to be paid upon the verification of the adjutant general.'

"Neither the adjutant general, quartermaster general nor I had thought that any of this fund was available for the purpose of covering expenses of the Governor at the cottage other than as heretofore. If there are any expenses incident to entertainments at Sea Girt during the encampment which the adjutant general thinks should be paid out of this fund he will no doubt approve and pay them, but I have so far paid all expenses that my predecessors have done, and expect to continue to do so. Any suggestion that I intend to do differently from what former Governors have done in this regard is untrue.

PROSPERITY IN THE STATE IS RETURNING.

Information now being gathered by the State Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry indicates that so far as New Jersey is concerned prosperity is returning, and that the wage earners of the State will soon be as busy as they were last fall previous to the stringency in the money market. Only the advent of a Presidential election and the possibility of Bryan's success prevents even greater activity in these lines than ever before.

Approximately 270,000, or 13 per cent. of the total population of the State are dependent for a livelihood on some form of manufacturing industry, with a pay rool aggregating $130,000,000 and an aggregate output of $775,000,000 in nnormal years.

The reports received come from the average run of industrial establishments, and it is believed by the State authorities that they represent the conditions existing in the industrial circles of the State as a whole.

FORT DESERTED.

All but One of His Staff Flit to Trenton Outing.

The annual outing of the members of the Common Council and city officials of Trenton was held yesterday, and one of the effects was to attract from Camp Fort at Sea Girt all the staff officers of the National Guard. Colonel Austen Colgate, of Essex county, was the only member left on the Governor's staff.

Mayor Walter Madden and his official associates spent the day at the Interstate Fair grounds and indulged in all sorts of athletic pastimes. Refreshments were served. Many of the city's "hired men" established new records in sports, but everybody was too busy to keep the score.

'PLAINS G. A. R. VETERAN DIES AT THE HOSPITAL.

Benjamin Clark, one of the oldest and best known residents of Scotch Plains, died at Muhlenberg Hospital early yesterday afternoon after a long illness from a complication of diseases. Mr. Clark, who has been a life-long resident of the vicinity, was seventy-nine years of age and a veteran of the Civil War. For several years past he has been a member of the township committee.

Mr. Clark had been ailing for a long time, and was taken to the hospital about a week ago. Treatment there seemed to be of great benefit, and he showed consistent improvement. Yesterday, however, there came a turn for the worse and he sank rapidly, death coming at about 1:30 o'clock. Surviving him is his widow and two sons, Ernest, of Scotch Plains, and David R., of Newark. His daughter, Mrs. Otto Peterson, lives in Newark.

HONOR "FARMER-ORATOR"

Admirers of James E. Martine Welcome Him Home at a Non-Partisan Dinner.

MAYOR FISK AS A SPEAKER.

Former Mayor Buckle, J. V. F. Dilts and Former Assemblyman Swackhamer Also Laud Their Fellow-Citizen.

Surrounded by half a hundred personal friends, James E. Martine, who returned yesterday from the Democratic national convention, was given a royal welcome home last night at a complimentary dollar dinner at the Hotel Kensington. Those about the festive board were men of shades of political affiliations.

The dinner was a great surprise to Mr. Martine. It was expected that Mayor Charles J. Fisk would be the toastmaster, but at the last minute he was obliged to decline owing to a pressure of other duties. In his place John P. Owens was chosen to preside. After extending to Mr. Martine a cordial welcome home, he read the following letter:

"My Dear Jim:—It is with great regret I find myself so situated that I cannot be present to welcome you this evening. Believe me, my good friend, you have my best regards and sincere wish that all goods things will come your way.

"Your sincere friend.

"CHAS. J. FISK."

Later in the evening, however, Mr. Fisk dropped in and added a few words of welcome to the guest of the evening. He expressed his feelings of true appreciation of Mr. Martine and praised him for his many excellent qualities.

In the absence of William A. Coddington, who was expected to speak to the toast, "Our Guest," J. F. V. Dilts was called upon. At the outset Mr. Dilts explained that he would keep out of the turbulent political stream and refrain from saying anything that could be construed as partisan. He said that he was glad to welcome Mr. Martine home, and he felt sure that before his friends were through with him he would be made to feel nearer Heaven than he did when in Denver and expressed the hope that before he died his one earthly ambition—to represent the Fifth district in Congress—would be realized.

Introduced as "Plainfield's Peerless One," Mr. Martine was greeted with cheers and applause. "I love my home, my town and my people," said Mr. Martine, "and I want to say right here that Plainfield is the most charming, ideal city in this broad land and I love it all the more because of my brief absence. After traveling over a broad expanse of this great land I am more and more impressed with the ability of this great country to feed and employ its millions of people."

Explaining that he was not present to proclaim his dogma, Mr. Martine gave a detailed and entertaining description of his entire trip. After the convention, he said, he visited Pike's Peak, Salt Lake City, where he acquainted himself with facts regarding the Mormons, and incidentally had a wonderful experience in attempting to take a bath in Salt Lake. In speaking of the Mormons, Mr. Martine said that there are a dignified and courteous set of men, and while he hated their dogma, he could not help but feel that they are sincere and honest in their belief.

Mr. Martine told of his visit to Yellowstone Park, where he described graphically the wonderful formations and geysers to be found there, and then related incident after incident that occurred on the long homeward journey. His talk was instructive from the fact that he gave such a comprehensive description of every place visited, not forgetting to mention the good roads and other improvements to be found in the rapidly growing West. His only regret, he said, was that under the natural order of things there are millions of people who will never be able to enjoy that wonderful part of the country.

While Mr. Martine was concluding his remarks, Mr. Fisk came in and when the former finished, he was asked to say a few words. He emphasized the sentiments expressed in his letter, adding that he was glad to welcome Mr. Martine home. "We have missed you, Jim," said the Mayor, "and it does our hearts good to see you again. I think you must be one of our oldest citizens for you were about the first person I met when I came to Plainfield. Although we have been opponents politically, I think that I can say that Jim and Charley have always been good friends."

"Great Men," was the toast assigned S. S. Swackhamer, and the "Great Commoner," as he was introduced, added his words of praise of Mr. Martine. Mentioning the names of a dozen or more great men in history, Mr. Swackhamer gave the

RICHARD V. LINDABURY BOLTS WM. J. BRYAN

Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark, one of New Jersey's leading lawyers and most noted Democrats, has bolted William Jennings Bryan. He will not support the Nebraskan for President this year.

"I don't think Bryan is safe and sane," said Mr. Lindabury at his office yesterday. "He is altogether too radical. He is too much like Roosevelt."

Mr. Lindabury refused to say whether or not he would vote the Republican ticket this year. He added that he believed that the fighting ground of the campaign would be in the West. He refused to be quoted as to either candidate's chances of election.

Mr. Lindabury was an anti-Bryan man in 1900 and 1896. He was a Parker man in 1904, having been chairman of the State Democratic Convention and a Presidential elector.

BOROUGH GIRL IN TWO ORIGINAL PLAYS

Histrionic ability on the part of three young boroughites developed an original tragedy and an original comedy into first-night successes in a piazza rendition at the home of Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairview avenue, last night, when two score neighbors and friends of the coming spotlight favorites applauded unusually clever acting and so encouraged the young Thespians that the plays will be repeated for the benefit of the Baby Camp.

Lucile Ewart, the "Prince Leonardo" of the tragedy, was its author. The piece was heavy drama of the Jesse James school, presented with Ben Greet setting, and was entitled "Roderigo's Revenge, or the Tragedy of the Red Haired Princess." It was in two acts, the first being a melting love scene and the second fairly dripping with gore and involving the death of all of the characters. Helen Berkhan was the Princess Hermione, and Florence Berkhan played Sir Roderigo, the villian. Lucile Ewart, who created the part of Prince Leonardo, played it with an author's appreciation of dramatic possibilities.

Mrs. Ewart was the author of the comedy, which was cleverly interpreted by the same three characters who a few moments before met a scenic death at the conclusion of the tragedy. The tragic gloom cast by the adwul fate of the Red Headed Princess was utterly dispelled by "The Sad Deception of Katie Murphy." The audience voted this title a misnomer; it should have been "Stung Again, or Never Believe a Merry Widow." For Katie Murphy, presented by Helen Berkhan, was like the Roman Cornelia. Her fortune, her "jewels," were her ten children. Florence Berkhan, and Lucile Ewart, as Dennis O'Toole and Patrick McDugal, were the two suitors, and the appearance of one-tenth of the widow's fortune at the entrance of Roswell Ewart, as her child, makes the climax and subsequent joyousness of the defeated suitor.

The costumes for both plays were especially created for the characters and the stage setting was arranged by the players, assisted by the audience. Neatly lettered programs, the work of one of the members of the cast, made attractive souvenirs.

Ore Train Wrecked at Asbury.

The derailing of an ore train on the New Jersey Central at Asbury, yesterday, blocked the tracks for two or three hours and it was not until the wrecker arrived and got busy that traffic was resumed at that point. The cause of the wreck is not known definitely, but it is said that a broken axle caused seven cars of the train to leave the tracks and several more were buckled up. No one was injured by the accident. During the temporary blockade the passenger trains of the New Jersey Central were run over the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Police Lodge Vagrant Gothamite.

George Bannelk, a Slav, a cripple, and a New York resident, was arrested on charges of vagrancy and begging in the Park district of the borough late last night. Borough Marshal Reinman found him seeking shelter from the driving rain and took him to a cell for the night. Borough Recorder Dolliver dismissed the man at his hearing today.

BANISH VOTING MACHINES

69 OUT OF 503 FAVOR THEM.

By the overwhelming figures of four to one in the First district and nearly ten to one in the Second, North Plainfield voters settled the fate of the voting machine yesterday, when they ousted the mechanical form of ballot casting at a special election. This means that boroughites will vote for President with paper ballots, and not by "the cash register method"—as a North Plainfielder describes machine voting.

For a special election, there was an unusually large vote polled. The total vote in the borough was 503, and of these, but 69 favored the retention of the machines.

	1st Dist.	2nd Dist.
Total vote	218	285
Against machines	178	255
For machines	40	29
Rejected	0	1

The vote in each district was independent, and the result means that boroughites will vote by paper ballot unless some changes are made in the voting machines just abolished and a petition is granted for another special election.

A feature of the voting was that the fate of the machines could be easily forecasted at the polling places where the unused ballots were periodically collected from the booths. Each voter was given two ballots, one "for" and the other "against" the machines. Nearly all of them left the ballot they did not vote in the election place, and the election officers collected these and kept posted on how the election was going.

The special election cost the borough about $100 and there was no working at the polls. If a man wanted to vote, the officers graciously received his ballot, but despite the fact that the saloons were closed, it didn't look like election day at all. The election officers, who spent a good part of the day smoking good cigars and eating ice cream, were these: First district: William Rowley and Daniel Hulick, judges; Fred Koller and Charles Wood, inspectors. Second district: A. D. Pope and Levi Kline, judges; L. B. Bodine and J. A. Davie, inspectors.

Among the other towns that voted yesterday to abolish the machine are Morristown, Flemington, Long Branch and Gloucester City. Thus far about forty special elections have been held in as many municipalities and in each case the voting machine has been banished.

'MR. BLUEBEARD'S' MANAGER ARRESTED AT ASBURY PARK

Donna M. Seymour, the enterprising but unfortunate actress and theatrical manager who brought the "Mr. Bluebeard" company to Plainfield that went on the financial shoals, was arrested at Asbury Park, yesterday, charged by two men with operating a sort of "get-rich-quick" scheme. She was arraigned before Magistrate Borden and held in $400 bail for trial. The security was furnished by Colonel H. J. Bly, proprietor of the Hotel Plazza.

Since her misguided theatrical venture came to grief in this city, Miss Seymour has been seeking to reenter the managerial ranks and recently organized the Donna M. Seymour Opera Company. She advertised for an assistant cashier and out of the applicants selected Arnold Lipsam, of Philadelphia, and John J. Carmody. They were required to furnish a cash bond and according to the men it was used by the manager for her own purposes. Lipsam claims to have been buncoed out of $275 and Carmody puts up a claim for a similar amount.

The opera company began an engagement at the Asbury Park Casino but got a frosty reception. When bills fell due and there was no wherewithal to pay them, creditors took out attachments and Miss Seymour found herself in all manner of difficulties. She managed to get things pretty well straightened out but has yet to answer the Lipsam and Carmody charges. They specify the obtaining of money under false pretenses.

It's "Mayor Woolston" Now.

STATE MERCHANTS MEET

Morning and Afternoon Sessions Keep the Thirty Delegates Sweltering.

WERE WELCOMED LAST NIGHT.

Mayor Fisk's Address of Welcome—A. E. Force Speaks In Behalf of Plainfield Merchants' Association.

Sweltering in their shirt sleeves during their morning session at the Hotel Iroquois, thirty delegates from various local merchants' associations in different New Jersey cities transacted routine convention business with wilting collars. The occasion was the annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of New Jersey, and the session was called to order at 10 o'clock by President James P. A. Waldron, of Jersey City. The roll call of delegates by Secretary James Findlay, of Jersey City, showed about thirty present, representing a membership of 900 tradesmen in the various branch organizations. The associations at Newark, Jersey City, Trenton, New Brunswick, Paterson, Delanco, Millville and Asbury Park are represented.

At the outset came the reports of the various sub-associations of the organization, and these will be printed and distributed to associations not affiliated with the State organization. During the past year there have been no new city associations added to the general membership, but organizations at Bound Brook, Somerville and in Gloucester County are considering application.

The legislative committee reported little progress in dealing with the semi-monthly bill. Chairman Barlow reported quashing opposition on the part of the railroad corporations. The transportation committee is busy on Joint Resolution No. 2, working to secure the opening up of the Raritan Canal for transportation.

During the morning session, the delegates were much annoyed by the noise of wagons on the brick pavement, which, at times, prevented them from hearing the various reports. At the noon adjournment, accordingly, it was voted to hold the afternoon session at Junior O. U. A. M. Hall on West Front street. Here the delegates convened at 1:30 o'clock for the afternoon session.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk gave the association delegates a hearty welcome to Plainfield in an address at the preliminary meeting of the convention held in Junior O. U. A. M. Hall last night, after his introduction by President Waldron. Returning the formality, Fred Netschert, of Newark, president of the Newark Retail Grocers' Association, thanked him in behalf of the delegates, putting in some good words for "The Ciy Beautiful" from an impressionist's standpoint.

President A. E. Force, of the local Retail Merchants' Association, spoke of the merchants' work in Plainfield since their organization in February. A representative delegation of members of the local association was present at the meeting, and some are in attendance at the afternoon business session.

The feature of the evening was the address by Fred Mason, former national secretary of the association. He spoke on the value of the organization for protection and for development. To make the organization most effective, he said that there should be an affiliation with politics, and he cited the instance of Governor Tom Johnson, of Minnesota, whose victory was brought about by the organization, which desired the "banshee" to help them in out-standing bills. Mr. Mason said that the commuter's tendency to patronize metropolitan stores was hurtful for suburban tradesmen, who cannot depend upon regular support from this class.

Officers for the coming year will be elected at the session this afternoon, and the convention will conclude with the day's session.

Methodists Excursion Tomorrow.

The annual excursion of the First M. E., Grace M. E., Monroe Avenue M. E. churches, of Plainfield; Dunellen M. E. church and the Wilson Memorial chapel, will be an enjoyable event tomorrow and you should plan to take the day off and have a good time at the seashore. The train will leave Dunellen at 7:40, Clinton avenue at 7:50, Grant avenue at 8 and Plainfield at 8:15, and returning will leave the shore at 7:15 in the evening, stopping at Grant and Clinton avenues and Dunellen. A baggage car will be attached for baskets, bicycles and baby carriages.

DR. STUDDIFORD IS DEAD

Presbyterian Divine, Pastor of Plainfield Congregation, Years Ago, has Departed.

AGED SEVENTY-THREE YEARS.

Minister Dead at Trenton Was Pastor of First Presbyterian Church Here From 1860 Until 1862.

The funeral of the Rev. Samuel Miller Studdiford, pastor emeritus of the Third Presbyterian church, Trenton, who died suddenly yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, Austin C. Cooley, in that place, will take place from his late home tomorrow morning at 11:30. He was pastor of the First Presbyterian church in this city from 1860 to 1862.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. John Dixon, D. D., former pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Trenton, who was a close friend of Dr. Studdiford, having been associated in the ministry with him for many years. The Rev. Albert J. Weisley, D. D., present pastor of the Third church, Trenton, will assist.

Dr. Studdiford was first seized with his fatal illness last Sunday, but was not supposed by the members of his family to be in a serious condition, and his unexpected death is thought to have been hastened by the excessive heat during the past three weeks. He showed symptoms of ptomaine poisoning, and this ailment, with debility, caused by the hot weather, brought about conditions which were too aggravated to combat, considering the advanced age of the patient.

Dr. Studdiford was born January 24, 1835, in Lambertville, and received his education in Princeton University, then known as the College of New Jersey, and was graduated from that institution with the class of 1860. He was ordained a Presbyterian minister at Elizabethtown May 8, 1860. His first charge was Plainfield, from 1860 to 1862. From Plainfield he was called to the Stewartsville church, where he remained until 1866.

He went to Third church, Trenton, in 1866, and served continuously as its pastor until 1902, when he resigned because of ill health, and was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Yeisley.

During his pastorate in Trenton Dr. Studdiford made himself loved and respected, not only by the members of his congregation, but by other denominations with whom he came in contact, by means of his gentle disposition and fatherly demeanor. He took a great interest in the work of the Sunday-school.

In 1884, Dr. Studdiford received his degree of D. D. from Princeton and in 1903 was elected a trustee of the university.

Dr. Studdiford is survived by three children, Mrs. Austin Cooley, of Trenton; Dr. William Studdiford and Hervey Studdiford, of New York. His body will be interred in the Presbyterian cemetery at Lambertville, by the side of his wife, who died in 1903.

ALEXANDER MILLAR AIDS TWO DESERVING CAUSES

Through the kindness of Alexander Miller, who is spending a vacation at Bayville, Maine, the fund being raised by The Daily Press for the baby camp on the mountain conducted by the City Union of King's Daughters now amounts to $49.50. Mr. Miller has sent his check for $5 for that fund and has also sent one for an equal amount for the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, where poor children of New York's East Side are afforded all the joys of an outing in the country.

Children's Lawn Party	$15.00
Member of Charity Circle	5.00
"Betsy May"	5.00
"Betsy May's" Namesake	5.00
E. M. Cave	5.00
Alexander Millar	5.00
Friends' School Classes	4.50

For the Netherwood Fresh Air Home:

S. A. George	$5.00
Alexander Millar	5.00

Following its annual custom, The Daily Press will receive, acknowledge and transmit to the proper officers, any contributions for these worthy charities.

The Misses Florence and Helen Fowler and Laura Woolston, of Fairview avenue; Ethel Bennett, of Brooklyn, and Ida Englehart, of Grandview avenue, have been guests of the Misses Fowler's grandparents at Oak Tree.

ALL WILL BE GUESTS OF THE COUNTRY CLUB

Saturday will be a gala occasion at the Plainfield Country Club, when the members upon invitation will entertain the members of the Park Club, Park Golf Club and Watchung Hunt Club. The invitation not only includes the members of these clubs but their families as well. The privileges of the links and tennis courts have been extended for the entire day. In the afternoon between 3 and 6 o'clock there will be a reception at the clubhouse, presided over by the women members of the house committee. Added pleasure will be found in a musical program and refreshments.

In the evening from 8:30 to 11 o'clock there will be a dance to which members and their families from all the clubs are invited. Stages will meet all trolley cars, afternoon and evening. The dinner for members and such guests as they may invite will be served at 7:15 in the evening and reserved tables will be held until 7:30 o'clock.

JAMES E. MARTINE TALKS INTERESTINGLY OF TRIP

Fresh from his long journey across the country where he attended the Democratic national convention, James E. Martine arrived in Plainfield last night, wildly enthusiastic over the work of the convention in nominating William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency and Charles S. Kern for the Vice-Presidency. He declared it to be the greatest convention in the history of the party and said that without a single doubt the ticket would win at the election to be held in November.

In an interview with a reporter for The Daily Press Mr. Martine expressed his views in the following words:

"I believe that the action of the convention was wise from a statesmen's view and also from a political point of view. I am more convinced of the fact that if we cannot elect Bryan, we cannot elect anybody, but I believe from the many evidences we saw that we will elect Bryan, that it will be a political revolution, only equalled by the election of Grover Cleveland.

"On every side travelling through the middle and extreme West we had the warmest of assurances that Bryan would carry those States, that almost to a man toilers and particularly railroad men did not hesitate to declare themselves for Bryan. I believe that he will carry Colorado, Utah, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. I feel that Indiana is assured through Kern's nomination for he is very popular with the people of that State, and with the evidences we came in contact with through the people of Ohio, owing to the wide dissatisfaction in the Republican party, which is far more aggravated than we people of the East know, I feel that we have a fighting show in that State.

"I believe that we will carry the States of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts. All opposition within our ranks is a unit for the ticket. The convention was a magnificent success. It was intensely enthusiastic, well and wairly governed in a hall that excells anything in this country. The city of Denver is an ideal convention city and the people treated us in an elegant manner.

"I was disappointed that New Jersey did not turn in and declare for Bryan earlier, when the inevitable was so apparent. Senator James Smith, Jr., declared that no matter what had been his position before he would turn in, roll up his sleeves and be as enthusiastic as anyone could wish for. Senator Smith further declared that he believed that we would win the fight.

"During the early part of the convention a number of personal friends expressed their desire that I should receive the nomination for the Vice-Presidency, but while I felt that an Eastern man should be placed in the running with Bryan, I also felt that another than myself should be chosen. Douglass, of Massachusetts, for instance, would have been an ideal selection. However, I feel that Kern is particularly strong in his own State and that he will add much strength to the ticket throughout the West, while he will receive many votes in the East."

Still Alarm for Chimney Blaze.

Chief Doane and a hose truck from headquarters hustled to 730 Ravine road at 9:40 last night in response to a still alarm for a chimney blaze. It was put out with a couple of extinguishers.

Mrs. Walter M. McGee, of Rockview avenue, accompanied by her daughter, Miss McGee, and her mother, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of Grove street, has gone to Cascadeville, N. Y., for a summer vacation.

MAY FIX CLOSING HOUR

Excise Commission So Notifies North Plainfield's Mayor at Hearing in Elizabeth.

SMALL ARMY SUBPOENAED.

Investigation Today Covers Many Towns In Vicinity, All of Which Are Represented By Municipal Officials.

Greatly to the surprise of those interested, the State Excise Commission which continued its work at the Court House in Elizabeth, today spent the entire morning examining witnesses from Middlesex county, instead of treating to an extent with local conditions at the county seat. Five of the seven commissioners were present and Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who is the chairman of the body, presided.

The attendance of witnesses which included officials and others from various towns and cities in the county and those adjacent to it, was so large that all could not gain entrance to the court house. There was a crowd outside that extended nearly a block from the building.

Perhaps, one of the most startling features of the morning session was the reply of Commissioner Peter Backes to a question by Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, who sought advice as to the power of the borough to fix and determine a closing hour at night for the saloons in his municipality, where at present they are permitted to remain open all night. Commissioner Backes declared that under the State law there is sufficient authority for Mayor Townsend and the Borough Council to proceed and fix a closing hour, if in their judgment the conditions would warrant it and the peace and good order of the municipality is disturbed by the present custom. In view of this statement by Mr. Backes there is no doubt but that the borough authorities will take the matter up at an early date and decide upon an hour when all licensed places must close.

One of the important witnesses called this morning was Gen. Dennis F. Collins, who is connected with the Peter Breidt Brewing Company, of Elizabeth. While his testimony was of little value, his presence was notable for the fact that he declared that the Bishops law should be repealed, that it could never be enforced. He favored a different law, less restrictive, which in his opinion would properly regulate the traffic.

Without waiting to hear General Collins' story in detail, Mr. Fisk startled those present by stating that on Sunday, June 12, he and several other commissioners quietly dropped into Elizabeth to see how the excise laws were being enforced. To their surprise they found nearly seventy saloons doing business.

Among those noticed in the crowd today were the officials of Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Rahway, as well as Elizabeth. The Mayor of Rahway and the entire excise board of that place were on hand waiting to be called. The investigation into excise matters is being continued this afternoon, but it will be impossible for the commission to complete its work in this part of the State in one day. It is possible that it may decide to remain at the county seat longer. Among the witnesses to be called is Rev. Dean Martin Gessner, of St. Patrick's church, Elizabeth, and it is said that his testimony will be especially valuable, as he has made a close study of excise conditions in his city.

Happenings at Fresh Air Camp.

The Gospel meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, last night, was in charge of J. D. Loizeaux and was well attended. Tomorrow night Rev. William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, will visit the camp with a number of young people from his church, several of whom will give a farce entertainment for the children and mothers. The public is invited. On Friday night the service will be in charge of L. W. Randolph and members of Faith chapel. Saturday afternoon the children will be entertained by one of the local Christian Endeavor societies.

Library Directors Elect Officers.

The Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room elected the following officers at a special meeting for that purpose, held last night: President, Alexander Gilbert; vice-president, L. V. F. Randolph; treasurer, J. Herbert Case; secretary, William M. Stillman; library committee, Dr. Leonard Waldo, chairman, W. F. Merrill and W. H. Larrabee; are committee, Cornelius Boardman Tyler, chairman; J. Herbert Case and L. V. F. Randolph.

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT — FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

In the near future we will give to our readers the first installment of a remarkable series of detective stories taken from the cases of the Pinkertons. These stories are not only founded on truth, but are true in every detail, and cover cases of historic interest in this country. There are six stories in the series as follows:

THE NORTHAMPTON BANK ROBBERY
THE SUSQUEHANNA EXPRESS ROBBERY
THE POLLOCK DIAMOND ROBBERY
THE ROCK ISLAND EXPRESS ROBBERY
THE DESTRUCTION OF THE RENOS
THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE BANK ROBBERY

Cleveland Moffett has given the touch of a master hand to the telling of these stories, but he has not attempted to make fiction of them.

The Stories are Attractively Illustrated

TOUR TO YELLOWSTONE PARK AND THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

In northwestern Wyoming in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, lies one of nature's richest treasures—the Yellowstone National Park. Set apart by Act of Congress for the enjoyment of mankind, it is America's greatest show ground. To visit this Park is to see nature in a variety of majestic moods. Mammoth hot springs, with multicolored terraces, cliffs of glass, beautiful lakes, mighty falls, glorious canyons, and geysers of all descriptions, are found in this wonderful region.

On August 24 a personally-conducted tour through the Yellowstone Park to Portland and Seattle, returning through the magnificent Canadian Rocky Mountains, will leave the East by special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Five and one-half days will be spent in the Park, one day in Portland, one day in Vancouver, one day at Field, B. C., one day at Laggan, Alba., one day at Banff, and stops will be made at many other points of interest. The tour will cover a period of twenty-two days.

As an educational trip for either teacher or scholar, this tour is especially attractive, as it covers a section of America rich in scenery and replete with the marvelous manifestations of nature.

The rates, which will cover all necessary expenses, will be $246 from New York, $243.20 from Philadelphia, $241.20 from Washington and Baltimore, $230.80 from Pittsburg, and proportionate from other points.

Preliminary leaflets may be obtained of Agents, and detailed itineraries will be ready for distribution shortly. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the Park of the Nation should make application for Pullman space early, as the party will be limited. Make application through local Ticket Agent or address Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia. 7 17 2 f-w

WITHOUT CHURNING

Think of simply placing the ingredients in a freezer and later finding the contents frozen into the most delicious CREAMS OR ICES. All without labor. All without the usual danger of ptomaine poisoning. Our method of aerating the cream in this wonderful freezer does it.

BUY THE SANITARY CRYSTAL GLASS ICE CREAM FREEZER 1.25

Pour the cream into the glass freezer. Glass, instead of tin, prevents any poisonous chemical action. Pack in crushed ice and salt. Set aside until frozen. That is easier than grinding for even ten minutes. Lift jar from ice pack. Under a faucet rinse off salty water. Push the rod against false bottom. Slice. If you do not wish to use all put covered freezer back on ice. The cream may be kept a week by renewing ice pack.

The Toronto baseball club announce officially the resignation of Kelley as manager and the appointment of Schafly to the position, the change to take place today.

The Nationals, of Perth Amboy, who will play the Clinton Avenues on Crescent Oval, Saturday, have defeated many of the best semi-professional teams in the State and New York. They are in the class with the Cuban Giants and All-Cubans and have made the dusky braves bow to their superiority.

Manager Dorflinger has been advised by a number of supporters of the game here to cancel all further games with Scotch Plains for this season, on the ground that Saturday's exhibition will have a tendency to keep the best people away from future contests between these teams, fearing a repetition of the disgraceful scenes. The manager of the Clinton Avenues has not yet made up his mind as to what he will do. According to the schedule Scotch Plains will play the locals at Crescent Oval August 22, and there is another contest to be played at the Plains.

Walter Nelson, one of the best catchers to be found in this section, is still a member of the New Market team, where he is doing good work behind the rubber and with the stick. The fans regret that Nelson is not playing in Plainfield this season.

Come what may, the Highlanders have a higher percentage than the Cardinals.

Joe Lake is a hard and willing worker, and just now he is getting plenty of work.

Neal Ball is improving in his play and performing more as he did early in the season.

Harry Howell is a slow worker in the box, but he is using his head every minute of the time.

Bobby Wallace can put the ball on a runner as quickly as anybody who has been seen about here lately.

Ball players are coddled a good deal between innings these days, sponged, fanned with a towel and that sort of thing.

George Wiltse is still the boss of all pitchers in fielding his position. In Chicago they liken his arm to a butterfly net.

Four home runs were forthcoming at American League Park last week. The authors were Hinchman, Hickman, Niles and Hoffman.

Chase with a lame ankle is only a few notches above other first basemen in ability, but Chase sound and normal overtops them all.

Scouts for the various big league teams are beginning to get busy, and the minor league field will be gone over with a fine comb in the hunt for material.

Jake Stahl is quoted as saying that he was glad to leave New York, that Farrell "doesn't know anything about the game." Well, he knew enough to let Stahl go.

If Schmidt of the Detroits gets into another world's series and throws to bases as he did here, his opponents won't have as easy a time getting around as they did last fall.

GOLF.

Material changes have been made in the Massachusetts State Golf Association handicap list since the spring ratings were issued. In all, 136 players have had their stroke allowance reduced, while in thirty-three instances handicaps have been increased. Seventy-nine new names have been added, eight names dropped and four corrections made, so that the fall list, which will be issued early in September, will show nearly three hundred alterations.

Among the noteworthy changes is that of T. R. Fuller, State amateur champion, who has been cut from 6 to 2. T. M. Claflin, of Weston, now playing abroad, has been placed at 4 on the new list, instead of 5. Another change from 5 to 4 is that of F. I. Jaquith, of Allston. E. T. Manson, of Framingham, goes from 10 to 8, while M. F. O'Connell, Alpine, is sliced one stroke, from 5 to 4.

C. W. Bass, formerly champion of West Hampshire and now a member of the Vesper Club, of Lowell, is prominent among the new golfers added to the list. He is placed at 4, as is also P. Marlborough Smith, who was formerly one of the best young golfers of the Woodland Golf Club, and is now in Harvard. The name of H. P. Hood, of Salem, reappears on the list, after an absence of a year, and is placed among the fours. A. J. Ross, T. A. Tillard and Dr. Frederick Brush, all of Allston, are among the new names, being handicapped respectively at 5, 7 and 7. Other new handicaps of 10 or under are J. C. Bailey, Brae Burn; T. F. Galvin, Jr., Allston; R. G. Hunter, Woodland, 8; P. H. Goldsmith, Salem; C. H. Kendall, Wollaston, and E. C. Taber, New Bedford, 10.

Plans have been made for competitive activity throughout the remainder of the season at the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club. There will be a qualifying round for the governors' cup on Saturday, and the members will be privileged to start either morning or afternoon. The best sixteen will qualify to continue at match play on succeeding Saturdays.

On Labor Day morning there will be a qualifying round for a cup presented by J. Kennedy Tod. Regular members only will be eligible, and the cup will remain in the custody of the club until it shall have been won three times by the same player, when it will become his property. Clock golf competitions have been provided for the women members.

LIFE'S JOURNEY.

Is Burdensome to Many In Plainfield.

Life's journey is a heavy burden
With a constantly aching back.
With any kindney ill.

Doan's Kidney Pills relieve and cure.

Here is Plainfield proof that this is so:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, of 63 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "My kidneys were diseased for years and I also had trouble with my heart. I have endured the sever torture of a backache that comes from diseased conditions of the kidneys and likewise those heavy dull aches in the head. Many nights I have been unable to rest at all, and when I awoke in the morning my limbs would be so stiff and sore that I would be obliged to slide out of bed. When I caught cold it always settled on the kidneys and any little strain or everexertion that involved the muscles of my back would cause intense pains. I have doctored with physicians at Washington, D. C., and here in Plainfield, but none of their medicines ever did me the good that I got from Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's pharmacy. This remedy went right to the seat of the trouble, dispelled the pains and aches, corrected the kidney derangements and made me fell like r different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Plainfield, N. J., July 22, 1908.

Have you any money for the Baby Camp Fund?

"Sam" Gompers chances of "delivering" the labor vote are about as good as Bryan's are for election.

The eighth wonder of the world has been discovered in the person of a New York policeman who claims to have spurned a bribe.

It would be a decided novelty for one whole week to pass without witnessing the spectacle of some one of the Gould's washing the family linen."

Another record has been broken. James E. Martine spoke for over an hour at a dollar dinner given in his honor last night and never touched on politics.

It is reported that Mr. Bryan will avoid this State during the campaign, but be as it may the only day that Jersey will avoid the Nebraskan falls on November 3.

Hetty Green says she has never used a telephone, which goes to prove that old expression about the telegraph being quick, the telephone quicker and a woman quickest of all.

Already Plainfielders have contributed, through The Daily Press, the snug sum of $316.85 to the Cleveland monument fund, and the campaign for subscriptions has only but begun.

As Mr. Bryan has appealed to the Democratic papers to raise funds for his campaign, no doubt The Commoner's editor will set the example by donating the profits he earns for that organ by reason of his position at the head of the party ticket.

Either McGraw or Hillery would make a first rate nominee for Congress. The latter is better known in this section, where the Republican majorities come from, and could be depended upon to role up a big vote.

If the State Excise Commission wants to find a refreshing incident in its labors it should visit Plainfield, where a conscientious Common Council supported by an upright populace solved the liquor problem long before the Bishops' law was ever dreamed of.

Richard V. Lindabury, one of New Jersey's most distinguished lawyers, announces that as Bryan is neither safe nor sane politically he can not have his vote. Mr. Lindabury's example will be followed by hundreds of those prominent Democrats who cling to the faith of Jefferson, Tilden and Cleveland.

Day after day overwhelming majorities are recorded at the special elections held to decide the fate of the voting machine. The results mark an equally overwhelming repudiation of a Legislature that recklessly squandered some $300,000 of the Treasury funds in buying the devices and planting them about the State without the consent of the people. North Plainfield registered its protest against the device in no uncertain terms and it is fair to say that if an election were held in this city the paper ballot would be restored at the next election. The machine may be honest but it is not conducive to independence.

In discussing the candidacy of Charles N. Fowler for a renomination, the Newark Evening News, which has always been partial to the "absentee-Congressman" as he has been called, says that the outlook seems favorable "unless there should be a factional split in Union county." There will be no factional split in Union county, but when a Congressional nominee is repudiated at the polls by his own party's votes, it is extremely improbable that those same voters will insist that he be run again, particularly after he has already drawn the salary for nearly fourteen years. The last time Mr. Fowler was nominated Union county, as a matter of course, went Republican for all on the ticket excepting for him. This is Presidential year and the party cannot afford to be burdened with a load that it could not carry successfully in what is termed an off-year.

impression that he intended making a long speech. He changed his mind, however, and instead confined himself to a short address, which kept everybody laughing because of his humor.

The last speaker of the evening was former Mayor James F. Buckle. After paying his respects to Mr. Martine, he said that he believed the "farmer orator" would always be happy and contented so long as he had enough money to attend Democratic conventions. He declared that if Mr. Bryan should be elected he would support him and do all in his power to make the administration a success.

The committee in charge of the dinner comprised James Colvin, Joseph W. Harrigan, P. J. Reville, J. F. V. Dilts, Charles Sturtevant, J. A. Staats and John P. Owens.

Among those present were: James E. Martine, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Patrick Casey, E. C. Westcott, former Mayor J. F. Buckle, former Councilman L. B. Woolston, John F. McIntyre, Tax Collector William R. Townsend, Charles H. Hand, A. E. Hoagland, John P. Owens, J. V. F. Dilts, D. J. Galbraith, Drew Mattis, William Sachs, David T. Kenney, Albert Vail, Lou Van Nest, James Colvin, David Angerbauer, W. H. Bohl, George A. Ballentyne, John Rafferty, Joseph Harrigan, Charles A. Sturtevant, J. E. Townsend, Sylvester Sharkey, James Callahan, James Borrup, Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, Edward McCue, John E. POLITICAL NOTES.

The Jersey delegation to the Denver convention has sent these resolutions to the mayor of Denver:

The New Jersey delegation to the National Democratic convention held at Denver on July 7, 1908, being deeply impressed with the unbounded hospitality and uniform courtesy extended to delegates of our State, do hereby express our warmest thanks to the citizens of that progressive community and feel that the name "Queen City" is well deserved.

We would also congratulate the city officials upon the considerate and able manner with which the vast crowds were accommodated. Be it further resolved, that a copy of the above be forwarded to his Honor the Mayor of Denver, with the request that the same be published in the newspapers of that city, thereby conveying to all citizens our warm appreciation and best wishes.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The annual Union excursion of the several Sunday-schools from here, besides five from Westfield and Willow Grove, to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove will be held tomorrow. The local excursionists will find tickets on sale at the station and trolley corner before the train starts, the hour being 8:15. About all who can will take the day and enjoy the outing.

Lester Lannigan is visiting relatives in New York for a few days.

Unless something is done to gather in the toughs who started the fight at the ball grounds Saturday afternoon, it would be a good idea to send out invitations for the next affair to all of this kind in the county. Let them see that we not only welcome such things, but encourage them.

Funeral services of the late Benjamin Clark, who died at Muhlenberg Hospital on Monday were held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from the house.

The local team will be up against a hard proposition Saturday afternoon when they meet the Rahway F. C. Club at Rahway.

Henry Keuhn, who has been confined to his home for several days with illness, is reported as improving.

Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street, has been entertaining relatives from out of town.

Willie Stanbury has returned from a two weeks' outing spent in Maine.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Giles house, recently purchased by William Hamilton, is in the hands of carpenters and builders who are preparing it for two families. There were ten applications to rent it the first morning after it came into Mr. Hamilton's possession.

Edward and Grace Norman, Lorena and Lloyd Harris are home again after a few days' visit with Freeholder George Bunting and family, of Piscataway.

Much interest is being displayed in the new series of historical addresses which are being given by Rev. C. W. F. Attlee on Tuesday evenings at the Baptist church.

Edna Chamberlain, of Newtown, Pa., and her cousin, Gladys Thorne, visited their uncle, John Chamberlain, of Netherwood, yesterday.

Mrs. W. Sisty has returned from Denville, where she is arranging to rent a furnished bungalow for the summer.

ARTHUR W. TALMADGE AIDS CLEVELAND FUND

Plainfielders are responding nobly to the appeal for contributions for the monument fund being raised by the Cleveland Memorial Association of New Jersey, whose purpose it is to suitably honor the memory of the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States. Arthur W. Talmadge has helped the worthy cause by sending his check for $5 to this paper, which, added to previous acknowledgements, makes the total subscription for Plainfield $316.85. It should not be a difficult matter to increase the amount to $400 before the end of the week and it is likety that that figure will be reached.

VANDERBILT LOSES $15,000 IN SALE OF COACH HORSES.

The arrival of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's horses on the Atlantic Transport Company liner Minnehaha, yesterday, developed the fact that the famous whip was made a victim of English "Gyps," or cheap horsemen, during the sale of his coach horses at Tattersalls, London. His loss in the transaction was in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Vanderbilt took sixty American trotting-bred coach horses to the other side in order to run the coach "Venture" from London to Brighton. After operating it successfully for six weeks he retired in order to act as judge at the Olympia show and announced the sale of all his animals at auction. The "Gyps" immediately spread the rumor that the American millionaire had reserved the best of the string to take back home and that he would only offer those for which he had no use. As a result most of the horses were bought in by the clique at an average price of $200 and immediately resold for $600.

Charles H. Wilson, manager of the Vanderbilt stables, is very bitter over his English experience, but asserted that the coach would again be conducted next spring.

Emily Richards Praed.

Emily Richards Praed, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Praed, of West Sixth street, died suddenly last night. She had been enjoying her customary health until yesterday when she was taken ill with what seemed to be a minor complaint but later brought on convulsions. The little girl was of an exceedingly bright and lovable disposition and the parents have the sympathy of all their friends in the sad bereavement. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

Will Attend Postmasters' Convention.

Postmaster E. H. Bird will attend the meeting of the New Jersey Postmasters' Association to be held at Atlantic City on September 11, at which time the question of obtaining better postal facilities for New Jersey will be discussed.

Mrs. Cox's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca A. Cox, who died at her home on Clinton avenue, yesterday morning, will be held from the late residence Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

DANCING BRINGS GRACE TO AWKWARD LIMBS.

Every mother dreads the "awkward age," especially for her girls. Its harm lies more in the fact of its moral effect than its physical, for a child who knows she is gawky and ungainly loses all self-confidence in both work and play.

Gymnastic exercises are the obvious remedy, but unless they unconsciously influence the child to perform better the every-day acts of sitting, standing and walking, they fail of their purpose. For of what use are ve minutes of chest expansion if the girl goes about the rest of the day with slumping shoulders?

More important than this is to make the exercises a pleasure—play instead of work. The child will then turn to them without urging and forget to be self-conscious in her enjoyment of them. Music for even the simplest movements will give this pleasure, and "natural dancing" will combine sufficient exercise for every part of the body, for a "natural dancer" sways the arms, head and trunk in addition to the foot work.

To really deserve the name, this kind of dancing should be spontaneous, with the spontaniety of the little street children who dance around the hurdy-gurdy; but really all it amounts to is a rhythmic combination of the less strenuous of the gymnastic exercises.

If there is no school of dancing to send the daughter to, do exercises yourself with her. Twenty minutes a day will be a good frolic for you both. Compose the dances yourself, for there is an infinite number of combinations.

The rotary swaying motion with the arms above the head may be taken while kneeling on one knee. This allows for chest expansion and a strengthening of the waist muscles. The arms should generally lie slightly curved in that palm-downward position that best conceals a bony elbow. The head should be held erect by seeming to stretch the muscles of the back of the neck rather than by lifting the chin.

Stage of "fancy" dancing will also do much at the awkward age.

KEEP THE REFRIGERATOR SCRUPULOUSLY CLEAN.

The return of hot weather makes the care of the refrigerator a matter of serious importance.

A fact that is not often recognized even by the careful housekeeper, is that the refrigerator should never be in a damp and airless place. Dampness will warp the wood, and by so doing make the tight closing of the doors impossible. This will admit the warm exterior air, melt the ice and defeat the purpose for which the refrigerator was built. Proper ventilation is an absolute necessity.

Another point to remember is that the doors should be opened as rarely as possible and shut tight as soon as possible. Try to take out or put in all you have at the same time; then bolt the door, even if you are "coming back in a minute."

By trying this experiment you will soon see how much colder your refrigerator keeps.

Do not economize by putting in an insufficient quantity of ice. This is a mistake. If you keep the icebox packed, or at least well filled, you will have the benefit of the maximum cooling capacity of your refrigerator; otherwise the temperature within will never be very low and things will not keep as well.

A small refrigerator, well stocked with ice, is more useful than a larger one only half full.

Except in certain cases where it cannot be helped, make it a rule never to put food directly on the ice.

If the vent of the icebox communicates with the drain it should be seen to that a good plumber makes the connection in a sanitary way; otherwise the sewer gas from the drain may prove dangerous.

Empty the whole box, ice and all, from tiem to time, and give the refrigerator interior a good scrubbing. Some people object to this plan, as it takes a little while afterward for the box to get cold again. But it makes for absolute cleanliness in the refrigerator.

Renovating the Old Hat.

Straw hats may be successfully cleaned and black ones may be treated to a coat of shoe polish, which quite rejuvenates them; but this is not all; straw hats may also be painted. I have even painted a brown hat blue. However, to experiment, I would suggest that you try the following method with a white hat, which will result in that rich shade of burnt straw which is so fashionable this season.

With a bristle paintbrush rub into the straw burnt sienna greatly thinned with turpentine. This process not only changes the color of the straw, but also hides all faded streaks and spots, remnants of a previous summer's wear.

A Home-Made Book Shelf.

Go to any furniture dealer's and get from him three wooden window shade boxes and line them with white moire paper and cover with brown wool-colored paper. You may have to buy the boxes, but they will be only about ten cents apiece. Have a table in your room and place these boxes so they will rest on the table and against the wall. It is best to separate them with wooden boxes of equal size, covered with brown paper. This makes a splendid three-shelf bookcase in which small books can be placed. If one cares, the boxes can be covered with paper to match the room.

Plain Stockings.

While some amazingly pretty hose are obtainable in lace and embroidery effects, the newest are as plain as plain could be and made entirely seamless. This stocking woven to a perfect shape is not a cheap luxury by any means. Somehow or other it suits well the plain slippers and the too ornomental ones would be less stylish.

Furnace troubles are very real. A cold, uncomfortable house is a menace. You are risking colds—possibly pneumonia—and your coal bills are higher than they would be with a clean, bright fire. The will keep your house warm in every nook and corner. Never clog, leak gas or dust, and use only three-quarters of the coal with one half the trouble. Have any dealer in Boynton Furnaces explain their many superior points.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

TO DRIVE AWAY THE UNWELCOME MOTHS.

The moth-dreading housewife, who dreads the disadvantages of tar paper, moth balls and camphor flakes, may be interested in some other inexpensive but very effective preventives.

Wrapping up garments, blankets and hangings in newspapers—the cheaper and least carefully printed editions by preference—is very good, as moths appear to have an insurmountable aversion to printer's ink.

Benzine is a good preventive, and a still better exterminator of moths in the grub and egg state. It should be sprayed from an atomizer. The treatment should be several times repeated.

Thyme, thoroughly dried and sewed up in little cheesecloth bags, which may be laid in between or pinned to garments, blankets and furs, is one very good one.

Wood vinegar (vegetable acid, pyroligneous acid) is an excellent remedy. A saucer filled with it and set on the floor of closet or wardrobe will keep contents entirely moth free. When leaving home for the summer rugs, portieres, curtains and hangings should be rolled and folded up with cotton rags liberally soaked in wood vinegar, laid in between. Old soup plates filled with it and distributed about the carefully closed rooms will keep carpets and furniture clear of moths, and the unpleasant odor of the vinegar will vanish after a thorough airing.

The entirely odorless Panama wood will drive away and keep away flies, mosquitoes, bugs and moths.

HEALTHY, HAPPY MODERN GIRLS.

With regard to the question "Is the modern girl less marriageable than her grandmothers?" Mrs. L. T. Meade, the English writer, says: "My impression is that the present-day girl has a better chance of marriage than had the girls who lived in the time of our grandmothers—practically shut up in bandboxes waiting for the right man to appear. The old world girl was full of self-consciousness. The present day girl is too healthy and happy to be troubled with this infirmity. Marriage is not the be-all of life to her, and if she remains single it is more because she will not marry than because she can't.

"I have found that the present-day girl, if she does not carry extreme views, too gar, is most attractive to men—and, therefore, more marriageable than her grandmothers. I am heart and soul with the modern girl; and though that shade, her ancestoress, had charms of grace and deportment, they are not to be compared to the healthy, happy well-educated life of the girl of today."

POPULAR COLORED SLIPS.

Crisp as fresh lettuce look the lingerie gowns of sheerest batiste, embroidery trimmed, worn over pale green slips. These have a delightful summery appearance suggestive of fields and brooks and cozy nooks where pretty girls are sheltered by big white umbrellas. But the real reason for the undertone of color is that it so perfectly defines the beauty of the embroidery bands, motifs and flounces. The color note, however, may be emphasized by the batiste hem of the skirt, by the silk girdle if the gown be in two pieces, or by the scarf drapery of green batiste ornamented at the ends by inset embroidery motifs.

The scarf is worn low over the shoulders and passes under the girdle in front, thence falling in two long ends almost to the skirt's hem, or it is crossed at the bust and drawn together at the left side, so that the ends fall one above the other.

ABOUT BATHING SUITS.

There are bathing suits, like the daughter that was cautiously warned, that must not go in the water. There are other suits that take the daily dip and come forth wet, to be sure, but ready for the next plunge. These suits cost from $1.50 to $50. Some stunning suits of silk, satin and mohair and combination outfits made in princess, empire and kimono models. The well-dressed beach girl has stockings, slippers, parasols, dress and gum-lined cap to match.

Some good models in plain colors are trimmed with bias folds, others with small buttons and many will be merely pleated and untrimmed. The beach shoe is as artistic as the slippered foot of the little flower peasant who wears sandals strapped to her shapely legs with ribbons crossed and recrossed to the knee.

Others wear low sandals with four leather or cravenette straps that fit snugly over the ankles.

Embroidering Hosiery.

Since the fad for decoration has become so widespread the girl with a talent for fashioning flowers and bowknots with her needle is decorating the fronts of her hisiery from toes to ankle with quaint designs. These are of natural flower tints on the delicate hosiery worn with evening gowns and in self tints for those matching gowns and in self tints for those matching street costumes. Sometimes lace butterflies and bowknots are used as inserts, first being appliqued upon the webbing, which is then cut away from the under side. Faded hisiery of a first-class quality may be successfully home-dyed, and thrifty young women overloaded with passe evening hosiery may easily transform it into a sort suitable for street use by dyeing it tan, brown or blue.

HEARTS and MASKS

AUTHOR OF THE MAN ON THE BOX ETC.

But she never gave any sign that she heard. She pinned the ends of the bandages carefully.

"And what brought you to this?" asked Haggerty, looking down at his prisoner.

The prisoner shrugged.

"You've the making of a fine man in you," went on Haggerty generously. "What caused you to slip up?"

"That subject is taboo," replied the thief. "But I want to beg your pardon for underestimating your cunning."

"It was all due to a chance shot at the telephone."

"I kept you guessing."

"Merrily, too. My admiration is wholly yours, sir," returned Haggerty,

The Girl and I Passed Out of Hollywood Inn.

picking up the telephone exchange-book. He rang and placed his lips to the transmitter, calling a number. "Hello! It this the chief of the Blankshire police? Yes? Well, this is Haggerty. That idea I hinted to you was a mighty good one. Prepare two strong cells and have a doctor on hand. What? Oh, you will find your horse and carriage at Moriarty's. Good-bye!"

My money was handed over to me. I returned it to my wallet, but without any particular enthusiasm.

"It's bad business, William," said I.

"It's all in the game, sir,"—with a look at Haggerty that expressed infinite hatred. "In our business we can't afford to be careless."

"Or to talk too much," supplemented his master, smiling. "Talk, my friend, rounds me up with a bullet in the arm, and a long sojourn behind stone walls. Never talk. Thank you, too, Mr. Comstalk, for the saving grace of humor. If it were possible, I should like to give Miss Hawthorne the pick of the jewels. This is a sordid world."

"Ye'er car-r is coming!" shouted Moriarty, running to the window.

So the girl and I passed out of Hollywood Inn, leaving Haggerty with his mysterious prisoners. I can't reason it out, even to this day, but I was genuinely sorry that Haggerty had arrived upon the scene. For one thing, he had spoiled the glamour of the adventure by tingeing it with blood. And on the way to the car I wondered what had been the rogue's past, what had turned him into this hardy, perilous path. He had spoken of a woman; perhaps that was it. They are always behind good actions and bad. Heigh-ho!

Once we were seated in the lonely car, the girl broke down and cried as if her heart would break. It was only the general reaction, but the sight of her tears unnerved me.

"Don't cry, girl; don't!" I whispered, taking her hand in mine. She made no effort to repulse me. "I am sorry. The rascal was a gallant beggar, and I for one shouldn't have been sorry to see him get away. There, there! You're the bravest, tenderest girl in all this world; and when I told him I loved you, God knows I meant it! It is one of those inexplicable things. You say I have known you only eight hours? I have known you always, only I had not met you. What are eight hours? What is convention, formality? We two have lived a lifetime in these eight hours. Can't you see that we have?"

"To shoot a human being!" she sobbed. Her head fell against my shoulder. I do not believe she was conscious of the fact. And I did not care a hang for the conductor.

I patted her hand encouragingly. "It had to be done. He was in a desperate predicament, and he would have shot Haggerty had the detective been careless in his turn; and he wouldn't have aimed to maim, either."

"What a horrible night! It will haunt me as long as I live!"

I said nothing; and we did not speak again till the first of the Blankshire lights flashed by us. By this time her sobs had ceased.

"I know I haven't done anything especially gallant to-night; no fighting, no rescuing, and all that. They just moved me around like a piece of stage scenery."

A smile flashed and was gone. It was a hopeful sign.

"But the results are the same. You have admitted to me that you are neither engaged nor married. Won't you take me on—on approval?"

"Mr. Comstalk, it all seems so like a horrid dream. You are a brave man, and, what is better, a sensible one, for you submitted to the inevitable with the best possible grace. But you talk of love as readily as a hero in a popular novel."

"I never go back," said I. "It seems incredible, doesn't it, that I should declare myself in this fashion? Listen, for my part, I believe that all this was written,—my Tom-foolery in Mouquin's, my imposture and yours, the two identical cards,—the adventure from beginning to end."

Silence.

"Suppose I should say," the girl began looking out of the window, "that in the restaurant you aroused my curiosity, that in the cellars my admiration was stirred, that the frank manner in which you expressed your regard for me to—to the burglar—awakened—"

"What?" I cried eagerly.

"Nothing. It was merely a supposition."

"Hang it; I love you!"

"Are you still the Capuchin, or simply Mr. Comstalk?"

"I have laid aside all masks, even that which hides the heart."

She turned and looked me steadily in the eyes.

"Well?" said I.

"If I took you on—on approval, what in the world should I do with you in case you should not suit my needs?"

"You could return me," said I laughing.

But she didn't.

(THE END.)

GIVE LINEN A REST ONCE IN A WHILE.

Few housekeepers realize that all linen in constant use will keep longer if it is allowed to "rest" at times. This same principle holds good with garments and various toilet articles. Take, for example, the plan followed by a woman whose house linen is limited and who likes to make it last. She has a family of three and keeps out eight sheets each week. As soiled ones come in fresh from the laundry she places them always at the bottom of the pile, so in this way the same sheet is not used two weeks in succession, but is sure of a fortnight's, if not three weeks', "rest." In a store closet she keeps two other piles of eight, and every two months the sets of sheets that have been in use are put into the store place, another set being put into the cupboard for weekly use. The arrangement takes very little time, and it is more than worth while in the saving to linen. Pillowcases and towels she manages in the same way, only the quantity of the latter is greater.

Her table linen is used for six months and then put away for a year.

Luxurious as it may sound to have such a quantity of linen, the gathering of it is inexpensive, for the woman buys a sheet or table cover occasionally and puts it away, thus keeping her store in condition. At the same time there is never much loss to be made good at one time, and the pocketbook is saved accordingly.

Coeducation in England.

In Great Britain the London medical colleges stand almost alone in their refusal to admit women. Oxford and Cambridge, by constitution and tradition, will, of course, stand on their old-time platform until forced by advanced public opinion to a liberal and commonsense action in the matter. At present the students of the London School of Medicine for Women are compelled to go to Dublin or to Elinburgh for their diplomas.

In the University of London some women have achieved much success and obtained degrees, but this university grants fed medical degrees.

The British Medical Journal has come out flat-footed in favor of women being granted diplomas by the London colleges, and says it is a "real grievance" that woman medical students should have to go outside of London for their diplomas.

WORLD'S OLDEST CHURCH ORGAN

On Island of Gothland and in Excellent Preservation.

In the Baltic sea, 40 miles from the mainland, lies the Swedish island, Gothland, a Mecca for students of early gothic architecture. In Wisby alone, the chief town of the island, with its population of 8,000 souls, may be studied what remains of no less than ten churches, some of which date from the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The oldest of them is the Church of the Holy Ghost, completed about 1046.

Prof. Hennerberg, director in a German music school and especially interested in the study of medieval organs, visited 59 churches in Gothland, and in a little village called Sundre came upon the remnant of what is unquestionably the oldest known organ in existence. The case alone has survived the fret of seven centuries, the holes for pedals and manuals are placed as in modern instruments, and inside one can see the chamber for the bellows and judge of their action; the exterior is adorned with paintings dating from about 1240.

When this ancient instrument could no longer serve its original purpose it was used as a sacristy, and for the safeguard of holy vessels and vestments was kept in careful repair, hence its excellent preservation to our day.—Youths' Companion.

PROSAIC ORIGIN OF THE HALO.

Said to Have Been Placed Over Statues of Saints to Preserve Them.

The origin of the halo dates back to the eleventh and twelfth centuries. Those years were rich in the building of churches and cathedrals. There were erected around the outside of the sacred edifices statues of the saints, placed under the eaves. In time the caretakers of the buildings perceived that the discoloration from the rains falling from the roofs disfigured the images. Accordingly they placed over the tops of them flat wooden disks of sufficient size to protect the statues. Giotto began to paint pictures when a boy, and his ignorance assumed the protecting disks as an essential part of the saint. His earliest pictures represent each sacred figure topped off with what looks much like the bottom of a barrel. He idealized this into a circle, dark at first, but growing more luminous with each successful production of his artistic fancy, until he developed the circle of light that has come down unchanged through generations of painters as a badge of sanctity.

Art on the Safe Door.

"I wonder if anyone can tell me why it is customary to paint on the front door of a safe some sort of rural scene?" he asked, as he left the business office. "Almost all safes have a lake with a couple of trees in the background, or else a field with a stake and rider fence emblazoned on the door.

"Perhaps it is to give the idea that peace and quiet of the country type are to be found within the safe. There may be some idea of soothing the mind of the beholder doubly. Just where the custom started I do not know and what the significance is also is unknown to me."

Few Desertions from Mexican Army.

"Instances of desertion from the army in Mexico are very rare and for the best of reasons," said Senor Jose de Minaldez of Nueva Leon. "The reason lies in the almost sure capture of the fugitive and the certainty that he will get not one but numerous floggings on his bare back. These lashings are done in the presence of the comrades of the deserter, and when the men see how great is the suffering of the miserable wretch who tried in vain to quit his military obligations, they are forced to conclude that it is better to stick to the army than to undergo such a terrible ordeal."

Brothers Good Match Makers.

It is a strange thing that mothers are looked on as match makers, while girls' brothers never are. Yet the fact remains that many a girl has her brother to thank if she happens to get married, and not her mother at all.

Many a woman who is happily married to-day has her brother to thank for it—had he not brought a particular man about the home, why, his sister might have remained unwed all her days; but very few women give so much as a thought to that.—Woman's Life.

Face.

"Well," said the customer, as he paid the barber and moved toward the door, "I feel like congratulating myself on getting safely out of a mighty bad scrape."

By placing himself promptly on the outside of the barber shop he avoided getting himself into a mighty bad scrape.

Method.

"I love my love in the springtime," warbled the poet.

"So?"

"Yes, it's cheaper then. Oysters are out of season, flowers grow wild, and the theaters are running popular priced stock."—Kansas City Journal.

On the Rialto.

"Yes," remarked Hamlet Fatt, "I may say I have inherited the mantle of Kemble."

"That settles the clothes question," responded Yorick Hamm. "Now, with a good free lunch route, you'll be fixed."

TAKES WIFE'S BODY ON A WORLD TOUR

SEATTLE MAN TO KEEP PLEDGE MADE TO HELPMEET BEFORE HER DEATH.

25,000-MILE TRIP IS PLANNED

Couple Saved Until $30,000 Was Accumulated—Will Follow Route She Helped Make Out During 30 Years of Toil.

Chicago.—Speeding eastward on a train from Chicago, to circle the globe, Frederick Alexander of Seattle has for his companion the embalmed body of his wife sealed in a metal casket.

He is carrying out a pledge made while she lived, that he would take her around the world. She died. So he is making good to the dead the vow which he could not fulfill to the living.

Fiction has no parallel for this weird journey of 25,000 miles over land and sea with a corpse as one of the tourists.

Alexander is not a romancist. He promised his wife, who worked and labored and lived with him for 30 years, that when they had accumulated $30,000 they would end their toil and would travel. The goal had been reached. The $30,000 was in hand. Immediate preparations for the journey were made, but before their completion the wife fell ill and died.

Alexander says he never hesitated in his purpose to make the trip as planned and to take along his wife's body from the moment of her death. He says that his pleasure is dulled and even ruined by her death, but that is no reason why she should be left behind when he had promised her that she should make the journey.

"I know that she cannot see the many lands that we will traverse. I know that she cannot speak to me and cannot enjoy the trip. But I have kept my promise. She earned half the money and now that she is dead I cannot rob her of her share," said Alexander as he departed.

"We were poor when I promised my good wife that we would yet be rich and would travel like rich folks. Travel? Yes, we would go around the world. We had no children. Travel was our ideal of pleasure and the trip around the world our ideal of travel.

"We are going to Europe, across the continent to Siberia, thence by the Trans-Siberian railway to the Orient. After visiting China and Japan we will sail for Morocco and thence overland to Egypt and the Holy Land. Then we will go down Africa to the Cape and sail to Australia. Thence by water to Seattle.

"Oh, I know the route perfectly. My wife and I chose it after hours and hours of study and discussion when we were poor. She helped to lay it out and I will not deviate from it, for I cannot now get her consent to make any changes in the plans which we drew by mutual consent."

Thirty years ago Alexander and his wife came from a little town in Germany. They were poor but thrifty and happy in the faith that they would yet be rich enough for the luxury of travel. They settled in Baltimore and for 12 years they labored and economized and prospered till a disastrous fire ruined them and wiped out the fruits of their toil and saving. They traveled to Washington and began anew.

"When we make $30,000 we will go back to the fatherland and see our old friends," Alexander was wont to say to his wife. And they dreamed of the time when they should be able to make the trip and show their neighbors of childhood days what chances they had accepted in the New World.

The more they talked of the future the more they became imbued with the spirit of gaining the fortune, and they worked and dreamed, and all of the time the land they had taken up became more valuable. Then they acquired more land.

Eighteen years have passed since the couple located in Washington.

A few days ago an assessment of the valuation of their property, which included farm and timber lands and a ranch with cattle and sheep, showed the goal was reached, and they could get the required $30,000 for it.

But the wife was taken sick and after a few days she died.

OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE BEGINS TOMORROW

One year ago we began here in your midst by advertising the Boehm stock at reduced prices, in order to give us the opportunity of replacing it with a cleaner and more up-to-date stock of our own selection--it took quite a time to dispose of such a houseful of goods, but we managed to do it by perseverance and cut prices. As soon as the space permitted, we filled in new merchandise of a better character, as the discontinuing of giving trading stamps allowed us to go a little "higher" on every article for the same retail price than our predecessor could pay, with an expenditure of several thousand dollars a year to the trading stamp people. We figured that the people of Plainfield would appreciate VALUE more than stamps, and we were not mistaken--for the thousands of dollars Mr. Boehm paid annually for the stamp books we began to put in merchandise. You can see the result today in a moment's comparison. Look at the bargains this house puts forth just ordinarily. LOOK AT THE BARGAINS THAT WE OFFER YOU AT THIS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE. Plainfield has never experienced such underpricing of honest dependable merchandise before--it's because our buyers are not hampered with any burdens of "so much for the stamp expense," or so much for loss of bad accounts to each lot of goods purchased. It's our policy to give you more and better merchandise for the same money than you can procure elsewhere in town--but no trading stamps or favors.

COME TO OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE--come every day if you can, you will see Bargains arrayed far more tempting than mere quotations could indicate.

'GAMEY' NELSON'S VETERANS TO MEET THE BLACKVILLES

The old baseball fan who takes a pull on his cigar and then vows that the games nowadays "ain't what they used to be" wants to make it a point to be at Hope Common tomorrow afternoon because there will be "something doing." "Gamey" Nelson, the veteran of a thousand hard-fought contests on the diamond, has accepted the challenge of the egotistical Blackville nine, made up of younger fellows, and will put a team of seasoned players against them for $25 a side. All the West End is talking about the coming contest and a circus-day crowd is looked for.

Captain "Gamey," who used to catch for the Potter Press Works team of twenty years ago, will have "Bill" Cline on the slab. The latter knows the game from A to Z even though he did learn it back in 1879 and has some snake-twists up his sleeve that will get the Blackvilles' agate. "Jim" Babbitt has been signed for second base and old war-horse "Zeb" Freeman will show the young fellows just what a left fielder ought to be. Leander Brown will play short stop, Charlie Cline first base and Fred Randolph will be ollowed to talk as much as he wants out in right field.

The Blackville team will have practically the same line-up as last week when they were defeated by the Darktowns. "Aus" Nelson, "Gamey's" son, will play behind the bat and "Midge" Cline, "Bill's" son, will pitch. John Taylor has been assigned to first base. Edgar McCray is to do the umpiring and George Ruggles will be score keeper. Taking the entire outfit from start to finish, the contest ought to be a hummer and if it doesn't go down in history as the greatest in years it won't be the fault of "Gamey" and his colts. It will commence at 3:30. The complete line-up for both sides is as follows:

COUNTRY CLUB PAIR WINS MIXED DOUBLES

Defeating M. S. Charlock and Mrs. Church, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, in the final round of the mixed doubles tennis tournament under the auspices of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis A ssociation, W. B. Cragin and Miss Edna Wildey, of the Country Club, won five points toward the East Jersey trophy tankerd yesterday afternoon and brought the club score up to seven points, against nine won by the Elizabethans. The trophy award will be decided by the finals in the men's doubles tournament, to be played Friday afternoon at the Country Club courts, between a Plainfield and an Elizabeth pair.

The match was played at the Park Club courts and the Plainfielders won in straight sets, 6-3 and 6-0, completely outplaying their opponents in the second set of the match.

The five points secured by the pair as winners, together with the two points won by Miss Edna Wildey as runner-up in the women's singles several weeks ago, now give Plainfield a chance to win the Elizabeth cup by a score of 12-11 points. In the men's doubles, W. B. Cragin and Willard Wadsworth, of the Country Club, will play R. A. West and Dean Mathey, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, in the final round at the Country Club courts Friday afternoon. Should the Plainfielders win, the trophy tankard will come to this city for the year. The Elizabeth club took all seven points in the men's singles and Charlock and Mrs. Church won two more points for their club as runners-up in yesterday's match.

HOLY CROSS BOYS ENJOYING CAMP LIFE

"Camp Comfort,' Cambridget, N. Y. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, who with the choir boys from tnat church is enjoying a delightful outing here, was called home yesterday by the death of two of his parishioners. He is expected to return to camp tonight. The rector will bring with him one of the boys who was unable to leave with the whole party ten days ago.

All the campers are having the best time ever with superb weather conditions and a bountiful table to help matters along. It is stated upon good authority that one boy promises to be so fat when camp breaks up that he will have to return home as excess baggage. Even the "reverend dominie," in charge, confesses to taking on seven pounds of weight in two weeks and he looks it, with a fine color and sun-bleached hair to match. A two and a half gallon freezer has been kept working overtime by the boys. Now the cows have hied themselves to the coolest depths of the woods to escape further demands made upon them by the insatiable campers who consume thirty quarts of the lacteal fluid every day.

This week is one of the crowded ones of the boys' existence, with a daily program of morning dip, dish washing, ice and milk, wood and mail duties, camp squad work, a swim at 11:00 a. m., and another at 5:00 p. m., and baseball in between, one would say it was a fairly busy camp. Besides, this week the camp athletic meet will be held, when the boys will compete in land and water sports. Nine prizes have been offered by the rector. The campers have been divided into three classes and there will be first, second and third prize in each class. "Spike" Kenyon says "the Olympic games aren't in it," that "Camp Comfort has that bunch skinned a mile."

The events include 100 yard dash, running broad jump, standing broad jump, 100 yard swimming race, half-mile boat race, long distance boat race, fetching and diving contests, bumping race and three-legged race. An added pleasure to the boys this year is a raft, fifteen feet square of planed and matched boards, built by handy-man Charles, who is life-saver, guard, assistant cook, chief frog killer and eel catcher, besides. Charles says, "I draws the line at snakes, yes sah, and the mosquitoes certain sure are close relations to my Jersey bantam hens."

The campers now number thirty-one inmates, two boys having returned home to attend the funeral of a near relative, one obliged to get back to office work in New York and the other taken home to have a troublesome tooth looked after.

Those now in camp include Edward Mosher, Aaron Higgins, Bert. Miller, William Little, Russell Conroy, Gardner Bristol, Will O'Brien, Gerald Thorp, Phil. Thorp, Eric Taff, Raymond Mosher, Charles Kreger, Howard Riley, Carl Noble, Harold Noble, Eric VanNorden, Evans Stevens, George Ball, Raymond Kline, Martin Mantz, Ed. Wakefield, Raymond "Spikes" Kenyon, "Nails" Kenyon, Russell Brakeley, Herbert Penoyer, Herbert Stine, Charles Irby, John Greelish and the Rev. George A. Warner.

Weather permitting the boys will break comp on Monday and leave for home Tuesday, arriving in Plainfield in the afternoon or evening of July 28. This is the third annual camping trip for the choir and club boys connected with the Church of the Holy Cross.

EASTERN GOLF ASS'N TO PLAY AT THE P. C. C.

Upon the invitation of Henry L. Hall, who is a member of the association as well as the Plainfield Country Club, the Eastern Trade Golf Association, will be the guest of the local golf club on Tuesday, July 28, when the annual mid-summer tournament will be played here. The association is comprised of the managers and salesmen of all the big eastern manufacturing concerns and a majority of them have become proficient in the game.

The members will spend the day on the course playing the tournament, and at noon luncheon will be served at the clubhouse. In the evening after the play the visitors will be entertained at dinner at the Watchung Hunt Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Phillips and daughter, Miss Marion Phillips, of Fairview avenue, have returned from a two weeks' sojourn at Patchogue, L. I.

VANDERBILT HORSES WIN AT ATLANTIC CITY'S SHOW.

Atlantic City's tenth annual horse show opened yesterday with practically all the exhibitors known to Plainfielders taking part. Reginald Vanderbilt, whose prize winners captured a lot of blue ribbons in this city the past two years, carried off first honors for the day while "Sid" Holloway continued to take the blues with his high-jumping hunters, "Centennial" and "Red Raven." Entries by George Watson, William Carr and the Elsinore Stock Farm were included in the winners for the day.

Mrs. John Gerken, formerly one of the best known women exhibitors in the country, appeared in the ring in one of the saddle classes. She rode the Elsinore Stock Farm's mare "Pandora," carrying off the blue ribbon. Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt was one of the box holders and entertained a party of friends during the day. The show will continue three days.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY MAY SEE A HANGING.

That Mode of Death Prescribed for Lang, Whose Conviction Was Under Old Law.

Sheriff Andrew S. Church, of Middlesex county, hopes that the contemplated proceedings to question the sanity of Frederick Lang, sentenced yesterday by Justice Bergen to die on Friday, September 25, will prove successful, for he wishes to avoid the unpleasant duty of putting Lang to death.

Although New Jersey's electric chair has been in use over a year Lang's crime and conviction were prior to the time when the electrocution law went into effect and the procedure throughout has been that prescribed by the old law. If Lang is executed it will be in the yard of the Middlesex county jail in New Brunswick and under the direction of the sheriff of the county directly or by deputy.

When Lang was first sentenced and before a writ of error was secured and operated as a stay, the sheriff planned to engage Hangman Van Hise and it is probable he will take that course now.

Lang, since his incarceration, has acted strangely and an examination as to his sanity will be demanded by his counsel. Heretofore Judge Boorаem has held that such proceeding must wait until the decision in the appeal then pending. Now that the appeal has been decided adversely to Lang and he has been resentenced, the way is clear for the institution of the insanity proceedings.

The plea of insanity was advanced as a defense in the trial, but was disregarded. The assertion is now made that Lang has become mentally defective since the trial. If declared insane Lang would be sent to the insane asylum, and in case of recovery would then be executed. The commitment to an asylum would, therefore, mean practically life imprisonment.

Runaway Victim's Funeral.
The funeral of Simon Gibson, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital from injuries received in a runaway accident, will be held at Cole's undertaking rooms at 7:30 tonight. Rev. J. W. Musson will officiate. Burial will be in the Plainfield avenue cemetery tomorrow morning.

Louis Mulford, who was operated upon at the hospital yesterday for appendicitis, was in a critical condition last night, and for a time it was believed he could not live. This morning there was a decided change for the better and his chances for recovery are good.

Armstrong Mulford, of this city, who is deputy grand regent of the Royal Arcanum, paid an official visit to Bridgewater Council, No. 1375, R. A., in Somerville last night. Refreshments were served at the close of the session.

STATE SERVICE COMMISSION HAS CHANGED ITS RULES.

The State Civil Service Commission received an opinion from Nelson B. Gaskill, Assistant Attorney General, yesterday which caused it to change the tenative classification it had made of certain officials in Essex county. There were the county auditor, county collector, county engineer and county physician. Under the new ruling these officials are rated as heads of departments and therefore not subject to the Civil Service regulations.

The Assistant Attorney General in his amplified opinion defined a department head as an official who, subject to legal regulations, acts upon his own judgment and initiative, as distinguished from a subordinate who is without discretionary power. This ruling, it is said, follows closely the decisions in New York State.

The commission hereafter will have one member at the office one day a week. The headquarters will be in charge of the commissioners as follows: Tuesday, Mr. Bateman; Wednesday, President Johnson; Thursday, Mr. Kerney, and on Friday Colonel Mulliken.

—Beginning this evening and continuing through the remainder of the month and August, Neuman Brothers' store will close at 6 o'clock.

THEATRE OPENING AUG. 10

Manager Counihan Announces Dockstader's Minstrels as Season's First Offering.

BROADWAY SUCCESSES FOLLOW.

Many Standard Attractions On the Dramatic Menu For September and the Early Fall.

Running over from his summer home at Fair Haven today in order to attend to some business matters, Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, found time to discuss plans for the coming season at the playhouse. He announced that the opening attraction would be Dockstader's big minstrel organization, which will come to town on August 10 with eighty of the higest-salaried black-face artists in the country. The company is looked upon as the peer of all similar combinations and for the Plainfield engagement will present a performance eclipsing anything of the kind ever seen in the city.

During the remainder of August and in the fall, Mr. Counihan stated, the theatre will have a succession of Broadway successes. On August 15, "The Straight Road" will be the offering and on August 20, George M. Cohan's original production of "Fifty Miles from Boston" will begin its second season. The local favorites, York and Adams, come back for a furore of fun on August 22, bringing with them a company of sixty singers, dancers and comedians in a new musical production. "Ninety and Nine" is booked for August 26 and on the following night, Eugene Walter's stiring play, "Paid in Full," which has been drawing capacity audiences to the Astor theatre since last December, will be presented. The month will be rounded out with "Follies of 1907," Florenz Ziegfeld's big musical review on the New York roof, on the twenty-eighth; "Commencement Days" on the twenty-ninth and Joseph M. Gaites' whirlwind success, "Three Twins," now packing them in at the Herald Square theatre every night, on the thirty-first.

Some of the September attractions are the following: Al Wilson, in a new play; Corinue, in a new play; "Lola from Berlin;" "The Three of Us," "Strongheart," "Our New Minister," "Buster Brown," "The Great Divide," "Brown of Harvard," Sausas band, "His Honor the Mayor," and Andrew Mack.

During the winter, the same high standard of attractions will be maintained and Manager Counihan has the assurance from the booking syndicate that Plainfield theatre-goers will get the best that leaves Broadway. The popular Saturday matinees will be continued and there will be occasional afternoon performances during the week. The playhouse is at present undergoing the customary summer overhauling. When the season begins there will be two changes in the house staff. James Sullivan, formerly with the New Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy, will succeed John A. Lawrence as advertising manager and Peter Fleming is to be stage director in place of William Krega:.

MISS JOANNA SMIDDY NOW MRS M. J. CORCORAN.

Miss Joanna Smiddy, of North Plainfield, became the wife of Michael J. Corcoran at St. Joseph's church yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when the ceremony was performed by Father Miller. A small party of the immediate friends of the couple was at the church and the wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. John Hammond, of East Second street.

The bride wore Copenhagen blue crepe de chine and a white picture hat. She carried a handsome white prayerbook. Attending her was Miss Mamie Hammond, who was gowned in pale blue silk mull and carried white sweet peas tied with blue ribbon. She wore a white picture hat. Maurice Fitzgerald was best man. Following the reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip, after which they will make their home in the borough. Mr. Corcoran is chauffeur for W. J. Buttfield.

Hand Lacerated in Pump.

Mike Selani, a Slav, had three fingers of his left hand badly lacerated at Smalley's stone quarry yesterday, when he caught the member in a pump he was using. Dr. A. H. Dundon dressed the hand, but two of the fingers were so badly torn that they had to be amputated.

"Farmer Orator" Going to Maine.

James E. Martine, of "Cedar Brook Farm," who returned from the west on Tuesday, expects a little later to join his wife, who is spending the summer in Maine with Miss Duncan, of Orange.

CONSTABLE PANGBORN NABS STIRLING THIEF

Sleuthing by Constable William H. Pangborn resulted in the capture of Edward Capozzoli, an Italian, who entered Frank Cope's home at the George Terrell farm near Stirling, Sunday afternoon, and got away with about forty dollars worth of loot. The capture was effected yesterday and Capozzoli gave up the property, pleading guilty to the charge before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy at his hearing in the North Plainfield police court last night. He was remanded to await the action of the grand jury, and will be held a prisoner at Somerville.

Cope's house was entered while he was in Newark Sunday. The housebreaker took a heavy gold ring, a revolver, a safety razor, scissors, a pocketbook and other articles, valued in all at about $40. Discovering his loss upon his return, Cope reported the matter to Constable Pangborn Monday. A warrant was sworn out for the apprehension of "John Doe," of Italy, by Justice A. Hovey, and the constable got on the job promptly and ferreted for clues. He learned that a strange Italian had been seen around the Terrill farm, which is near Dead River, Sunday and was told that the man had his left hand tied up with a white bandage.

With this clue, the constable trekked around town with an eye open for lame lefts and finally found the man with the tell-tale bandage on the station platform. A train bound for New York was just pulling in to the station, and the guilty Edward was about to make a get-away. But the officer nabbed him, and although he stoutly denied that he was the house-breaker, he finally 'fessed up after the train went away and a search showed that he had the stolen goods in his pockets.

OFF TO ASBURY PARK IN TWENTY-TWO COACHES

Two trains, the first one comprising ten coaches, and the second twelve coaches, well-filled, were required to take the Methodists of Plainfield and Dunellen and the Wilson Memorial chapel to Asbury Park this morning. The first train carried the local Methodists and their friends, while the second section was occupied with the Methodists from Dunellen and the Monroe Avenue church, the latter boarding the train at Grant avenue, a convenient point for them.

Conductor Flannagan was in charge of the first train, which left here about 8:15, while Walter Durling was in charge of the second section, as conductor. It was 8:30 before it got away. Before the excursionists left Plainfield the weather began to clear and there were excellent prospects for a fine day at the shore. The start tonight on the return journey will be made at 7:15 o'clock.

WRECK CAUSES LEHIGH TO USE CENTRAL TRACKS

The wreck of an eastbound freight train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, opposite the Bound Brook station at 4 o'clock this morning, blocked the tracks at that point for six hours and the passenger and other important trains from that road were run between Bound Brook and Jersey City over the New Jersey Central. This congested traffic on the Central for a time and caused a delay to the excursion trains in leaving Plainfield.

What caused the wreck of the feright train is not known exactly, but it is said to be due to a broken axle. Three or four cars loaded with merchandise went off the tracks and the debris completely tied up traffic at that place. A wrecker was sent out from Jersey City and it was after 9 o'clock this morning before trains resumed their schedule over the Valley road. No one was injured in the wreck.

Another freight wreck occurred on the Valley road at Laury's, west of Mauch Chunk, late last night, and for a time passenger trains were obliged to use the New Jersey Central tracks at that point. Only a few freight cars were involved and the damage was not heavy.

Oil For Street Work Delayed.

The delay in receiving the shipment of oil has held up the work of improvement on North and Park avenues which will be expected to keep down the dust and preserve the wearing qualities of the macadam. Word has been received that the oil had been shipped and City Engineer Gavett is expecting it soon. Owing to the nature of the material everything must be in readiness to spread it as soon as it is received.

BISHOPS' LAW A FARCE

Excise Probers Find That It is Generally Disregarded in Union and Middlesex.

RESPECTED IN SOMERSET CO.

Elizabeth and Perth Amboy Among Cities Where No Attention Is Paid to the State Law.

Excise conditions in some parts of Union and in Middlesex counties were found to be as bad, if not worse, than those in Hudson and Passaic counties by the members of the State Excise Commission, who examined a large number of officials from the municipalities situated within their boundaries at Elizabeth yesterday. Somerset, with a few isolated cases, was given a clean bill of health.

Besides President Fisk, of this city, Commissioners Peter Backes, of Trenton; T. Frank Appleby, of Asbury Park, and John Howe, of Newark, were present with John T. Dengler, secretary of the commission. Commissioner J. Kearney Rice, of New Brunswick, who has been in Europe, is on his way home, and will be present at the next hearing, which will probably be held in Trenton.

The conseisus of opinion in Middlesex and Union counties, according to the witnesses examined, seems to be against the Bishops bill, while the people of Somerset county favor it, and would probably vote for prohibition, should the liquor question be submitted to the people. This opinion was expressed by John F. Reger, Prosecutor of the Pleas of Somerset county.

The county prosecutors from Middlesex and Union counties informed the probers that they have experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining a petit jury that would vote for a conviction in an excise case. C. Addison Swift, prosecutor of Union county, said that there was no difficulty in obtaining a conviction for the illegal sale of liquor when the defendant had no license, but where the defendant had a license the sympathy of the jurors seemed to be with the defendant, no matter how clear a case in law the authorities might have against him.

Prosecutor George Berdine said the difficulty in Middlesex county seemed to be that the jurors would not accept the evidence of paid agents. He cited several cases resulting from the crusade waged in his county by the State Anti-Saloon League shortly after the Bishops law became effective, in which the evidence showed conclusively that the law had been broken, but the juries refused to convict. Mr. Berdine took considerable pains to inform the members of the commission that the juries on these cases were composed of some of the first citizens of Middlesex county, some of them being ministers and pillars of churches, as well as professional men. "And when they won't convict, what are you going to do?" he asked Mr. Backes.

The members of the Excise Board said they had acted on several excise violations called to their attention and revoked several licenses, while the members of the police committee of the Common Council said their powers were small, but they had tried and imposed penalties on all police officers brought before them for neglect of duty. From the evidence submitted it apepared to be a sort of "round-robin," one responsible official placing the blame on the other, as one of the commissioners expressed it after the meeting.

Conditions Very Bad.

"We find excise conditions in your city very bad," said President Fisk to Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, while the latter was on the stand. "These conditions not only have to do with Sunday selling, but with reference to the back room, and then most of the places are licensed under the old inn and tavern act, while I am told not more than a dozen places comply with that law by having ten spare rooms and a stable."

It was also shown that 133 indictments for screen violations have been found since the Bishops law became effective, but very few of these indictments have ever been brought to trial. There have also been fifty-one indictments returned for excise violations. Seven convictions have been obtained, and twenty-one pleaded guilty and were fined, two were nolle prossed and three were acquitted. Many of these, however, were for selling without a license, and had nothing to do with Sunday violations.

John F. Kenah, City Clerk and clerk of the Excise Board, of Elizabeth, testified that there are 234 inns and tavers, thirty saloons, eight wholesale and eighteen bottlers' licenses operative in Elizabeth at the present time. He also said that, according to the rules of the board the inns and taverns are compelled to have only two rooms, while a saloon must have ten, a reversal of the provisions of the law. Mr. Backes

BENDER FAMILIES IN A HOT WAR OF WORDS

The entire families of Aaron Bender and Isaac Bender, who are half brothers and neighbors on Somerset street, together with relatives of both families from both city and borough, gathered in borough police court last night when Aaron had a complaint to make involving Isaac Bender, his wife Elsa, and his daughters Rosa and Lena in an interesting family scrap which has been marked by an especially virulent distribution of bad words.

Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy was on the bench and Francis J. Blatz represented Aaron while William Newcorn was Isaac's counsel. Aside from this, the case seemed at times to be a Hebrew talk-fest and at times a mere transfer of the inter-Bender feud to the court room. Judge Mundy, after hearing voluminous testimony as to just what each member of each Bender family involved thought of each and every member of the other Bender family, imposed a fine of $5 each of the four Bender defendants, but suspended the sentence.

A feature of the hearing was the dangerous excitement of Max Brook, father of Mrs. Aaron Bender, which resulted in his confinement in a cell until the conclusion of the hearing. Max lives on Second street, and hadn't heard some of the latest names applied to his daughter. His cries of remonstrance at some of the epithets interrupted testimony to such an extent that Chief Weiss had to lock him up to restore order. Justice Mundy suspended sentence at a short subsequent hearing, taking opportunity to tell him something about the rules of court order.

ALLAN WILSON DROWNED IN HOTEL BATH TUB

Following the return to this country from Scotland of the remains of Alan Wilson, son of Col. John F. Wilson, of "Tunlaw," particulars of his death, which occurred on Sunday, July 5, have been learned. Prior to going abroad he suffered epileptic fits, due to a clot on the brain, which was caused by injuries he received in an automobile accident while going from Philadelphia to Atlantic City. Under special treatment these attacks were becoming less frequent and it was the sincere hope of his relatives that eventually they would disappear. It was for this reason that he decided to take the trip abroad and undergo treatment by specialists.

The day of his death he was taking a bath in a hotel in Edinburgh, where he was stopping and it was while in the water that he was suddenly taken with an epileptic fit and before assistance could be rendered he was drowned. Attendants at the hotel found Mr. Wilson lying helpless in the bath-tub and medical aid was summoned at once. Before they arrived life had left the body and further efforts were useless. Under the direct supervision of William L. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, by which Mr. Wilson was employed as manager for the Philadelphia branch, the remains were cared for and safely brought to this country and were interred at Baltimore on Tuesday, Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiating.

Fined for Hay Field Pranks.

Chris Anderson, employed at Frank Hyde's place in the borough, nabbed fourteen-year-old George Stagaard, Church street yesterday afternoon, when George and some other boys were having lots of fun breaking down hay stacks in the field on Belmont avenue. Anderson turned his prisoner over to Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, whom he informed of the capture by 'phone. George paid a dollar to secure his freedom, according to a ruling by Borough Recorder Dolliver, this morning.

Injured While on a Visit.

Mrs. Arthur H. Osmun, of East Front street, returned last night from Connecticut, where he has been visiting her mother. In alighting from a train in Connecticut, when she reached her destination, she stepped on a rotten plank on the platform and severely sprained her ankle. She was assisted to her mother's home and during her entire visit was under the care of a physician furnished by the railroad company, thus acknowledging responsibility.

ATWATER IS ON HIS JOB

Union County's Judge Metes Out Heavy Sentence to a Bicycle Thief.

OTHERS ARE ALSO PUNISHED.

Girl Gets One of Those Familiar Sentences, Being Placed In Charge of Probation Officer As Is Another Offender.

Lucius Taylor, colored, of this city, received the most severe punishment meted out in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Elizabeth, yesterday, when Judge Atwater sent him to State Prison for one year at hard labor, on a charge of stealing a bicycle worth $15. Taylor, who is a giant in size, but only twenty years old, took his sentence without any demonstration. It was understood that the severe penalty was due to the fact that he had previously been convicted of theft.

The wheel which he took in this city belonged to Washington McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre, of Watchung avenue. It was found on West Front street by another son, Richard McIntyre, and this led to Taylor's arrest. He afterward admitted taking five different wheels belonging to Plainfielders.

Rose Stierer, of this city, who was described in court as being young and pretty, was arraigned on a charge of retailing liquor from a wagon in Plainfield, and thereby violating the law governing wholesale dealers. On account of her sex, age and smile, it is said, the court imposed a fine of $25 and put the young woman in charge of the probation officer, with the understanding that if her behavior during the time is exemplary, she will not be obliged to pay the fine.

Charles Oehler, of Plainfield, found guilty of obtaining money under false pretences, was put in charge of the probation officer with a warning.

James Deady.

James Deady, a life-long resident of the city, died yesterday at his home on West Fifth street. He had been ailing for more than a year with Bright's disease but remained at work off and on until a week ago. Mr. Deady was forty-six years old and was a plumber by trade, being employed at different times by nearly all the local contractors. His home had always been in the West End and he was widely known in the city and borough. Surviving him are a wife and seven children, one brother, John Deady, of West Fourth street, and a sister, Mrs. Nestor, living at Garwood. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Cut By Chip of Macadam.

While working at Smalley's stone quarry early today, Dominick Casetta, who but recently came to these parts from Sunny Italy, was struck in the left side of the face by a stone glancing from under a fellow-workman's pick. The macadam inflicted a deep gash just under the eye, which bled profusely. Casetta was brought to Dr. A. H. Dundon's office on a stone wagon and the wound dressed. He was able to go home.

Nose Torn by Vicious Dog.

Bertram C. Firstbrook, of Liberty street, was severely bitten in the face by a fox terrior dog this morning. He stooped down to pet the animal as it was in the yard of the owner's home on South avenue but it suddenly leaped at him and tore his nose in three places. The wounds were immediately cauterized by Dr. Blair. The dog has been vicious of late and will be closely watched for indications of hydophobia.

Slept Off Jag On Piazza.

Robert McDonough, a Scotchman who came here from Newark yesterday, filled his skin with good Scotch "whuskey" and climbed up on a piazza over in Orchard Park to sleep for the night. Special Officer Eric Soule, of the North Plainfield police, arrested him on complaint of the property owner, and Borough Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence today. McDonough went back to Newark.

No-License Peddler Fined.

Isaac Schneider, who conducts a general marchandise store on Madison avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Saffron, yesterday, for peddling without a license. In the city court, this morning, he claimed that he was only soliciting orders but as he had a big basket of notions with him when caught his excuse was not accepted. He was fined $5.

"The Big Eight" at the Shore.

Among the excursions to Asbury Park today is the one which is known as "The Bight Eight," and which includes all of the Sunday-schools in Westfield and vicinity.

BROWN TO BRENNAN, DR., TO KICK BY MULE, $300.

Because he suffered the loss of several teeth and had his face disfigured to a considerable extent by the kick of a fractious mule, John Brennan, aged fourteen years, has through his father, Thomas Brennan, of 756 Webster place, brought an action in tort for $300 damages against Fernando Brown, colored, of 766 Webster place, the owner of the mule.

Walter Hetfield, Sr., is counsel for the plaintiff, and V. W. Nash, Jr., represents the defendant. The case will be tried before a jury of twelve men in the district court on Monday and judging by the number of witnesses summoned there is sure to be an interesting time. The matter was to have come up this morning, but owing to the fact that it was impossible to get all the witnesses it was adjourned. It is said that an effort will be made to have the mule brought to court to prove that he is just as bad as his reputation, although it will probably depend largely on his disposition on the day of the trial whether this will be possible.

According to the complaint the Brennan lad was walking in front of Brown's residence on or about June 8, 1907, when suddenly without warning the mule, which was standing near the walk, raised his hind foot and planted it forcibly against his face, knocking out several teeth and cutting his face so that it may be disfigured for life. Why the legal action was delayed so long is not explained, but it is understood that there has not been the best of feeling between the Brennan and Brown families, especially since it became known that steps have been taken to recover damages.

LANDLORD AND TENANT CASES IN DISTRICT COURT

Although there were twenty cases on the list for this morning's session of the district court, there were no contested actions. Several were laid over until Monday, July 27, from which date the court will take a vacation until Thursday, August 20. Disposition was made of these contract and landlord and tenant cases:

U. Grant Pierson against Elizabeth Greeg, on contract, judgment for $75.80; Louis Goldstein against Carnello Pariella, on contract, judgment for $24.40; Max Wiener against Max Hertz, on contract, discontinued; Oliver H. Bair against Thomas A. Moore, on contract, settled: Elizabeth M. Updike against U. Grant Pierson, claim of property, discontinued; Flora Berse against Sarah Scott, landlord and tenant, possession given; Abram Kunzman against Mary Cuff, landlord and tenant, possession given; Abram Kunzman against Richard Ferris, landlord and tenant, possession given.

CO. K ENJOYS CAMP LIFE AT SEA GIRT

State Camp, Sea Girt, N. J., July 22.—The routine of camp life is being maintained strictly and the boys of Company K are sorry that half the week is gone. They are beginning to like the work and the results show this. Our company acquitted itself creditably on the range yesterday, a fuller report of which will be announced soon. Some of the men are to shoot on the higher ranges in an effort to better their scores.

The boys are enjoying the best of health and not a single one has been reported at the hospital tent. A severe thunder storm struck the camp last night, the worst in years and the heavy downpour of rain caused a small flood, but no damage resulted.

The "Rookies" are much in evidence through the initiation they received last night. About fifteen are walking about with closely-shaven heads. Private Holmes was the instigator of this and the rest of the "under men" all pitched in to help along the good work. Private Hoenig said he would murder anyone who cut his hair, but no such fatalities were reported and Private Hoenig is without his crop of hair.

It will please a great many of Private VanArsdale's friends to know that he has had his annual hair cut and his looks are much improved. Private Rothberg is in daily receipt of his usual batch of mail and is kept busy answering the same. The sergeants have sworn vengeance if he insists in wasting so much time with the mail. There is some talk of employing a private secretary for him. The freeholders will be entertained tomorrow in royal fashion by the captains of Cos. K, C and I.

EARLY CLOSING FOR N. P.

Borough Fathers Will Likely Order All Saloons to Quit Business at 11 O'Clock.

HAVE THE POWER TO DO SO.

Commissioner Backes' Advice to Be Heeded—Will Put An End to Midnight Disturbances.

After Mayor Samuel Townsend and the members of the Council return from their vacation trips, it is generally believed that no time will be lost in fixing a closing hour for North Plainfield saloons, the eyes of the borough fathers having been opened when Commissioner Backes informed the mayor at the excise commission hearing in Elizabeth that such power is vested in them. It had always been taken for granted in North Plainfield that the county court had entire jurisdiction and that under the present laws the borough saloons could be kept open all night.

One of the chief arguments for the consolidation of city and borough has been the trouble with the saloon question in North Plainfield, Plainfield having absolute control over excise regulations and having always had the business well regulated. This was pointed out today by Councilman M. C. Van Arsdale, of the borough, who declared that in his opinion, North Plainfield would proceed to enact an ordinance making 11 o'clock, the hour in Plainfield, as the time of closing.

"We have been made to suffer through the fact that our saloons keep open at night after the riff-raff are kicked out of the city saloons at 11 o'clock. They get drunk over in the borough and make a noise. If what Commissioner Backes says is correct there is no doubt that we will take advantage of the provisions in the law to close our saloons at 11 o'clock."

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, is at the Thousand Islands, but it was said by Borough Recorder Dolliver at his office that if Mr. Backes' interpretation of the law is correct in all likelihood the borough will fix a closing hour.

Miss Katherine Enright a Bride.

Miss Katherine Enright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Enright, of 691 West Seventh street, and Frede Carl Neilsen, son of Christian Neilsen, of 1463 East Second street, were married yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock by Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at his home on East Ninth street. The couple was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. P. Arne Neilsen, of this city, Mr. Neilsen being a brother of the groom. After a wedding trip the bride and groom will reside in this city, where the latter is engaged in the carpentry business.

Wait for Trinity Excursion.

The annual excursion of the Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel Sunday-schools to Asbury Park, will be on Thursday, July 30, this being the next day's outing of the kind from this city to the shore. Trinity is noted for its successful excursions and all who go to the shore on that day are assured of a fine time. The excursionists will remain at the shore until 8 o'clock in the evening. The train will leave Plainfield in the morning at 8:15 o'clock, and there will be the usual provision for carrying baby carriages, bicycles, lunch baskets, etc.

Funeral of Mrs. Vail.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Matilda Vail, widow of Ira H. Vail, was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of her home, Edward Vail, of Elmwood place. The service was conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was made in Evergreen cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Charles Vail, Randolph Vail and Arthur Vail, of Plainfield; and Fowler Vail, of Dunellen.

Fight Victims Recovering.

Ira C. Bowers, Sr., and Martin Rogers, who inflicted severe injuries upon each other at Third and Church streets, Saturday night, were reported today as steadily recovering. The hospital authorities stated that it would be at least a week yet before either one would be able to leave the institution. Rogers was weakened to a point of collapse by loss of blood from knife wounds and the physicians are having a hard time in patching up Bowers' battered face.

Killed Large Blacksnake.

While picking blackberries on lower West Seventh street near Guinea Egg pond, yesterday, Edward Gorman, of West Third street, stumbled upon a large blacksnake beneath a bush. The reptile showed fight but was quickly dispatched. It was over four feet in length.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

BERKELEY HEIGHTS.

Mrs. William Jeffery and baby daughter, Mildred, are sojourning at "The Nutley," Ocean Grove, where they will remain until September. "The Bungalo Man" and his six sons are keeping batchelors' hall during their absence, and cook their meals in a summer kitchen in the woods, to save house-cleaning troubles.

A movement to make a State aid road out of the road to Scotch Plains road, known as Plainfield avenue, is being agitated, and William Jeffery is to take the matter up with the Union County Board of Freeholders. A petition will be filed requesting the Board to give the matter attention early next year.

The Berkeley Heights schools are getting a thorough overhauling during the summer vacation. The Township Improvement Society is cooperating with William Woodruff in his work and County Superintendent J. J. Savitz also insists on the law being carried out to the letter.

The summer camp at Berkeley Heights is to be a bungalow camp next season, for the association has decided to change the tents into bungalows, equipped with running water and electric lights.

The Mono A. C. baseball nine will play the Berkeley Heights team at the local grounds Saturday afternoon. After the game both teams will be the guests of "the Bungalow Man" at dinner in the woods.

William Jeffery, "the Bungalow Man," is planning for a dam to be constructed near his bungalows. The dam will make a lake of ten acres in extent and will be finished by next season.

Dr. Willis F. Johnson, president of the Civil Service Commission, is building a new barn of cement blocks. Peter Name is building an eleven room house of the same material.

Electric lights are now being installed in Berkeley Heights' streets, and the work will be completed by September 1.

The next meeting of the Township Improvement Society will be held at the Berkeley Lyceum next Wednesday night.

Frank C. Schaffer has returned home after a month's treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield.

NORTH BRANCH.

WESTFIELD.

At an adjourned meeting of Westfield Council, held Tuesday night, the ordinances to extend the sewer in Dudley avenue were passed on final reading. The ordinance to lay a sidewalk in front of the Presbyterian cemetery was laid on the table owing to opposition to the project.

The reservoir of the Middlesex Water Company in Clark Township shows the effect of dry weather, being considerably below the low water mark. Residents near the reservoir claim that the exposed banks are detrimental to health.

An inspector of the State Board of Health visited the Westfield sewage disposal beds yesterday and took samples of the water flowing from the filtration beds.

Westfield Fire Department has returned to North Plainfield Fire Department the horses it had on trial. The animals did not come up to the requirements.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

CHURCHILL TO AID COLBY.

State Senator Everett Colby returned to Essex county from his vacation trip to the Thousand Islands yesterday and put in the day receiving the greetings of his friends, who came to witsh him success in his forthcoming Senatorial campaign. Among the letters he found awaiting him was one from Winston Churchill of New Hampshire, who said he was coming to Newark to help Senator Colby in the fight for clean politics. Mr. Churchill wrote:

"Your letter strikes in me the chord of battles. I am sitting up day and night, engaged in dramatizing 'Mr. Carew's Career,' but as soon as I get through with that work I am coming on to help you in your fight."

OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE IS NOW ON

One year ago we began here in your midst by advertising the Boehm stock at reduced prices, in order to give us the opportunity of replacing it with a cleaner and more up-to-date stock of our own selection--it took quite a time to dispose of such a houseful of goods, but we managed to do it by perseverance and cut prices. As soon as the space permitted, we filled in new merchandise of a better character, as the discontinuing of giving trading stamps allowed us to go a little "higher" on every article for the same retail price than our predecessor could pay, with an expenditure of several thousand dollars a year to the trading stamp people. We figured that the people of Plainfield would appreciate VALUE more than stamps, and we were not mistaken--for the thousands of dollars Mr. Boehm paid annually for the stamp books we began to put in merchandise. You can see the result today in a moment's comparison. Look at the bargains this house puts forth just ordinarily. LOOK AT THE BARGAINS THAT WE OFFER YOU AT THIS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE. Plainfield has never experienced such underpricing of honest dependable merchandise before--it's because our buyers are not hampered with any burdens of "so much for the stamp expense," or so much for loss of bad accounts to each lot of goods purchased. It's our policy to give you more and better merchandise for the same money than you can procure elsewhere in town--but no trading stamps or favors.

COME TO OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE--come every day if you can, you will see Bargains arrayed far more tempting than mere quotations could indicate.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will play at Summit on Saturday, while the Clinton Avenues will meet the Nationals of Perth Amboy at Crescent Oval.

Harry McCormick has been hitting pretty well since he joined the Giants.

There was a rare occurrence in Cincinnati the other day when every member of the team made one run.

McGraw has refused to waive claim to First Baseman Swacina, of Pittsburg, and may add him to the New York list.

Pitcher Hardy, formerly of the Baltimore Eastern League team, has signed with the Harrisburg Tri-State Club.

Elmira has purchased the franchise of the defunct A. J. & G. team of the New York State League.

Honus Wagner, the peerless shortstop, displayed some of his old-time form in Brooklyn, Monday, when he secured a home run and a triple and scored three of the Pirates' six runs. In the field he had one putout and six assists to his credit.

The Giants failed to land both games in St. Louis on Tuesday and failed to materially increase their standing for the day.

"Flick" Luyster again pitched for Somerville against Pennington, last Saturday, and was defeated by a score of 4 to 3. Pennington has a fast team this season, as usual.

The local fans are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the High Bridge team in this city when they will play Clinton Avenues. High Bridge is known throughout the State as a sporting centre and no doubt a large crowd will follow the Hunterdon county boys to town.

GOLF.

That the golfers of the country are constantly improving in their game notwthstanding the fact that some of the cracks fail to show the best they can do in championship or tournament play when it is expected of them seems to be clearly attested by the number of new records for various club links that has already characterized the present season. Jerome D. Travers, the national champion who disappointed his friends by not retaining the metropolitan title for another year, has been keeping in excellent practice on the Montclair Club links, and his record of 69 for the long 18-hole course made a few days ago indicates the sterling and accurate golf he can play when in his best trim.

It was one of the most creditable medal play performances of the season, and beats the old record of 70 held jointly by himself and Marshall Whitlach. The latter, not to be outdone by his former clubmate, established a new amateur record soon after at his present home club, Dyker Meadow, near Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, doing the 18 holes in 73 strokes. Travers played the course a year ago in the same figures, but at that time it was not in competition.

H. Chandler Egan, the former National champion, is by no means getting stale, although he failed to win the Southern championship, as he recently lowered the record of the Louisville Golf Club, first to 71 and the next day to 67, a splendid performance in view of the fact that 74½ is called par golf for the course. Warren K. Wood, a young Westerner, who is well known in the East, made the new record of 71 for the Homewood Country Club, near Chicago, a mark only equaled once before, and then by Lawrence Auchterloine, the professional, while practicing for the Western open championship three years ago. Wood looms up as a dangerous competitor in the forthcoming amateur championship.

Roger G. Hovey, the Hartford player who lost the Connecticut championship in the final round, cut the record for the Hartford links lately from 72 to 68. T. R. Fuller, the new Massachusetts champion, reduced the record for the Commonwealth Country Club line to 73. Dudley H. Barrows, one of the leading players at the Plainfield Country Club, has placed a record of 70 to his credit for the links.

The professionals have also been doing some record-breaking work. Joe Mitchell has made a professional record of 71 for the Upper Montclair Club course, while Alex Smith, at Nassau Country, made a new 36-hole record of 136, the 18 holes being 70 and 66, respectively. At St. Andrew's Jack Hutchinson made a record of 66, and Alec Campbell, one of the leading "pros" in the East, did the same for the Brookline Club links, also a new record. David Robertson did 63 over the Pittsburg Golf links, and George F. Sparling reduced the record at the Brooklawn Golf Club, Bridgeport, to 71.

These records simply indicate to a slight degree the wide popularity still maintained by golf and the constant practice that the leading exponents of the game are giving to their favorite sport.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of Lincoln, will preach at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning. In the evening the congregation will unite in the union service to be held at Trinity Reformed church, when Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will preach.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a regular meeting tonight.

Plainfield, N. J., July 23, 1908.

Don't forget the Cleveland Fund.

Hats off to Judge Atwater; he has started in to soak 'em.

Paterson has reason to become "real chesty" since the excise conditions in Elizabeth and Perth Amboy have become known.

The Brook Lawn Country Club, for millionaires only, is being organized at West End, N. J. Chairman Hitchcock please note.

The one best joke of the warm wave is the claim of the New Jersey dentists that they should be exempted from jury duty. Ain't it awful, Mabel?

My, what damage that "big stick" must have done to the interior of the White House! The trifling sum of $15,000 we note, has been asked for renovating the establishment.

McGraw, of Morris, has a decided advantage over some others mentioned for the Republican Congressional nomination. He would help the ticket; not be a dead weight to it.

J. M. Guffey will be put to the painful necessity of tearing up that $100,000 check he wrote in favor of the Democratic National campaign fund, as Mr. Bryan spurns "pap" in such large doses.

If the country editor cannot accept railroad tickets in exchange for advertising, why should he be allowed to take potatoes in payment of the farmer's subscription?—Newark Morning Star.

There is no law compelling you to, Mr. Smith.

Farmer Orator Martine is willing to be the sacrificial lamb once more. A Democratic Congressional nomination in the Union-Warren-Morris district would suit him. Two years ago Congressman Fowler beat Martine by 552 plurality and it was a poor year for Republicans at that.—Jersey City Journal.

As a matter of fact, it was a poor year only for Mr. Fowler, who was repudiated by the Republicans of his own county. Mr. Martine swept Republican Union, even being triumphant in Mr. Fowler's home city, Elizabeth. All other candidates on the Republican ticket in Union county were easy winners. The normal Republican majority in the Fifth district is more than 5,000, but is has steadily declined since Mr. Fowler has become a perpetual candidate. For that reason, it behooves the Republicans to name a man who would add strength to their ticket.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS HOLD A BUSY SESSION

Somerset's county Board of Chosen Freeholders met in the court room in Somerville yesterday afternoon, when all the members were present.

William C. Paulson, of Bedminster township, asked for the appointment of a committee on the road leading from Todd's Hill, through the Clark place in Bedminster township. The Director named William C. Paulson, John V. Bunn and E. B. Hoagland.

The committee reported that Isaac Morecraft was the lowest bidder on the Robeson bridge, his bid being $262.89, and John Allgair, Jr.'s, bid on the Middle Brook bridge, $301, without railing, was the lowest on that structure, and recommended the awards. It was ordered that the contracts be awarded to them at their respective bids and that the Director be authorized to execute the contracts.

Member Paulson, for the committee on the Van Neste bridge in Peapack, recommended that the contract be awarded to Philhower and Kinkle at their bid of $358.54, as estimated, not to include cobble gutter. It was ordered that the contract be awarded them at their bid and that the Director execute the same.

The following bids were opened and publicly read for the construction of the Grosscut bridge in Franklin township; John Allgair, Jr., of Somerville, $300; William T. Kirk Company, of Plainfield, $338; J. W. Scott, of Flemington, $341. The bids were referred to the committee, consisting of Members Peter Smith, Joseph Fitzga and Thomas E. Gibson.

The committee reported that the bid of John Allgair, Jr., was the lowest and recommended that the contract be awarded to him at his bid of $300. The Director was authorized to execute the contract.

Member Joel Codington, of Warren township, moved that when the board adjourned it be to meet at the Union Village bridge, a line structure between Somerset and Morris counties, on Wednesday, July 29, at 11 a. m. Carried.

The petition for the improvement of a portion of the road in the township of Bernards, near the Millington church, being about 605 feet, was presented and on motion received and placed on file.

Member Bunn, of Bernards, moved that County Engineer Doughty be authorized to survey and prepare maps for the construction of this piece of road, upon the approval of the State Commissioner of Roads, and when so approved that bids be advertised for, according to law, for its construction. Mr. Fitzga amended the motion to the effect that action on the matter be deferred until the board can view the road. Carried.

In the matter of the site for an armory it was moved that the consideration of the same be deferred until the regular meeting in August. Carried.

Member J. S. Everett moved that the board meet to view the road applied for to be improved under the State aid act, from Union avenue to Blackwell's Mills, on Saturday, August 8, at 10 a. m. Carried.

declared that this reversal was made for the express purpose of evading the screen law.

William H. Reynolds, of Elizabeth, vice-president and treasurer of the Rising Sun Brewing Company, said he thought the city was in good shape and that there should be no reduction in the number of licenses. He also declared that he didn't think it right to penalize property when a tenant violates the law. "The property owner should not be made to suffer," he said.

Peter Floersch, proprietor of the Packer House, Perth Amboy, took the witness stand of his own volition. He declared that there should be some distinction between the saloon and the hotel license regarding the hours of closing. "I also think," he said, "that the fee should be raised to $1,000 and the number limited to one to every thousand population. This will elevate the standard of the saloon and hotel. I also think that the hotel-keeper should be permitted to sell liquor to his bona fide guests who eat a bona fide meal. I don't mean by this the same as in New York, when they give a dry piece of bread, but a good, substantial meal."

SAFE ICE CREAM

WITHOUT CHURNING

Think of simply placing the ingredients in a freezer and later finding the contents frozen into the most delicious CREAMS OR ICES. All without labor. All without the usual danger of ptomaine poisoning. Our method of aerating the cream in this wonderful freezer does it.

BUY THE SANITARY CRYSTAL GLASS ICE CREAM FREEZER 1.25

Pour the cream into the glass freezer. Glass, instead of tin, prevents any poisonous chemical action. Pack in crushed ice and salt. Set aside until frozen. That is easier than grinding for even ten minutes. Lift jar from ice pack. Under a faucet rinse off salty water. Push the rod against false bottom. Slice. If you do not wish to use all put covered freezer back on ice. The cream may be kept a week by renewing ice pack.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of Benjamin Clark were held from the house yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. William Mulford, rector of All Saints' church, being in charge. The service was attended by many friends and neighbors who had known the deceased for many years. Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery, the pallbearers being John Z. Hatfield, Ira G. Walker, James Johnston, Henry C. Meyer, John Reick and Andrew Schaffer.

Everybody who could get away went with the excursion to Asbury Park this morning. Large and small to the number of several hundred made the trip and the town is deserted.

Frank Weldon's new house on Grand street is finished and Mr. Weldon and family, who are at present boarding in Rahway, will soon take possession.

Weiner and Alberts will be the battery used by Manager Frentz in the game at Rahway, Saturday afternoon.

Augustus L. Frentz, who recently underwent a serious operation for throat trouble, is improving.

James Fitzgerald has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The special Sunday-school picnic train to Bellewood will stop at New Market and Bound Brook as many friends from those places have desired to join in the outing. The train will leave here at 8:50.

SPECTATORS HOOT WHEN JUDGES AWARD RIBBONS

When the ring judges at the Atlantic City Horse Show failed to hand a ribbon to Leader of Fashion, entered by W. K. Kurff, of Moorestown, and driven by Jack Conway, the famous Philadelphia whip, the spectators made an aggressive demonstration. Their decision being based on the alleged failure of Conway to obey orders as to slowing down, the ribbons were given to four other entries, headed by Reginald Vanderbilt's Phoebe Walton, and in return the occupants of the stands and boxes hooted the award, at the same time cheering Conway.

George Watson, of New York, who has divided honors with Reginald Vanderbilt, entered the two coach teams which furnished the most spectacular event of the afternoon. His two fours were made up of Cinderella, Masher, Dude and Swell, who took the blue, and King Charles, King George, Empire and Emperor, a showy quartet of grays driven to the coach Nimrod. Among other winners for the day were: Defender, owned by Harvey Ladew, in the pony class; Kentucky Queen, owned by George Watson, in the saddle class. Lewis E. Waring, of this city, is one of the judges at the show.

Borough Neighbors Scrap.

A neighborly feeling for the care of William H. Parch's children, who live near her home on Harrison avenue, prompted Mrs. Julia Steiger to administer corporal punishment to one of the Parch boys Monday. The father resented; words followed; Mrs. Steiger was arrested by Borough Marshal Pope on a warrant last night. Borough Recorder Dolliver conveyed in judicial language to the woman the idea that she was to mind her own business and control her words, and she was dismissed at her hearing this morning.

Antony Farino.

Antony Farino, the nine-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Farino, died yesterday at the parents' home in Scotch Plains. The funeral was held this afternoon and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

SENT TO MRS. CLEVELAND.

Governor's Proclamation On Husbands' Death Engrossed.

The proclamation by Governor Fort on the occasion of the death of the late Grover Cleveland has been beautifully engrossed on heavy parchment by Augustus Clerk, engrosser at the Secretary of State's office.

The proclamation is enclosed in a rich frame and was forwarded to Mrs. Cleveland at Princeton yesterday.

Scribner Sues Trolley Company.

The suit for $500 started by Spencer Scribner against the Public Service Railway Co. for injuries received about a month ago, when a main line trolley collided with Chamberlain's wagon in which he was riding, has been set for Thursday, August 20, in the district court. The accident happened at Richmond and Third streets June 27, when Spencer was thrown out of the painter's wagon, sustaining injuries to his leg and bruises. Francis J. Blatz is Spencer's attorney and Clark & Case will represent the company. The suit is of especial interest as a test case, for four others in the wagon were also hurt when car met wagon.

Mrs. Mary Dow Buried.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Dow, 76 years old, was held yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin. Rev. Thomas D. Wesley, the pastor, officiated, and burial was in the cemetery adjoining. Deceased was the widow of Eli P. Dow, who died two weeks ago, and leaves two sons, James and William Dow, both residents of Somerset county. She died from cancer of the stomach, after a long illness.

ASKED IF TROLLEY CO. OWNED THE ALDERMEN.

Alderman Feaster stirred up a hornets' nest at Tuesday's meeting of the New Brunswick Common Council, when he asked by what right the Public Service Corporation laid a switch on Throop avenue, last Sunday. He wanted to know if the board was owned by the Public Service Corporation, and said he hoped the book of passes handed out to the aldermen did not have such weight as that.

Alderman Groves said that as acting Mayor his attention was called to the matter last Sunday by Mr. Hagely, of the street railway company. He visited the police station and found that Mr. Feaster had left word that Sunday work should not be allowed. Mr. Hagely said it was necessary to have the work done that day and he gave permission, with the understanding that it should be stopped by the police if any one complained. Mr. Feaster said not long ago a Hebrew blacksmith was fined $15 for working on Sunday, and he thought all should be treated alike. Alderman Orpen wanted Mr. Feaster to apoligize for his statement, but he refused to do so.

Aldermen Groves, Orpen and Blue declared the Public Service did not own them.

ELIZABETH THIEVES THROW VICTIM INTO THE RIVER.

Stephen Buckes, a Lithuanian, is in the Alexian Hospital at Elizabeth suffering from a fractured skull, and his recovery is doubtful. He was brought there in a wagon at 11 o'clock last night.

His story is that while walking across the South Front street bridge, at Elizabeth, he was attacked by footpads, who, after beating and robbing him, threw him into the river.

It was low tide and he managed to crawl out of the stream. He was lying exhausted on the bank, covered with mud and slime, when he was discovered by a workman of a brewing concern.

Buckes does not belong in Elizabeth, but says he came from New York to look for work. The police have been notified of the affair.

A tough gang hangs around the locality where the crime is said to have been committed, and this is not the first person who has been waylaid while crossing the river at this point.

WIFE CHOSE SUCCESSOR.

James Ackerman, as She Requested When Dying, Married to Her Maid.

Manumuskin, July 23.—The marriage at Camden yesterday of James Ackerman and Miss Lottie Whitely was in accordance with the wish of Ackerman's first wife, who died about a year ago and who, when dying, selected her successor as her husband's helpmate.

Ackerman, who is sixty years of age, lives at Marshalville, near here. Nearly two years ago his wife engaged Miss Whitely, who formerly lived in Newark, as her maid. During her last illness her ward was a devoted nurse and it was then she expressed a desire that her maid should be her successor. Ackerman's second wife is thirty years his junior. Upon their return from the Thousand Islands, where they are spending their honeymoon, they will reside at Hunter's Mills.

Swimmer Had Close Call.

Earl Northrup, twenty-six years old, married, and living at 422 Rosehill place, Elizabeth, was seized with cramps yesterday while swimming in Staten Island Sound. His cries for help were heard by some of the workmen employed in building the new Standard Oil plant, and they hastened to his aid. One of the rescuers, by diving, found him and brought him to the surface. The young man was unconscious. The General Hospital ambulance was summoned and he was hurried to that institution. It took four hours of hard work to restore him to consciousness. He is considered out of danger today.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The home mission schoolhouse and what it does.—II Chron. xvii, 1-9.

The importance of teaching in connection with religion has been recognized since the very earliest times. In the early national life of the Jews parents were not only commanded to keep and magnify the law, but "to teach it to their children." During the Jewish dispersion in every Jewish synagogue there was a school for the children, the teaching being largely religious. In this respect Christianity has followed in the footsteps of Judaism. The work for centuries was largely done by Christian parents and academic institutions organized by Christian philanthropists. But for the past century and a little over Sunday schools have been associated with most churches, the chief business of which has been to instruct the young in the word of God, that it may make them "wise unto salvation."

Such a history would necessarily and inevitably link the school with mission work. Christ commanded His disciples to teach as well as preach. Churches follow His example in this respect. The mission schoolhouse is an important factor today as never before. The hope of the future lies in the children and youth of today, and if they can be educated along the right lines this future and the future of God's kingdom are assured.

In the work of education and missions various kinds of schools are in operation. There is the day school. It may be in the missionary's house or in the building prepared for it or in any suitable place that can be secured. The first mission school in Alaska was a dance hall, but it was the best place that could be found. Here the smaller children attend and are taught, and in all our mission fields there are such schools. Then there are boarding schools, largely for young women, that they may be taught for the purpose of teaching their own people at home. Such schools are necessary in all our mission fields. In home mission work we find them among the Indians, Alaskans, mountaineers of the south and other exceptional classes of people in our land. For instance, the Presbyterian church has such a school at New Concord, N. C., called Scotia seminary. Here 400 of the brightest colored girls of the south are assembled, and when graduated they go back to their own homes and teach school, sometimes having as many as sixty scholars under them. The tremendous advantage of such a widespread and important work can scarcely be calculated. Above the boarding schools are colleges and theological seminaries, where young men are prepared for the ministry.

The mission schoolhouse, in whatever form, stands for three things—the education of the heart, the mind and the hand. The supreme object of all mission work is to save souls, and this is always kept in mind. No other education will suffice to replace it. Learning to use the hammer or to make a dress is important, but neither can regenerate the heart. Christian teachers put religion first, but they do not neglect the mind and hands. The mind is trained. It was my privilege as a director of Scotia seminary to be present a few years ago at commencement to deliver an address the evening before. There were 400 present and all dressed in white, and each girl had made with her own hands the dress that she wore. What young ladies' seminary, outside our mission schools, could produce 400 students who could make commencement dresses? Perhaps some of their fathers would be pleased to know they knew less Greek or French and more about making their own clothes.

This is only a brief reference to the mission schoolhouse in comparison to what might be said. A volume might be written and then something omitted. But it at least shows us the importance of the school work and should increase our interest in teachers and students. They need our prayers or sympathy and financial support. Let us give all these liberally and cheerfully.

The Northampton Bank Robbery

About midnight on Tuesday, January 25, 1876, five masked men entered the house of John Whittelsey in Northampton, Mass. Mr. Whittelsey was the cashier of the Northampton National Bank, and was known to have in his possession the keys of the bank building and the combination to the bank vault. The five men entered the house noiselessly, with the aid of false keys, previously prepared. Passing upstairs to the sleeping apartments, they overpowered seven inmates of the house, gagging and binding them so that resistance or alarm was impossible. These were Mr. Whittelsey and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Cutler, Miss Mattie White, Miss Benton and a servant girl.

The bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Whittelsey was entered by two men who seemed to be leaders of the band. One wore a long linen duster buttoned nearly to the knees, also gloves and overshoes; the other wore a jacket and overalls. Both men had their faces concealed behind masks, and one of them carried a dark-lantern. On entering the room the two men went directly to the bed, one standing on either side, and handcuffed Mr. Whittelsey and his wife. Both carried revolvers. The proceedings were much the same in the other rooms.

After some delay and whispered consultation, the robbers ordered the five women to get up and dress. When they had done so, they were roped together by ankles and wrists, and taken into a small room, where they were kept under guard by one of the band. Mr. Cutler also was imprisoned in the same way. Then the two leaders devoted themselves to Mr. Whittelsey. They told him plainly that they had come for the keys of the bank and the combination of the vault, and that they would "make it hot" for him unless he gave them what they wanted. Mr. Whittelsey replied that it was useless to attempt to break into the bank, as the locks were too strong for their efforts and he would not betray his trust. At this the man in the linen duster shrugged his shoulders and said they would see about that.

Mr. Whittelsey was then taken downstairs, and again summoned to surrender the keys. Again he refused. At this the man in the overalls put his hand in the cashier's trousers pocket and drew forth a key.

"Is this the key to the bank?" he asked.

"Yes, it is," answered the cashier, hoping to gain time.

"You lie," said the robber, with threatening gesture, at the same time trying the key in the lock of the front door of the house, which it turned.

"Don't hit him yet," said the other; "he is sick." Then he asked Mr. Whittelsey if he wanted a drink of brandy. Mr. Whittelsey shook his head no. Then the man in the linen duster renewed his demands. He wanted the combination of the vault. Mr. Whittelsey gave him some figures, which the robber wrote down on a piece of paper. These were for the outer door of the vault. He demanded the combination for the inner door, and Mr. Whittelsey gave him other figures. Having written these down also, the robber came close to his prisoner and said: "Will you swear these figures are correct?"

"I will," answered Mr. Whittelsey.

"You are lying again. If they are correct, let's hear you repeat them."

The cashier could not do this, and so disclosed that the figures were not the right ones.

"See, Number One," said the robber, addressing his comrade, "we're wasting time; we'll have to teach him to stop lying."

As he spoke he struck the sharp point of his lead pencil into Mr. Whittelsey's face so violently as to make a wound, and followed this with several blows on the body.

"Will you tell us now?" he asked.

Mr. Whittelsey kept silent. Then both men came at him, wringing his ears, shaking him by the throat, hurling him to the floor, and pounding their knees into his chest. For three hours this torture was continued. More than once the ruffians placed their revolvers at Mr. Whittelsey's head, declaring they would blow his brains out unless he yielded. Finally he did yield; the suffering was too great; the supreme instinct of self-preservation asserted itself. Toward four o'clock in the morning, bruised from head to foot, and worn beyond further resistance, he surrendered the keys, and revealed the true combination of the vault.

Then the robbers went away, leaving two of their associates to watch over the prisoners. One of the band, before his departure, did not disdain to search Mr. Whittelsey's clothes and take his watch and chain and $14 in money. The last of the band remained in the house until six o'clock; and it was an hour later before Mr. Whittelsey succeeded in freeing himself from his bonds.

He hurried at once to the bank, arriving there soon after seven o'clock. He found the vault door locked, and its dials broken off, so that it was impossible at the moment to determine the extent of the robbery, or, indeed, whether there had been any robbery. It was necessary to send to New York for an expert before the vault could be opened, which was not accomplished until late that night, 20 hours after the attack had been made. Then it was found that the robbers had been only too successful, having secured money and securities estimated at a million and a quarter dollars. Much of this sum was safe-deposits, and the loss fell on the depositors; and to some it was the loss of their whole property.

At this time the authorities had no clew to the identity of the robbers, though they had left behind them numerous evidences of their presence, such as dark-lanterns, masks, sledge-hammers, overshoes and the like. Their escape had been managed as skillfully as the robbery itself. Sheriff's officers and detectives did their best during subsequent days and weeks, but their efforts were in vain. The president of the bank offered a reward of $25,000 for the apprehension of the robbers and the return of the property; but there were no discoveries.

When several months had elapsed the Pinkertons were called into the case. They began by carefully studying certain communications that had been received by the bank directors from persons claiming to have in their possession the missing securities. The first of these communications was dated New York, February 27, 1876, about a month after the robbery. It ran as follows, the letters of each word being carefully printed with a pen, so that there was little chance of identification through the handwriting:

"Dear Sirs: When you are satisfied with detective skill you can make a proposition to us, the holders, and if you are liberal we may be able to do business with you. If you entertain any such ideas, please insert a personal in the New York Herald. Address to XXX, and sign 'Rufus,' to which due attention will be paid. To satisfy you that we hold papers, we send you a couple of pieces."

[No signature.]

No attention had been paid to this letter, although two certificates of stock accompanied it which had undoubtedly been in the bank's vault. Three other letters of a similar nature had been received later. To one of these the bank people had sent a guarded reply, which had called forth the following response, dated New York, October 20, 1876:

"Gentlemen: Since you have seen fit to recognize the receipt of our letter, we will now send you our price for the return of the goods. The United States coupon bonds and money taken cannot be returned; but everything else—bonds, letters and papers, to the smallest document—will be returned for $150,000. If these figures suit you, we will make arrangements, according to our promise, and you may have the goods as soon as preliminaries can be arranged for the safe conduct of the business. If you agree to this price insert in the [illegible] simple word 'Agatha.' Respectfully etc.,

"RUFUS."

The special value of these letters was in helping the detectives to decide which one of several gangs of bank robbers then operating in the country was most likely to have committed the crime. Being familiar with the methods of each gang, Robert Pinkerton was able to draw useful inferences from evidence that would otherwise have been insignificant. He knew, for instance, that the notorious gang headed by James Dunlap would be more apt than any other to thus negotiate for the return of all the securities in a lump, since it was Dunlap's invariable rule to insist upon personally controlling the proceeds of his robberies until final disposition was made of them. On the other hand, the gangs headed respectively by the notorious "Jimmy" Hope, "Worcester Sam" and George Bliss might have divided the securities among the members, and then tried to negotiate a compromise on the individual portions.

A fact of much significance to the Pinkertons was the rather remarkable interest in the case, and apparent familiarity with it, shown by one J. G. Evans, an expert in safes and vaults and the representative of one of the largest safe manufactories in the country.

The day after the robbery Evans had been at Bristol, Conn., in the interest of his firm, who, on receipt of the news, had immediately wired him to proceed to Northampton. His presence in Northampton was regarded as nothing strange, for he had been there several times during the months just preceding the robbery, and once had inspected the lock and dials of the vault of the robbed bank. What did seem a little strange, however, was Evans' evident interest in the negotiations for a compromise. On a dozen different occasions he talked with the president and other officers of the bank regarding the robbery, and insinuated quite plainly that he might be in a position to assist them in recovering their lost securities. A few months after the robbery he even went so far as to tell one of the directors that he could name the members of the gang.

This disposition of Evans to put himself forward in the negotiations had all the more significance to Robert Pinkerton from the fact that it had been rumored that a series of daring bank robberies lately committed in various parts of the country had owed their success to the participation of an expert in safes and locks, who had been able, through his position of trust, to reveal to the robbers many secrets of weak bank locks, safes and vaults. Up to this time these rumors had remained indefinite, and no one ventured to name the man. It was known, however, that the false expert was a man of high standing in his calling and generally regarded as above suspicion. It was also known that there was great jealousy in other gangs of bank robbers because of the amazing success of the gang with whom this man was working, and that overtures even had been made by the leaders of some other gangs to win over to their own gangs this desirable accomplice. Robert Pinkerton had already concluded that the gang so ably assisted was the Dunlap gang; and he was now pretty well persuaded, also, that the Northampton robbery had been committed by the Dunlap gang. There was every reason, therefore, for keeping a sharp eye on the safe-exeprt Evans.

As he studied the case Mr. Pinkerton recalled a circumstance that had happened in the fall of 1875. On the night of November 4, 1875, the First national bank of Pittston, Pa., had been robbed of $60,000, and Mr. Pinkerton had gone there to investigate the case. He met a number of safe-men, it being a business custom with safe-men to flock to the scene of an important bank [illegible] supply new safes for the ones that have been wrecked. While they were all examining the vault, still littered with debris of the explosion, the representative of one of the safe companies picked up a small air-pump used by the robbers and, looking at it critically, remarked that he would have sworn it belonged to his company did he not know that was impossible. The air-pump was, he declared, of precisely his company's model, one that had been recently devised for a special purpose. At the time Mr. Pinkerton regarded this as merely a coincidence, but now the memory came to him as a flash of inspiration that the man who had remarked the similarity in the air-pump represented the same company that employed Evans.

In view of all the circumstances, it was decided to put Evans under the closest questioning. He did not deny that he had made unusual efforts to effect the return of the securities, but professed that it was because he was sincerely sorry for the many people who had been ruined through the robbery. And he professed to believe, also, that he had been unjustly treated in the affair, though just how, and by whom, he would not say. To the detective's trained observation it was apparent that he was worried and apprehensive and not at all sure of himself.

In November, 1876, George H. Bangs, superintendent of the Pinkerton agency, a man possessed of very remarkable skill in eliciting confessions from suspected persons, had an interview with Evans. He professed to Evans that the detectives had secured evidence that practically cleared up the whole mystery; that they knew (whereas they still only surmised) that the robbery had been committed by the Dunlap and Scott gang, and that Evans was a confederate; that for weeks they had been shadowing Scott and Dunlap (which was true), and could arrest them at any moment; that there was no doubt that the gang had been trying to play Evans false (a very shrewd guess), and would sacrifice him without the slightest compunction; and, finally, that there was open to Evans one of two courses—either to suffer arrest on a charge of bank robbery, with the prospect of 20 years in prison, or save himself, and at the same time earn a substantial money reward, by making a clean confession of his connection with the crime. All this, delivered with an air of completest certainty, was more than Evans could stand up against. He broke down completely, and told all he knew.

The story told by Evans is one of the most remarkable in the history of crime. He admitted the correctness of Robert Pinkerton's inference that the Northampton bank had been robbed by Scott and Dunlap and their associates, and in order to explain his own connection with this formidable gang he went back to its organization in 1872. The leader of the gang was James Dunlap, alias James Barton, who, before he became a bank robber, had been a brakeman on the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis railroad. His inborn criminal instincts led him to frequent the resorts of thieves in Chicago, and thus he met "Johnny" Lamb and a man named Perry, who took a liking to him and taught him all they knew about breaking safes. Dunlap soon outstripped his masters, developing a genius for robbery and for organization that speedily proved him the most formidable of all the bank robbers then operating in the country, not even excepting "Jimmy" Hope, the notorious Manhattan bank robber. He had the long-headedness and stubbornness of his Scotch parents, united with the daring and ingenuity peculiar to Americans. In the fall of 1872 he organized the most dangerous and best equipped gang of bank robbers that the country had ever known.

SAW IT WAS PROCTOR.

Dunlap's right hand man was Robert C. Scott, alias "Hustling Bob," originally a deck-hand on a Mississippi steamboat and afterward a hotel thief. Scott was a big, powerful man, with a determination equal to anything. Their associates were [illegible] these two. Other members of the gang were Thomas Doty, William Conroy, "Eddie" Goody, John Perry, James Greer, a professional burglar originally from Canada, and the notorious John Leary, alias "Red" Leary, of whom more will be said later on. In addition to these, the gang contained several members of less importance, men who acted merely as lookouts, or as go-betweens or messengers.

POLITICAL NOTES.

"I am counting on New Jersey," says Wiliam H. Taft, Republican nominee for President, in a letter received by the 8th Ward Republican Club, of Jersey City, yesterday. The club sent Mr. Taft a letter indorsing his candidacy, and in a letter sent from Hot Springs, Va., the candidate says:

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 11th, inclosing the resolutions of the 8th Ward Republican Association of Jersey City and to thank you and the members of the association for sending the same and the kind words of the indorsement. Very sincerely yours,

"WILLIAM H. TAFT.

"P. S.—I am counting on New Jersey."

The New York Tribune says that John J. McGraw has a close rival for 5th District Congressional honors in Senator Hillery, also of Morris county, and a man of much popularity throughout the entire district.

According to the rumors which emerged from the meeting of the Democratic State Committee at Jersey City, Tuesday, General D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth, is in line for treasurer of the state committee.

State Senator Everett Colby, who has returned from his vacation trip to the Thousand Islands and put in the day at West Orange, Tuesday, receiving the greetings of his numerous friends who went there to wish him success in his forthcoming campaign. Among the letters he found awaiting him was one from Winston Churchill, of New Hampshire, who declared that he was coming to Newark to help Senator Colby in the big fight for clean politics this fall. Mr. Churchill wrote:

"Your letter strikes in me the chord of battles. I am sitting up day and night engaged in dramatizing 'Mr. Carew's Career,' but as soon as I get through with that work I am coming to help you in your fight."

Camden county Republicans are in the midst of a hot fight for the nomination for sheriff. The candidates are Under Sheriff William D. Brown, who has been in the office for a number of years and has a large and formidable following, and former Mayor Cooper B. Hatch, of Camden, one-time reformer. A good many of the rank and file have been anxious to know the status of the machine in the fight, but apparently nobody has received any orders, and State Assessor Baird is permitting the situation to adjust itself.

Although a successor to Representative James S. Sherman as chairman of the Republican congressional committee will not be chosen until the meeting of the executive committee in Utica about August 3, it is learned on good authority that Representative Loudenslager, of New Jersey, probably will be the selection.

The Gloucester county Democratic executive committee has appointed a committee, consisting of Ellwood Usinger, William C. Allen, Joseph T. Sickler, Charles N. Salisbury and Thomas L. Munyon to secure candidates for the various offices to be filled in that county this fall.

The Democratic congressional convention for the Sixth congressional district is to be held in Newton, in Sussex county, Tuesday, September 29, one week after the primaries. There will be about 272 delegates in the convention, Bergen county having about 105, Passaic 130 and Sussex 37. Congressman William Hughes, of Paterson, will receive a renomination.

Former Congressman Allan Benny, of Bayonne, who sank out of sight politically after he retired from Congress, showed that he was still interested in politics when he accompanied the Hudson county delegation to Denver and took an active part in the doings of the national Democratic convention. Benny is interested in mines in Nevada, and that was one of the reasons why he went west. He is an ardent Bryan man, and says he feels confident that Bryan will prove a winner this time. Mr. Benny left the New Jersey tourists last week in Yellowstone Park and then went to Nevada to look after his mining interests in that state, but he expects to vote in Hudson for Bryan next fall.

The Republican State committee is chosen every four years, the convention that names the delegates-at-large to national Presidential conventions ratifying the selections of the delegates from each of the twenty-one counties for membership in it. With the meeting at Newark next month the national campaign in this State will be under way. A new executive committee will be named by the incoming chairman, and headquarters will be established in Newark and in Trenton. Former Governor Franklin Murphy, who is a member-at-lage and present chairman, will be chosen for the new committee's head, if he will accept, and it is understood that he will consent to run another campaign. He has been prominent in all the political battles of recent years in both State and nation. Four years ago, as chairman of the national executive committee, he played a leading part in the Roosevelt campaign. State Commissioner of Labor and Statistics Winton C. Garrison, of Newark, will be chosen treasurer again, and will be asked to supply the sinews of war. It is not certain that Judge Malcolm MacLear, who is also a Newarker, will be able to continue to serve as secretary.

The Newark Evening News yesterday mentioned Mayor Fisk as good sort of Congressional timber. Mr. Fisk will have none of it. In this vicinity, Mr. McGraw, of Morris county, appear to be the favorite for the Republican nomination.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Harry Dreier and children, of West Front street, have gone to Arverne for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stiglitz and daughter, Miss Hannah Stiglitz, are sojourning at Monticello, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz, of Somerset street, are registered at the Sea Cliff House, Monticello, N. Y.

Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, and her youngest son, Elmer, are at The Park View, Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of this city, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey T. Sprague at Freeport, L. I.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Townsend are sojourning at the Cascade House, Cascade Lake, Sussex county, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Runyon, of Second place, left today for Belmar where they will spend a week as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Runyon.

"FITZ" TO FIGHT AGAIN; KETCHELL HIS OPPONENT.

"Bob" Fitzsimmons, haled as the "grand old man" of the squared circle, is again to enter the ring, and arrangements are now pending for a bout between the former Dunellenite and Stanley Ketchell, of Grand Rapids.

The match is of "Fitz's" own seeking, for the lanky lion-tamer believes that despite his years, he is still able to take care of himself in a champion cuffing bee. He issued the challenge personally, and Stanley accepted. The details of date, place and purse are now being arranged. "Fitz" is in good condition, he says, and indeed he must be to desire a match with Ketchell. Within a year the Grand Rapids middleweight has won bouts from Jack Twin and Mike Twin Sullivan, Joe Thomas and Bill Papke.

TEMPERANCE MEN MEET.

New Jersey Society Holds First Meeting to Outline Work.

The first meeting of the New Jersey Temperance Society (incorporated), which was recently organized through the gift of $25,000 from James R. Sayre, was held yesterday at Newark, and a committee composed of James P. Dusenberry, James S. Higbie, the Rev. Dr. William Y. Chapman and the Rev. Dr. Lyman Whitney Allen was appointed to confer with Mr. Sayre.

A representative of the Anti-Saloon League made a plea for an appropriation by which the league might be assisted in carrying on its work. This matter was referred to the board of managers.

Negroes Serenade Davis.

An open-air reception "of the colored citizens of Hudson county" was planned last night at Jersey City to show Robert Davis how much he is appreciated by the negro voters. Mr. Davis was so fatigued after his eighteen days' trip to the Democratic convention to Denver that when the negroes, headed by King's Band, of Newark, marched past his residence he invited them to go to the plaza of the Robert Davis Association clubhouse in Mercer street and hold a meeting, which they did.

Bees Invade a Bakery.

Attracted by the honeyed odor of a new brand of sugar cake displayed for sale, a swarm of bees invaded John Wirth's bakery on Front street, yesterday afternoon. They had everything their own way for a short time but finding their efforts to get at the sweets baffled by nettings, they settled in a corner for an indefinite stay. With the assistance of his employes, Mr. Wirth bagged the swarm and put them in an improvised hive.

Howard T. Schneckler, superintendent of the Elizabeth Rescue Mission, will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission in the W. C. T. U. tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be special music.

DISPUTE INVOLVES TRESPASS.

Lebanon Township Committee Asked to Decide Property Rights.

Glen Gardner, July 23.—The Lebanon Township Committee met at this place yesterday to settle a dispute between Jacob Castner and Peter Sigler. Castner owns a property at the corner of Church street and an unused alley, and had erected a stairway leading therefrom to his front porch, and cultivated a lawn in front of his residence.

Some time ago Sigler purchased a property of Dr. Hunt, the right of way being past Castner's property. Sigler claimed there was a street there and that Castner's steps were on it, and alleged Castner used his lawn for a driveway. The committee was appealed to to settle the dispute, the result of which has not been made public.

Street Commissioner Charles S. Potter was before the committee to enter a complaint against the Central Railroad Company for maintaining a dangerous culvert on Hillside avenue, in this village. The culvert referred to is not wide enough for two teams to pass, and is built diagonally across the street, so that two teams approaching from opposite directions could not see each other until they had entered it on a heavy grade. Since the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases has been built the travel is much more heavy, this being the only road leading to the institution. Several serious accidents have recently been averted only by the watchfulness of the team drivers. The township clerk was instructed to communicate with the railroad company, calling its attention to the dangerous condition of the culvert.

BURNING BALLOON A TRAP.

Paterson Aeronaut Caught by "Back Draft" While Filling Hot Air Bag.

Paterson, July 23.—Aeronaut Edward B. Allen, of Bridgeport, Conn., who has been making balloon ascensions at Fairyland Park for a week past, was badly burned while preparing the big hot-air bag for an ascension at the park last night.

Caught in the interior of the big balloon, while regulating the flame from the opening which fills the bag with heated air, Allen and his assistant, Frederick Lahoni, had narrow escapes from being cremated. Lahoni was fortunate enough to escape the flames, but Allen was less lucky.

A back draft enveloped Allen suddenly, and in a moment the balloon had also taken fire.

Attendants at the park telephoned to the General Hospital for the ambulance, but in the mean time Allen was placed on a Main street trolley car and conveyed to St. John's Hospital. He fainted twice in the admitting room.

He is badly burned about the arms, hands, face, head and neck. The physicians fear he also inhaled some of the flames, as he had considerable difficulty in breathing. While in this city Allen makes his home at 47 River street.

RESCUE OF NEW JERSEY TRIO.

Motorboat Ablaze In Casco Bay, Me., As Result of Match Falling In Gasoline.

Portland, Me., July 23.—Forced to jump overboard from their motorboat by flames which burned the craft to the water's edge, three people, Bernard McGowan and his mother, of Atlantic City, N. J., and L. L. Foster, of Jersey City, were rescued from drowning in the nick of time yesterday afternoon by E. J. and Benjamin Starr, of Spencer, Mass., who in another motor-boat witnessed the accident while half a mile away. Mrs. McGowan and Foster are seriously burned and confined to their beds.

The party are all summer guests at Bailey's Island, Casco Bay. They were two miles out when Foster carelessly dropped a lighted match into the bottom of the boat where gasoline had leaked from the tank. Mrs. McGowan and her son managed to climb to the stern of the flaming boat, while Foster kept afloat until help arrived.

AERONAUT IN BALLOON FIRE.

He and His Assistant, Caught In Gas Bag, Are Nearly Cremated.

Edward B. Allen, an aeronaut of Bridgeport, Conn., is in St. Joseph's Hospital at Paterson suffering from burns he received Tuesday night while getting ready for an ascension at Fairyland Park.

Allen with his helper, Frederick Lahoni, was preparing the balloon when they were caught inside, and both narrowly escaped being cremated. Allen's clothing caught fire, and he was badly burned before assistance reached him. He was caught in a back draught, but his assistant jumped out of danger, escaping with a few bruises and cuts. The big gas-filled balloon caught fire and was soon destroyed.

Allen's face, head, arms, and neck are badly burned, but at the hospital surgeons believe he will recover.

Strike Evokes Damage Suits.

As the outcome of factional strife in Hungarian circles in Trenton, Louis Warady, a real estate promoter, today began damage suits against Nicholas Binder and Sigmund Zeisler, respectively. He asks $50,000 damages.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Seventh-Day Adventists will open a campmeeting on Davis street, Woodbury, August [illegible], for ten days.

Salem county banks are rushed with business, as the farmers are depositing large sums from sales of potatoes. Never before has the price run so high.

John Black, of 80 Sixteenth avenue, Paterson, was treated at the General Hospital, that city, yesterday for a fracture of the right forearm due to a fall in the sidewalk.

Aged Mrs. Catherine Webb, eighty-two years old, of 70 Chestnut street, Paterson, tripped over a misplaced rug in her home yesterday afternoon and sustained a fracture of the right hip.

A Trenton man is to be named to the assistant custodianship of the State Capitol, to succeed the late William H. Messeroll, who was a Trentonian. A number of candidates have appeared.

The tents of the Apostlic Holiness campmeeting at Glassboro will be transferred to Clayton, where camp will be held from today to July 30. Rev. William Jarrell, of Glassboro, will have charge.

Mayor Lincoln, of Gloucester, was notified yesterday that sixteen-year-old Mary Hendricks, of 3311 North Front street, Philadelphia, had disappeared from home and is believed to be in Gloucester.

Patrick Maher was quite seriously injured by being wedged between two wagons while taking goods from one in front of his employer's store at 65 Main street, Paterson, yesterday. At St. Joseph's Hospital it was stated that while no bones were broken internal injuries were feared.

Arrested as a deserter from the army Michael E. Murray, a commissary sergeant at Fort Meyer, Va., told the police officials in Camden yesterday that his mind has been a blank since he disappeared July 5. He said he had been wandering from place to place in a sort of daze. He denied having been drinking heavily.

Proceedings were instituted in the Supreme Court yesterday by William C. French, of Camden, against the Public Service Corporation to recover 10,000 damages for injuries sustained by Emma C. Rowand, when she was thrown from a carriage when their horse became frightened at a trolley car. Mrs. Rowand was accompanied by her husband at the time of the accident.

By reporting what is said to be a fictitious robbery, Abraham Friedman, of 106 Arctic avenue, Atlantic City, according to the police, gave them clues for his arrest on charges of larceny. Pawn tickets found in Friedman's room called for pieces of jewelry stolen from the cottage of Mrs. A. A. Johnson, on Doughty avenue, on the night of July 7. Frank Miller, who is said to have been Friedman's accomplice, was traced to Richmond, Va., where he was arrested this week.

A thirty-horsepower motor boat owned by R. R. Miller, of Camden, was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon at Cape May while it was returning from a fishing trip with Paul Bailey and Ross Miller the latter the son of the owner. The back fire from the engine set the gasoline in the carbureter on fire. The boys threw water on it. It thus spread to the fire until it came within six inches of the gasoline tank. The flames were hecked by the liberal use of sand. The loss is about $1,000.

Robbed of $6 and beaten almost into unconsciousness, James Wick, of 528 West street, appeared before Justice of the Peace Thompson in Camden yesterday and caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of four men, whom he charges with having assaulted him at the dictation of a woman. Persons concerned refuse to reveal the identity of the men, but Mrs. Lizzie E. Kirk, of 126 Clinton street, is named as the woman in the case, and she was held in $300 bail on a charge of larceny.

SHE FIRED ON THE THIEVES.

Mrs. Hamilton Saw Them Stealing Horse and Blazed Away.

Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, who lives with her sister in a lonely spot, not far from the Piaget Hotel, on Valley Roads, about a mile from Montclair, was awakened at midnight Tuesday night by the neighing of one of the two horses in the stable back of her home.

Opening a window she saw two men, by the light of the vivid lightning that was playing at the time, lead one of the horses out of the barn. Mrs. Hamilton called to the thieves to halt, and when they did not she opened fire on them with a revolver. Every time the lightning flashed she blazed away.

The thieves, who evidently intended taking away both animals, ran off down the road with the one horse. Yesterday morning an effort was made to trace the thieves by the tracks in the mud, but the trail was soon lost.

Mrs. Hamilton has offered a reward of $50 for the recovery of the horse.

Physician Hurt Avoiding Auto.

Dr. Edwin M. Ward, president of the Bloomfield Board of Health, was severely injured yesterday when he was thrown from his carriage in collision with a heavy wagon while avoiding an approaching automobile near Bloomfield. He was taken home suffering with severe bruises. The automobile did not stop.

FORT HOST AT SEA GIRT

State, County and Municipal Officials Are Guests of Governor at the State Camp.

MAYOR C. J. FISK WAS THERE.

Plainfield's Executive Tells Friends That He Will Not Be Candidate for Charles N. Fowler's Congressional Shoes.

Governor's day visitors to Camp Fort today found much to interest them besides the luncheon which the executive had provided, and many State officials went away last night with a much changed idea as to the National Guard of the State. Yesterday was set aside for the officials at the State House and their deputies, members of numerous State boards and commissions, a number of Republican and Democratic county chairmen from all over the State and numerous others. The Union County Board of Freeholders attended in a body.

Hardly had the visitors arrived before their attention was called to the firing which the members of Battery E, Third United States Artillery, and Battery B, of the New Jersey Artillery, were doing on the beach front. Silhouette targets were towed out to sea, and the two batteries blazed away at them for an hour, puncturing them full of holes and making an excellent showing as marksmen. When this work had been finished, Captain Hennessy, of the regulars, gave the visitors another treat, when he took his horses to the ocean front, and, with a man mounted on each of the 150 animals, drove them into the sea. Many of the horses seemed to enjoy the cooling water as much as the men mounted on their backs.

Besides these entertainments for the visitors, there was a luncheon in a big tent, put up alongside the Governor's cottage, and late yesterday afternoon the review of the citizen-soldiers by Governor Fort not only entertained the visitors at the cottage, but the 400 others who came from all along the shore to witness it.

From all over the State the guests came. They included Mayor Jacob Haussling, of Newark; Andrew F. McBride, of Paterson; F. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth; Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city; Walter Madden, of Trenton; Mayor Otto H. Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and others.

From the State capital the visitors included State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, his deputy, L. S. Wildrick, Comptroller Henry J. West and Isaac Doughton, his assistant. With them came State Assessor David Baird and Theodore Strong, State Auditor William E. Drake., Road Commissioner Frederick Gilkyson, Robert J. Meeker, John W. Weseman and George O. Osborne, keeper of the State prison.

Not a little interest for those present was created by the presence of Mayor Fisk, of Plainfield, who is the head of the Excise Commission. Up to the present time, Mr. Fisk has not been well known outside of the city over which he is the chief executive, but his work on the commission has made him a well-known man, and not a few asked to meet him today. There is even some talk of making him a candidate for Congress from the district now represented by Congressman Fowler. When spoken to on the subject, he laughingly replied that he did not want any office and was well satisfied where he is.

Branch Library Eastablished at Hope

The branch of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room has been established at Hope chapel, and Miss Bessie Philips will be in charge. According to past custom she will be at the chapel Friday afternoons, when persons desiring books or wishing to exchange them can do so, just the same as at the public library on Park avenue. There is a Sunday-school library at the chapel, recently enlarged by the addition of 2,000 volumes from the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and these books will be circulated under the regular rules governing the library.

Missionary Bible Will Preach.

Mr. Bible, who has been engaged as a foreign missionary under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Missions, will preach at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Sunday. He is spoken of as a man of exceptional strength and brilliancy by those who have heard him and the committee on supplies considers itself fortunate in being able to secure him for Sunday.

Disabled Car Delays Traffic.

One of the westbound main line trolley cars became disabled between this city and Scotch Plains this morning and delayed traffic for more than a half-hour. It was finally towed into Plainfield and the car barns at West Dunellen, where it was put up for repairs.

ENGINEER INJURED IN A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Fred DeGroff, of North avenue, this city, engineer on one of the P. and R.'s fast expresses between New York and Philadelphia, was severely injured in a peculiar manner, yesterday afternoon, while his train was rushing through Bustleton, Pa., at a seventy-mile-an-hour clip.

The speed of the locomotive was so great that the wind pressure on the cab became too strong for the window in front and it was shattered in a thousand pieces. They were swept directly against DeGroff, severing an artery in his left arm and cutting several big gashes in his forehead. Blood pouring from the wounds made it impossible for him to see while the flow from the opened artery threatened to cause death.

DeGroff attracted the attention of his fireman by pulling the whistle cord and the train was stopped. The injured man was taken back to a Pullman car where he was given temporary treatment, tourniquets being applied to the arm. In the meantime, a message was telegraphed ahead and when Trenton was reached, the fireman having taken charge of the engine, Dr. Bassitt was in waiting. The physician boarded the train in order to prevent its being delayed and worked over the engineer as far as Bound Brook. He was brought from there on a Somerville local and is now under the care of Dr. Probasco.

The accident is similar to one that occurred to Mr. DeGroff five years ago and strangely enough was on the same engine, No. 590. At that time, a piece of glass cut off the point of his nose and left a bad scar. The smashing of the window is one of the dangers that the engineers of fast expresses are always subjected to and from which they have absolutely no chance of escaping.

LOCAL ASSESSORS HOLD BUSY SESSION

For the purpose of going over some of the assessments on old and new buildings in all four wards of the city, the Board of Assessors met this morning in Mayor C. J. Fisk's office. The work required the whole morning and was in preparation for sending the books to Elizabeth on August 4, at which time the assessments are expected to be completed. Some of the assessors were a little undecided as to what to do in certain cases, especially in the case of new buildings and the conference was held to determine a fair and equitable assessment of the properties listed.

There was also a discussion regarding bank stock, but nothing definite was done in this matter. It is the intention of the board to grant a public hearing, afternoon and evening some day next week, the date to be announced later, when any taxpayer who may have a "kick" or thinks he has, may appear and express his views.

It is the opinion of the board that there will be no radical changes in assessments this year, and while there will be an increase in total valuations, it is not expected to be as large as last year. Not having yet estimated the total figures, the board is unable to give out any statement as to what the tax rate this year will be or what the city's valuation will amount to, but it is said that it is exceedingly doubtful that the present tax rate will be increased.

Farewell Surprise Party.

A farewell surprise party was given at the home of Mrs. J. Leahy, 537 West Fifth street, last evening, in honor of her father, Mr. Doorey, who has been on a visit to this country. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The features of the evening were dancing and singing, after which supper was served. There were about fifty guests and those who assisted were the Misses Kate Donnelly, Delia McGarrey, Catherine Cassidy and Katie Regan. Mr. Doorey expects to leave for the old country about the first week in August, after first making a visit to his other two daughters in Schnectady for a few days.

A Reference to the Cordova Case.

At the evening service in Monroe Avenue church, Sunday night, Rev. C. S. Kemble will read a story that will have a bearing upon the case of Rev. J. F. Cordova, the unfrocked South River minister, soon to be released from State prison. Mr. Kemble will afterward apply the theme in order to emphasize the Christian attitude that should be shown men of this character.

Miss Ellena Woodcock Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcock, of West Seventh street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellena, to William A. Gaston, son of Dr. W. F. Gaston, of this city.

CONVENTION OF PYTHIANS

Plainfield to Be Represented at the Biennial Meeting of the Order in Boston.

TAKES PLACE NEXT MONTH.

People of the "Hub" Will Give Knights a Great Reception—An Elaborate Program Is Arranged.

Plainfield will be represented at the biennial convention of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, which will convene in Boston on the first Tuesday in August, and will remain in session about ten days. The slogan now is "Pythians, on to Boston." Both Perseverance and Unity Lodges, of this city, will be represented at the big meeting.

All good Pythians throughout the domains of the United States will respond to this call with alacrity. The biennial encampment of the Uniform Rank will also be held in Boston during the week of August 3, and will be the greatest assembly of Pythians that the order has ever known. Lodges throughout the country are organizing Boston Clubs, and it is safe to make a prediction that the attendance at this encampment will eclipse that of any previous event.

The city of Boston is preparing a royal welcome for the Knights who are to be her guests on this occasion. Boston will dispense true New England hospitality and Pythians will have the freedom of the city. Boston proposes to do herself proud on this occasion and members of the order who journey to her domain will truly have the time of their lives.

As this is the greatest Pythian assembly since the inception of the order, so it is that the parades will be the greatest Pythian demonstration ever witnessed. The military parade, with more than 18,000 members of the Uniformed Rank in line, will take place on Tuesday, August 4. On the following day, Wednesday, the monster parade of Pythian lodges will take place. Major General Arthur J. Stobbert will command the military parade, and George E. Wragg, of Boston, will be the chief marshal of the lodge parade.

The lodge parade will be reviewed by Curtis Guild, Jr., Governor of Massachusetts, and George A. Hibbard, Mayor of Boston, and the Supreme and Grand Officers of the various domains. Boston Lodge, No. 3, the oldest lodge in Massachusetts, will act as escort to the Chief Marshal. It is estimated that thhere will be 25,000 men in the lodge parade.

On August 5 a field inspection review and competitive drill will take place, open to all companies of the Uniform Rank, for which $15,000 in prizes will be competed for.

Large delegations of Pythians, including companies of the Uniform Rank, will arrive in Boston from Seattle, Wash., Southern Texas, in time for the parade; as a forerunner, two Pythian Knights left Los Angeles, Cal., January 23, driving a team of four goats, who have attained a Pythian record for traveling and are scheduled to reach Boston by July 25. The Pythians at every town or city turn out in force and give brothers and Pythian goats a royal welcome, and it is hoped that the goats will be in good condition on their arrival at Boston and be prepared to assist in Pythian work.

A souvenir badge has been adopted.

Boston has long been recognized as the "Hub" of the universe and the centre of the lower medallion typifies this idea. To the left is "Bunker Hill Monument," the famous land mark of the celebrated battle in 1775. To the right is shown the "Old State House," which is held famous for its importance in the days of stirring times, and at the bottom, "Faneuil Hall" the cradle of liberty.

All lodges, societies and clubs of every organization will keep open house during the convention and assist in making the Supreme Lodge convention a lasting memory. The merchants and citizens of Boston will make an effort to illumniate and decorate the city that will be hard to excel.

Mrs. Cain's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. James Cain was held today at her late home near Pluckemin and burial was in the new cemetery at Somerville. Mrs. Cain died from paralysis, after a short illness. She wis visiting her sister, Mrs. Burkett, in Somerville, and was stricken while at the supper table. She is survived by a husband and a number of children. She was forty years old.

MUCH DAMAGE BY STORM

Plainfield Escapes Terrific Lightning Display but Surrounding Places Suffer.

MANY BARNS HIT BY BOLTS.

Structure on Charles Payne's Farm Near Alton Set on Fire and Totally Destroyed—Loss Reaches $2,000.

While Plainfield proper escaped the terrific thunderstorms that hovered about, yesterday afternoon, surrounding sections were not so fortunate and places to the south of the city were subjected to the most damaging rampage of lightning that has been reported in years. Within a radius of ten miles, half a dozen building were struck and either destroyed by fire or badly shattered while trees were struck down by scores. Around Alton, New Dover, Mount Pleasant and Iselin, electrical bolts played about for an hour and at the same time the territory south of Somerville was undergoing a similar experience. Plainfield received a little touch of the trouble but while it lasted one man was struck down on Prospect avenue. He gave his name as Peter Johnson and was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital but quickly recovered.

The storm at Alton seemed to be a combination of two that came from opposite directions, one from the East and the other from the South. When they met, the lightning and volleys of thunder were incessant and badly frightened the more timid residents. The flashes were vivid even in this city and people who watched them were temporarily blinded by the effect.

While the elements were at their worst, a large barn belonging to Charles S. Payne, whose place is on the Rahway road, just below Alton, was struck by a bolt. The owner was looking out from a window of his home at the time and saw flames shoot up from several places a few seconds later. With the assistance of his hired men, he managed to get several horses from the structure but everything else was burned. The barn was totally destroyed and with it twenty tons of hay, a large quantity of straw, farming machinery and vehicles. The loss is placed at $2,000 with only a small insurance.

During the storm that passed over the Somerville section, two bolts of lightning struck the buildings on William Bradley's Ardmaer Stock Farm, north of Raritan. They were hit within three minutes of each other. One bolt struck a large barn, containing about 40 tons of hay. This was entirely consumed. The other bolt struck the flagstaff in the centre of the large stock farm. The pole was badly shattered, but directly beneath this is a bell and a large clock, which were not damaged, although the bolt jumped from the flagstaff to the roof of the barn and back again to the pole, going down through the roof to the handsome offices, which were badly shattered.

Superintendent Charles Woolley and an assistant, who were in the barn, were temporarily stunned by the lightning.

The loss is about $2,500, but is not covered by insurance.

Peter Johnson, a carpenter employed on a new house being built on Prospect avenue, near Edgewood, was stunned by a bolt of lightning yesterday afternoon and removed in the ambulance to the hospital in an unconscious condition. He recovered in a couple of hours and was able to return to his home, 541 Dean street, Brooklyn.

When the heavy shower appeared, accompanied by terrific lightning and heavy peals of thunder, Mr. Johnson sought shelter in the rear of the house, standing close to a metal leader. An instant later a sharp bolt of lightning came near the dwelling and followed the leader to the ground. On its way down Mr. Johnson received a shock sufficient to knock him down. Fellow workmen immediately telephoned for the ambulance and the man was taken to the hospital. The shock extended about the man's shoulders and arms, but after an investigation he was found not to be seriously injured.

Police Outing a Disgraceful Affair.

The annual excursion of the Elizabeth police to Empire Grove, yesterday, is the talk of the county seat today, and some people even go so far as to say that it will have an important bearing on political affairs. The outing is described as one of the most disgraceful in the history of the department. It is said that the trip both ways, as well as the stay at the grove, was marked by continual fighting. Several excursionists, including one woman and a boy, fell overboard, and upon the arrival of the boat in Elizabeth, last night, it was found necessary to take a number of men to the hospital for treatment.

PHYSICIANS TO LECTURE

Local Doctors Will Give Series of Health Talks to Y.W.C.A. Members.

A DOMESTIC SCIENCE COURSE.

Miss Mary Farrell, Lecturer in Medical Department, U. of P., to Start Three Year Diploma Course in October.

Arrangements have been completed for a course of lectures to be given at the Young Women's Christian Association by local physicians for the members, and a series of talks on "Our Bodies and How to Take Care of Them" will be given at the association rooms beginning in October. Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, Dr. Francis DuBois, Dr. Norman Probasco, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Dr. Thomas D. Blair have agreed to speak at the first five of the Thursday night lectures, and Mrs. Elizabeth Mosher, a Brooklyn physician, is to deliver the last lecture of the course.

"The framework of the body. The skin, and how to take care of it" will be the topic of the first lecture, by Dr. Corbusier; "Respiration, Digestion and Circulation" will be Dr. DuBois' topic, and the third talk will be by Dr. Norman Probasco. He will speak on "Tuberculosis: How to Avoid It and Prevent Its Spread. The Care of Contagious Diseases."

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan will tell "What to Do In Case of Accidents," speaking of emergency treatment in accident cases and "first aid." Dr. Blair will supplement this talk with a lecture on "Practical Bandaging," and the final lecture of the course, by Dr. Elizabeth Mosher will be on "Health Preservation."

Members of the association are showing great interest in this course of lectures as well as in a course on domestic economy and hygiene of the home to be given by Miss Mary Farrell, who will come to the association once a week from Philadelphia, where she is a lecturer in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania. This course will be of great practical value, and will include fifteen weekly lessons, to begin the middle of October. Miss Farrell is a graduate of Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, and the lectures will summarize the more practical part of her work there.

Courses are to be given for three consecutive years, at the end of which time the local association is to award diplomas to those proficient in the lecture matter. It is probable that cooking will be made a part of this course, after some of the theoretical facts have been dealt with in the early lectures. At the outset will come a discussion of food values and the principles of cooking and this will be followed by lectures on the methods of preparing and serving various viands. Indnvidual work will be a feature of the lectures.

"The Hygiene of the Home" will be an equally practical feature of Miss Farrell's lectures, dealing with cleanliness, the evils of dust, and proper ventilation. She is a lecturer under Professtor Stahl in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania.

JAMES DEADY'S FUNERAL.

Plumbers Union Attends Service in St. Mary's Church and Escorts Body to the Grave.

The funeral of James Deady, whose death occurred at his home on West Fifth street, Wednesday, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. The mass was said by Rev. Father Sciola in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The attendance included the entire membership of the Plumbers' Union, with two exceptions, Mr. Deady having been president of the organization. The men marched from the church to St. Mary's cemetery as an escort to the departed officer.

The casket was borne to the grave by the following pall bearers: Edward McCann, Lewis Feiring, Arthur Newman, Fred Winn, Jas. Voorhees and Ernest Enander. The floral tributes were very numerous and included a set piece from the Plumbers' Union.

Funeral of Mrs. Cox.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca A. Cox, widow of Isaac Cox, was held this morning at her late home on Clinton avenue. It was conducted by Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church. The body was afterward taken to Juliustown, Burlington county, where interment will be made this afternoon. Mr. Kemble will officiate at the grave. The floral offerings included set pieces from the Monroe Avenue church Epworth League, of which her son, Howard Cox, is a member, and the Manganese Safe Works, where he is employed.

COLBY BEGINS FIGHT FOR A RENOMINATION

Senator Everett Colby, of Essex county, opened his campaign for the Republican renomination for State Senator at a big and enthusiastic mass meeting last night in the new auditorium in Newark. It was a hot, humid night, with a light fall of rain, but every seat in the hall, galleries, and all, was taken, and half a hundred men were standing. The meeting was under the auspices of the New Idea wing of the Republican Party, and Sheriff Frank H. Sommer presided.

Senator Colby was the principal speaker, though addresses were made by Sheriff Sommer and Assemblymen William P. Martin and W. Fellowes Morgan. Senator Colby repeated his challenge for a public debate of the questions of the hour to ex-Judge Thomas L. Raymond, who has announced that he will make a contest in the September primaries for the nomination for Senator as the regular Republican candidate.

MARTINE ADDRESSES THE "REAL DEMOCRATS"

Bryan and Kern were enthusiastically indorsed at a meeting of the "Real Democracy" at Newark last night. Speeches were made by James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator;" Julian Gregory, of East Orange, who was defeated when he was the Democratic candidate for State Senator from Essex county, and Deputy Sheriff Charles M. Mason.

Mr. Martine got a rousing welcome as he gave a graphic word picture of the trip of the New Jersey delegates to Denver. He said that after the nomination of Bryan he talked with many railroad employes and all said they were for Bryan and against Taft, because of his action when judge on injunctions against labor men.

"I told Senator Smith in the convention at Denver that Bryan would be nominated," Mr. Martine said, "and he said it looked as if Bryan would win out. After the nomination was made Senator Smith said to me that I deserved credit for being so steadfast to Bryan, and that he believed the Democrats of New Jersey would appreciate my work. He also said we would all go back to New Jersey and work harder than ever for the success of the entire Democratic ticket, and—"

A voice, "Did he say that?"

"Yes, he said it," Mr. Martine replied, "and I believe him, for he is a Democrat. I told him the Democrats of New Jersey would give him credit for his saying he and all of use must work for the success of the party.

"Can we win?" Mr. Martine asked, and then said: "I believe we can, and will win. I say without fear that I am firmly convinced by what I saw and heard on our journey to Colorado and Utah and back through several States, that Bryan and Kern will carry Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming, North Dakota and Michigan in spite of the money the Republicans will have to use, and that he will carry all the Southern States. I told the people of the West that Bryan has a chance to carry New Jersey and New York, and I believe it."

HOPE CHAPEL SUPPLIES DURING PASTOR'S ABSENCE.

The regular weekly prayer meeting at Hope chapel, last night, was largely attended owing to the fact that it was the last to be conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard previous to his departure for his summer vacation. He will leave Monday for Kittery Point, Me., where he will remain four weeks. He gave an interesting talk and much enthusiasm was aroused.

While Mr. Howard is away, the pulpit at the chapel will be occupied as follows: August 2, Rev. Edward Love; August 9 and 16, Rev. Fred B. Newman, of Trenton, a former Plainfielder and chapel worker; August 23, Rev. Fred Conant, of New York. Mr. Howard will return in time to preach the last Sunday in the month.

Special Election at Somerville.

William F. Greene, clerk of Bridgewater township, yesterday issued an order for an election to be held in Somerville on Thursday, August 13, for the purpose of giving the taxpayers an opportunity to decide the question as to whether or not the voting machines are to be retained in the First and Fourth districts of the township.

ARAB PATROL RETURNING

Potentate H. W. Marshall Expected Home from St. Paul Convocation Tonight.

STORY OF THE WESTERN TRIP.

Salaam Temple Members Received Parade Honors—Royally Entertained at Convocation.

H. W. Marshall, potentate of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, who has been attending the conviction of Nobles at St. Paul, Minn., is expected home tonight. He went as a member of The Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple, of Newark, on Saturday, July 11, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, in command of Captain Henry L. Jenkinson. The members are loud in their praise of the entire journey.

The train arrived in Chicago about 6 o'clock Sunday night. Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist church, Newark, took charge of a short divine service on Sunday. He spoke on "Faith, Hope and Love." "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "My Country 'Tis of Thee," were sung in a hearty manner by the Shriners. At 6:30 o'clock that night the patrol left Chicago for St. Paul over the Wisconsin Central Railroad. The management of this road endeared itself to the members of the party by the magnificent hospitality and the courteous treatment accorded them. Everyone enjoyed the ride over this road.

The objective point, St. Paul, was reached about 7 o'clock Monday morning after a fast trip. An incident of the outward trip which everyone enjoyed was a view of the great horseshoe curve by moonlight. The patrol was received by a detachment of the Arab Patrol of Osman Temple, St. Paul, with a band of music and escorted to headquarters, the Buckingham, where they received badges, and a book containing a number of coupons entitling the holder to a boat ride on the Mississippi river. That day was given to sight-seeing and a trip to Fort Snelling. At night the patrol attended the ceremonial session of Osman Temple in the Auditorium, when about 200 candidates were initiated. The Salaam boys were invited to assist.

As a souvenir of their stay in St. Paul, the members of the different patrols received a handsome watch fob from the Arab Patrol of Osman Temple. The Jersey Shriners received in exchange many fine badges from members of other States.

Tuesday morning the imperial council was escorted to the auditorium by over thirty uniformed patrols. The Shriners also formed an escort of honor to the Masonic lodges of St. Paul on their way to the site of their new $100,000 temple, where ground was broken with the usual impressive Masonic ceremonies. At night an electric parade was held, Salaam Temple being at the left of the second division.

On Wednesday the exhibition drill took place. Salaam Temple was number six in and during its drill received the applause of the crowd. Almas Patrol, of Washington, received the blue ribbon. During their stay in St. Paul the Shriners were given every courtesy, including free rides on trolley cars, boats, etc. Thursday night the last remnant of the Salaam contingent left St. Paul at 7:40 o'clock for Chicago, where they arrived Friday morning at 10 o'clock, leaving an hour later for the East.

Hurt In Fall From Scaffold.

Webster Grant, of East Fifth street, an employe of the Scott Press Works, fell from a small scaffold on the outside of the second floor, yesterday afternoon, as he was in the act of putting in a new pane of glass. He was rendered partially conscious by the shock and was removed to the office of the factory where Dr. Hedges attended him. He was afterward taken to his home. He sustained a number of severe bruises but will be around again in a day or two.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Former Postmaster Henry R. Tatem, of Collingswood, has announced his candidacy for Assemblyman on the Republican ticket as the successor of Frank B. Jess.

The Mayoralty fight in Egg Harbor City will be a hot one at the coming November election. At least six candidates are already in the field. Postmaster William Mall is the retiring Mayor.

Charged by his stepdaughter with a serious crime, William Trueland, of South Millville, was arrested by City Marshal Biggs, and Mayor Smith held him without bail for a further hearing.

Stepping on glass in the rear yard of his home, 707 South Ninth street, Camden, yesterday, Carl Franandow, eight years old, badly cut his right foot and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

An all-day meeting of the Camden and Atlantic County Pomona Grange will be held at Blackwood Saturday. The program includes a trip through the works of Bateman Manufacturing Company, Grenloch.

John McNamara, aged thirteen years, a plumber's helper, was bitten by an unmuzzled dog yesterday at Paterson. The lad had the wounds cauterized at St. Joseph's Hospital. McNamara resides at 128 Gretty avenue.

Clement Reeves, one of the best-known citizens of Gloucester county, died yesterday afternoon at the homestead on Delaware street, Woodbury, after a long illness. He was sixty-eight years of age. The funeral will be held Saturday.

Joseph Newak, of Atco, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace Baldwin, in Camden yesterday, on a charge of cruelty to animals. A horse his wife was driving to a berry wagon was so badly crippled that it had to be killed.

From injuries sustained when he was struck by a falling plank at Cole's lumber yard in Camden Tuesday, Heber J. Stoffles, thirty-eight years old, of 1535 South Gunther street, Philadelphia, died at the Homeopathic Hospital last night.

Working for years as a journeyman painter, Andrew J. Compton, of Trenton, has the prospect of wealth before him. He has obtained a patent on a brush holder, by means of which he claims to be able to paint the highest building or flagpole without the use of ladders.

Peter Chinni, the youth who, it is alleged, nearly gouged out Charles Yandoll's eye with brass knuckles during a quarrel three weeks ago, returned to Paterson from Buffalo yesterday and gave himself up. Later he was released after furnishing bail. Yandoll is still under the care of his physician.

Maurice Bernstein, aged six years, was knocked down by a horse driven by William Stanton, of 23 Summer street, at Main and Ellison streets, Paterson, yesterday, and sustained a fracture of the right arm just above the elbow. The lad was taken to the General Hospital. He resides with his parents at 82 Market street.

Although witnesses testified that they saw him beat a cat to death with a crutch, Louis Wurst, fifteen years old, of 815 Pine street, denied the accusation before Justice of the Peace Wright, in Camden, yesterday. He was severely reprimaned and ordered to pay the cost of prosecution on complaint of Agent McNeir, of the Anti-Cruelty Society.

Burlington's pure water problem, which the Water Commission has discussed for ten years and City Council for many months, is finally to be decided by popular vote. Facing a big delegation of citizens who crowded Council chambers last night councilmen agreed to the oft-urged solution of the problem, even before the representatives of hundreds of residents who petitioned for the adoption of a well system could be heard.

Coroner Edwards' inquest into the death of the child found in Alcyon Lake Tuesday resulted in a verdict yesterday that the little one had first been put to death and then thrown into the water. The autopsy showed that it had been strangled. Evidence leading to the identity of the mother of the child was produced, and the detectives employed by Prosecutor Rogers are expected to locate her in a few days.

Miss Carrie Brown, of Elizabeth, has returned after a visit with friends in this city.

Miss May Randolph, of East Second street, is enjoying a vacation at Kenoza Lake, N. Y.

Mrs. Sandford Ramsey, of Dunellen, has been visiting relatives in town for a short time.

Mrs. George Smith, of Staten Island, has been spending a few days with friends in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sharpe, of Netherwood, are stopping at the Marlborough, Asbury Park.

TEPPERS - 109-113 W. FRONT ST.

OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE IS NOW ON

One year ago we began here in your midst by advertising the Boehm stock at reduced prices, in order to give us the opportunity of replacing it with a cleaner and more up-to-date stock of our own selection--it took quite a time to dispose of such a houseful of goods, but we managed to do it by perseverance and cut prices. As soon as the space permitted, we filled in new merchandise of a better character, as the discontinuing of giving trading stamps allowed us to go a little "higher" on every article for the same retail price than our predecessor could pay, with an expenditure of several thousand dollars a year to the trading stamp people. We figured that the people of Plainfield would appreciate VALUE more than stamps, and we were not mistaken--for the thousands of dollars Mr. Boehm paid annually for the stamp books we began to put in merchandise. You can see the result today in a moment's comparison. Look at the bargains this house puts forth just ordinarily. LOOK AT THE BARGAINS THAT WE OFFER YOU AT THIS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE. Plainfield has never experienced such underpricing of honest dependable merchandise before--it's because our buyers are not hampered with any burdens of "so much for the stamp expense," or so much for loss of bad accounts to each lot of goods purchased. It's our policy to give you more and better merchandise for the same money than you can procure elsewhere in town--but no trading stamps or favors.

COME TO OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE--come every day if you can, you will see Bargains arrayed far more tempting than mere quotations could indicate.

The Underwoods have organized a fast baseball team to play twilight games only. The first contest will be played tonight on Hope Common with St. Mary's club, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. The Underwoods will lineup as follows: Dan Harris, 2b; Joe Tobin, 1b; Martin, 3b; John Smith, ss; James Flynn, rf; Frank Dougherty, p; Dick McIntyre, c; E. Westcott, lf; John Foley, cf.

The Nationals, of Perth Amboy, will be the attraction at Crescent Oval tomorrow, when the Clinton Avenues will cross bats with them. The Nationals play fast ball and the locals will have to go their best to win.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team will have an opportunity tomorrow to improve its standing at the expense of Summit and still remain near the top with Newark.

The Clinton Avenues may have a new backstop in the game tomorrow in place of O'Loughlin, whose hand is still sore from injury received in last Saturday's contest.

From now on until the close of the season the Clinton Avenues will play only the teams in their class and the fans can feel assured of seeing first-class ball.

"Hub" Conover is one of the best of the local pitchers and whenever he performs he always makes a good showing. He has many notable victories to his credit this season.

The Boston Americans have traded Pitcher Pruiett to Cleveland for Jack Theilman.

Things are going badly in the Tri-State League, owing to the poor crowds that attend the games, and on Tuesday the owners of the Wilmington club gave up the task of backing the team and turned it over to the league. The players will receive their pay from the league and from now on the team will play all of its games on opponents' grounds.

Harry Davis, captain and first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, has been suspended indefinitely by President Ban Johnson, because of an argument with Umpire Silk O'Loughlin in the game with Detroit on Monday.

Because he considers Pueblo an unsafe place to take his baseball players, Manager "Ducky" Holmes, of Sioux City, has written Sercetary Farrell of the National Association, asking him for authority to cut out the August series in Pueblo. "I have written to Secretary Farrell," said Manager Holmes, "that the lives of my ball players would not be safe in Pueblo, and it would only invite a tragedy to go there again. To win a game would mean a riot. The lawless class which attends the games will not allow an umpire to render a decision as he sees it." Manager Holmes threatens that unless he shall obtain consideration from organized ball he will disband his team and disrupt the league.

GOLF.

With the midsummer let-up in open tournaments hereabouts, golfers have been given a breathing spell, a chance to rest, and, incidentally, take a peep into the future. The work of the younger crop of players has been watched closely, and there is naturally more or less interest in figuring on the chances of this class with regard to the important events to come. While the precocious youngster has occasionally broken through the line and reached the hall of fame, as it were, by winning a national title, such feats have been comparatively few.

No matter how dashing and brilliant a player he may be, there is always one important element—lack of experience—which militates against the chances of the youth. Probably the most prominent junior in this part of the country is W. Fellowes Morgan, Jr., of Baltusrol, who made his first public appearance as a representative of Harvard in the intercollegiate championship at Nassau last fall. Although defeated at match play during the tourney, Morgan played capital golf. In the spring he took part in the Harvard championship, but lost to H. H. Wilder, more of whom will be said later on.

Morgan again appeared in the recent invitation tournament of the Apawamis Club, and, after finishing among the leaders in the thirty-six hole qualifying round, lost to Charles H. Seely, the metropolitan title-holder, in the second round. Lack of experience alone was responsible for his defeat in that match, and, in addition to this, Morgan happened to catch Seely when the Wee Burn crack was in one of his happy putting veins. If there is one department of the game more than another in which the Baltusrol boy excels it is in driving. Seely is always long off the tee, yet his drives appeared ordinary by comparison.

The ninth hole at Apawamis is a trifle more than 600 yards, but in the match under discussion Morgan's second shot stopped only a few yards short of the brook, which meant a total of more than 500 yards. He also plays his irons beautifully, so that, with a little more steadiness on the greens, almost certain to come with time, he is bound to loom up as a championship possibility. George Low, the Baltusrol professional, does not hesitate to declare that the boy has all the shots. The latter's form is of the best, the swing being free and under excellent control.

Apropos to Wilder, it may be said that the present Harvard champion looks to be about the most promising amateur yet developed over Boston way. Although he has been playing good golf for several years Wilder is scarcely more than a boy. This season, however, finds him much steadier than formerly. It is a matter of record that a few weeks ago he reached the final round in the Massachusetts amateur championship and followed this by leading all the amateurs, besides beating many of the professionals in the Massachusetts open at the Country Club of Brookline. Should Wilder continue to hand out the same quality of golf in the national tourney at Garden City he will surely bear watching.

E. M. Wild, the interscholastic boy, who has been playing for the last five years over the Cranford course, is another whose game shows steady improvement. Although slight of build and apparently physically handicapped when it comes to going through a hard series of matches, Wild has on more than one occasion developed unexpected stamina. In the interscholastic championship at Garden City a year ago he was runner-up to Harry Legg, and a few weeks ago in the invitation tourney at Nassau Wild not only qualified in the first eight in a field of one hundred odd players, but reached the final as well.

C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., of Montclair, who figured on the Yale baseball team during the past season, is a slashing golfer. Long drives of 250 yards are nothing uncommon for him, but as is the case with so many of the younger set, this advantage gained is thrown away by indifferent putting. Young Van Vleck has been playing considerably at Montclair with Jerome D. Travers, the national champion, and the influence of the latter's steady short game may have a beneficial effect upon Van Vleck.

PERSONAL.

J. H. Staats, of Chatham, is visiting his son, J. A. Staats, of this city, formerly proprietor of the Hotel Kensington.

President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, will spend the greater part of August with his family at Woodmont, Conn.

Councilman Herbert Buxton, of West Front street, has been sojourning at Woodmont, Conn., where his family is spending the summer.

Mrs. M. Galbraith and her son, Harold, of Somerville, have gone to Canada for the summer, and Mrs. Galbraith's aunt, Mrs. David Bush, of West Second street, will reside at Somerville during their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Groendyke and son, George, of West Front street, who have been visiting in Chicago, have returned. While in the Windy City Mr. Groendyke witnessed a game of ball between the Giants and Cubs, and had the pleasure of meeting "Christy" Mathewson.

The newly-elected officers will be in charge of the meeting of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., tonight. It is also expected that two candidates will be initiated.

Plainfield, N. J., July 24, 1908.

Evidently, Mr. Taft has joined the "Don't Worry Club."

After the campaign, Mr. Bryan will be in a position to accept an invitation from Mr. Roosevelt to accompany him on the strenuous trip through Africa, as both will be out of a job by March 4 next.

The Elizabeth Times asks: "Why does the New York Times continue to profess Democracy?" That's a question that even the learned editor of the Times cannot answer, for as the New York World is yet asking, "What is Democracy?"

High license, with strict regulation, enforced to the letter, has been found in this city to be the most feasible solution of the liquor question. Local option makes it dry in spots only and increases the traffic in the vicinity, while Prohibition breeds speak-easies.

In appointing Mayor Fisk as head of the State Excise Commission, Governor Fort referred to Plainfield as "probably the best regulated city in the State." At a hearing of the Commission, in Elizabeth, Dean Gessner's testimony that Elizabeth was the rottenest town in this respect throughout the State was fully substantiated by the evidence brought out by the probers. Thus Union county is the best and the worst. Shame on you, Sister Elizabeth!

As Mr. Bryan has appealed to the Democratic papers to raise funds for his campaign, no doubt The Commoner's editor will set the example by donating the profits he earns for that organ by reason of his position at the head of the party ticket.—Daily Press, July 22.

"All profits from the Commoner over and above actual expenses from now until election will be turned over to the Democratic National Comittee for the benefit of the campaign. —William J. Bryan, July 23.

President Fisk, of the Excise Commission, left today for Saranac Inn, to take a rest. There a new phase of the liquor question will dawn upon him. The Adirondacks are in a prohibition district. If you want a "schooner" you simply ask for "beero," and if you crave for some "steam," you merely request the druggist for a tonic. It was the late Bishop Potter who said that "prohibition is a failure" and no better place for a verification of his statement can be found that in the region to which the chief excise prober journeys.

FRELINGHUYSEN AS A CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

Elizabeth Evening Times.

Senator Frelinghuysen says that the Republican plurality in New Jersey will be the "largest ever." All that we can say in the premises is that it won't be so.

Trenton State Gazette.

Senator Frelinghuysen, on the eve of sailing for Europe, said: "I want to predict now that the majority in New Jersey for the Republican ticket will be one of the largest ever known."

Let us hope so. McKinley's plurality in 1896 was 87,692. That was a splendid showing for a State that had been for twenty-four years reckoned on the Democratic side of the fence. There is no good reason, perhaps, why Mr. Taft shouldn't be as well supported by the citizens of New Jersey as McKinley was. We believe with Senator Frelinghuysen that the Republican ticket in New Jersey next fall is going through with a good big majority to its credit, but it will not do for Republicans to sit quietly by their firesides and let the election take care of itself.

Paterson Press.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, announces that he will accept a renomination. This statement is made on the eve of his departure for Europe on a business trip. He sails tomorrow and will return in a few weeks. The Senator says: "The people admire the wise, conservative policy of the Republican party in New Jersey, and, moreover, are delighted with having such a fearless, conscientious and able Governor as Mr. Fort. I want to perdict now that the majority in New Jersey for the Republican ticket will be one of the greatest ever known."

CAPTAIN MARK CASTO GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY.

Trenton, July 24.—Captain Mark Casto, of Pleasantville, the hero of the rescue of the passengers and crew of Ship Cherokee, which started at Atlantic City, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday. His assets amount to $6,866 and his liabilities to $7,484. Of the liabilities $4,927 are represented by secured claims, $917 by unsecured claims and $1,650 by outstanding notes.

The assets include $5,009 in real estate, $50 stock in trade, 450 shipping and shares in vessels, $500 on personal property, $496 due on open accounts and $200 insurance.

Captain Casto claims as exempt from the operation of the bankruptcy law the Carnegie medal, which he received in recognition of the gallant part he played in the rescue of the Cherokee's passengers. He places the intrinsic value of this medal at $200, which is the maximum amount upon which exemption can be claimed. In doing this Captain Casto is compelled to relinquish for the benefit of his creditors the $300 medal which was given him by the Clover Club, of Philadelphia, which also tendered him a banquet, at which he was lionized by many of the notables of that city.

Captain Casto, whose services were recognized by a resolution of the New Jersey Legislature, appeared here some years ago at a hearing given to the pound net fishermen when legislation was pending to regulate pound nets. His testimony before the Senate committee was mainly favorable to the pound net men, and he expressed the belief that net fishing was not diminishing the supply of salt water fish.

RAILROAD BUILDER BURIED.

James H. Sayre, of New Germantown, Projected Rockaway Valley Road.

Whitehouse, July 24.—The funeral of James H. Sayre, seventy-six years old, was held yesterday morning at his home at New Germantown. Rev. Dr. John P. Kretching, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiated, and the burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Sayre was a promoter of the Rockaway Valley Railway, now the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad, and for some time acted as its superintendent. He had been ill a long time and died from a complication of diseases. His wife died several years agof. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Anna Bowman, of Stroudsburg, Pa., and an adopted daughter, Mrs. W. Warren Vanderbeek, of New Germantown.

Girl Bather Lost Clothes.

Unable to get into a bath-house at Bergen Point, yesterday, Miss Margaret Cornell, who said she lives at 46 Avenue C, Bayonne, but who is not known there, disrobed in the bushes on the beach, donned her bathing suit and took her bath. Some one stole her garments and Miss Cornell searched the shores of Newark Bay in vain. So she hid in the bushes until an acquaintance passed. The friend was sent for clothing, but on returning Miss Cornell, who had taken advantage of the darkness, had walked home in her surf suit.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The newly organized ball team of the New Market Field Club will play the Climax A. C. nine, of Plainfield, at New Market tomorrow afternoon. Joseph Penrose, who has recently been chosen captain to succeed his brother, Claude Penrose, who resigned, announces the following lineup for the game: George Wunderlich, p; Lewis Dixon, c; W. T. Piddington, 1b; Joseph Penrose, 2b; E. H. Fulton, 3b; Claude Penrose, ss; Clarence Sofield, rf; Lester Nelson, cf; and William Elliott, lf.

Yesterday's issue of The Dunellen Call was the first number of Volume XVII and Editor George W. Day has been receiving congratulations upon the flourishing condition of his lively publication, and "best wishes" for The Call in the future.

Those who went to Asbury Park with the Methodist church excursion report a most enjoyable day at the shore. The excursionists arrived home in the rain last night, the special reaching Dunellen in the shower at about 9:30 o'clock.

Routine business was transacted at the meeting of the board of directors of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association held last night.

Mrs. R. P. F. von Minden, Rene and Fred, are visiting relatives at Linden, Pa.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team play the Rahway Field Club at Rahway tomorrow. The team will be accompanied by a number of fans, the start being made on the 2 o'clock car. Manager Frentz will present the usual lineup. Flannery, rf; J. Alberts, 3b; Baldwin- rf; Carlstrom, ss; H. Alberts, c; Frentz, 2b; Allen 1b; Weiner, p; Reick or Eller, cf.

The weekly prayer meeting will be held in the parlors of the Baptist church tonight. The meeting will be in charge of one of the deacons of the church.

The Baptist parsonage is undergoing needed improvements. The fences about the property has been repaired and a new roof put on the parsonage.

Several hundred tired but happy excursionists returned last night at 8 o'clock. Not a single accident happened to mar the day's pleasure.

George Lyons, who has been visiting friends in town for a week, has returned to his home in New York.

Frank Hollingsworth, of Cranford, is visiting his father, Loftus Hollingsworth, of Johnston drive.

Mrs. Augusta Miller's house on Front street is receiving a new coat of paint.

Andrew Bozak has returned from a visit at his home at Bernardsville.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

David Blackford, the proprietor of the South Plainfield saw mill, is in Central America, where he has been called in connection with a new mining industry which is being developed. He expects to return home in about two months' time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Nortwick and son, who have been staying with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Tappen, have returned to their home in Rutherford.

M. Quinn, of Park avenue, was suddenly overcome by the heat yesterday, and it is reported to be in a serious condition.

Miss Mary Boss, who has been staying with her brother, Milton Boss, has returned to her home in Whitehouse, L. I.

Miss Nellie Manning leaves for the great Northfield conference early in August and will remain two weeks.

Mrs. Theodore Laing is gradually improving from acute indigestion, but is still under the doctor's care.

The July meeting of the Good Government Club will be held in Temperance Hall this evening.

Methodists Enjoy Day at the Shore.

The Methodists of Plainfield and Dunellen who enjoyed their annual excursion to Asbury Park yesterday had a delightful day at the shore and were favored with a sea breeze throughout their stay. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon there was rain for a short time, but it soon cleared off and the sprinkle did not interfere with the pleasure of the Plainfielders. Coming home last night on the train the excursionists had a rain a great part of the distance. The two trains reached this city between 9 and 9:30 o'clock. There was not a single accident during the day.

Sunday-school Children Hurt.

Six children were injured, two seriously, last night at Trenton when a trolley car collided with a wagon in which fifty pupils of the Wilbur Baptist Bible School were returning from a picnic at Cadwallader Park. Clifford Thorn, 5 years old, and Victor Morgan, 12 years old, are the most seriously injured. The injured children were taken to Mercer Hospital.

ANNUAL RECEPTION AT PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB

The Plainfield Country Club is making elaborate arrangements for the entertainment tomorrow of the members and their families of the Park Club, Park Golf Club and Watchung Hunt Club. The whole day will be given up to the entertainment of guests, and they will be given the privileges of the links, tennis courts and clubhouse.

During the afternoon a reception and tea will be held at the clubhouse, which will be in charge of Mrs. H. C. Irons, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Jabez Gilbert, Mrs. George S. Ring, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, Mrs. Thomas Mills Day and Miss Matie Wadsworth.

The whole affair will be under the direction of the House committee, of which Willard Wadsworth is the chairman. In the evening there will be a dinner-dance, an orchestra having been engaged for the occasion. Orders for dinners to the number of one hundred will be received and it will be a case of first come, first served as to the choice of tables.

In view of the fact that the Park Golf Club has accepted the invitation to visit the Plainfield Country Club, all scheduled events at the former club will be postponed tomorrow for one week.

TRYING TO FIX BLAME FOR POWER BOAT CRASH.

Lake Hopatcong, July 24.—Steamboat Inspector J. Fred Runyon began an inquiry this morning into the collision which occurred here between the power boats Uncle Dan and the Nell, which resulted in the latter being cut in two, the occupants barely escaping, July 17 last. After hearing the testimony decision was reserved.

Hugh McElroy, who was in charge of the Nell, testified to being near Lee's dock and watching a boat come out of the cove. He saw the Uncle Dan coming down Great Cove, he said, but did not give or receive any signal, and did not think the boats were near enough to be in danger. Asked by the inspector of he knew who, under the law, had the right of way, he said he supposed the Uncle Dan had, as he was on the starboard side.

Catherine Platt, daughter of Chas. T. Platt, of Dover, said she was a passenger on the Nell, and the first she knew of danger was when the boats collided. There were no signals given, she averred.

Mary Millar, daughter of Rev. Samuel Millar, and another passenger, and Mildred Millar, her sister, both testified to seeing the Uncle Dan and that no signals were given. Each of the three girls were injured slightly.

Captain Ivan King, of the Uncle Dan, said he saw the Nell coming, but so far away he did not think a signal necessary. He gave his attention to other things for a moment and was starteled to see the Nell crossing his bow. Charles Chamberlin and Daniel Hummer, his crew, corroborated him.

FERDINAND LESSIGNOLA DIES AT PISECO, N. Y.

A telegram received today informed Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman, of East Front street, of the death of her brother, Ferdinand Lessignola, at 6:30 o'clock last night at Piseco, Hamilton county, N. Y., where he went three weeks ago for his health. Death was from tuberculosis, accelerated by an attack of heart failure.

Mr. Lessignola, son of the late George Lessignola, was in his twenty-seventh year and the news of his death brings a shock to a large circle of friends in city and borough. He was a life-long resident of Plainfield, and for several years past had held a position with his brother-in-law, Mr. Huntsman, in the advertising business in New York city. Three weeks ago, he went to Piseco, which is near Lake Pleasant, for rest and recuperation. His mother joined him there a week ago.

Aside from his mother, three sisters survive Mr. Lessignola. They are Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman and Miss Clarissa Lessignola, of East Front street, and Mrs. William Ochs, of Lipitz, Pa. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral. The body will be brought to this city.

Soldier Shoots Self at Asbury.

Frank Carson, twenty-four years old, a member of Company H, of Asbury Park, attempted to end his life yesterday in his apartments at No. 622 Cookman avenue, at Asbury Park. He drank potassium permanganate and then shot himself in his left breast near the heart. The motive is attributed to an unsuccessful love affair. It is also said that at the encampment of his company at Sea Girt this summer Carson was used pretty roughly by some of his fellow soldiers after a game of dice, and that he felt badly as a result of this quarrel.

DROP PLANS FOR NEW Y. M. C. A. AT BRUNSWICK.

The plan to reorganize the Young Men's Christian Association in New Brunswick has been abandoned for the present, through lack of interest. A few months ago a number of men considered the plan of reorganizing and of electing the Rev. Dr. Thomas Chalmers Easton, formerly of that city, as the secretary. He is much interested in the work and at a meeting in this city expressed his willingness to do anything that he could to put the association on its feet again.

A meeting of interested men was held at the home of John S. DeHart, and the plan was discussed. Nothing definite was done and the subject was further discussed from time to time.

It was seen that nothing could be done without a general appeal to the public for funds and it was thought that the time was not opportune to make such an appeal.

The board of directors of the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. is still in existence. It is now getting a revenue from its Church street building. The association has funds and has not given up the idea of a new home for the association. It has plans for such a structure, it has a site in view, but it lacks the necessary money to go ahead.

Dog Rescues Drowning Kitten.

George W. Da Cunha, an architect of Valley Road, near Montclair, has a dog which prevented the drowning of a kitten hat has been its companion since its birth. Mr. Da Cunha's hired man took the kitten to a pond with the intention of drowning it. The dog accompanied the man, and when the latter tossed the kitten into the water the dog jumped after it. When Mr. Da Cunha heard how persistently the dog had interfered to save the life of the kitten he refused to have it killed.

King and Queen on Canadian Stamp.

To commemorate the tercentenary of Quebec, the Canadian Government has issued a special two-cent stamp. Like those issued by the Dominion at the time of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, it is twice the size of the ordinary stamp, and has side by side in separate ovals the portraits of King Edward and Queen Alexandra. In the upper corners are the dates 1608 and 1908, the first being that of the landing of Samuel Champlain at Quebec.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Fisk for Congress.

It is not at all surprising that the Republicans of Union county, and also some members of the other political parties, are casting their eyes in the direction of Charles J. Fisk, Mayor of Plainfield and chairman of the State Excise Commission, to see if he isn't just the man they've been searching for for several years past. They'd like to see him in Congress, if the way were clear, or in almost any other large place where his abilities would find a fair field and no favor. Mr. Fisk has a rare faculty of doing things. His record as Mayor of Plainfield is in point, and his work as excise commissioner has already turned the eyes of the whole State upon him, though he isn't half through with the investigations. The chief difficulty hitherto in the way of Mr. Fisk's political promotion has been his own refusal to accept office. The Mayoralty of Plainfield seems to be about all he has been willing to accept up to the present time, but his capabilities are so marked that it is not at all surprising that the voters of Union county are thinking very seriously of picking out a large and important office for him to occupy.—Newark Evening News.

The Voting Machine Defeats.

The voting machine election in North Plainfield yesterday resulted in the most severe defeat for the mechanical contrivances for election purposes which has been known in this State. The vote was 433 to 69. The defeat could hardly have been more complete. And the voters were not "tools of the bosses" either. They were of the commuter element of the population. This makes the decision all the more emphatic, no doubt, and shows the friends of the voting machine that the decision which is being rendered by the people of the State is not influenced by narrow or partisan considerations. The voters simply do not want to use the machines.

It is doubtful if the voting machine has ever suffered such severe criticism anywhere as is now being showered upon it in the elections in this State. Nearly every day now some place or other is registering its opinion, and the story is always the same. The vote against the machine is so heavy that public opinion seems to be fairly kicking the contrivance out of town. Had the friends of the machine foreseen the result possibly they would have preferred to have had them taken quietly away on the petition of a reasonable number of voters. In that way it would have been possible to escape the sting of the complete rout now going on. The result, it would seem, cannot fail to tell on the future of the machine plan of voting everywhere.—Elizabeth Journal.

RESIGNATIONS THE FASHION.

Mountainside Now Has Remnant of a Council and May Lose That.

A problem that is vexing the citizens of Mountainside is what form of government exists there at present.

Not long ago Mayor Wilbur Cory decided to resign and moved to Westfield, out of the borough. Deciding the members of the Council seemed in a hurry to act on his resignation he changed his mind and withdrew it, but did not move back to the borough, contending that he could be Mayor of Mountainside just as well if he lived in Westfield. Then Councilman Charles Brown resigned and moved to Westfield, but the other members of the Council would not accept his resignation. Brown's resignation was followed by that of Councilman William Swope, but the remaining members would not accept his resignation.

Then President of the Council Schoonover declared he would not preside over the meetings of the survivors. It is said Assessor Robbins and Collector of Taxes Lang have been considering handing in their resignations.

In the mean time automobiles rush through the borough over the county road without regard to the speed limit or fear of arrest, as the borough marshal resigned last month. The citizens are not disturbed, since they argue if there is no Council there can be no budget, and without a budget there will be no taxes.

The only warning to check automobile speeders is a sign on the county road, erected last winter, reading: "Look out for the children."

G. A. R. Commander Dies.

David Pomroy Brown, a prominent resident of Bayonne, died at his home, Boulevard and 32d street, in that city, on Tuesday night on his sixty-first birthday. His wife, one daughter and three sons survive him. He served with Company C, 16th Pennsylvania Regiment, during the Civil War, and was a past commander of Mansfield Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Bayonne. After having been in the employ of the Standard Oil Company for twenty-three years, he was retired last February.

Will Uphold Open Pulpit.

Bishop Ozi W. Whitaker of the Pennsylvania Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church has refused the petition of the thirty widely known clergymen and 1,900 communicants of the church asking him not to have the "open pulpit." The Bishop says that he is fully persuaded that the amendment is in no sense an infringement upon the fundamental law of the church.

SAID GIRL STOLE HIS GEM.

St. Louis Man Had Miss Edell Arrested After Lending Her His Rings.

Miss Gertrude Edell, of New York, was arrested yesterday at Atlantic City, charged with stealing a diamond worth $200 from Richard W. Schultz, of St. Louis, who is at Atlantic City for the horse show. Schultz, Miss Edell, Miss Minnie Bell and Alfred Beyer were in a beach front cafe last night. Schultz lent Miss Edell several rings. They were too large for her, and when she applauded the music they fell to the floor. All were recovered save the diamond.

Schultz charged Miss Edell with stealing the ring, and yesterday obtained a warrant for her arrest. She bore up until she was started back to the jail cells, when she fainted and was unconscious for a couple of hours.

Woman Thrown from Rig; Unhurt.

Mrs. George Buckingham, wife of a New York business man, living on New Vernon Road, Morristown, was thrown from her carriage at the Lackawanna Railroad station yesterday, and narrowly escaped serious injuries. Mrs. Buckingham had driven her husband to a train, when E. B. Thomas' carriage was driven into the Buckingham rig, smashing a wheel and frightening the horse. The horse ran away and Mrs. Buckingham was thrown out. She was assisted to her feet by bystanders, asserting she was not seriously hurt.

SCHEMING DOG CATCHERS.

Colored Youths at Washington Lose Job: Because of Censurable Methods.

Washington, N. J., July 24.—The experiment of having two colored boys act as dog catchers was tried by Borough Marshal C. N. Shrope until yesterday's, when he decided the experiment was a failure. The boys were too anxious to make the fifty cents that went with each capture and some of the irate owners of the canines claimed the catchers coaxed the dogs from the dooryards, while in one case they were even accused of having untied the dog.

By authority of the Common Council fifty cents is paid for the capture of each unregistered dog found on the streets, and another fifty cents for the killing and burying of the dog, if it is not redeemed by the owner after being impounded for twenty-four hours. One of the dogs killed by Marshal Shrope was given to the colored youth who captured it to bury. Instead he took the carcass and threw it in the bushes in a field in the western part of the borough. When he returned with another dog he did not receive the fee, but instead was discharged.

After consulting with Mayor C. B. Smith, the marshal appointed Winfield Hummell, as official dog catcher. Hummell and his boys are making a still hunt and are rounding up all unlicensed dogs. It is estimated that there are at least 200 dogs in town.

SOUTH AMBOY TO BE CITY.

Control of Excise Matters Said to Have Much to Do With Change.

New Brunswick, July 24.—South Amboy Borough Tuesday decided by a vote of 458 to 178 to become a city. The election was quiet, but the vote was large. The terms of the present borough officers will end on January 1, 1909.

A new set of officers will be elected in November. Two councilmen will be chosen from each of the six wards. The Borough Council has but one representative from each ward.

Licenses will be under control of the City Council.

The County Court now acts upon license applications, and the refusal of Judge Booraem to renew several licenses recently had much to do, it is said, with the change in form of government.

TOWN TO RAID MOSQUITOES.

Bloomfield City Fathers Respond to Plea of 87 of the Mothers.

A petition signed by eighty-seven mothers residing in the fashionable Montgomery section of Bloomfield was presented Tuesday night to the Bloomfield Town Council praying for relief from mosquitoes which breed in the bogs in the neighborhood. Last spring a petition signed by seventy-five men was presented to the Council, but no action was taken.

The latest petition asks the Council to take some action to abate the nuisance for the sake of the mothers and children of the neighborhood.

The "town fathers" instructed Town Engineer Ernest Bechlin to submit plans at the next meeting of the Council for draining the bogs.

Saloon-keeper Is Convicted.

A conviction was secured yesterday in the case of William J. Klein, a saloon-keeper, whose place of business is at 155 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabethport. Kline was tried on an indictment alleging the sale of liquor on Sundays and violation of the screen clause of the "bishops' law." Prosecutor Swift, in summing up for the State, made a scorching arraignment of Klein's place, which is said by the police to have been of unsavory character. Klein will be sentenced today. In addition to whatever punishment Judge Atwater sees fit to inflict upon him the Elizabeth Excise Board will have to revoke his license.

Dog at Play Goes Mad; Bites Man.

While playing with a bull pup Tuesday night, Anton Russo, a merchant, of Dover, who is visiting his parents in Rahway, was bitten in the hand. Yesterday the dog showed symptoms of hydrophobia, and it was killed by Contsable Ramsey. Mr. Russo will go to the Pasteur Institute in Manhattan for treatment. The dog was valued at $300.

Gas Meter Man Held for Robbery.

Frederick Bitzer, collector for the Public Service Corporation at New Brunswick, has been arrested in that city, charged with robbing gas meters. He is said to have reported several of the robberies to the company.

FORDYCE TELLS OF PLANS.

Wants Third District Congressional Nomination.

New Brunswick, July 24.—The "new idea" wing of the Republican party in Middlesex county intends to make another fight in the coming campaign, according to a statement made by Colonel Alexander Fordyce, Jr., in discussing the approaching fall election yesterday. He is a candidate this year for the Republican Congressional nomination against Representative B. F. Howell.

He said they would have an Assembly ticket presented at the primary in September, and declared that three men who are among the best-known and popular citizens of the county are being urged to file petitions for the nominations.

The colonel would not say who they were. He thinks Taft will be elected.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

Copyright by G. W. Dillingham Co.

The first large operation of Dunlap's band occurred in 1872, when they plundered the Falls City bank in Louisville, Ky., of about $200,000, escaping with their booty. This was satisfactory as a beginning, but Dunlap and Scott dreamed of achievements beside which this was insignificant. They began a careful investigation through many states to learn of banks of weak structure containing large treasure. One of the gang finally found precisely what they were in search of in the Second national bank of Elmira, N. Y., which institution, being a government depository, contained, as they learned on good authority, $200,000 in greenbacks and $6,000,000 in bonds.

A survey of the premises satisfied the gang that, massive though it appeared, with its ponderous iron walls and complicated locks, the vault of this bank was by no means impossible of access. The floor above the bank was occupied by the Young Men's Christian association, one of the association's rooms being directly over the vault. There was the floor between, and under that four feet of solid masonry, some of the stones in it weighing a ton. And under the masonry was a layer of railroad iron, resting on a plate of hardened steel an inch and a half thick. All this, however, so far from discouraging the conspirators, gave them greater confidence in the success of their plan, once under way, since the very security of the vault, by structure, from overhead attack lessened the strictness of the surveillance. Indeed, the most serious difficulty, in the estimation of the robbers, was to gain easy and unsuspected admission to the quarters of the Young Men's Christian association, on the second floor. The secretary, a very prudent man, had put on the outside door of the association rooms an improved Yale lock, which was then new upon the market and offered unusual obstacles to the lock picker. Neither Dunlap, Scott, nor any of their associates had skill enough to open this lock without breaking it, which would, of course, have been fatal to their plan. For days, therefore, after all the other details of the robbery had been arranged, the whole scheme seemed to be blocked by a troublesome lock on an ordinary wooden door.

So serious a matter did this finally become that Scott and Dunlap went to the length of breaking into the secretary's house at night, and searching his pockets, in the hope of finding the keys and getting an impression of them. But here, again, the secretary had taken precautions that defeated their purpose, for he had hidden the keys under a carpet, where the robbers never thought of looking for them. Disappointed in their search, they went away, making no attempt to carry off anything, a bit of forbearance which caused the excellent secretary much wonder the next morning, when he found that nothing was missing, although there were plain traces of intruders.

The Yale lock still continuing an insoluble difficulty, Perry finally made a journey to New York, in the hope of finding some device by which to open it. There, in the course of his search, and in a curious way, he made the acquaintance of Evans, then a salesman in the employ of a prominent safe company.

Before entering the employ of the safe manufacturers Evans had conducted an extensive mercantile business for himself in a large eastern city, where he was regarded as a man of wealth and integrity. He had large dealings through the south, with extensive credits; but the outbreak of the war had forced him into bankruptcy. It was hinted that there was some overshrewd practice connected with his failure, and his subsequent sudden departure for Canada gave color to the insinuation. At any rate, he compromised with his creditors on a basis advantageous to himself.

On his return from Canada, Evans took up his residence in New York city, and began to cultivate habits far beyond his income, notably the taste for fast horses. Perry heard of Evans through one Ryan, whom he had known as a "crook" years before, but who was then running a livery stable in an uptown street. As a matter of fact, this livery stable was merely a blind for the sale of unsound horses "doctored up" to deceive unsuspecting buyers. But of this Evans knew nothing, and, in good faith, had stabled one of his own horses with Ryan. This had led to an intimacy between him and Ryan, and now, at Perry's suggestion, Ryan encouraged Evans in his disposition to live beyond his means.

Before long Evans found himself much cramped financially. Being unable to pay Ryan the money he owed him for stabling, he began to talk of selling his horse; and one day, when he was complaining of being short of money, Ryan said: "If I had your position I'd never lack for money."

Evans asked him what he meant.

"Oh," said Ryan, "there are plenty of people who would put up well to know some of the things you know about safes and banks."

By degrees Ryan made his meaning more clear, and Evans grew properly indignant. The subject was dropped for the moment, but, in subsequent meetings, Ryan kept reverting to it. Meantime Evans found himself growing more and more embarrassed, and one day he said: "What is it these people want to know?"

"Well," said Ryan, "they would like to know, for one thing, if there is any way of beating these new Yale locks?"

"You can't pick a Yale lock," answered Evans—"that would take too long; but there is a way of getting one open."

"How?"

"We'll talk that over some day."

Having once nibbled, Evans was not long in biting at the bait thus adroitly held before him. He consented to be introduced to Perry, who shrewdly showed him what an easy matter it would be for a man who knew the secrets of safe makers and could locate weak banks, to make a great deal of money, without danger to himself.

"Why," said Perry, "you can make more in one night with us, without anyone's suspecting it, than you can make in a year working for these safe people."

The result was that Evans, in consideration of $50,000, finally agreed to provide some means of opening the Yale lock which barred the robbers from the coveted treasure at Elmira.

Perry, in great delight, hurried back to Elmira, and reported his success to Dunlap and Scott. In order to bring Evans to Elmira in a way not to excite suspicion, a letter was written to the company he served, containing a tempting proposition regarding the purchase of safes. Evans was at once sent to Elmira to look after the matter. He stopped at the Rathbone house, where he was waited upon by Scott, with whom he concerted a plan of operations. Scott was to slip a thin piece of wood into the lock at night, so that the lock would not work. Then, as Evans' presence in the city had been made known, it was hoped that he would be called upon, as an expert in difficult locks, to find out what was the matter. This would give him an opportunity to secure an impression of the key. The plan worked only too perfectly; and within 24 hours the conspirators were able to pass in and out of the Young Men's Christian association rooms as they pleased, without the knowledge of anyone.

It now remained, in order to achieve the robbery, to dig down into the vault—an immense task for which the constant presence in Elmira of the whole gang was necessary. It was also necessary that their presence should not be noticed, and to that end a woman from Baltimore, who had been associated with one of the gang in previous undertakings, came on to Elmira and took a house in the suburbs, giving out that she was the wife of a man whose business kept him traveling most of the time. The house was simply furnished, and every day, for the benefit of the neighbors, the woman made a great pretense of sweeping the steps, cleaning the windows and busying herself about the yard in various ways. Meantime, inside the house, in careful concealment, the members of the gang were living—Scott, Dunlap, "Red" Leary, Conroy and Perry. They never went out in the daytime, and they left the place at night so cautiously, going one at a time, that, although they lived here for six weeks, their presence was never suspected.

Every night they gathered in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association after the young men had gone home, using their false keys to obtain admission; and they remained there hours at a time, doing what would ordinarily be the noisiest work; but their movements were so cautious and well planned that their presence in the building was never suspected. Every night the carpet and flooring were taken up, and, after they had finished their excavations, were carefully relaid. Tons of masonry and heavy stone were removed, shoveled into baskets and carried up to the roof of the opera house, adjoining the bank building, where there was small chance of the debris being discovered. Thus the unwearying rascals worked downward through the layer of railroad iron, and at last found themselves separated from the inside of the vault by only the plate of steel. Success seemed within their very grasp, when an unforeseen accident spoiled everything.

One day the president of the bank, Mr. Pratt, was surprised, on entering the vault, to find the floor sprinkled with a fine white dust. An investigation was made, and the whole plot was uncovered. The members of the gang, however, got word in time, and all managed to escape except Perry, who was convicted of attempted burglary and sent to the Auburn prison for five years.

Undisturbed by the failure, Scott and Dunlap proceeded to scour the country again in search of another bank suited to their operations, and in February, 1874, notified the gang, which now contained some new members, that they had "found something to go to work at" in Quincy, Ill. The attack on the Quincy bank was made in very much the same way as the attack on the bank at Elmira. The Baltimore woman again rented a house which afforded shelter and concealment to the men; access was obtained to rooms over the vault by false keys, as before; the flooring was taken up and put down every night without exciting suspicion; the masonry was removed, the iron plates of the vault were penetrated, and, finally, one night Scott and Dunlap were able to lower themselves through a jagged hole into the money room beneath.

It now remained to force open the safes inside the vault; and to accomplish this the robbers used, for the first time in the history of safe wrecking in America, what is known as the air pump method, which had been devised by Evans, and carefully explained by him to Scott and Dunlap. Evans' employers were at this time introducing a padding designed to make safes more secure; and Evans had hit upon the idea of introducing powder into the seams of a safe door by an air pump, in the presence of a possible customer, in order to impress him with his need of the new padding. Evans himself was not present at the breaking open of the Quincy bank, and he had nothing to do with the robbery beyond furnishing instruction and the air pump. Scott and Dunlap did the work.

As a first step, all the seams of the safes formed by the doors were carefully puttied up, save two small holes, one at the top and one at the bottom. Then, at the upper hole, Scott held a funnel filled with fine powder, while Dunlap applied the air pump at the hole below. By the draft thus created, the powder was drawn into all the interstices between the heavy doors and the frames of the safes. Then a little pistol loaded simply with powder was attached near the upper hole, and, by a string tied to the trigger, discharged from a safe distance above. There were several attempts made before a complete explosion was effected; but finally the safes were blown open and their contents secured, the robbers making good their escape with $120,000 in money and about $700,000 in bonds. No part of this money was ever recovered by the bank, nor were any of the gang captured at this time. The securities were, however, afterward sold back to the bank. Indeed, so cleverly had the whole affair been managed that no suspicion fell upon either Scott, Dunlap, or any of their associates.

Here were fortunes made easily enough, with plenty more to be made in the same way, and the gang were in high feather over their success. During the summer of 1874 Scott and Dunlap lived in princely style in New York. They attracted much attention at Coney Island during the season, where they drove fast horses. No one suspected that they were the leaders of the most desperate gang of bank robbers ever organized in this or any country.

By fall their money began to run short, and they decided to look about for another job. In the Quincy robbery they had broken their agreement with Evans, paying him only a small sum for the use of the air pump which he had furnished them. Now, however, they called upon him again, and, partly by threats, partly by generous offers, induced him to assist them again. A series of unsuccessful attempts at robbery were made on banks in Saratoga, Nantucket, Covington, Ky., and Rockville, Conn. In several instances failure came at the very time when success seemed sure. In the case of the Covington bank, for instance, nitroglycerin was used in blowing open the safe, and the explosion was so violent that the men became frightened and fled in a panic, leaving behind untouched, although exposed to view, $200,000 in greenbacks and $1,500,000 in negotiable bonds. In the case of the Rockville bank their plans had worked out perfectly, and they had removed everything from the top of the vault but a thin layer of brick, when Scott accidentally forced the jimmy with which he was working through the roof of the vault and let it fall inside. As it was too late to complete the work that night, and as the presence of the jimmy inside the vault would inevitably start an alarm the next day, they were obliged to abandon the attempt entirely.

The gang's most desperate adventure befell in connection with the attempt on the First national bank of Pittston, Pa. This was made late in the fall of 1875. The bank occupied a one-story building covered with a tin roof, and the robbers decided to make the attack from the roof. But there was a serious difficulty in the fact that in case of rain coming any time after they had begun operations, water might soak through the openings they had made and betray them. Dunlap's ingenuity, however, was equal to this emergency; and each night, after finishing their excavation, they carefully relaid the sheets of tin that had been disturbed, protecting the joints with red putty, which matched the roof in color. So well did they put on this putty that, although it rained heavily the very day after they began, not a drop leaked through.

BICYCLE RACES TO BE REVIVED AT WESTFIELD.

Westfielders who are interested in bicycle racing are making an effort to revive the sport, and on Saturday afternoon, August 8, there will be two races, one a mile scratch event for the championship of Union county, and the other ten mile handicap road race, open to Union county riders only. Both races are for amateurs only. Prizes are coming in rapidly and the riders are assured that the awards will be equal and probably surpass some of those made in the biggest races in the metropolitan district. Chairman Kelsey, of the National Cycling Association, has granted special sanction for the races so that all records made will be accredited a place in the officials books.

As first prize in the ten mile handicap race, a racing bicycle, valued at more than $50 will be given, and a solid gold medal will constitute the chief award in the championship race, which will be run in heats with riders in each to qualify for the final. W. H. Quackenbush, of Westfield, assisted by "Val." Valiant, of the National Cycling Association. Seevral leading bicycle manufacturers have offered prizes for the meet.

Announce Plans for Championship.

Leighton Calkins, president of the Plainfield Country Club and secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, announced yesterday that the open championship of the association, to be decided at Baltusrol on September 23 and 24, would be decided by seventy-two holes, medal play, and would be open to amateurs and professionals from any part of the world, whose entries need not be certified by any club secretary. Entries close on September 19. The Baltusrol Golf Club has offered $200 as prize money in a thirty-six hole medal play four-ball foursome match, to be competed for by teams of an amateur and professional representing the same club. There is no entrance fee for this competition.

Fair Acres Planning Race Meet.

The Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club will give a matinee race meet at the driving park, Saturday afternoon, August 1, and purses will be offered in each of the several events on the program. CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Six former Episcopal clergymen, the Revs. William I. McGarvey, Maurice T. Cowl, William L. Hayward, Charles I. Bowles, Otho C. Gromall and Edgar J. Cowan, who joined the Catholic church about two months ago, have been accepted as candidates for the priesthood. They will enter the theological seminary of St. Charles Borromeo at Overbrook, Philadelphia, in September. Since their baptism by Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, the converts have been living at a quiet summer resort, deliberating on their future. It was supposed that several of the number would become Paulist Fathers. Their unanimous decision, however, to enter the secular priesthood was made known to the Archbishop a few days ago.

Will Investigate Excise Matters.

Residents of Elizabeth were interested today in an announcement made by Mayor Ryan that there is to be a thorough investigation of excise matters at the county seat for the purpose of ascertaining exactly to what extent the excise laws are being violated. This is significant, coming as it does right after the session of the State Excise Commission, when Mayor Fisk, as chairman, stated that on Sunday, July 12, there were more than sixty saloons found doing business in Elizabeth.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy will be the Republican State Chairman.

Mayor Charles Joel Fisk leaves today for his summer home at Saranac Inn, in the Adirondacks. He will not return until August.

James E. Martine is delivering five minute talks on his Denver trip to each of his fellow citizens.

The Roselle Republican Club, organized this week, has joined the Union County League of Republican Clubs. It favors the nomination of Captain Robert Kirkland for sheriff. The Elizabethan will have it all his own way before primary day, according to the political wiseacres.

BOY RUNNING BEATS TRAIN.

Left Behind, "Newsie" Runs to Next Station and Gets There in Time.

Bert Mowrey, an Upper Montclair newsboy, beat an Erie passenger train from Pompton to Pompton Junction.

Mowrey attended an excursion to Greenwood Lake yesterday. Returning, he got off the train at Pompton to purchase some peanuts from a vender. The peanut man was slow, and the train started before the boy had completed the purchase. Young Mowrey, nothing daunted, started out after the train. He crossed lots and bridges, and when the train stopped for about a minute at Pompton Junction the swift footed newsboy, out of breath, swung aboard and rejoined his astonished companions, who believed that he had been left behind for the night.

NEGROES MAY USE "MR."

Superior Court of Delaware Overrules Tribunal Which Objected.

Judge Spruance of the Superior Court at Wilmington, Del., yesterday overruled the decision made by Judge Edwin R. Cochran in the municipal court a few days ago that negroes should not be alluded to in his court with the prefix "Mr.," "Mrs." or "Miss" to their names. For persistence in doing this, after being warned, Judge Cochran imposed a fine of $5 on Christopher Brooks, colored, a witness in the court. In default of the fine Brooks was committed to the workhouse.

In his opinion Judge Spruance held that Judge Cochran had no more right to make such a ruling applicable to negroes in his court than he would have to make it applicable to foreigners. He ordered Brooks discharged from custody.

Coal Thieves Committed.

The New Jersey Central Railroad is determined to break up the stealing of coal along its line. This morning railroad detectives arrested a number of Italians at Raritan on a charge of stealing coal. They were prepared to get away with a large quantity, being equipped with wheelbarrows and small express wagons. Among those arrested were two women and a number of children. All were arraigned before Justice Kitchen in Somerville, who committed them to the county jail.

ELKS WANT PROTECTION IN CASE OF ANY SUITS

Members of Elizabeth City Lodge, B. P. O. E., are awaiting with much eagerness to hear from the Grand Lodge Law Committee in reference to the controversy as to the right of the colored Elks' lodges to use the signs, emblems and words of the original order. This committee is now deliberating on the matter. The decision rendered by one of New York's high courts two days ago, in which it was cited that the colored Elks of New York had no right to use the emblems, has resulted in increased interest in the matter.

"We are at present not considering the matter," said Samuel Cohen, exalted ruler of the Elizabeth Elks yesterday, "but when we hear from the Grand Lodge committee we may take action, that is, if the Grand Lodge is willing to reimburse us in case suits are started. We will start no suits otherwise. In fact it would be better if the colored Elks would decide to surrender the insignia they are now using."

The colored lodge in Elizabeth is named Pride of Union. It has on its membership rolls most of the leading colored men of the city. Its exalted ruler is Thomas J. Taylor. There are several of these lodges throughout the State.

Mr. Cohen expects to hear from his superiors in a few days. There will be no regular meeting of the lodge until August, so that it is unlikely, in any event, that any action will be taken before that time.

WILL SHOW STATE A NEW PAVEMENT.

A sample piece of asphalt pavement was laid yesterday on the bridge near the corner of Greenwood and Johnson avenues, Trenton. The work was done without charge by the Amies Asphalt Company, of Philadelphia, to demonstrate to State Road Commissioner Gilkyson the correctness of the company's claim that its process for road building is more desirable than others.

The bridge is forty yards long, and the pathway has been covered with concrete over which the asphalt was spread, instead of applying macadam, as had been intended.

Joseph Hay Amies, inventor of the process, says the work will be completed in a day, and that the road will immediately be ready for travel. Mr. Amies claims that his asphalting differs from all other processes in many ways and that it costs no more than macadamizing, about $8,000 a mile.

It is asserted also that the Amies asphalt is not affected by change of seasons; that it does not harden in winter and become soft in summer, and that it requires little repairing.

MAGNIFICENT SILVER ALTAR FOR PHILADELPHIA EDIFICE.

Queen Sees Work Executed in London for St. Mark's.

A silver altar of elaborate design and workmanship has been constructed for St. Mark's, Philadelphia, by a London firm of goldsmiths. The work occupied nearly four years.

The altar, 7 feet in length, 2 feet in depth, and 3 feet 3 inches in height, consists of a marble ensa or slab supported on a frame of solid silver backed by wood. Upon the lavishly decorated front are sarved many hundreds of figures, either separately modeled or in high or low relief.

Eight elaborate columns divide the front into seven spaces. In the centre space are figures of the Virgin and Child, and in the six other spaces are twelve panels illustrating incidents in the life of the Virgin.

Each column has eighteen small niches, and in every niche is the figure of a saint in complete relief. These figures, 144 in number, are all separately modeled. Lines of roses, with jeweled centres, divide the lower and upper panels, and decorate the cornice and plinth. Over 400 jewels are distributed over the piser.

No work of the kind of such elaborate magnificance has been carried out since the great silver altar in the Cathedral at Florence was designed in the fifteenth century. Queen Alexandra inspected the altar Tuesday, and was greatly pleased with the unique workmanship.

Master Painters Elect Officers.

Henry Schoonmaker, of Paterson, was elected yesterday president of the New Jersey State Association of Master Painters and Decorators, at Asbury Park. Other officers chosen were: Vice president, William J. Fowler, of Elizabeth; secretary, Charles Greenhalgh, of Paterson; treasurer, P. L. Bartholomew, of New Brunswick; state organizer, Theodore A. Titus, of Montclair.

Baseball Game Postponed.

Because of the thunderstorm that arose, the baseball game between "Gamey" Nelson's Veterans and the Blackville nine, was called off at the end of the first inning yesterday afternoon. A large crowd that had gathered was greatly disappointed. A new date for the game will be arranged and it will probably take place next week.

FRESH AIR CHILDREN ENJOY A REAL FARCE

"An Economical Boomerang," was the title of the farce given at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp last night by the Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel, Elizabeth. The entertainment was a jolly one from start to finish, and afforded lots of amusement for the mothers and children of the camp, as well as for the visiting friends from Plainfield and vicinity.

Fifteen Endeavorers from Elizabeth, including their pastor, Rev. William B. Hamilton, treated every child present to candy, which the Elizabeth delegation had brought with them for the purpose.

George E. Hall, of this city, was master of ceremonies throughout the evening and later persuaded Mr. Hamilton to make a speech. He responded in a happy manner. Mr. Hall also asked the camp children to sing and for a half hour they entertained the visiting friends with many of the popular songs of the day. The evening was a delightful one for all and the Camp children and mothers will not soon forget their kind friends who furnished the program of fun for them.

OWL CLUB PLANS HOUSE PARTY AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

The members of the Owl Club, of the city and borough, who are rusticating at Rose Villa, Lake Hopatcong, will conduct a house party over tomorrow and Sunday. Thirty-five of their young friends from town will be guests on the occasion, the feature of which will be a dinner prepared by the young men Sunday afternoon.

The club has been enjoying the stay at the lake to the limit and so far all have voted it the greatest outing ever conducted. Hoot Owl Jacob Schlick, who his associates assert does nothing but sleep in a hammock or devour food, declares that next year he will advocate an all-summer stay. George Mead, another of the hammock devotees, is also enthusiastic despite the fact that he has failed in attempting to take all the fish out of the big water sheet.

A report from the club today states that Screech Owls George Schlick and Charles Ryder bought a hair cut yesterday. It was the first either had had in six months but the operation is said to have been successful and no serious results are expected. The same wireless message asserts that the club musician, Frank Jellig, has acquired the art of performing on the zobo and is giving nightly serenades for the neighboring cottagers.

CO. K BOYS BREAK CAMP

Plainfield's Soldier Boys Return From Sea Girt After a Week's Camping.

SHAM BATTLE IS FOUGHT.

Movement Planned by Col. Nelson Y. Dungan—Local Boys Had Plenty to Eat at Camp.

State Camp, Sea Girt, July 25.—Thoroughly enjoying the week's sojourn at Sea Girt, the members of Co. K, under the command of Captain H. B. Kitchell, broke camp this afternoon and started on the homeward journey at 2 o'clock. The members of the Second Regiment did not leave, however, until the Fourth Regiment, which is to spend a week in camp, arrived to take their place.

This week's stay at Sea Girt has probably been one of the most profitable in the history of the local organization and the showing made by the Plainfield boys has been gratifying to the officers of the National Guard. Not a man was in the hospital tent and the work of Co. K on the range was all that one could ask for, being up to the usual high standard. One honor accorded Co. K this year and much appreciated was that for twenty-four hours the members were given guard duty and acquitted themselves creditably.

Private Samuel Rotberg returned home ahead of the company, leaving Sea Girt, last night, it being necessary that he should be at business this morning.

The company having contributed about $30 out of its treasury for extras, was favored with many choice dishes during the week and as a final touch to the excellent bill of fare last night all hands had their fill of pie with ice cream to top-off with. It is the general opinion that the meals this year have exceeded any served before at the State Camp and it has encouraged the boys to do better work. Every consideration has been extended by the military authorities, and in consequence there was not a single kick registered during the week, and this is quite remarkable.

With only frequent flashes of fire from the guns, as they blazed away from all parts of the State grounds and several hundreds of acres to the north, to tell the location of the opposing "armies," there was fought last night one of the most spectacular sham battles the Sea Girt encampment has ever known. The movement was planned by Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan of the Second Regiment, now in camp, that organization being split up, and with the aid of the batteries there, forming the attacking and defending armies.

There has never before been a night movement at Sea Girt, with the exception of an occasional long-roll to see how quickly the various commands could get out ready for business, and the novelty of last night's show, which had been widely advertised, attracted hundreds of spectators from all along the shore. The attack and defense of the camp was not started until late, and lasted nearly two hours from the time the attacking army marched out of camp.

Captain Terence E. Murphy, the regular army instructor, who was sent to Sea Girt under the provisions of the Dick act, with the aid of several members of the staff of General Dennis F. Collins, the brigade commander, did the umpiring, and today they will decide, by tabulating the points scored by each side, just who won the "battle."

Opposing "Armies."

The attacking army consisted of one battalion of the regiment commanded by Major John H. McCullough and the two batteries in camp, the one a National Guard organization, B, of Camden, under Captain Samuel G. Barnard, and the other a regular command, E, of the Third Artillery, commanded by Captain F. B. Hennessy. On the defensive were the other two battalions of the regiment and a detachment of the United States Marine Corps, who are at Sea Girt for rifle practise.

The battle was witnessed by a large number of military visitors, including Adjutant General R. Heber Breintnall, of the State Guard, and there was a big group of women on the porch of the Governor's cottage, watching the contest with Governor and Mrs. Fort.

The soldier boys had a comparatively quiet day in preparation for last night's movement. They went over the ground of the maneuver for an hour or more yesterday morning, and yesterday afternoon were left pretty much to themselves. Colonel Henry W. Freeman, of the First Regiment, talked to the officers at their school held yesterday afternoon and told them some of his experiences at Pine Plains, where his command spent ten days the latter part of June.

CLOSE EARLY SATURDAYS DURING THE NEXT MONTH

Although the Plainfield Merchants' Association as a body decided that it was too late in the season to adopt the early closing movement at noon on Saturdays during the summer months, several merchants have acted independently of the association and have agreed to close their places of business on Saturdays at 12:30 during August.

In addition to such action taken by the lumber, coal and grain dealers, painters and blacksmihts, others who will adopt the rule for August include A. M. Griffin, the Gayle Hardware Company, Worth & Marsh, representing the hardware dealers; Powlison & Jones and J. W. Gavett. The summer schedule will go in effect Saturday, August 1.

The question has been agitated more or less during the past two or three years, it being the opinion of many merchants that on account of the generally-adopted Saturday half-holiday, their stores could be closed for half a day, including the evening, with profit, as it would mean a reduction in the cost of electricity and gas for lighting purpose and as long as the people understood the situation they would arrange to do their buying during the week or Saturday morning.

There seems to be no doubt but that another year will see the rule generally adopted by a majority of the merchants. As one who favors it, said today, it only means that as soon as the people become accustomed to the change, they will be only too glad to support it and lend their influence to the movement to give the clerks a little more time off.

Two P. H. S. Boys With Dunellen.

F. Clyde Doane, of the Plainfield High School nine, will be on the job in right field in the Dunellen-Highland A. C. game at Dunellen, this afternoon, if the rain holds off so that the teams can play. Paul R. Collier, who covered first for P. H. S. in the good old days when "Phil" Smith used to be at the head of the twist commission, will cover first for Dunellen. W. T. Piddington, Jr., and Claude Penrose, two New Market players, will be in the Dunellen line-up. The Highland A. C. nine will have its strongest players in the field.

Fractious Horse In Another Runaway

The delivery horse belonging to George J. Tobin, which recently figured in two runaways, one of which resulted in the death of Simon Gibson, had another cantankerous spell this morning. It became frightened by slipping on the pavement at North and Watchung avenues and ran down the former thoroughfare despite the driver's attempt to stop it. The animal was caught opposite the North Avenue station but by that time had kicked the front of the wagon in and had broken the harness.

Escapes From Trenton Prison.

John Sabo, of Trenton, serving an eighteen months' term in the Mercer County workhouse for beating a policeman almost to death, escaped from the institution late Thursday night and has not been heard from since, although guards are searching all of the surrounding country. Sabo is regarded as a dangerous man to be at large.

MARTINE BOOMS BURKE

"Old Faithful" Says Morristown Man Would Make Congressional Nominee.

NOT IN THE RACE HIMSELF.

Never Again, Reiterates Martine, Will He Be a Candidate For Office—Refers to His Friend Fowler.

Eugene Burke, of Morristown, is the choice of James E. Martine for the Democratic Congressional nomination. "Old Faithful," as he has been re-christened by his admirers, reiterates today his declaration made some time ago that he will never again be a candidate for public office. He thinks there is a fighting chance, however, to wrest a Congressional victory from the Republican party provided a strong man be named.

"Notwithstanding' all this talk,' said Mr. Martine today, "I verily believe that the Republicans of the Fifth district will lay down as usual and let Charles N. Fowler have still another nomination without any opposition. Mr. Fowler seems to have great luck that way, but in justice to him I should say that he has been more attentive to his duties of late. I don't know that he has accomplished much during his fourteen years in Congress, but it was some sort of a satisfaction that after the 'spanking' his party gave him three years ago, he answered roll calls more regularly.

"As I have frequently said, of late," continued Mr. Martine, "I am a candidate for no office, neither will I ever become one again. That running for office business has worn me out although I will preach Democracy until my dying day. And you may rest assured that you will hear me on the stump proclaiming the virtues of Bryan and Kern. Personally I should like to see William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, as our candidate, but as he has absolutely declined to become a candidate, I think that we could find none better than Eugene Burke, of Morristown. Mr. Burke is a fine fellow; honest, conscientious, sincere, progressive and of marked ability.

"Mr. Burke is a man of splendid personality. He has won much success in life and is held in high esteem by the people of Morris county in general and Morristown in particular. He would unite and solidify our party and would wage a most aggressive campaign. Moreover, I believe that he would attract many influential Republicans in Morris. I say, we could do no better than to nominate Mr. Burke."

MADE DESPERATE BY DEBT, BROKE OREN GAS METERS.

Peter Benford, an employe of the Public Service Corporation, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged with breaking open quarter-in-the-slot gas meters and stealing a total of $3. The complaint against him was made by Thomas L. Melick, superintendent of the gas department. Benford admitted the charge and was held in $100 bail for the Grand Jury.

In telling his story to Judge Runyon, the defendant stated that he was driven to commit the thefts because of debt. He was but recently discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital after undergoing treatment for six weeks and he was so far behind in his grocery and other bills that the merchants refused to give him credit any longer. The court officers were acquainted with the facts in the case and added that it was one of the worst "hard luck" stories they have had to deal with.

Supplies for Faith Chapel.

The officers of Faith chapel have prepared the list of supplies to serve during the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, on his vacation. They will be as follows: August 2, Rev. L. J. Westfall, of Wilmington, Del.; August 9, Rev. J. A. Cubberly, of Worcester, N. Y.; August 23 and 30, Rev. H. B. Gibson, of Daytona, Florida.

Union Service at Trinity.

The fourth union service of Trinity Reformed, First Presbyterian, First Baptist and First M. E. churches will be held at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow night. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. The pastors of the other churches will assist in the service.

Service at Netherwood Camp.

The gospel service at the Netherwood Camp, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, will be in charge of the First Presbyterian church, of Cranford, with the leader, speaker and singers from that church. The church is planning to bring a large delegation and the service promises to be an interesting one.

NATTILY DRESSED MAN GOES TO JAIL FOR 40 DAYS

James D. V. Parkhurst, nattily attired in clothing of the best make and resembling a physician or some other professional man, was arrested by Patrolman Nolan, last night, for disorderly conduct. He was taken in custody at the instignation of a Greek fruit dealer on East Front street. The prisoner was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning and sent to jail for forty days.

Parkhurst claimed Bound Brook as his home and it was learned after the court session that he belongs to a wealthy family. An Elizabeth lawyer, who he stated was his father's counsel, said over the telephone that the prisoner has been slightly unbalanced in the mind for some time past and has given his relatives a great deal of worriment. When arrested, Parkhurst had a big roll of bills in a pocket and wore considerable jewelry.

FAITH CHAPEL MEMBERS IN CHARGE OF SERVICES

The service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, last night, was in charge of Faith chapel, and was led by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, who gave a helpful talk on the subject, "The Voyage of Life," illustrating his remarks by means of a sail boat made for the occasion, containing sails in the following colors:

Blue, typical of loyalty; white, typical of purity; red, typical of love; green, typical of faithfulness. The rope holding the sails together, standing for faith, and the pilot representing Jesus Christ. Mr. Musson's talk was replete with beautiful thoughts and helpful instruction, and held the close attention of children and mothers. "Face to Face" was sung sweetly as a duet by two young women from Faith chapel, after which L. W. Randolph talked to the audience in his usual helpful and inspiring manner. He is one of the best friends of the Camp and his visits are always enjoyed and his talks keenly appreciated. Mr. Musson and Mrs. Randolph were accompanied by sixteen member of Faith chapel.

TO EXTRADITE OFFENDERS.

Governor Fort Issues Requisitions for Four Persons.

Governor Fort yesterday issued four requisitions for the extradition of as many persons in either New York or Pennsylvania, who are wanted in New Jersey for various offenses against the laws of the State. The persons wanted are John Green, of Hudson county, who is in Philadelphia; Wilhelm Mosniski, alias Wilhelm Warneschi, of Hudson county, who is in New York; Katherine Wissmer, of Newark, who is in New York, and John Simkins, of Atlantic City, who is in Philadelphia.

Green is wanted in Hudson for desertion, it being charged that he has left his wife, and that when he went away he was accompanied by Mary Black. Mosniski is wanted for the larceny of $150 in cash and ten trunks valued at $10 each. The charge against Simkins is desertion and wilful non-support, while the Wissmar woman is charged with giving a worthless check for $20.95 to J. Lissner & Sons, of Newark.

Graduating Class Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the graduating class of the Plainfield Business College on Tuesday night, July 28, to hold a rehearsal of the graduation program and to receive a report from the committee appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws o fthe proposed college society. It is expected that arrangements have been made so that definite action may be taken toward forming the society at this meeting.

Dupee to Pitch at Summit.

George Dupee will be on the slab for the Y. M. C. A. nine at Summit this afternoon, when the Plainfielders will attempt to wrest a game from the association boys there. Summit ranks fourth in the State league standing. The local nine started from town at 1 o'clock and made the trip to Summit, by carriages. Newark plays at Orange today and Elizabeth at Trenton.

Failed to Have a Quorum.

The South Plainfield Good Government Club attempted to hald a meeting, last night, but the excessive heat and the fact that may of the members were out of town, made it impossible to get a quorum. The club will probably not meet until September.

William B. Mosher, foreman of the Recorder Press Publishing House, is spending his vacation at Andover, N. J.

Mrs. P. C. Johnson and her sister, Mrs. G. Q. Packer, or South Plainfield, left yesterday for an extended trip to points in New York State.

DID PRESTIGE HELP HIM?

Groszmann, Dismissed, But Justice Mundy Announced Him Guilty.

DISCHARGED SERVANT ROUGHLY

Threw Julia Scullin Out of Groszmann School, It Is Alleged, Before She Was Entirely Dressed to Go.

"I believe there is a strong case against this man, and that I should hold him to await the action of the Grand Jury. But I think he has had heavy enough punishment in the publicity of this hearing and the disgrace of appearing in the court room. I will therefore dismiss the case."

This was the statement made by Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy after hearing testimony in the action brought by Miss Julia Scullen, a maid employed at the Groszmann School, Watchung Crest, against Waldemar Groszman, secretary of the school, at the North Plainfield police court last night. Miss Scullen brought Lizzie Bonner, Mollie Cook and Clara Kreuger, employed at the school, to testify that Groszman had forcibly ejected her from the school, throwing her off the piazza before she was completely dressed after he had discharged her because she resented a remark made to her by Leon Pollack, one of the atypical children at the school. The woman was represented by William G. DeMeza and G. W. V. Moy was counsel for Groszmann.

The girl has been employed at the school for the past six months. Thursday morning at about 9 o'clock, as she was cleaning the hall, Leon Pollack, one of the children at the school, made a taunting remark to her. She remonstrated with him, according to her testimony, and Mr. Groszman appeared and, after more words, told her to pack up her belongings and go. Delay in going to her room to pack up and get out apparently aroused the ire of Groszmann, according to testimony, and the witnesses testified that at the expiration of twenty minues she was told to "get out, or you and your things will be pitched out in the road." Hustled to the door without a skirt, Miss Scullin declares that she was thrown off the piazza by Groszman, who grabbed her after counting "one, two, three," for her to be gone. She told the court that she was not completely dressed at the time.

Professor M. P. E. Groszmann, in speaking of the incident, referred to the scrap as an "unpleasant scene." "The woman had been discharged by my son and ordered to leave the premises. She was given an hour to pack up her belongings, but at the end of that time, she was led off of the piazza. You see, we have no police protection here on the mountain, so we have to take the law into our own hands at times."

Thirteen Coal Raiders Captured.

A mob of persons, who have long been out of employment, owing to the closing down of the woolen mills, at Somerville and Raritan, made a raid on the coal dumps of the Central Railroad at Somerville yesterday morning. The mob had shovels, sacks and barrows to carry off the coal. The invaders were repulsed at the dumps by a squad of special officers of the railroad, who were later assisted by the police. After a stiff fight thirteen of the raiders were captured and placed in the county jail. Among the prisoners are two women who fought harder than the men.

Plainfielder Ar Auto Speeder.

Mrs. Helen Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, was caught near New Brunswick, Thursday, by automobile officers and on a charge of speeding her auto was taken before Justice Howell. One of the women accompanying Mrs. Schuyler, said that they had often run the machine much faster than that without being molested. The Justice promptly advised Mrs. Schuyler not to admit her guilt in that way, after which he adjourned the case until July 31 .

Knocked Senseless in Collisi.on.

Miss Cornelia Hahn, of East Second street, was thrown from her bicycle by colliding with a boy on East Front street, last night. She was knocked senseless by the fall to the pavement and was carried to Stanley's flower store in that condition. She was treated by Dr. Pittis, who witnessed the accident, and was able to go home in fifteen minutes.

Cycle Club's Outing.

The Plainfield Cycle Club will go to Red Bank tomorrow on their regular weekly run, and will take the boat from their to New York, coming back to town on their wheels from the city. They will make the trip to Red Bank by way of Metuchen and New Brunswick and will stop for dinner at the Sheridan House before taking the boat.

THAT MILLION RELIEF FUND WORRIES THEM

The allegations that paid firemen are trying to deprive widows and orphans of volunteer firemen from participation in the $1,000,000 relief fund of the organization was the principal topic considered by the executive committee of the State Firemen's Association in session at Sea Girt yesterday.

A score or more members of the committee met with the organization's president, General Bird W. Spencer. It is said that as the paid fire departments become more numerous there is displayed a tendency on the part of their associations, especially in Camden, to debar dependents of volunteer firemen from a share in the protection of the fund.

Consideration of this problem, it is expected, will be one of the principal topics of discussion at the annual gathering of the association at Atlantic City, beginning September 17.

The executive committee decided to submit to the convention three recommendations covering the matter and safe-guarding the interests of the widows and orphans of volunteer firemen.

The first recommendation will be to urge the amendment of the act of 1908, which gives Exempt Firemen's associations one delegate each to the convention, so that the Exempts' delegate will be counted as one of the local department's three representatives, instead of being in addition to those three delegates.

The second recommendation favors additional legislation to safeguard the principal of the fund and provide sources from which relief payments shall be made.

The third proposition disavows the action of the Camden association in paying pensions out of the relief fund and favors the amendment of the law covering the matter so that such action will be prohibited specifically.

Will Attend Builders' Convention.

L. B. Woolston, W. C. Smith, John Abbott, Philip Jahn, Seaman Williams and Albert Pangborn, of the local Master Builders' Association, left this morning for Atlantic City to attend the annual convention of the Master Builders' Association of New Jersey, to be held today and Monday. As many matters of great importance are to be considered the convention will probably be largely attended by representatives from all parts of the State.

Pavement Causes Death of Horse.

The first fatality as a result of the brick pavement occurred yesterday at Park avenue and Fourth street, when a horse owned and driven by John Keiderling, of Avon Park, slipped and fell, breaking the hip bone. The animal was removed to Hedden's stable, where it was found necessary to shoot it.

Attacks Wife With Razor.

Pasquale Prazzi, 33 years old, of 502 Grand street, Hoboken, was yesterday arrested by Patrolman Keaveaney. Pasquale, in a quarrel with his wife, who he alleged was unfaithful to him, had slashed her face with a razor, inflicting several serious wounds. He was held to await the result of his wife's injuries.

Thirty Days for a Hobo.

George Beonnik, whose looks bore out his statement that he was a hobo and didn't care who knew it, was sent to jail for thirty days by Judge Runyon this morning. He was arrested by Patrolman Saffron who caught him panhandling in the West End.

OPPOSE A JOINT SEWER

Councilmen Not All Convinced That City Should Care For Borough Sewage.

BOROUGH THREAT IS A BLUFF.

State Board Would Not Allow North Plainfield to Construct An Independent Plant.

While it is possible that a partial report on the proposition to admit North Plainfield into Plainfield's sanitary system of sewers, may be presented at the August meeting, Monday night, August 3, it is not likely that any definite action will be taken before fall. The public hearing granted recently was fairly well attended and many expressions of opinion, pro and con, were heard, but there are members of the Plainfield Common Council who are not satisfied with the opinions thus far given.

One Councilman said today that in a matter of such vital importance to the two municipalities there should have been more than twice the number of interested taxpayers present at the public hearing. The fact that it was practically held in mid-summer, when the weather was exceptionally torrid, undoubtedly had its effect and was responsible for the small attendance.

Another city father says that he is not at all in favor of the proposed contract and adds, "let the North Plainfield people look out for themselves and establish their own sewage plant as Plainfield did. Everyone knows that the borough cannot locate sewage beds on the Debele farm, that the State Board of Health would not permit this to be done under the circumstances. I understand that there is an abundance of land in the extreme western part of the borough that would be suitable for such beds and would not be a nuisance.

"I especially favor Mayor Fisk's plan for a trunk line sewer that will take in all the nearby places. That is the ideal way of disposing of the local sewage matter and the only one that would remove all objection and render the various municipalities less likely to be defendants in any legal action."

Still other members of the city council favor another public hearing to be held early in the fall, when a majority of people interested will be home. It seems to be the opinion of some of the city officials that the land available in the city for sewage purposes is no more than Plainfield will need and they can see no reason why North Plainfield should be taken it, thereby increasing the flow of sewage to a greater extent.

The proposed contract is in the hands of the Councilmanic street and public affairs committee and just what will be recommended is difficult to determine at present. However, it is almost sure to be opposed by other members of the city body, if favorable action is recommended.

Manager Schermerhorn May Retire.

It is reported that Charles H. Schermerhorn, for more than forty years a telegraph operator at the North Avenue station, and said to be the oldest telegraph operator in active service, will be retired August 1 on a pension of $50 a month. The movement to retire Mr. Schermerhorn was started about two years ago and while he has not been officially notified of the intended action of the telegraph company, it is said by F. G. Sherman that the change will be made the first of August. Mr. Schermerhorn is seventy-eight years old. He was an operator for General Grant during the Civil War and the late Major Mack, of Elizabeth, and J. C. Stuart, now general manager of the Erie Railroad, were at one time his assistants at the local office.

Borough Italians In Street Fight.

Nicholas Godier, Joseph Barice, Michael Genna, Louis Skuldosha and Michael Gushana (meaning five Italians), got into an awful fight at Race street and Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon and were arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, just as words were becoming inadequate expressions of the argument and Godier and Genna started to pound each other. Henry Nischwitz telephoned for the police and the capture was easy. At the hearing today Godier and Genna were fined $3 apieces and the other three were asked to contribute $2 per to the support of the borough police department. They all paid up except Godier, who took three days.

To Finish Invitation Tournament.

Willard Wadsworth and William Wadsworth will play N. S. Charlock and W. B. Cragin, Jr., and Wylie Brown and Vaughan McGee will meet N. F. Charlock and G. W. Case in the semi-finals of the invitation doubles to be played at the Plainfield Country Club this afternoon. The surviving teams will immediately meet in the finals.

Plainfield Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Plainfield given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to peform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Richard Day, of 208 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have given a statement which has appeared in our papers for several years. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills because I know there is no reason why they will not do for others what they did for me. I had a miserable dull pain across my back and a sort of lameness across my kidneys. Standing any length of time or walking any distance aggravated it greatly. I was never sick much and did not like to take medicine but these attacks grew worse instead of better, and reading frequently about Doan's Kidney Pills I bought a box and used the contents. After taking the contents of two boxes I was cured."

WOMAN TRYING TO FIND LOST HUSBAND.

Mrs. William Bernhardt, of 105 Delevan street, New Brunswick, is anxious to learn the whereabouts of her husband who left about nine months ago for California in search of health.

His wife received letters from him at irregular intervals until March 17. He was then in Los Angeles. Since that time she has heard nothing from him.

Mrs. Bernhardt has been twice married and has six children, the youngest of whom is about four years old. A seventh child, a boy, died a little over a year ago.

She is very anxious to hear from her husband as she fears that something has happened to him.

Death Waited at the Door.

Perth Amboy, July 25.—Mrs. Sophie Maffie, thirty-five years old, was struck by a Central Railroad express train last night and instantly killed. Her body was tossed many feet from the tracks. The woman was employed in a handkerchief factory and had walked along the rails on her way home from work less than one hundred yards before the train hit her. She leaves two small children and no relatives are in this coutry. She came here a few months ago from Wilkesbarre, Pa., after the death of her husband in a mine cave-in.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

While working on Captain Salisbury's boat at Paulsboro, J. Paul terribly torn at the Camden Pottery tained some bad bruises.

Stephen P. Smith, of Leesburg, who graduated from Pennington Seminary in June, has won a scholarship at Rutgers College.

A decree of absolute divorce has been granted by Chancellor Pitney to Sallie Wacker, of Millville, from her husband, George Wacker, who deserted her three years ago.

Mrs. Chrissie Edwards, who lives near Woodstown, was thrown out of her carriage yesterday afternoon and seriously injured when her horse, frightened at an automobile, ran away.

Physicians at Cooper Hospital, Camden, found it necessary yesterday to amputate the left arm of Thomas Boloski, who had the limb teribly torn at the Camden Pottery last Saturday.

Neglect to remove an old maple tree in front of a house at Beverly will cost Mrs. Lucy Adams' heirs about $500. The tree fell against the building, wrecking the front porch and one side.

Christopher Knisell, of Mullica Hill, was eighty-two years old Monday and spent the day laying bricks in the wall of the new schoolhouse. He says he can make any man fifty years his junior hustle.

Stumbling under the wheels of an engine, Philip Cuneo, twenty-eight years old, of 1756 South Sixth street, Camden, had his left foot so badly crushed that four toes had to be amputated at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Michael Pocalski was seized with cramps while swimming in Cooper's Creek, below the Kaighn avenue bridge, Camden, last night and drowned. Pocalski was twenty-one years old and lived at Louis and Kaighn avenues, Camden.

Floyd Jones, of Beverly, is probably the youngest possessor of an engineer's and pilot's marine license. He is but seventeen years old and a son of Justice of the Peace Frank Jones. He will run a large steam launch at Beach Haven.

While playing in the street, near its home, 306 Hudson street, Gloucester, yesterday, the fifteen-month-old child of Charles Nicholson was run over by a baker's wagon and both its legs were broken. The child was attended by Dr. Beck.

J. F. Sandoz, who came from the vineyards of Switzerland, has a small vineyard at Palmyra, the like of which he never saw in his native land. The vines are laden with large bunches of grapes, some almost ripe. At the same time the vines are full of new blossoms, indicating a heavy second crop.

Called to Locust and Chestnut streets, Camden, yesterday, Dog Warden Smith found a dog snapping at everything in sight in a house. Catching the animal by the neck, he threw it in his wagon among several other canines. Just before the wagon reached the dog pound it was found that the dog was mad and had bitten the other animals until all had to be killed.

Beef went up again yesterday. With head down and tail up a cow belonging to Blackwood E. Crispin, which had wandered on the railroad track at Woodstown, prepared to meet a locomotive in deadly combat and showed no fear of the unequal match. The engineer shut off steam, but before the train could be stopped the cow was tossed fifteen feet high in the air and killed.

Consternation reigned last night among those of the Camden saloonkeepers who brave the "bishops' law" by selling on Sunday when it was authoritatively stated that on recent Sundays members and agents of the State Excise Board had made many purchases of liquor in saloons. The board deems it best to gather evidence for themselves rather than to depend entirely on the officials.

WOMAN UNDER WHEELS OF SKIDDING MOTOR CAR.

Dover, July 25.—Mrs. Nettie Benack, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Ort, of New street, Rockaway, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon. A large automobile owned by the Greene Motor Car Company of Newark skidded on the trolley tracks. It jumped the curb and across the sidewalk into the steps of the National Union Bank on West Blackwell street.

Mrs. Benack, who is a cripple, was walking down the street with Miss Nellie Conger, of New Brunswick. Miss Conger tried to pull her up the steps, but Mrs. Benack fell, apparently under the machine. When the car stopped her skirt was under the front wheel. She was unconscious and it was supposed she had been hit by the automobile. She was taken to a hotel and a physician summoned. She had sustained only a few bruises. In the automobile, besides the chauffeur, were William Thomas, of Hunterdon street, Newark, publisher of The Motor Record; his wife and two children. None of Mr. Thomas' party was hurt and later continued by carriage on their journey to Mine Hill to visit Mrs. Thomas' mother.

TEPPERS - 109-113 W. FRONT ST.

OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE IS NOW ON

One year ago we began here in your midst by advertising the Boehm stock at reduced prices, in order to give us the opportunity of replacing it with a cleaner and more up-to-date stock of our own selection--it took quite a time to dispose of such a houseful of goods, but we managed to do it by perseverance and cut prices. As soon as the space permitted, we filled in new merchandise of a better character, as the discontinuing of giving trading stamps allowed us to go a little "higher" on every article for the same retail price than our predecessor could pay, with an expenditure of several thousand dollars a year to the trading stamp people. We figured that the people of Plainfield would appreciate VALUE more than stamps, and we were not mistaken--for the thousands of dollars Mr. Boehm paid annually for the stamp books we began to put in merchandise. You can see the result today in a moment's comparison. Look at the bargains this house puts forth just ordinarily. LOOK AT THE BARGAINS THAT WE OFFER YOU AT THIS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE. Plainfield has never experienced such underpricing of honest dependable merchandise before--it's because our buyers are not hampered with any burdens of "so much for the stamp expense," or so much for loss of bad accounts to each lot of goods purchased. It's our policy to give you more and better merchandise for the same money than you can procure elsewhere in town--but no trading stamps or favors.

COME TO OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE--come every day if you can, you will see Bargains arrayed far more tempting than mere quotations could indicate.

The games of local interest today include Clinton Avenue and Nationals, of Perth Amboy, at Crescent Oval; Scotch Plains against Rahway, at Rahway. The contest at the oval should be a fast one as the teams are well matched and are playing in the best of form.

Carlstrom is now a fixture on the Scotch Plains team, covering the position at short. It was his stick work in the 'Plains-Clinton Avenue contest that helped the home aggregation to win by such a large score.

The Giants, who opened at the Polo Grounds yesterday with the Pittsburgs, are home for a long stay and should be able to take the lead in the exciting race in the National League. In the meantime the Yankees will invade the west.

As a parting act of remembrance before going west the Yankees dropped a couple of games to the Chicago White Sox on Thursday. It is an old story and it is rarely that Manager Elberfield's aggregation is credited with a victory.

The fans are still wondering why Flemington refuses to give the Clinton Avenues a game. Perhaps, if the Hunterdon county boys came to Plainfield they would get a sufficient guarantee to pay and besides it might be arranged to give the team its supper.

Roy Beecher, formerly of the Giants, is showing up well with the Newark Eastern League club. On Thursday he defeated Montreal by a score of 7 to 1, and allowing his opponents but five hits.

The St. Louis American League team is making them all sit up and take notice this year and is holding on with a vice-like grip to second place.

The change in the lineup of the New Market F. C. team should result in better results from now on. Wunderlich will do the slab work and the rest of the men have been put in positions which they should be able to fill in a creditable manner.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will play the Summit association nine at Summit today and will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

SAFE ICE CREAM
WITHOUT CHURNING

Think of simply placing the ingredients in a freezer and later finding the contents frozen into the most delicious CREAMS OR ICES. All without labor. All without the usual danger of ptomaine poisoning. Our method of aerating the cream in this wonderful freezer does it.

BUY THE SANITARY CRYSTAL GLASS ICE CREAM FREEZER 1.25

Pour the cream into the glass freezer. Glass, instead of tin, prevents any poisonous chemical action. Pack in crushed ice and salt. Set aside until frozen. That is easier than grinding for even ten minutes. Lift jar from ice pack. Under a faucet rinse off salty water. Push the rod against false bottom. Slice. If you do not wish to use all put covered freezer back on ice. The cream may be kept a week by renewing ice pack.

GOLF.

Leighton Calkins, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, has issued the following detailed statement regarding the Metropolitan championship to be played at Baltusrol: "I wish to announce important changes in the program for the Metropolitan open championship from that of previous years. This year the championship at Baltusrol will be limited to seventy-two-holes medal play, on Wednesday and Thursday, September 23 and 24. There will be prizes as follows: First, $150; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $40; sixth, $30; seventh, $20; eighth, $10. This contemplates eight players being within the money, as against six heretofore. In addition $60 is set aside, providing $10 each for the best morning, best afternoon and best double round each day. In addition to $150 in cash the winner will receive a gold medal.

"It has also been decided to change the conditions which heretofore limited entries to the metropolitan district. This year the Metropolitan Golf Association open championship is to be 'open' in every sense of the word. Any professional or amateur player in the world may play, and his entry need not be certified by any club secretary. All that is necessary is for him to send his name, the name of his club and $5 to the secretary of the association before Saturday, September 19.

"I am also pleased to announce that through the generosity of the Baltusrol Golf Club there will be an extra feature on Friday, September 25, the day following the open championship. This will consist of a thirty-six hole medal play four ball match, each team to consist of an amateur and a professional representing the same club. This event will be entirely under the auspices of the Baltusrol Golf Club, which will donate $200 for prize money—$100 for the winning team, $70 for second place and $30 for third place. Entries for this event must be made by club secretaries direct to the secretary of the Baltusrol Golf Club. There will be no entrance fee."

The qualifying and first round at match play were completed at Manchester, Vt., Thursday on the Ekwanok links in the ninth annual tournament of the Taconic and Ondawa cups. Frederick Herreshoff, Garden City, captured the low score medal in the qualifying round from a representative field of fifty-four golfers. His card was 37, 39-76, which is two under bogey. John M. Ward, Westbrook, was in second place with 79, while 89 was the last score to take a place in the first flight.

AMUSEMENTS.

The program offered the Proctor Clientele at Newark during the week commencing July 27 is a sure pen-acrea for the heated period and is arranged with laughter as its keynote. The principal attraction will be the appearance of those popular favorites Shean and Warren in their side splitting travesty "Quo Vadis Up-Side Down." The mirth provoking qualities of these clever comedians are too well known to need comment. Something of a decided novelty will be "The Angelus," a pictorial singing novelty with elaborate scenic and electrical effects. Hall McAllister and Company in a one act comedy sketch entitled "Thirty Dollars." Bowers, Walters and Crooker, "The Three Rubes," offer a series of acrobatic stunts coupled with lean comedy. Bertha Pertina, after a triumphant world tour, returns still the queen of all the dancers. Arthur Rigby, the minstrel monologuist, will be heard in song and story. Corblay and Burke, two Celtic comedians, will offer bits of Milesian wit and humor. Nina Collins, a dainty and petite singing comedienne, will be heard in a repertoire of songs. New animated pictures.

In the heat of a sweltering day, such as one encounters in the city during mid-summer, Brighton Beach Park is the "Recreative Eldorado" to fling away worry and join in the play. There everything is found that one wishes to find to further enjoyment. Brighton Beach Park has been known, from the very first, for its select patronage, and as a place where roughness or rowdyism will not be tolerated. It is also famous as being the home of the most gigantic amusement enterprises ever conceived, and this season the management has not been backward in keeping up the traditions already won for this gem of summer seaside resorts. In the large arena Henry J. Pain presents nightly, Sunday included, his world famous display of fireworks with a mammoth spectacle of the "Destruction of Jerusalem," which has been generally endorsed as the finest effort he ever has put forward. Aside from this one great feature there are many qualities that Brighton Beach Park is famous for besides; there is its magnificent and finely conducted bath house; its unequalled bathing beach with numerous attendants to prevent possible accidents; handsome gardens with beautiful flower beds; concerts afternoon and night at the band stand by the Brighton Beach Park band; a spacious boardwalk promenade along the ocean front, extending from Coney Island to Manhattan Beach without a break; and the numerous attractions which are of the highest order and free from all vulgarity. There is the longest scenic railway in the world with realistic tableaux of "Toga's Victory," "A Fire in New York," "The Yukon Trail," and "Peary in the Arctic Regions."

CALLS NEPHEW A MENACE.

Defrauded Uncle Tells Court His Relative Is a "Complete Scoundrel."

Mt. Holly, July 25.—"That boy has been incorrigible since an infant and nearly all his life has done nothing but lie, misrepresent and steal. He is the most complete scoundrel of his age in the country today, and he is certainly a menace to society."

This is the manner in which James Beech, of Palmyra, introduced his nineteen-year-old nephew, Miller Beech Clarke, to Judge Horner yesterday after the young man had been arraigned and pleaded guilty to numerous charges of forgery. Beginning on May 29 and continuing until June 27, young Clarke forged fifteen checks in amounts ranging from $4 to $200 and aggregating $684.70. He spent money so recklessly that Palmyra people opened their eyes, but he set aside all suspicion with a statement that he was using a legacy of $10,000 left him by his mother.

When Mr. Beech sent his account book to the Commercial Trust Company, Philadelphia, to have it balanced, the discovery of the forgeries was made. The prisoner had no defense to offer and he was sent to the State Reformatory at Rahway.

Plainfield, N. J., July 25, 1908.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Edward W. Gray, who was private secretary to former Governor Stokes, has announced h imself a candidate for one of the Republican nominations of assemblymen in Monmouth county. Mr. Gray is now engaged in the life insurance business in Newark and lives at Red Bank.

Colonel Alexander Fordyce persists in his purpose to stand as a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the Third district against Representative Howell, notwithstanding that the political drift seems to be highly favorable to the latter.

The Prohibition state committee will meet in the official board room of Trinity M. E. church, Trenton, Saturday, August 1, at 10:30 a. m., when a plan of campaign to be prosecuted in New Jersey will be formulated by the cold water folk. George J. Haven is chairman of the committee.

Hit by Wire; Wants $5,000.

United States Marshal Thomas J. Alcott yesterday served a summons on the Atlantic Coast Telephone Company of Atlantic City in the suit of George H. Tate, Jr., of Philadelphia, who asks $5,000 damages alleged to have been received by striking a wire of the company in Atlantic City.

Recorder to Be Continued.

The Metuchen Recorder was not published last week, owing to the death of its editor, Rev. S. B. D. Prickitt, but appeared as usual this week. The paper will be published in the interests of Mrs. Prickitt, by her two sons, Charles A. and William B. Prickitt.

HEAVEN'S INSHININGS

Second of Series on Heaven by

REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

The word heaven is from the Anglo Saxon "heafen," and means that which is arched or elevated. It refers, then, to the appearance of the sky above us. The Jews thought of three heavens; the heaven of the clouds, the heaven of the stars, and the third heaven or the unexplored space beyond the stars. Paul probably had this in mind, when he spoke of being caught up into the third heaven. The third heaven was where the Lord specially manifested His glory. Scripture revelation declares, however, the infinite God inhabiteth eternity and that His presence fills all space. I am not so sure that I should be any nearer God in the unexplored space above the stars than I am here. It isn't space that separates me from God it is character. Heaven is a moral state as well as a material place. Heaven is in the human heart first before it is anywhere else.

That the heavenly world is not so far away is very evident from certain great revelations of Scripture. God has given to certain privileged Scriptural characters wonderful evidence of the reality and nearness of the spiritual world.

There is the experience of Jacob—He started from home to make his own living, and one night when his loneliness seemed most intense, he had a strange dream—a dream of angels ascending and descending on a ladder that reached from earth to heaven. His loneliness was the immediate cause of the dream, the valley with its ledges of rock above him that seemed like a great stairway to the sky suggested the character of the dream, but when he awoke, he thought not of the accidents of the dream, but of the message of God to his soul. He realized as never before that heaven was round about him. He was conscious that God was with him in that valley and that He was guiding him. He had never before been conscious of this spiritual world so he called the name of this place Bethel, the gate of God.

There was another and richer experience in the life of Jacob. It was when he was returning home from Padan Aram. We are told that as he went on his way that the "angels of God met him," and when he saw them, he said: "this is God's host." It was there that he wrestled with the angel of God, and his name was changed to Israel. God revealed his great power to him in the time of his distress and the result of this heavenly inshining was that Jacob gave himself absolutely and entirely into the Lord's hands.

There came to the lonely solitary man Moses as he was tending his flocks in the wilderness of Arabia a wonderful inshining of the heavenly world. A common acacia bush burned before him and yet not consumed. At the same time, he heard a voice saying to him that the place whereon he stood was holy ground. Why was it holy? Because there God manifested His presence to him. It was at that place that the heavens were opened.

Jacob and Moses were not carried to some distant place that they might be conscious of the presence of the spiritual world. In the place where they were heaven was revealed to them; for the heavenly world was round about them as it is round about us.

A little further on in the history of Israel, the servant of the prophet Elisha is greatly agitated because of the mightinees of te Syrian army. Then the prophet says to him, "fear not for they that be with use are more than they that be against us." And he prayed that the eyes of the young man might be opened "and the Lord opened the eyes of the young man and he saw; and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha."

The heavenly help was revealed in a way that the young man could understand. I don't imagine that the glory of that world can be revealed to us just as it is, for the eye, the ear, or the heart cannot perfectly picture it.

When we come to the New Testament, we have that wonderful revelation of the heavenly world in the life and teachings of our Lord. Luther says, "when Christ became a man and had entered upon His ministerial office and began to preach then was the heaven opened and has from that time never been closed."

Paul writes to the Corinthians of his remarkable experience. He speaks of being caught up into the third heaven and of hearing unspeakable words. To his mind, the third heaven was where God specially manifested His glory. Paul had his earthly experiences that were indeed dark and dismal; but this wonderful experience helped him to bear these difficulties. He was not conscious whether he was in the body or not. He knew that he was in the spiritual world.

What does all this mean? Simply this: It makes the heavenly world a very real thing. The God who appeared to Jacob, Moses, Elisha and Paul is your God and He is just as near to you as to them. It depends on you whether He will manifest Himself to you. It is not material distance that separates us from the spiritual world, it is condition of soul.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The pulpit at the Baptist church tomorrow will be occupied by a supply, no regular pastor having as yet been called. Services will be held at the usual hours. Morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p.m., and evening preaching, 8 o'clock.

Constable Walpole, who was injured by the Plainfield toughs in the fight last Saturday, is improving slowly. No attempt seems to have been made as yet to land any of the members of the gang, although their names are known.

No game will be played on the local grounds this afternoon. The home team are playing the Rahway F. C. at Rahway.

Mrs. George L. Dunn and children, of Front street, are spending a week at the Johnston cottage, Asbury Park.

Mrs. Charles Backer, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Robert Jahn, of Park avenue.

Lester Lanagan has returned from a stay of several days with relatives in New York.

The weekly prayer and praise service will be held tonight at the Methodist church.

Philip Jahn's new house on Park avenue, is nearly enclosed.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Arrangements are already being made for the annual reunion of the Merrill and Dayton families, to be held at Riverside Park, Saturday, August 8. The program this year will be an especially elaborate one, including a dinner at the Park.

Rev. George H. Gardner will preach the last of his summer night sermons at the First Baptist church tomorrow night. His topic will be "Summer Harvests" and there will be special music.

The Misses Eva Schneider, Elsie Peters, Ruth and Deveral Apgar, who went with the Methodist excursion to Asbury Park, Thursday, will remain at the shore for two weeks.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, of New Market, left today for Chatham, where he will preach at the Congregational church tomorrow.

out incident before another good-sized crowd. After it was concluded Captain Samuel G. Barnard and Sergeant Thomas J. Dunn, of the Camden battery, were ordered to the Governor's cottage, and the executive ther presented to each in a brief speech a fifteen years' service medal.

Today there will be a complete change of camp, and General Dennis F. Collins, of the Second Brigade, will give away to General Edward A. Campbell, of the First. In place of the Second Regiment, the Fifth, of Paterson, will hold the camp for a week, and Battery B will return to Camden, to be followed by Battery A, of East Orange, commanded by Captain Oscar H. Condit, a member of Governor Fort's staff.

PAROLES ACCUSED WOMAN.

She Shot at Man Who Defamed Her —Husband Shot Another.

Mrs. Marie Mancinelli, of Perth Amboy, apepared before Judge Booraem at New Brunswick yesterday, accompanied by her two little daughters, aged 3 and 6, to answer an indictment for shooting at Edward Guarino in Perth Amboy on April 23 last. Prosecutor Berdine explained to the court that the woman shot at the man because she had learned he had circulated defamatory stories about her. After the shooting she eloped to Fonda, N. Y., with Tony Real. Her husband followed her and shot Real, who is now in a hospital there. The husband is in a New York jail.

The prosecutor said that he could not get the witnesses because of the New York shooting, and he felt a great deal of sympathy for the children, who have been staying in jail here for several days with their young mother. Judge Booraem placed the woman in charge of the probation officer for three years.

Husband of Month Missing.

Married about a month ago, Morris Laden, 23 years old, a fruit dealer of 1118 Broadway, Camden, has disappeared, and his bride yesterday morning asked the police to make an investigation. When he left home early on Wednesday he told his wife he was going to market in Philadelphia to purchase provisions. He had about $50 in his possession when he left, he told his wife, who fears he has been robbed and perhaps injured.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Motorcyclist Ran Down Man Who Died of Injuries.

Bayonne, July 25.—George R. Vreeland, of Garfield, and Danforth avenues, Jefcey City, a member of an old and prominent family, was yesterday morning arraigned before Recorder Lazarus at Bayonne on a charge of manslaughter. He waived examination and was committed to the county jail. On June 16 Vreeland, who was riding a motorcycle along Avenue C, near Thirty-eighth street, ran down Alfred Fryer, 35 years old, of 792 Broadway, a collector for the Public Service Corporation. Fryer was knocked unconscious. Vreeland was thrown from his machine by the shock, but he instantly remounted and drove off without ascertaining how badly Fryer had been injured.

Fryer died Thursday night in the City Hospital of internal injuries. Late Thursday night Detectives Griffin and Mulaney learned that Vreeland had caused the accident, and went to his home, roused his from bed and placed him under arrest. He claimed that the accident was unavoidable and was caused by an ice wagon getting in his way. Avenue C has been used as a speedway for motorcyclists.

ACCUSED MEN EXONERATED.

Mrs. James Murphy Takes Back Serious Charges She Made.

Mrs. James Murphy, widow of the man who died in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, Thursday, under suspicious circumstances, yesterday exonerated Edward Moore, a bartender in the employ of Henry Horstmann, 200 Willow avenue, Hoboken.

Mrs. Murphy had made a previous statement in which she had accused Moore and a man named Thomas Kennedy of knowing something about the manner of her husband's death and intimating that both of the men were to some extent responsible. She at first said that Moore and Kennedy had thrown her husband from the saloon on Willow avenue and had thereby caused the injuries from which he died.

In yesterday's statement Mrs. Murphy withdraws her former accusation and says that she is sorry for having made it. The young men bear good reputations in the neighborhood and were overjoyed at their exoneration. They immediately started out to collect subscriptions to aid the widow, who is in dire poverty.

M'FAUL AS A. O. H. ENVOY.

Trenton Prelate Is Proposed as International Unification Delegate by Hibernian Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25.—Action looking toward the unification of the Hibernians of Ireland and England was taken at yesterday afternoon's session of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The foreign relations committee reported in favor of sending two of the most prominent Irishmen in America abroad on such a mission. The report suggested that Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, N. J., and the incoming president of the national organization be sent on this mission of peace.

The delegates spent the greater part of yesterday listening to committee reports and the reports of officers. Reports from the committee on credentials showed that 532 delegates were in attendance, representing almost every State in the Union and many of the Canadian provinces.

A banquet was tendered the delegates at Tomlinson Hall last night. A letter from Senator Beveridge was received expressing regret that he could not be present.

BOUNCED BY PARTY FRIENDS.

Bayonne Freeholder Loses Job As School Janitor.

By dismissing Freeholder William F. Hogan as janitor of Public School No. 7 the Board of Education of Bayonne yesterday caused a sensation in Republican politics. Hogan is serving his second term as Freeholder and is a candidate for a third nomination next fall. He is one of the best-known Republicans in the city, and his dismissal as janitor was done by Republicans. The latter declared there was no politics in the dismissal, but Hogan's friends think differently.

The board caused another stir by passing a resolution compelling all teachers whose efficiency is below the required standard to study up during the next six months and undergo an examination. If they are found to be inefficient they are to be dismissed. The board also transferred Professors Edward Magner and Edward Sweeney, Democrats, from the High School to grammar schools, where their salaries will be about one-half what they were formerly.

Swoons When Sentenced.

Judge Booraem at New Brunswick yesterday sentenced to three years in State prison Elwan Telwach, of South River, convicted of attempting to attack Julia Beta, 12 years old. Telwach swooned when sentenced, and two officers had to almost drag him back to jail. Telwach attended his trial barefooted most of the time, his shoes being used as evidence against him. They fitted the footprints found where the attack was made on the girl.

To Use Tarba on Road.

Under the direction of State Road Inspector Meeker, work was started yesterday on the laying of tarba on Lyons Farms road, in Union county, between the city limits of Newark and Elizabeth. This will be the first time the tarba material has been used in this State. The Union county Freeholders contracted for the improvement on the recommendation of the State road commissioners, who believes the material will be successful as a dust preventative.

Undertakers' State Board.

Governor Fort yesterday reappointed W. Nelson Knapp, of East Orange, and W. J. Moran, of Jersey City, members of the State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers for terms of three years. Weatherby, of Millville; Raymond S. Taylor, of Trenton, and John F. Martin, of Sea Girt.

UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS.

Official Record of the Proceedings of the Board at Last Session.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J., held on Thursday, July 2, 1908, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present:

Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Fay, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, McGovern, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robison, Smith, Stephan, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff—20.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, the minutes of the previous meeting were approved as per printed copies on the members' desks.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Joseph Cannon, commander of Post No. 64, G. A. R.:

Elizabeth, N. J., June 16, 1908.

Honorable Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Wishing to take advantage of the law whereby the county furnishes headstones for honorably discharged deceased comrades of the Civil War, I have the honor to submit to your honorable body the following list:

Benjamin Wall, private Company D, Ninety-ninth N. Y. Vol. Inf., died June 11, 1883.

Michael Smith, private Company D, 133d N. Y., died March 20, 1907. Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Respectfully,
JOSEPH CANNON,
Commander Post No. 64, G. A. R.,
104 Livington Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Official:
Geo. H. Sanborn,
Acting Adjutant.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, received and referred to the special committee on headstones as heretofore appointed.

From William Jeffery as follows:

June 22, 1908.

Board of Freeholders, Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen—I have set apart July 6, from 2 p. m., to entertain some friends and serve them a real bungalow dinner. I hope to have at least one hundred present, and do hereby extend a hearty invitation to you as a body and individually to be present on that occasion. You will like the change both in environment, and our dinners speak for themselves. A goodly number of doctors will be present in case anyone is taken ill.

Music and short speeches shall fill to the brim every heart on that day, and we must all join in with a will.

I want to honor you by asking you as my first guests for July 6. I shall white you again later on, telling you just how to come.

Trusting that you will be with us, I am,

Yours cordially,
WILLIAM JEFFERY.

On motion of Freeholder Doane, received and accepted with thanks, the clerk to so notify Mr. Jeffery.

From James E. Warner, Township Clerk, Cranford, N. J.

June 1, 1908.

Emmor K. Adams, Freeholder:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the Township Committee, held this date, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Resolved, That the freeholder representing the township of Cranford be requested to bring to the consideration of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county the condition of the waterway known as Stony Brook, within the limits of Eastman street, between Hampton street and Pittsfield street, and call its attention to the fact that there is a naural waterway within the limits of a public street, and emphatically demand that immediate steps be taksn to abate the present very serious danger to the traveling public."

By direction of the Committee I am sending you the above with urgent request that you secure favorable action on the same.

Respectfully yours,
JAMES E. WARNER,
Township Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Adams, received and referred to the Committee on Pittsfield Street Bridge.

From the Board of Health, Roselle Park, N. J.

June 9, 1908.

Union County Board of Freeholders, care of Noah Woodruff:

Gentlemen—Complaints have been received from adjoining property-owners and residents regarding a pool of stagnant water and ditch at Union avenue and Westfield avenue. Water is prevented from flowing off on account of the culvert crossing Westfield avenue being clogged up with dirt and sand from the road, which prevents water from flowing through, causing it to lay in adjoining lots, and would ask that you have this culvert cleaned out as soon as possible.

Thanking you in advance for attending to this matter in your usual prompt manner,

Very truly yours,
ROSELLE PARK BOARD OF HEALTH,
C. ENGELHARD, Secretary.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse received and referred to Freeholder Woodruff, of Union township.

From J. E. Gill, secretary, etc.

Trenton, N. J., June 23, 1908.

Mr. Benjamin King, Esq., director Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union county, N. J.:

Dear Sir—The first annual convention of the American Automobile Association will be held in Buffalo, N. Y., on July 7 and 8. During the convention, through the courtesy of State Engineer Skein and the Board of Supervisors of Erie county, about four miles of improved highway just outside of the Buffalo city line has been placed at the disposal of the makers of various dust-laying devices, to the end that they may give an exhibition of such device and demonstrate the practical effect of the same.

The lateral road or roads in such neighborhood not yet improved will be turned over to the representatives of the makers of road-making machinery for practical demonstration of their work.

Believing that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county are interested in the building of practical roads and have experimented with various dust-laying devices, this association invites a committee of your board to visit the city of Buffalo, N. Y., on July 7 and 8 for the purpose of witnessing these demonstrations.

Will you kindly bring this before your board? and we suggest that a committee be appointed to attend the demonstration.

Very truly yours,
ASSOCIATED AUTOMOBILE CLUBS OF NEW JERSEY,
J. E. GILL, Secretary.

Freeholder Pierson moved that the communication be received, and that the director be empowered to take such action as he might see fit, which was so ordered without dissent.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By Committee on Michigan Avenue Bridge, Cranford.

Union County Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to examine and ascertain the advisability of building a new brick arch and iron beam bridge over the stream on Michigan avenue, at Kenilworth, would respectfully report that the said avenue has been regularly dedicated and accepted, and have examined the present old wooden structure and find it in a very bad condition and extremely dangerous to the traveling public. Therefore it would recommend that a new brick arch and iron beam bridge, with railings, be built at a cost not to exceed the sum of $550.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. LOGAN FAY,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Jail Inspection.

Elizabeth, N. J., June 2, 108.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that it has visited the jail, made thorough inspection, and examined the books of the warden. We find that ninety prisoners have been committed during the month of June; the number of days' board 2,199, an average of 73 9-30 prisoners per day; 15 have been treated by the physician.

Your committee would also report that through the recommendation of the jail physician the Sheriff was asked to furnish sufficient green vegetables to ensure the good health of the prisoners confined during the summer. The request has been granted and the general health of the prisoners is highly satisfactory.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Smith received and placed on file.

By Committee on Bridge in Mountainside.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—The Committee on Mountain Road No. 2 respectfully reports that it has examined the old bridge and finds it in bad condition and would recommend that a new bridge, with stone or concrete wall, iron beams and brick arches, at a cost not to exceed $750, be built.

Respectfully submitted,
ELSTON DARBY,
BRADFORD JONES,
D. J. McGOVERN,
Committee.

Freeholder Pierson moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Bridge at New Providence.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Central Avenue Bridge, borough of New Providence, would respectfully recommend that the same be replaced by T beam, brick or cement arch bridge, at an expense not exceeding $600.

Respectfully submitted,
BRADFORD JONES,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,
PETER H. MEISEL,
Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Discharge of Prisoners.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Discharge of Prisoners would respectfully report that it has inspected the jail and finds James McGanley, who was sentenced for sixty days and $100 fine, and finds his term expired on May 29, 1908; we believe that there is no prospect of his paying the fine, and would recommend to this board that he be discharged.

Respectfully submitted,
ELSTON DARBY,
JOHN ROBISON,
W. H. SWAIN,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Doane received and recommendation therein contained adopted.

By Committee on Hazlewood Avenue Bridge, Rahway.

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Hazelwood Avenue Bridge, Rahway, would report that it has examined the bridge and finds it very much in need of repairs, and your committee would recommend that the repairs be made, not to exceed the sum of $500.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,
JOSEPH PERRY,
ELSTON DARBY,
Committee.

Freeholder Darby moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Aqueduct Bridge.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—The undersigned Committee on Aqueduct Bridge over Robinson Run, in Clark township, would beg to report that said bridge has been completed in a manner satisfactory and approved by engineer in charge, and would recommend that the same be accepted by this board so soon as all bills and claims for the construction of the bridge have been paid and settled.

Respectfully submitted,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
THOMAS J. PIERSON,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cady the report was received, accepted and placed on file.

By Committee on Bridge in Springfield.

Elizabeth, N. J., July 2, 1908.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee appointed to investigate the advisability of alteration to the bridge on Westfield avenue, near the shoolhouse, Springfield, N. J., would report as follows:

This bridge is now 22 feet 11 inches wide by 20-foot span. It is built very well, and there are almost no repairs required to the present structure.

The bridge is situated, however, at a sharp turn in the county road, and as this road is now used to a very large extent by vehicles of all descriptions, the present bridge is too narrow to admit of handling the traffic safely. Your committee was informed that there have been several more or less costly accidents at the spot, owing to the narrowness of the bridge. The present railings have been bent in at a number of places, by being struck by passing vehicles.

Your committee would recommend that the easterly side of the bridge be extended out about five feet to provide for a sidewalk on that side of the bridge. The westerly side of the bridge should be extended out about 10 feet, to widen the roadway on that side, which is the outer side of the curve. This extension will fill up the deep gutters of the roadway and there should be some pipe laid at each side of the bridge in the present gutters thereof, to permit the new filling to be made directly out of the newly-proposed width of the bridge.

We therefore recommend that this work be done at a cost not to exceed the sum of $1,200.

Respectfully submitted,
PETER H. MEISEL,
HENRY KROUSE,
THOMAS J. PIERSON,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cady the report was received, accepted and placed on file.

By Committee on Line Bridges, Fanwood township.

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—The committee appointed at the last meeting of this board to examine line bridges along Green Brook, between Union and Somerset counties, in Fanwood township, respectfully report that they have carefully examined the same along with a committee from Somerset county, and find the iron bridge on Mountain avenue, also iron bridge at Seeley's Mill are badly in need of being carefully scraped and then painted with two coats of flexible paint; that the bridge at Terrell road, Seeley's Mill, and Mountain road require repairs to plank, and would recommend these repairs to be made, at an expense not to exceed $150, $75 to be paid by each county.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN ROBISON,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
ROBERT C. MAURER,
Committee.

Freeholder Jones moved that the report be received and recommendations adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an aunanimous vote.

Freeholder Cladek reported progress on St. George avenue bridge at Rahway.

NEW BUSINESS.

On motion of Freeholder Jones, the thanks of the board were tenedered to County Collector N. R. Leavitt for handsomely bound copies of the laws of 1908, presented by him to each member of the board.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur, the clerk was directed to send a certified copy of the report of the Committee on Acquduct Bridge, as adopted by this board, to the Aqueduct Company.

By Freeholder Fay:

Whereas, This board is apprised of the death of Honorable Grover Cleveland, ex-President of the United States, and the last of those thus honored to pass into the great beyond; and

Whereas, This distinguished citizen was entrusted by his countrymen to administer the affairs of government during two administrations;

Resolved, That without regard to our political affilfations, and in common with all who are pleased to testify to the worth of those who have filled this distinguished office, we record our respect for him who with a keen sense of duty considered at all times the future welfare of his country and the prosperity of its citizens; and be it further

Resolved, That we respectfully offer our sympathy to the family of our late President.

The foregoing resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

By Freeholder Doane:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the Washington avenue bridge, Plainfield, in connection with the Somerset county board, and report on the feasibility and desirability of improving the same with permanent floor system, together with the probable cost of the same.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Doane, McGovern and Adams.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine and report on the alteration to be made in the covering of the bridge over the brook crossing Broad street, Westfield, made necessary by the improving of said street with brick pavement, and the probable cost of the same.

Attached to the foregoing resolution was the following copy of a resolution adopted by council of the town of Westfield at a meeting held June 29, to wit:

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county be requested to cause the fillоor of the bridge on Broad street, between Elm and Prospect streets, to be reconstructed in such a manner as to permit the construction of brick pavement thereon.

Very truly yours,
LLOYD THOMPSON,
Town Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, the foregoing resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Smith, Wilbur and Cladek:

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine into the need for and probable cost of a new bridge to be constructed on First street extension, near Union avenue, Westfield, as per the request of the Westfield Town Council.

Attachd to the foregoing was a copy of a resolution adopted by the Council of the Town of Westfield at a meeting held June 15, 1908, to wit:

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county be requested to cause a suitable bridge to be constructed over the water course which crosses First street near Union avenue.

Yours very truly,
LLOYD THOMPSON,
Town Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Robison the foregoing resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Smith, Fay and Meisel.

By Freeholder Darby:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the bridge on county road, Mountainside borough, the committee to report at the next meeting as to the advisability of lengthening the same, together with an estimate of the probable cost.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Darby, Adams and Pierson.

By Freeholder Swain:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed with power, to rebuild the bridge in Pine Grove avenue near Mountain avenue, Summit.

This bridge is now a small one, much smaller than the bridge on Mountain avenue, spanning the same stream. It has fallen in badly in several places, and is dangerous. A new bridge should be built of six feet span, and about forty-five feet long, at a cost of not more than $700.

Freeholder Woodruff moved that the resolution be adopted and it was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Swain, Perry and Jones.

By Freeholder Perry:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine bridge on Dudley avenue, Westfield, the committee to report at the next meeting of this board as to the advisability of building a new bridge, together with its probable cost.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Perry, Maurer and Cady.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the site of a proposed new bridge on Munsell street, near Wood avenue, Linden, N. J., the committee to report at the next meeting as to the necessity of the bridge, and its probable cost.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Krouse, Robinson and Stephan.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to investigate and report as to a bridge on Knopf street, over West Brook, Linden, N. J., the committee to report at the next meeting as to the necessity of building the bridge and its probable cost.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Krouse, Swain and Meisel.

By Freeholder Cady:

Resolved, That the rule about presentation and auditing of bills on the Wednesday preceding the meeting of the board be enforced; and further

Resolved, That no bills be audited or paid if not presented on the Wednesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon before the meeting of this board.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be requested to approve the construction of a drawbridge over the Elizabeth river, at Baxter street, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., the bridge to be fifty feet span, as planned.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Resolved, That the Committee on Baltic Street Bridge be authorized to secure surveys, plans and specifications for a drawbridge over the Elizabeth river, at Baltic street, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., the bridge to be fifty feet span in the clear, and to be about twenty-five feet wide in the clear; the committee to secure bids for the work and to report to this board at a subsequent meeting of the board.

On motion of Freeholder Woodruff the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Whereas, It is reported that there are frequent violations of the speed law respecting automobiles over the county roads of this county and it appearing that there are insufficient number of officers, as inspectors to make arrests, and protect the public against injury and accident; therefore be it

Resolved, That the County Road Committee and County Attorney be requested to investigate said matter and report to this board as to what power, if any, this board has to remedy the same.

On motion of Freeholder Cady the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Woodruff:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine a bridge on the road leading to the "Hammock," Union Township, and report the advisability and probable cost at the next meeting of this board.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Woodruff, Doane and Pierson.

By Freeholder Cady:

Resolved, That the Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders and the collector be, and they are hereby authorized to borrow the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the note of this county, in anticipation of taxes.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

Copyright by G. W. Dillingham Co.

On the night of November 4 only one layer of bricks separated them from the top of the vault, and it was decided to finish the work and do the robbery that night. Two hours' hard labor with "drag" and "jack-screw" sufficed to effect an opening, and Scott and Dunlap were lowered into the vault. They found three Marvin spherical safes protected by a burglar-alarm. But Dunlap was somewhat of an electrical expert, and was able to so surround the burglar-alarm with heavy boards as to render it of little or no danger. They experienced much difficulty, though, in blowing open the safes. The first one attempted yielded on the second explosion, and they secured $500 in currency and $60,000 in bonds. The next one was far more troublesome, not less than ten explosions being required to make way into it. And just as the task was at last accomplished, and they were on the point of seizing a great sum of money, there came a warning call from Conroy, who was doing sentry duty on the roof, and it was necessary to fly.

When Dunlap and Scott had been dragged out of the vault by their associates they were found scarcely able to run. During all the 12 explosions of powder and dynamite they had never left the vault, but, crouching behind the boards that guarded the burglar-alarm, had remained within arm's length of explosions so violent that they tore apart plates of welded steel and shook the whole building. Worse than the shock of these explosions were the noxious gases generated by them, which Scott and Dunlap had to breathe. On coming out, their clothes were wringing wet with perspiration, and they were so weak that their legs tottered under them, and their comrades had to almost carry them for a time. But, nevertheless, they managed to walk 30 miles that night, to Lehigh, where they boarded a train to New York.

It was on this occasion that there was left behind in the vault the air-pump which Robert Pinkerton afterward recalled so shrewdly to Evans' disadvantage.

Coming, in his confession, to the Northampton bank robbery, Evans said that the gang had considered making an attempt there for several months before the robbery was actually executed. For a time they had designed to rob the First national bank, where Evans had been employed to put in new doors, but this scheme they afterward abandoned. Enjoying the fullest confidence of the Northampton bank officers, Evans had made repeated visits to the bank and gained important information for his associates. It was through his influence that the bank directors decided to give the whole combination of the vault to the cashier, Whittelsey, who had previously been intrusted with only half of it, the remainder being given to one of the clerks.

On the night of the robbery Evans was in New York, but he had gone to Northampton a day or two after, as already stated. Then, for the first time, he realized what immense wrong and suffering would be inflicted upon innocent people by the robbers, and he said it was this that had prompted him in his efforts to have the securities restored to the owners.

Returning to New York, he at once communicated with Scott and Dunlap by means of "Herald" personals, and had several interviews with them in the city during the month of February. While they were anxious to dispose of the securities, it was plain from the first that they distrusted Evans and proposed to lessen his share of the profits. While pretending to approve the steps he was taking for a compromise with the bank, they were really, without his knowledge, carrying on secret negotiations with the same object. The suspicion on either side grew until finally it could no longer be concealed. Meeting Scott in Prospect park some time after the robbery, Evans said: "When are you going to settle and give me my share?"

"You'll never get a cent," answered Scott; "you've given the whole gang away."

For some time they did not meet again. Evans continued his vain efforts for a settlement, growing more and more anxious as the months went by and he saw the danger to himself become more threatening. On the 9th of November he met Scott, Dunlap and "Red" Leary on the outskirts of Brooklyn, and a violent quarrel occurred about the division of the spoil. Reproaches and threats were exchanged with stormy language, and at one time Evans' life was actually in danger.

It was soon after this interview that Evans decided, under the management of Superintendent Bangs, to save himself by making a full confession. He had fewer scruples about betraying his associates, because he had become convinced that in the previous robberies, notably in the one at Quincy, Ill., he had been treated most unfairly by Scott and Dunlap.

Evans said that for several weeks preceding the Northampton robbery the gang had concealed themselves in the attic of a schoolhouse which stood four or five rods from the highway and apart from other houses. His statement was substantiated by the discovery in this attic, after the robbery, of blankets, satchels, ropes, bits, pulleys and provisions, including a bottle of whisky bearing the label of a New York firm.

After the vault had been rifled, the money and securities were placed in a bag and a pillow-case, and carried to the schoolhouse, where they were stowed away in places of concealment that had been previously prepared. One of these was underneath the platform where the teacher's desk stood. Another was a recess made behind a blackboard, which was taken off for the purpose and then screwed carefully in place. For nearly two weeks this treasure, amounting to over a million dollars, lay unsuspected in the schoolhouse, the teacher walking over a part of it, the children working out their sums on the blackboard which concealed another part. It was left there so long because the robbers were unable to return for it, owing to the strict watch for strangers that was kept at the railway station and along all the roads. Finally Scott bought a team of horses for $900 and, with Jim Brady, drove over to Northampton from Springfield. After securing the booty, they had serious trouble in getting away. Brady fell into the mill-race, which they were crossing on the ice, and this accident necessitated their camping out all night in a cabin in the woods.

After hearing Evans' story, the question foremost in Mr. Pinkerton's mind was where the stolen securities had been concealed. From what Evans said, and from what he knew himself about the methods of the gang, he was satisfied that Dunlap possessed this secret, and would intrust it to no one unless absolutely compelled to do so. The likeliest way of compelling him was to put him under arrest, which might very well be done now that Evans had consented to turn state's evidence. For weeks Pinkerton "shadows" had never been off Scott and Dunlap, who spent most of their time in New York, the former living with his wife at a fashionable boarding house in Washington square.

Instructions were accordingly given to the "shadows" to close in upon them, and on February 14, 1877, both men were arrested in Philadelphia as they were on the point of taking a train for the south.

Despite the large sum of securities in their possession the men had run short of ready money and, while awaiting a compromise, were starting out to commit another robbery. They were taken to Northampton and committed to jail to await trial.

It happened as Mr. Pinkerton foresaw. Brought into confinement, Dunlap and Scott were compelled, in the conduct of their affairs, to reveal the hiding place of the booty to some other member of the gang. They chose for their confidant "Red" Leary. The securities, as subsequently transpired, were at this time buried in a cellar on Sixth avenue, near Thirty-third street, New York. The precise spot was indicated to Leary by Mrs. Scott, who, in doing so, reminded Leary of an agreement entered into by the members of the gang before the robbery, that any one of their number who might get into trouble could, if he saw a necessity, call upon his confederates to dispose of all the securities on whatever terms were possible and use the proceeds in getting him and others—if others were in trouble also—free. At the time Leary scoffed at this agreement, but was perfectly willing, even eager, to have it enforced a little later, when, by the orders of Inspector Byrnes, he was himself arrested on the charge of complicity in the memorable Manhattan bank robbery, which had occurred some time before. Having failed in a purpose of "shadowing" Leary to the place where the securities were hidden, Robert Pinkerton decided that the best move to make next would be to arrest Leary for complicity in the Northampton robbery. Steps were taken to have requisition papers prepared, and it was pending the arrival of these that Leary was held on the other charge, for it was not thought that he had really taken part in the Manhattan bank robbery.

The criminal annals of the United States contain no more thrilling chapter than that of the adventures of "Red" Leary. He was a typical desperado in appearance, with his shock of red hair, and his bristling red mustache, and his ugly, heavy-jawed face, while his huge neck and shoulders, his big head and powerful hairy hands impressed one with his enormous physical strength. He weighed nearly 300 pounds, and his "pals" used to point with pride to the fact that he wore a bigger hat than any statesman in America—eight and a quarter.

While much of Leary's life had been spent in deeds of violence, he had shown on occasions such splendid bravery, and even heroism, as almost atoned for his crimes. There are few soldiers who would not be proud of Leary's record on the battlefield. He was among the first to respond to his country's call in our own civil war, being a volunteer in the First Kentucky regiment under Col. Guthrie, and he was a good soldier from the time of his enlistment up to the moment of his honorable discharge.

The ablest lawyers were now secured in his defense, and by every possible method of legal obstruction they kept alive a controversy in the New York courts until the early days of May, 1879. Meanwhile Leary reposed in Ludlow street jail, where he enjoyed all the privileges ever accorded to prisoners. In return he paid the warden the substantial sum of $30 a week; and it was evident that, whether he had or had not been concerned in the Northampton robbery, he had in some way obtained abundant money. He was visited constantly by his wife.

On the afternoon of May 7 Mrs. Leary called at about five o'clock with "Butch" McCarthy, and the three were alone in Leary's room until nearly eight o'clock. After that Leary strolled about in the prison inclosure, and at about a quarter past ten Keeper Wendell, who had charge of the first tier, in which Leary's room was located, saw him going upstairs from the second to the third tier. Although in this Leary was going directly away from his own room, there was nothing to excite surprise, for Leary had been accustomed to use the bathroom on the third tier. A quarter of an hour later Wendell started on his rounds, according to the prison rule, to see that each one of the men in his tier was securely locked up for the night. When he came to Leary's room he was a little surprised to find him still absent, but supposed he would be there shortly. But after waiting a few minutes and finding Leary still absent, the keeper became alarmed and began a search. He first went to the bathroom, and, not finding Leary there, searched in other places, high and low. Then he returned to the bathroom, and there made a discovery which filled him with consternation. He saw in the brick wall, what at first had escaped his attention, a gaping hole, large enough to allow the passage of a man's body. The hole opened into a tunnel that seemed to lead downward. The alarm was at once given, and it soon appeared that the keeper's fears were only too well founded. "Red" Leary had escaped.

It was found that the tunnel from the bathroom led into a room on the fifth floor of a tenement house at No. 76 Ludlow street, adjoining the jail. The wall of the house added to the wall of the jail made a thickness of four feet and a half of solid masonry, which had been cut through. In the three rooms that had been rented in the house by Leary's friends were found abundant evidences of the work.

Leary, after his escape, fled to Europe, but was afterward arrested in Brooklyn by Robert Pinkerton and three of his men, who "held him up" in a sleigh at the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Fourth avenue, Brooklyn; and before Leary could make use of a large revolver which he had on his person, the horse was grabbed by the head and pulled to a standstill, and Leary was dragged out of the sleigh and handcuffed. He was taken immediately to Northampton and put in jail there.

Some time previous to this the Pinkertons had located Conroy, who had also escaped from Ludlow street jail in Philadelphia; and immediately on the arrest of Leary, Robert Pinkerton sent one of his detectives from New York to Philadelphia, who was fortunate enough to arrest Conroy at one of his resorts on the same night, and he was also delivered in jail at Northampton.

Some months previous to this the Pinkertons had also arrested Thomas Doty, another member of the band, and lodged him in the Northampton jail.

In the meantime, Scott and Dunlap, now in state prison, had made a confession as against Leary, the holder of the securities; and when Leary was brought to Northampton they wrote him a letter, notifying him that unless the securities were handed over to their proper owners, they would take the witness stand against him and convict him, but that if he did turn over the necessary securities they would refuse to take the stand. This resulted in the recovery by the Northampton bank of nearly all the securities stolen from the bank and its depositors, this not including, however, the government bonds and currency stolen at the time. Some of these securities had depreciated in value upward of $100,000 since they were stolen. The amount of the securities recovered represented $700,000; they had been in the hands of the thieves upward of two years.

After the securities were returned, Scott and Dunlap refusing to take the stand against Leary and Doty, the authorities were eventually obliged to release them as Evans had also refused to take the stand against them. Conroy, who had simply been a go-between, and not an actual participant in the robbery, was released at the same time by order of the court.

The trial of Scott and Dunlap took place at Northampton in July, 1877, a year and a half after the robbery. Evans took the stand against them, his evidence making the case of the prosecution overwhelmingly strong. After three hours' deliberation the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the prisoners were sentenced to 20 years each in the state prison. Scott died in prison, and Dunlap, having been pardoned several years later, removed to a western city, a reformed man, and earned an honest living until his death. As far as is known, since leaving the penitentiary he never returned to his evil ways. Conroy also took to new ways, became honest and generally respected by all who knew him.

"Red" Leary came to his death in a curious way. One night in April, 1888, he had been drinking with some friends at a well-known sporting resort in New York, on Sixth avenue, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets. In the party was "Billy" Train, an old bunko man. They were all somewhat intoxicated and inclined to be uproarious. As they came out on the street "Billy" Train picked up a brick and threw it up in the air, yelling: "Look out for your heads, boys." To this warning Leary paid no attention, and the brick came down on his head with full force, fracturing his skull. He was taken to the New York hospital and died there, after much suffering, on April 23.

As for the safe expert, Evans, he engaged in legitimate business, and prospered. In compiling this chapter from the records, the writer has, by request, changed some of the names of the parties, who since that time have reformed and become respected members in the communities where they reside, and the author has no desire to injure them.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Fisk Proves His Case.

In June, 1907, Charles J. Fisk, now the chairman of the State Excise Commission, was foreman of the Union County Grand Jury. In the latter capacity he read in court a presentment setting forth the shameful excise conditions in that county and especially in Elizabeth, the county seat. He found that city goverened in the brewery, saloon and liquor interests. He declared that the president of council was president of a brewery, that several councilmen were connected with brewery interests, that every member of the Essex Board was pledged to the liquor interests, and that even the members of the police force and of the fire department were appointed for political reasons and were under obligations to the same appointing power. Under these conditions there were constant violations of the law, but no investigation would amount to anything unless the sheriff revised the jury list and drew jurors in the interests of right and justice, and not those willing to violate their oaths to protect the interests of their friends.

This presentment created a sensation. The Elizabeth City Council unanimously adopted resolutions declaring the allegations "totally uncalled for and entirely unjustified;" that the reputation of this community and council has materially suffered because of these ifputations, and that council stood ready to remove from office any official guilty of such malfeasance as was implied. General Dennis F. Collins, president of council, was the most indignant official of the lot, and scored Chairman Fisk for the charges contained in the grand jury's presentment.

That was over a year ago. There has been plenty of time to remedy matters in Elizabeth if the officers were determined to remedy them. But apparently not a single step has been taken in that direction. When Chairman Fisk and his associate committeemen probed Elizabeth yesterday they found conditions as bad, if not worse, than any thus far found elsewhere in the State. Chairman Fisk made good every one of the allegations in his presentment. He found every member of the Excise Board doing a large share of business with saloon-keepers and brewers. One did the livery business, another the insurance, a third the painting and decorating, a fourth supplied mineral waters and cigars and so on. And the president of council was and is president of council was and is president of a brewery which controls fifty or more saloons in the city that are continually violating the law.

The Mayor admitted the laws were ignored. The chief of police acknowledged the same, but it was impossible to convict. Seventy indictments were found a year ago, but not a single conviction could be had by the sheriff's juries. Out of eighty-four saloons investigated last Sunday by the commission's detectives, seventy-seven were doing business. As Dean Gessner forcibly expressed it, "The City Council and the Excise Board are both rotten." A member of the council's Police Committee, a lawyer, never took steps to enforce the "bishops' law" because, he claimed, under the act of 1893, the city did not have that power. He did not know, and apparently did not want to know, that the law had long been repealed.

Chairman Fisk did not mince matters. He told one of the most shameless of the excise commissioners: "You either don't want to know or do know and won't tell what the conditions are. I have found out more in thirty days than you have in ten years. If Elizabeth is a clean city, New Jersey is the dirtiest State in the country in excise matters. A man that doesn't know anything isn't fit to hold public office."—Newark News.

Excise Commission Bouquets.

The State Excise Commission yesterday asked point blank if liquor matters in this city were not controlled by Theodore Strong. The question could not be answered in the affirmative, which was unfortunate for Mr. Strong, because the commission later stated that it had found conditions better in New Brunswick than in any place it had investigated. The public knew long ago that under the present regime, excise matters have improved a hundred or more per cent. over the old way of doing things, and when the only criticism of the Excise Board is that it is inspired by a non-member to do its duty, the kickers would seem hard pressed for an argument. Mr. Fisk's words, spoken on behalf of the State Commission, indicated a condition in New Brunswick for which Judge Booraem, the Excise Commission, Prosecutor Berdine and the police are deserving of the highest praise.—New Brunswick Home News.

Senator Ackerman, in announcing his candidacy for a renomination, speaks of his independence. But, better than these words, have been Mr. Ackerman's acts at Trenton and Chicago.—Newark News.

BOSTONIANS BUILD TRENTON CITY HALL.

City Treasurer W. J. B. Stokes, of Trenton, yesterday afternoon opened the bids of prominent bond merchants of New York and Philadelphia as well as Boston for $200,000 of new City Hall bonds, or a portion of the entire amount of $1,000,000 needed for the building of Trenton's new City Hall, and the award was made to Blodget, Merritt & Co., of Boston, who bid a premium of $73.28 on each $100 bond at 4½ per cent. interest.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. W. A. Therrell, of New York, will speak in the Wilson Memorial chapel tomorrow night.

The anual excursion of the Baptist church and Sunday-school, of South Plainfield, to Bellewood Park, yesterday, was a success, more than one thousand people enjoying the trip.

The topics for the morning and evening services at the South Plainfield Baptist church, tomorrow, will be as follows: a. m., "He that believeth shall not make haste;" p. m., "The Church Militant." The church will be closed for August with the exception of the Sunday evening service, which will be in charge of the Christian Endeavor Society. "The Home Mission Schoolhouse and What It Has Done," will be the subject tomorrow night.

An assembly for spiritual conference of clergymen and layment of the Reformed church will be held in the Grand Avenue Reformed church, at Asbury Park, August 3-7 inclusive. The officers are: The Rev. George W. Richards, D. D., Lancaster, Pa.; the Rev. Theodore H. Frick, secretary, Coplay, Pa.; the Rev. William J. Hinke, D. D., vice-president, Auburn, N. Y.; the Rev. H. N. Bassler,. assistant secretary, Harrisburg, Pa.; and the Rev. Thomas W. Dechert, treasurer, Reading, Pa.

WANT STATE TO OPEN INLET CLOSED BY BAR.

Because of the closing for the second time this season of Shark River inlet residents will make an appeal to Governor Fort for relief from conditions which tend to make the coast not as fine as Jersey likes to show her Atlantic beach front.

Shark River has all along been one of the safest and best crabbing, clamming and fishing ground on the Atlantic coast, and now that it is closed, citizens of the state as well as visitors will be deprived of profitable employment and sport.

It is pointed out that the emergency fund at the disposal of the Governor can best be put to work digging out this sand bar which has stopped the entrance of the salt water, and citizens will make an appeal for relief.

DROWNING SORROW WAS FATAL

Philadelphian, Drinking Because of Estrangemen from Wife, Found Dead in Bed.

Atlantic City, July 25.—An attempt to drown his sorrows is said by the police to have led to the death of John K. Bowers, thirty-eight years old, of 2935 Franklin street, Philadelphia, who was found dead in bed at a Kentucky avenue hotel yesterday.

Bowers came here early in the week with the avowed purpose, it is said of effecting a reconciliation with his wife, from whom he had been estranged for some time. He seemed to have failed in his object and the police say that he began drinking heavily.

There were no marks of any kind on the body and physicians have pronounced heart failure as the immediate cause of death.

Equipment.

Dashaway—I'm going to a house party. Wonder what I need to take along?

Cleverton—About a quart of $5 gold pieces to tip the servants with, a flannel shirt, dress suit, pajamas and a half-dozen engagement rings. —Life.

MOTHER SEES BOY DROWN.

Mrs. Philip Weinberg Unable to Aid Son Bathing at Long Branch.

Twelve-year-old Arthur Weinberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weinberg, of New York, was drowned yesterday while in bathing with his mother at Long Branch. Mrs. Weinberg and her boy waded into deep water, and before they realized it they were carried beyond their depth.

A large number of people were in bathing at the time, and in the confusion which followed the lad's cry for help, four or fire who tried to rescue him had narrow escapes. He sank before aid reached him. The body was rocovered and physicians worked diligently for resuscitation, but without avail. Rescuers quickly brought Mrs. Weinberg ashore. The family was spending the summer at Long Branch.

THIS FARMER HOODOOED.

Trouble Follows Trouble in Rapid Succession.

Bad luck has pursued Farmer James Logan, who lives a mile from Glendale, for several days past and he is wondering what next. A few days ago one of his cows died; the same night a mink broke into his chicken coop and killed a large number of choice young fowl; a day or so later his youngest boy, 9 years old, fell and broke his arm, and only a few hours afterward his barn was discovered on fire, but prompt action saved it.

For two days nothing happened and Mr. Logan began to breathe easier, when one of his horses dropped dead from the heat in the harvest field yesterday.

"Big Tim" Pays His Fine.

Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, of New York, was caught in Justice Housell's automobile net at New Brunswick, admitted his guilt and paid a fine of $10. "I'm in favor of your Jersey laws," said Big Tim. "You know, I am a sort of a Jerseyman myself now, since I bought that Fleishmann farm out at East Millstone."

Color Line Drawn at Jail.

Mrs. Isaac Kane was denied admission to the county jail at New Brunswick yesterday when she called to see her husband. She is a white woman and her husband is a negro. Warden Rogers informed her that the color line was drawn at the jail. She went away weeping, declaring that she only wanted to look upon the face of her husband again.

ELIZABETH WINS TROPHY

Mathey and West Win Close Match For East Jersey Tennis Title.

TRIM CRAGIN AND WADSWORTH.

Elizabeth Town and Country Club Now Holds State Trophy Permanently—P. C. C. Got 9 Points This Year.

The trophy tankard offered by the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association became the permanent property of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club yesterday by being won for the third consecutive season by Elizabeth players. W. B. Cragin, Jr., and Willard Wadsworth, the Plainfield Country Club pair in the finals of the men's doubles tournament which was to decide the award of the trophy this year, were defeated at the Country Club courts yesterday afternoon after three hard-fought sets, when Dean Mathey and R. A. West, of the Elizabeth club, won by scores of 8-6, 6-1 and 7-5. The five points awarded the Elizabethans as winners gave them a total of fourteen points in the season's tournaments, and the local tennis players could get but two points, raising their score to nine points. The Danforth Club, of Jersey City, had five points.

The Plainfielders played their best tennis, but were no match for the Elizabeth pair, who were superior in team play and steadier at critical points of the game. The first set went to deuce, and it was only after the games were six all that the visitors could win two in succession. Whirlwind playing in the second gave the Elizabeth pair an easy win, the local racket wielders only securing one game. The third set also ran to deuce games, but the visitors were fresher and won out 7-5. Three weeks ago an attempt was made to play off the match, but after each pair had won two sets of the five set match, darkness compelled a postponement.

Plainfield won two points in the women's singles, where Miss Edna Wildey was runner up, the mixed doubles, won by W. B. Cragin, Jr., and Miss Edna Wildey, gave the Country Club five more points in the general standing and the total of nine points was made up by the two points awarded to Cragin and Wadsworth as runners-up in the men's doubles, concluded yesterday.

H. McK. Glazebrook and R. A. West, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club won nine points for their club as winner and runner-up in the men's singles, Mrs. A. H. Church and M. S. Charlock added two points as runners-up in the mixed doubles, and Mathey and West brought the trophy to Elizabeth by winning yesterday's match. Miss Erna Marcus, winner of the women's singles tournament, gained the five points for the Danforth Club, of Jersey City.

AGAIN THE PICTURE HAT.

The lace-frilled hat has appeared and was welcomed most cordially. It was followed by a graceful hat of straw, with tiny flower trimming, which is chic though certainly a style to test the beauty of the wearer.

Brimless, the crown very much like an inverted tub, the straw frame fits rather closely to the well-rounded, padded coiffure. Perhaps ribbons and flowers at the back help to break the plain outline and the arrangement of aigrettes at the front and side is something attractive, too.

Taken collectively, every inch of the new hat is rather charming and the loosely trimmed flower hat with bobbing, nodding plumes is not so trim as the smart hat solidly built.

Intemperance In Talk.

At the recent Prohibition State convention in Connecticut, one of the delegates offered a resolution giving expression to the convention's appreciation of ability, statesmanship and public services of Mr. Cleveland. A Western agitator who was present objected to the use of the word "statesmanship," assuming that because Mr. Cleveland was not a Prohibitionist he had no right to the title of statesman. Rather than provoke a discussion the mover of the resolution withdrew it. There is quite as much intemperance in judgment and language as in driking or eating. The incident is not at all creditable to the Connecticut Prohibitionists, who permitted a narrow-minded butter-in to prevent them from paying a slight tribute to the memory of a former President of the United States.—Trenton Times.

THE LOBSTER.

The lobster is a well known marine crustacean, but more generally known in the eastern states bordering on the Atlantic ocean. It is also well known in some portions of Europe and some other countries. It is said, however, that those in Europe are not of so good quality, as a food, as those found in this country.

For quite a number of years they have been getting more and more scarce, and for a time those who handled them were quite fearful that they would become extinct in the near future. But some of the states have been coming to the rescue by officially appointing commissioners to investigate the matter and see if possible what might be done. This they have been doing, the outcome of which is already found to be a remarkably successful undertaking. The lobster thrives more extensively beyond Cape Cod, but even as far this way as the Rhode Island coast, and especially around Narragansett Bay, the matter is being pushed with commendable vigor. Extensive hatcheries are in full operation and others are being constructed. These hatcheries, or culture houses, usually consist of large floats containing an inclosure and surrounded by a large number of tanks, usually three or four feet deep, and under water. In these tanks are placed the spawn of the lobster, that while hatching they may be protected from being destroyed or eaten up by bad company.

After the hatching process the young lobsters, or fry, are still kept in the tanks while undergoing the various formations, or moultings, and become real lobsters, but very small. They soon, however, become of sufficient size to protect themselves from those that should be their friends, and are then scooped out with a wire cloth dipper and placed in vessels of sea water, taken to their natural habitations and liberated. Great numbers of them have already been transferred, and it is estimated that by August first not less than 600,000 or 700,000 will be let loose in the sea borders of Rhode Island alone.

To Cleanse Willowware.

Natural finished willow furniture may be cleaned with soap suds in which borax has been dissolved. It should be applied with a scrubbing brush. The pieces should be dried very speedily in the sun. Before the cleaning with water begins, the piece should be thoroughly dusted. This rule holds good with any article at all that is being washed. All loose dust should be shaken or brushed off before water is applied.

INTERCEDES FOR CORDOVA

Rev. C. S. Kemble Urges People to Forgive the Unfrocked Pastor.

"JUDGMENT WAS TOO HARSH."

Monroe Avenue Church Pastor Says That Cordova Has Been Punished Too Severely By the Press.

Urging free forgiveness and prayer for the restoration of Rev. Mr. Cordova, the unfrocked South River dominie, who is ow finishing a term of imprisonment after conviction several years ago on a serious charge, Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, preached a sermon on the Cordova case in connection with the evening service at his church last night.

The pastor read an English dialect story descriptive of the bitter isolation upon an erring preacher by his former religious associates and the vehement rebuke of one of their number that finally called them to change their attitude toward the culprit. Mr. Kemble observed that the story was peculiarly pertinent at this time because of a similar attitude among church members in New Jersey to one clergyman who somewhat notoriously went astray some four years ago. He said in part:

"Prejudged by a sensational press, sentenced by a prejudiced judge, Cordova is just finishing out a term of imprisonment far in excess of that generally accorded to his crime. The press and the courts have had no mercy upon him. They may possibly be excused for that. Mercy isn't their business. But what of the church?

"Cordova is but a typical case of many who join our churches and afterward fall into grevious sin. What shall we do with them? Condemn them harshly, expell them from our fellowship? That's what we have done with Cordova. What do the Scriptures enjoin upon us as a Christian course in such a case? 'Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.'

"We are not reporters, detectives or judges. We are fellow sinners striving to help each other fight the good fight. We are not set for the administering of justice, we are heralds of mercy. It is not our duty to hound down a criminal; it is our duty to seek to restore a straying brother.

"Cordova was a member of the tenderest fellowship in the world, a fellowship that 'weeps o'er the erring one, lifts up the fallen,' yet the moment he fell the church shook her skirts free from his despairing clutches and left him to the tender mercies of his enemies. His brethren in the ministry whose pride it is to proclaim a salvation that 'can make the foulest clean,' have made him the one exception.

"Is it not time we came to a sense our our duty in such a case considering ourselves lest we also be tempted? It is only when we forget our own failures that we can be merciless to others. 'Let him that is without sin cast the first stone,' said the Master in a similar case, and there was a sudden cessation of angry accusation.

"Christ was exceeding merciful, the church is His representative seeking the lost. Enough stones have been thrown at Cordova by those who could not meet the Master's conditions. Let us pray for him."

LOCAL TENNIS PLAYERS TO PLAY FOR CITY'S TITLE.

Entries for the Plainfield open championship in men's singles to be played at the Plainfield Country Club courts Saturday afternoon close with T. M. Day, of Carlton avenue, Friday night of this week at 6 o'clock. Already there are some fast players entered, and the list will swell during the last few days.

This tournament is held annually under the auspices of the Country Club and is open to all residents of city and borough, whether club members or not. T. M. Day will again present a title cup for the winner, and a cup for the runner-up will be offered by the club. The object of the tournament is to stimulate the interest in tennis and to show who is the best tennis player in "The City Beautiful." W. B. Cragin, Jr., won the title last year, and Albert D. Beers got the trophy two years ago.

Clinton-Somerville Game.

The game between the West Ends and the Clintons at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, was stopped just as the home team was taking its fourth time at bat by the rain. The score was then 1 to 0 in favor of the West Ends. The Clintons hade made on hit off Luyster and the West Ends four off Hampton.

BOROUGH "SPEAK EASY" RAIDED; SIX CAUGHT

His fruit-store on Somerset street raided as an alleged "speak easy" by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, yesterday afternoon, John Jannuzzi, the Italian proprietor, was arrested with five other men, who were seated at a table in the place drinking hard cider from soda water bottles. The five gave their names as Frank Carroll, George Carroll, John Juno and Don Spiro and Merton Holmes, and were fined $2 apiece by Recorder Dolliver this morning. They all paid but Spiro, who is taking two days instead. Jannuzzi has retained Francis J. Blatz as his counsel and will be given a hearing tonight.

The raid was successfully effected after the Chief had been watching the place for about two hours. The men went in Jannuzzi's at shortly after 2 o'clock and soon after an argument arose among them, making considerable noise in the place. It developed later, the police say, that an attempt was being made to get George Carroll and Merton Holmes to fight for $10 a side in the back room. Finally the party trooped out, the police declare, well jagged and went down to John Colsoli's fruit store on the bridge. This place was but recently raided as a "speak easy," but the party was refused admission there and returned to Jannuzzi's. As soon as they were inside again, Chief Weiss got Fire Lieutenant William Gaub to help him and surprised the drinkers.

They were sitting around a table in the store drinking hard cider and wine out of soda bottles, it is alleged. According to the story all were pretty well intoxicated, and made no attempt to escape arrest. Chief Weiss seized the cider found in the half-emptied glasses at the table, but could find no more. He says it is "hard as a stone wall."

ASBURY PARK DIVINE PREACHES AT TRINITY

Before a congregation of goodly numbers, Rev. John Y. Brooks, pastor of the Asbury Park Reformed church, delivered a helpful and inspiring discourse yesterday morning at Trinity Reformed church. The young divine took that statement in St. Paul's epistle to the Ephesians wherein the Christ is pictured in all His "might, majesty and glory" to bring to the hearts of his hearers the omnipotence of the Son of God.

Quoting his text, "Far Above All principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come," the minister portrayed in finely chosen words the supreme greatness of the Christ, whom His Father had raised from the dead and set at His own right hand in the Heavenly Kingdom.

TO FIGHT THE BISHOP'S LAW.

Democratic Leader of Jersey City Will Begin Test Suit—Lid on Yesterday.

Chief of Police Monahan, of Jersey City, said last night that the lid had been held down tighter than ever yesterday in that city. His men made four arrests for violation of the Bishops law, against one the previous Sunday. The Chief explained this by saying that the men had become more familiar with the tricks of saloon keepers and secret entrances to saloons.

Others said the saloon men had got over their scare and were taking chances. One or two attributed their boldness to a report given out Saturday that Robert Davis, the Democratic leader, had decided to contest the constitutionality of the Bishops law, and would begin a suit to that end soon.

Mr. Davis confirmed the report. He said the law would be contested on two points. What they were he would not disclose, he said, until he was ready to act.

Althea Boyden Cook.

Althea Boyden Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Cook, of Prescott place, died this morning after a week's illness. She was two years old. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel.

Ferdinand Lessignola's Funeral.

The funeral of Ferdinand Lessignola, who died at Piesco, N. Y., Thursday night, will be held at the home of his brother-inlaw, Robert F. R. Hutsman, of East Front street, at 3:30 this afternoon. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich will be in charge and burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Miss Edna Swain, of Craig place, has been sojourning at Asbury Park.

MASTER BUILDERS TO FIGHT THE WILSON BILL

Members of the State Master Builders' Association, who met in executive session at Atlantic City Saturday night, decided to fight the Wilson bill for prescribing of the number of hours a day for artisans employed on building operations in the cities of the State.

The protest will be made directly to the State Legislature, the builders claiming that they are able to settle their differences with employes without State intervention.

The next meeting of the organization will be held in Hackensack in October, when arrangements will be made with the men for the wage scale for a year. The following officers were present at the meeting: President Andrew Dickinson, of Paterson; Vice-Presidents B. F. Robinson, of Newark; W. D. Johnston, of Scotch Plains; W. J. Huter, of New Brunswick; John M. Lothrop, of Jersey City; L. C. Tompkins, of Mooresstown; M. V. Poole, of West Long Branch; W. D. Gutherson, of Paterson; J. H. Christopher, of Ridgewood; H. W. Hoffman, of Bernardsville; G. W. Thompson, of Atlantic City; Secretary Alex. E. Pearson, of West Orange; Treasurer S. E. Crowder, of Newark.

Plainfield was largely represented at the meeting.

FOUR CONGREGATIONS UNITE IN A SERVICE

Some certainties in the Christian's faith, things knowable about God, furnished the theme for Rev. Charles E. Herring, Ph. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who delivered a sermon of a particularly helpful character last night at the last of a series of union services, in which the congregations of the First M. E., Trinity Reformed, First Presbyterian and First Baptist churches have also participated. Trinity church, which had been selected as the final meeting place, was filled with a congregation deeply impressed by the service.

Rev. John Y. Brooks, of Asbury Park, who conducted the morning service at Trinity, had charge of the meeting and in such capacity had much to do with its general success. In addition to preaching the sermon, Dr. Herring read the Scripture and pronounced the benediction, while Rev. A. C. McCrea, D. D., pastor of the First M. E. church, offered a prayer.

For fully twenty minutes, Dr. Herring held the undivided attention of the worshippers, while he gave an instructive discourse. For the purpose of better conveying his idea, he divided his talk into three parts. First of all, he elucidated on the Biblical quotation, "For I know whom I have believed" and after bringing out the full meaning of that declaration, he found in second Corinthians another text, "For we know, that, if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." This was the basis for a dissertation on the certainty of the life everlasting at the home of the Father. Rounding out his sermon, Dr. Herring said that we know that God works out everything in the right way for His people. His claim was based on a verse in Romans: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called, according to his purpose."

During the service, Miss Winifred Carroll and Fred S. Cutter rendered Dudley Buck's "The Lord Is Our Light," while the quartette choir contributed to the musical features by giving Spicker's "Fear Not, O Israel." The choir also sang the responses.

Court Case Ends in Friendship.

Bossi Oresto, who lives on East Fouth street, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Mike Borella, of Cottage place, with chasing him out of his house with a knife, Saturday night. The story of the affair showed that the two men had an argument over a board bill and that both got excited. Borella said he didn't want Oresto punished and Judge Runyon suspended sentence with the proviso that the two shake hands. They gave a hearty clasp while a bunch of Italian friends nodded approval.

Moncton Jagged and Jagged.

Frank Moncton, of Somerset street, got loaded with booze Saturday and was found in a helplessly jagged condition on Somerset street late at night by Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope. Recorder Dolliver gave him his choice of three dollars or three days. He is taking the days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Emmons, of Prospect place, have been entertaining company from New Brunswick.

COUNTRY CLUB AS HOST

ELABORATE ENTERTAINMENT.

Reception and Tea, Dance and Outdoor Sports Enjoyed—Special Orchestra at the Annual Event.

The Plainfield Country Club entertained the members of the Park Golf Club, Park Club and the Watchung Hunt Club, on Saturday, extending to them all the privileges of the clubhouse, golf course and tennis courts for the day. This is an annual affair at the Plainfield Country Club and on Saturday there was a large attendance from the city and borough clubs, which provide practically all of the outdoor sport during the summer season.

During the afternoon a reception and tea was held at the clubhouse, which was in charge of Mrs. H. C. Orons, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Jabez Gilbert, Mrs. George S. Ring, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, Mrs. Thomas Mills Day and Miss Matie Wadsworth.

Throughout the hours of the reception the clubhouse was thronged with people and an added feature was music by an orchestra. The rooms of the clubhouse were decorated with flowers and in other ways mado attractive.

While the reception was being held a large number of people were engaged in playing a four-ball foursome on the course. This event was open to all the members and invited guests and nearly twenty entries were received. The play was going along finely when a thunder shower suddenly appeared and drove many of the contestants to shelter. The event was won by W. T. Glenney and A. L. Wills with a shore of 73 net. The best scores posted during the afternoon follow:

W. T. Glenney, and A. L. Wills, 79, 6-73; C. B. Morgan and Frank O. Reinhart, 79, 4-75; Randolph Rodman and H. D. Hibbard, 85, 8-77; Julius E. Erickson and E. T. Willson, 89, 11-78.

According to the rules of the play each winner received four balls, which constitute the prizes.

In the evening there was added pleasure in the dinner-dance, which attracted a large number of members and friends. Under the direction of the house committee, of which Willard Wadsworth is chairman, the club steward served 102 dinners and a majority of the guests remained to enjoy the dance in the evening, music for which was furnished by an orchestra. The festivities were continued until 11 o'clock. Altogether the event was one of the most successful in the history of the club and the guests thanked the officers and members for their generous hospitality.

BUSINESS COLLEGE'S COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

Invitations have been issued for the graduation exercises of the Plainfield Business College, to be held at the college auditorium Friday night. The graduating class numbers more than one hundred young men and women, including several who will receive certificates for partial courses completed in the school as well as many who will receive diplomas for the complete course.

Principal A. S. Herr, of the college, has secured several prominent speakers for the exercises, and the auditorium will be elaborately decorated with flags, bunting and flowers. Rev. E. E. Roberson, now of Passaic, and formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, will speak on "The Essential Qualifications Needed for a Business Career," and other speakers will be Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, William Jeffery, "the Bungalow Man," Rev. Henry Bice, of Newark; R. R. King and George A. Meinecke. Music will be furnished by Martin A. Korff, who will be in charge of a delegation from the Y. M. C. A. orchestra.

The affair will be the first grauation from a business college in this city, and Professor Herr will give a farewell address to the class, in connection with the presentation of diplomas.

Frank Tomlins, of Rutherford, is spending a two weeks' vacation in town as the guest of Frank Monroe Rimmer, of Essex street.

Miss Marie McCain, of Philadelphia, has returned home after a week's visit with Miss Maude L. Berry, of Leland avenue.

PROFANE PRISONER GETS AN UNEXPECTED SENTENCE

During the next sixty days, Julian Ronzo, a cigar maker whose place of business is at 98 Seventh avenue, Newark, will have a chance to realize that Judge Runyon will not stand for profanity in the city court, whether directed toward the bench or not. He was given that term in jail this morning for uttering a vile oath in an undertone after he had been fined $30 for carrying a concealed weapon and peddling cigars without a license. Chief Kiely plainly heard the remark and called the magistrate's attention to it but stated that he did not know for whom it was meant.

"It makes no difference," was the judge's comment, "because it was intended for someone. Just keep your money in your pocket, Ronzo, and take sixty days instead."

The prisoner has been making a practice of coming to Plainfield every Sunday and selling cigars to his countrymen, charging about half what they would cost in the stores as they bear no revenue stamp. The regular dealers complained and Patrolman O'Keefe caught him yesterday. When searched at police headquarters, a wicked-looking knife was found in a false pocket in his underclothing and $20 of the original fine was imposed for this offense.

JURY COULDN'T AGREE ABOUT BROWN'S MULE

The liability of Fernando Brown, colored, to pay $300 damage for the spoiled face of John Brennan, fourteen-year-old son of Thomas Brennan, Brown's neighbor on Webster place, kept a jury at the District Court puzzled today and the testimony in the case took up the entire morning's session. After having been closeted during the noon adjournment hour of court, Foreman Kolb reported that the twelve could not agree. This was at 2 o'clock and the jury was dismissed. A new trial has been set for Thursday, August 20. Brennan had six witnesses to prove the mule's guilt, and the five who took the stand for Brown's side of the case claimed that the mule was innocent. Brown himself, on the stand, "allowed" that "the mule kicked that boy in self-defence."

"Jack" was the name of the mule, and it was black, with a powerful spring in its hind legs that gave it a kick like the blow of a black-jack. Brown got lots of merriment out of telling just how Jack "straightened out and kicked him," but said that the animal was unusually docile. "If it'd been ma other mule,—ma white mule, that boy would surely have been hurt," he said.

The testimony on Brown's side of the case developed the fact that the Brennan boy had been holding the mule's tail and beating it with a stick. Therefore the statement that the kick was in "self defence." Brown further said that he had offered to pay all doctor's and dentist's bills for the injured Brennan boy, but Mrs. Brennan insisted on having a law suit. "Jack" died about six weeks ago, probably suffering from the injustice of the whole thing. The white mule is still alive.

Thomas J. Kolb is foreman of the jury, which is composed of D. J. Galbraith, Edward G. Brown, George A. Bauer, John H. Worth, Abram VanCleef, Albert E. Cole, Thomas Kromer, Michael Higgins, Fred Stranzenbach, Thomas Muldowney and Edward Nelson. W. L. Hetfield represents Brennan and V. W. Nash is Brown's counsel.

Dinner for Ball Players.

William Jeffery, "the Bungalow Man," entertained the Mono A. C. team, the Berkeley Heights team and guests of the two teams, numbering fifty persons, at dinner in the Bungalow dining room in the woods at Berkeley Heights, Saturday. Dinner was served at 5 o'clock and the party returned home at 8 o'clock. After dinner the evening was passed with vocal solos and choruses by the gathering. Among those present were Frank C. Shaffer, Robert G. Rogers, the Burgmiller boys, Master Bert Rogers, Rudolph Shaffer, Dan. Randolph and Harry VanZandt.

Boy Killed by Baseball Player.

Edward McCarthy, seven years old, of No. 228 Sixteenth avenue, Newark, was fatally injured while watching a baseball game in that city yesterday morning. Otto Bolz, twenty-five years old, playing left field for the Ironsides, ran into the youngster while chasing a high fly. The boy's skull was fractured. Bolz was arrested, but was paroled when more than a score of witnesses said the accident was unavoidable.

Miss Mildred Everitt, of Somerset street, is guest of relatives at Flatbush, L. I.

BOWERS OUT OF HOSPITAL; ASSAULT CASE TOMORROW

Changed in appearance so that even his closest friends failed to recognize him as he was brought from a cell, Ira Bowers, Sr., who attacked Martin Rogers with a knife on East Third street, a week ago beaten into insensibility, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. A charge of assault with intent to kill is entered against him on the police docket but as Rogers is still at the hospital the case could not be heard and it was adjourned until tomorrow morning. It is the belief of the physicians that the other participant will be able to be on hand at that time.

The fact that Bowers had been discharged from the hospital yesterday had been noised about and a curious crowd was in the court room when the case was called. A policeman had to lead him to the desk as one eye is still closed up entirely from the beating he received and the sight of the other has been made imperfect. In a weak voice, he informed Judge Runyon that his hearing has also been impaired. When the charge was read to him and he was asked to plead, he declared that he knew nothing about the matter.

"I don't know what I was brought here for," he said, "I didn't do anything."

He was informed that appearances indicated that he had been mixed up in some affair and that his memory would be revived later. Bail was fixed at $500, his son becoming the bondsman. During the brief time it took for the arraignment, Bowers held a handkerchief to his face constantly and leaned heavily against a table for support. His face is not marked as might be supposed but the injuries have given an entirely new aspect to his features and aged him fully ten years.

CRANFORD PASTOR TALKS AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

Rev. George F. Greene, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Cranford, was the speaker at the open-air meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp yesterday afternoon. His topic was "Duty," which he defined as "doing what was right, according to conscience." He talked especially to the children, illustrating his remarks with anecdotes and stories.

Nat R. Foster, superintendent of the Sunday-school of Dr. Greene's church, led the meeting, which was attended by more than 200 people. Music was furnished by a chorus choir of Cranford Epworth Leaguers, ten in number. George F. Watts was at the organ, and Mrs. Hawthorne sang a soprano solo, "Just For Today.' Twenty-eight church people from Cranford came to the service, and made a tour of inspection of the camp after the meeting.

PARK CLUB TEAM TO MEET CHARLOCK AND CRAGIN.

Rain prevented the playing of the final round in the invitation tournament, men's doubles, at the Country Club, Saturday, and the matches in the semi-final round were the only tennis of the day. M. S. Charlock, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, and W. B. Cragin, Jr., of the Country Club, defeated Willard Wadsworth and William Wadsworth in straight sets, 6-2 and 6-3, and won their way into the finals, where they will play a Park Club pair, Will Barlow, Jr., and Vaughan McGee. Barlow and McGee had to play three sets to secure their victory in the semi-finals, but put out N. F. Charlock and G. W. Case, 7-5, 1-6 and 6-4, just before the storm came.

No date has been set for the play-off in the finals, but the match will probably come this week. Trophy cups will be awarded the winning pair, and the runners-up will also receive prizes.

Rev. Mr. Kidder Acting Rector.

During the summer Rev. Mr. Kidder, of Asbury Park, is supplying the pulpit at St. Stephen's church, and attending to the parish duties. The officials of the church have not yet decided to call a successor to Rev. A. S. Peck, who resigned in the spring to take a larger church in New York. It is expected a permanent rector will be called by the first of September.

Rain Stopped Monos.

The Mono A. C. nine started a game with the Berkeley Heights team at Berkeley Heights, Saturday, but rain stopped the contest after two innings. Neither team scored. "Hub" Conover and Bird were the points for the Monos, and Long and Bergmiller formed the Berkeley Heights' battery. The teams will meet again August 22.

BOY BURGLAR CAPTURED

Arrested on Suspicion, Elmer Bohan Admits Committing Several Crimes.

TWO OF THEM A YEAR AGO.

Broke Into Home of Henry C. Corsa, Friday Morning and Appropriated $20—Innocent Man Suspected.

Elmer Bohan, an eighteen-year-old youth living with his parents on West Fifth street, was arrested by the police, yesterday, on suspicion of having broken into the home of Henry C. Corsa, of Putnam avenue, Friday morning, and stealing $20. He denied the charge at first but after a "third degree" session with Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant Flynn, he acknowledged his guilt and also confessed to a series of similar robberies extending over the past year. One of them was committed at the home of J. P. Nolting, directly opposite his parents' residence, which he entered one day last summer while the family was an excursion and procered $50. Another trip at about the same time to the home of James Moran on West Fifth street netted him $5.

Bohan is a respectable appearing young man and no one but the police had any suspicion that he was the culprit in the robberies he has admitted. For the past three weeks he has been employed as driver by Scott Terry, the liveryman, and on Friday morning was set to the Corsa home with a carriage. Mrs. Corsa having planned to take a number of friends about the city. Bohan's services were not required after delivering the rig and as he knew that everyone would be out of the house for the pleasure trip, he returned within a short time. He gained entrance to the residence by forcing a cellar door and searched all the rooms, passing over jewelry and other valuables in his quest for money.

Mrs. Cora discovered the loss of the $20 on returning from the drive. The police were notified with the added information that the theft was probably committed by a colored man who had been employed to cut the lawn grass, in fact, the family insisted that he be arrested. Detective-Sergeant Flynn got busy on the case and satisfied himself that the man was being unjustly accused but for the time being was unable to work up the proper clue. Late Saturday night the trail led to Bohan and enough evidence was in hand yesterday to warrant his being apprehended. He was locked up at headquarters but will not be arraigned until tomorrow morning.

MOUNT ZION CONGREGATION REDEDICATES ITS STRUCTURE

The congregation of Mount Zion A. M. E. church held services all day yesterday to rededicate their structure, a new addition in front having just been completed and occupied. Presiding Elder J. T. Hammond, of the Newark district, presided at all the sessions and was assisted by Rev. J. W. Cooper, of Rahway; Rev. H. C. Ashley, of New Brunswick, and Rev. S. G. Collins, of Elizabeth.

The first service was held at 6 o'clock in the morning and was in charge of Mr. Ashley. The presiding elder officiated at a love feast at 10 o'clock and Mr. Ashley preached at 11. In the afternoon at 2:30, the Sunday-school held special exercises in charge of Rev. E. B. Maynard and another preaching service took place at 3. Rev. Mr. Cooper occupied the pulpit. The final service was a communion selebration at night in charge of the presiding elder.

The new addition gives the congregation needed space in front of the church and adds greatly to the appearance of the structure by extending to a small steeple. It is surmounted by a cross presented the pastor, Rev. J. T. Diggs, by J. D. Loizeaux.

Tendered Farewell Reception.

In honor of George Bridge, who sails Thursday for an indefinite stay abroad, a farewell party was given Saturday night at the home of John Bennett, of Jackson avenue. The evening was passed with music and singing, and refreshments were served before the party broke up.

Hurt in Fall from Window.

Mrs. Mary Pearson, of Stebbins place, fell from a window at her home, yesterday morning, and was severely injured about the back. The physicians have been unable to determine the exact nature of the trouble and an X-ray picture was taken this morning.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, preached from the subject "Summer Harvests" at the evening service last night. The sermon was the last of a series of summer night sermons which has been so popular for more than a month past. Music was a feature of the service.

Bids for school transportation over the present established routes will be opened at the meeting of the Township Board of Education Tuesday night, August 18. It is reported that there will be another bid for the job this season.

Miss Zella Kelly, of New Market, has been entertaining out-of-town company for the past few days.

Miss Grace Voorhees acted as organist at the First Baptist church yesterday.

Mrs. John C. Dilts is visiting friends at Bayonne and Jersey City.

Walter S. Hazelton has purchased a handsome saddle horse.

TO TEST SUNDAY LAW.

Charles Menagh, a druggist, of 147 North Park street, East Orange, was arrested yesterday on the charge of violating the Sunday closing ordinance.

Mr. Menagh is a member of the newly formed Business Men's Association, and this is their first shot in the fight to have the law repealed.

Another alleged violator, Gustav Lind, drove up to the door of Gustav Koopmann's restaurant yesterday and left a basket of new bread and fresh rolls. Lind telephoned to his firm, who sent the manager up from Newark with $25 to bail the driver out. The delayed Sunday delivery of bread was then continued outside of East Orange.

MAN DROWNS IN CARNEGIE LAKE.

John Logan Loses His Life Near Spot Where Bertha Vanderbilt Slipped to Death.

Another life was lost Saturday night in Carnegie Lake, Princeton, near the spot where Bertha Vanderbilt was drowned some time ago. John Logan, 40 years old, who for years had traveled about that section of the Millstone River, which empties into Lake Carnegie, was drowned during the heavy rain storm. He lived about a quarter of a mile from the lake. It is supposed he started home from Princeton, and when nearing the lake at the aqueduct became bewildered in the inky blackness, and before he could locate his surroundings fell into the swift current of the river.

Sunday noon a man passing by the narrow footpath where Miss Vanderbilt slipped to her death saw what appeared to be a body floating near the bank, and upon investigation found it to be the body of Logan. Word was sent to Princeton and the chief of police was soon on the spot. He notified the coroner at Trenton, and the verdict was given as accidental drowning. The face was distorted and badly bruised over the right eye and mouth, the result, probably, of the swift current washing him against the bottom and jagged rocks. Logan is survived by his mother, one brother and two sisters.

NEWARK GIRL LOST IN LAKE HOPATCONG.

Helen, the 14-year-old daughter of August L. Knaeuter, of Newark, was drowned in Lake Hopatcong at the landing Saturday night.

Mr. Kraeuter has a summer home at Woodport, the head of the lake, and the child, her brother George and her cousin, John Kraeuter, also of Newark, were on their way to Newark when the accident happened.

They were taken from Woodport to the landing by Charles Bright in a launch and were caught in the heavy shower. They reached the landing about 8:30 o'clock in inky darkness, and as they landed at the dock the boys dashed ahead with the suit cases, leaving the girls to follow.

It is supposed she misjudged the direction taken by her companions and in the darkness ran off the dock into the water, which at that point is about fifteen feet deep. She was missed almost at once, or as soon as the boys reached shelter, and a search was made. John Kraeuter's straw hat, which the girl had carried, was first found, and later, about an hour after she was missed, the body was found floating within a few feet of the dock.

EXCISE RAID IN ORANGE.

Police Descend on Grocery Store and Arrest Two.

Having had the place under suspicion for some time, Roundsmen Brown and Rhinehart, of the Orange force, last night entered the Greek grocery store at 72 Cone street, Orange, to find evidence of illegal selling of liquor.

Two young men, who gave their names as Peter Nicholas, of 133 Alden street, and John Moslis, aged 19, of 72 Cone street, were found at a table, drinking from two bottles of beer. The owner of the shop, Peter Bouzis, was not there at the time, although the men said they had procured the beer from him. They were taken to the police station and were later released on their promise to appear when wanted.

The age of one would warrant a conviction of the storekeeper without the fact of the selling, and a charge will be pressed against him immediately.

Night Bathing at Asbury.

Night bathing was inaugurated at Asbury Park Thursday, when the grounds at Asbury avenue were thrown open to late bathers. During the evening over 150 bathers, several of them women, frolicked about in the surf watched by thousands on the boardwalk. Arc lights furnished illumination and two guards are on duty to prevent accidents. The grounds will be kept open at night the remainder of the season.

Beat Way Across Continent.

Paterson, July 27.—John Larkin, thirteen years old, son of "Jeff" Larkin, a former Patersonian, reached here on the trucks of a dining car on the 6 p. m. train on the Erie Railroad last night. The boy had completed a journey entirely alone and without a penny from Los Angeles, Cal., to Paterson, in nineteen days, seven of which were spent in actual traveling.

Lightning Stuns Chained Cattle.

James Blair, residing near Rahway Junction, had fourteen cows, all fastened to one chain, in his barn when the lightning struck the building Thursday afternoon. None of the animals were killed, but each of them was standing rigid when Mr. Blair found them, they having each evidently received a terrific shock. They did not fully recover for two hours.

Fate Cruel to Farmer.

William Wyckoff, a farmer living west of Rahway, cut his hay this season himself and took it to his barn on a wheelbarrow because he had no horses and was too poor to hire help. Monday he put in his last load. On Thursday afternoon the barn was struck by lightning, set on fire, and burned with all its contents. Wyckoff had no insurance.

PRICES WILL TOUCH ZERO IN THIS GREAT JULY FUR SALE

MOST NOTABLE EVENT OF ITS KIND NEWARK HAS KNOWN

We are going to have a sale of furs—right now when all thoughts are of the heat, and we will bring the prices so close to zero that you will feel nearer the Artics than the Tropics, especially if you mingle with the furry garments that go into this big sale.

It is going to be a fur-buying time full of distinct advantages to the public.

ALL OF THE FURS ARE NEW
ALL ARE ADVANCE FALL MODELS
ALL PRICED AT ABOUT COST OF MAKING ANY GARMENT HELD FOR LATER DELIVERY

Trade conditions of an extraordinary character led us to undertake this mid-summer sale of furs. Makers joined hands with us gladly in carrying out our plans to make this a real fur sale, and to eclipse any like event Newark has known—enabling them to keep their workers busy, and helping us to give you fine furs and fur lined garments at such prices as would make generous selling certain, even in the midst of the torrid weather.

We will begin the sale tomorrow with a most magnificent collection of furs, embracing every new feature the coming season will introduce.

Particularly fine are the All Fur and Fur Lined Coats for automobilists—men and women—surpassing bargains in these and a splendid collection to choose from. Some of them are cravenetted; many are of dressy English mixtures, fur lined and with fur collars.

Rug Muffs are new this season and will be shown during this sale in all the best liked furs—lynx, fox, mink, ermine, squirrel, etc.

Lynx will be immensely popular in the higher grade furs, and we are going to offer lynx neck pieces in this sale for as little as $12.50.

Mink Scarfs may be had at prices beginning at $19.50.
Ermine Scarfs for as little as $10.50.
Chinchilla Scarfs will be priced as low as $18.50.
Fox Scarfs, $4.50 up.
Double, Long Fox Scarfs for as little as $7.50—some with animal heads.

The pricings thruout will be wonderfully low, making it most decidedly to your advantage to buy now. If you are not prepared to care for the furs the remainder of the summer or to pay the entire amount of your purchase, a small deposit will secure them, and we will store them for you until wanted in the fall.

A SMALL DEPOSIT WILL SECURE ANY PIECE OF FUR IN THIS SALE

A DELICATE JOB TO BREAK IN A LOCOMOTIVE.

Few persons outside the realm of the operating department of a railroad know anything of the ofttimes vexatious peculiarities and not infrequently seemingly intelligent capers of a locomotive when being "broke" to its mission in the world. Each new engine must undergo a set training or test before it is put into actual service, says the Chattanooga Times, and each locomotive which has gone through the shops for repairs is given a certain working out before it is returned to its erstwhile duties.

Some locomotive manufacturing companies complete their engines ready for actual service before sending them out; others ship them to the destination in a partial "knock-down" state and they are completed in the shops of the road to which they are delivered.

When a new engine is taken into a shop it is turned over to a mechanic whose duty it is to fit it up and make all connections and adjustments of the interior mechanism. This completed, the engine is turned over to a fireman, who steams it up and blows it off in order to remove any grease that might have accumulated in the boiler, or any such foreign substance as might cause a boiler to "foam" while in service. The engine is then turned over to an engineer, whose duty it is to "break" it in. The engine is steamed up again, and if it will run, is taken for a little tryout about the yard.

The science of locomotive building has been developed to such a fine point that there is little danger now of an engine "bucking" on its rst trial. The main feature in the test is to see that there is no heating in the journals or rod brasses. If there is no heating the engine is run about the yards for about half a day and the steam is again blown from the boiler.

The engine is then steamed up and taken for a long run on the main line. If during this test there are no capers cut the engine is sent out for its first trip with about 500 tons to draw. If it runs all right the tonnage is gradually increased to 950 tons. The tonnage depends greatly upon the size of the engine. The average engine of today will draw about 950 tons on a mountainous road and from 1,200 to 1,500 tons over a level haul. The test speed is from one to twenty miles an hour.

Heating is one of the principal diseases of an engine, and it is this feature the engineer looks to more than anything else. The mechanical sense of the engineer is so developed that he can detect the least defect about his engine.

John Miller, who is the "locomotive buster" for the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad Company, breaks on an average twenty engines each month. He has been breaking engines for this company for the last five years.

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

Aluminum leaves have been lately substituted for paper ones in some of the new books for the blind. This light and beautiful metal is peculiarly adapted to such a purpose. It will wear longer, cannot be torn and the embossed printing characters of the blind cannot dull through fingering as sometimes happens with paper. It is contended for the aluminum books that they are easier to read than the paper books and they have the further merit of being easily cleaned.

An Armenian girl goes to school at four or five years old, but before that she has probably learned her "letters," which is almost an education in itself, as the Armenian alphabet contains thirty-one. She learns these letters from a small slab of wood on which they are printed. The slab is fastened to a handle, making it something like a hair brush in shape. The Armenians boast that their formidable alphabet is so perfect as to give every sound known to any other nation.

Score another for the famous old Cumberland Valley. A correspondent of the Chambersburg People's Register tells that the father of Mrs. William H. Taft, wife of the Republican candidate for President, was born in Shippensburg. He was the Hon. John W. Herron, a member of a well known Shippensburg family, whose name was given to Herron's Run, that flows through that place. Mr. Taft was married to Helen Herron, a daughter of the Hon. John W. Herron, a prominent jurist of Chambersburg, June 19, 1886. It is noted also that Alphosno Taft, father of William Taft, taught school in Shippensburg in the years 1845-47.

A process for protecting iron and steel from rust has been invented and patented by T. W. Coslett, Birmingham, England. This consists in immersing the article in a hot phosphorized solution containing an iron compound. The surface of the iron is converted into a mixture of ferrous and ferric phosphates, and presents a pleasing dull-black appearance. This process makes the iron highly resistant to corrosion, and is being applied to all kinds of light engineering work, such as cycle frames, gun barrels, stampings and press work.

WESTFIELD LINEMAN KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

John Barron, of 112 Central avenue, Westfield, a Public Service lineman, was killed Friday by a fall from a pole at the corner of Lincoln and Walnut avenues. A shock from a live wire caused him to lose his hold. He tumbled head foremost and his skull was crushed.

Barron had climbed a pole to repair an electric light fixture. He took hold of a wire that he supposed to be dead, but a guy wire, broken during the storm Thursday, had crossed the line with wires carrying high power currents. The shock itself, however, would not have killed the man, but it stunned him and he fell.

He was living when picked up, but died without recovering consciousness. Besides the injuries to his head, his left hand was burned where he had taken hold of the wire.

An All Around Book.
The book agent had spent a discouraging morning and when he had an opportunity to scan the face of Eli Hobbs at close range he felt that there was small chance of making a sale. However, he had more than on e method of suggestion, says Youth's Companion.

"Sitting out here on the piazza afternoons with your wife, this would be the very book to read aloud," he said ingratiatingly to Mr. Hobbs, taking the other rocking chair and opening the large red covered volume.

"I don't read, and haven't any wife," replied Mr. Hobbs dryly.

"Dear me," said the book agent. "Well, if your wife is dead, perhaps there are children. Now, children find this book"—

"There are no children," interrupted Mr. Hobbs. "There's nobody but myself and my cat."

"Well," said the book agent, "don't you ever want a good heavy book to throw at her, just to ease your feelings?"

Popular Popuinette.
The pliable texture of poplinette lends itself admirably to the dressy tailored jacket suit, though comparatively few suits of this description are made entirely white. A dress of this material, showing the mannish three-buttoned coat, had the coat seams outlined with a striped white and tan poplinette, cut on the bias, each band about one inch wide, sitched on each side. The skirt was severely plain since it was ninegored, finished with a plain five-inch turned hem.

HEAT-CRAZED DOMESTIC ATTACKS WESTFIELD WOMAN

Crazed by the heat, Amelia Edwards, a colored servant, made a murderous attack upon her employer, Mrs. J. S. A. Wittke, of Hillside avenue, Westfield, Saturday morning.

The Edwards woman is thirty-five years old, large and muscular. Mrs Wittke is small and slight and sixty years old. She had gone to the kitchen to give some orders for dinner, when the Edwards woman seized a stick of firewood and struck her over the head. Mrs. Wittke fled and the girl chased her about the house, beating her with savage rage. Only women were in the Wittke house at the time and they were powerless to help the aged woman.

Their screams were heard by Fritz Wolff, employed next door. Wolff ran in and received a blow over the head from the woman's club. He grappled with her and one of Mrs. Wittke's family telephoned for the police. She was arrested and held pending an examination as to her mental condition.

COMMUTERS TO DECIDE P. R. R. TERMINAL SITE.

Newark, July 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad is asking its commuters between Newark and New York to aid in locating the New York terminal station of a high-speed electric tunnel route direct from this city to New York. The terminal station and the location of the tunnel will be decided after the railroad company learns which of its three ferrfes to New York is used the most.

When this is ascertained the company plans to consummate an agreement with the Hudson Tunnels Company, builders of the McAdoo tubes, to build a tunnel between the Pennsylvania depot in Jersey City and the most popular ferry. Upon completion of the work, through trains will be run direct from New York to Newark.

Paralyzed by Baseball.
William Heffernan, twenty years old, of 9 Niles street, died in the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, Friday evening, from paralysis brought on by being struck by a basball. Last week he was playing with friends near his home. He was catching and wore a mask. He dodged a foulr tip and the ball hit his head behind the left ear. He was dazed for a minute, but continued to play. He went home, apparently unhurt. After supper, when seated on the porch of his home, he collapsed suddenly. When taken to the hospital it was found his left side was paralyzed.

EAGLES LEAVE FOR THEIR CONVENTION.

After a farewell meeting in the Newark aerie and a dinner at Koch's Hotel, thirteen past presidents of New Jersey and Connecticut aeries of Eagles left Newark last night on the 8:26 train on the Pennsylvania Railroad for Seattle, Wash., where they will attend the annual convention of the fraternity.

The delegates had four cars when they left Newark, and will stop at various points between here and Chicago to pick up other parties, filling their section. They will make the trip to Seattle without stopover, arriving there early Friday morning. They are taking the northern route, through Niagara Falls, Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul, etc., and will return over the southern, touching Denver and St. Louis.

The tenth annual convention of the Eagles will be held in the Moore theatre, the largest in Seattle, from August 11 to 15, inclusive. It is interesting in that it will be held under the auspices of the original aerie, Seattle, No. 1, the first ever organized.

In the party last night were the following past presidents: Thomas C. Hayes, of Newark; William J. Cronin and Martin J. Gray, of New Haven, Conn.; William J. Bolles, of Stamford, Conn.; J. D. O'Herron, of Waterbury, Conn.; Alderman John P. Kerwin, of Paterson; Harry McCabe, of Passaic; William Neafsey, of Elizabeth; Assistant Prosecutor James W. McCarthy, of Jersey City, and Commissioner E. J. Murphy, of the same city. They are all members of national committees of the Eagles and must be in Seattle for committee work August 4. The regular delegates from this State will leave for the convention next week.

Plainfield, N. J., July 27, 1908.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst is now "in convention assembled."

Is it not highly appropriate for Mr. Hearst to hold his convention in The Windy City?

The factory whistle chorus is sounding the glad tidings that prosperity is "in our midst" again.

Three more contributions have been received at this office today for our baby camp fund. "Every little bit helps!"

Already $321.85 has been contributed by patriotic Plainfielders to the Cleveland monument fund. Is your name on the honor roll?

What will the Administration's Ananias Club chip in for the Roosevelt monument fund, which has been started in North Dakota?

When away on your vacation, don't forget to tell them all about "The City Beautiful." You can afford to do so without hurting your conscience.

When that committee waits on him tomorrow, Mr. Taft may not say "this is so sudden" but from far off Oyster Bay may be heard "delighted!"

Bryan's nomination means the "full dinner pail" for The Commoner office, but his election would mean something quite different for thousands of other publishing plants in this country.

It is real news to Plainfielders to learn that they have banished the voting machine. The startling fact which coming via the Trenton True American editorial columns, is "important if true."

Doubtless the Baltimore News intended a compliment when it asked, "Why should intelligent New Jersey mosquitoes display such queer taste?" as to move over into New York. The answer is they didn't. The breed is extinct.—Newark Morning Star.

Is it to be inferred that death was caused by a bad taste?

MORE MONEY FOR THE CLEVELAND FUND

Another contribution was received by The Daily Press today, "L. M. D." having sent his check for $5 to be applied to the Plainfield subscription to this worthy cause, which has for its object the erection of a monument to Grover Cleveland. The Cleveland Memorial Association of New Jersey is actively engaged throughout the State in collecting funds, and is meeting with much success. So far Plainfield has contributed $321.85, and it is expected that at least double that amount will be raised here.

PRATT TERMS BRYAN "PLATITUDINOUS PARASITE"

"A platitudnious parasite" is the latest appellation of Representative Le Gage Pratt for the Democratic Presidential nominee. Colonel Pratt has returned to East Orange from a trip to Panama, but he has not changed his opinion of William J. Bryan or of "the blight of Bryanism," to which he referred before sailing for the isthmus. In his position the Democratic Representative from the Eighth district is in accord with his colleague, Mr. Leake, of Hudson county. He said today:

"I would rather have any other good, wholesome man nominated and defeated by the Democratic party than have Mr. Bryan lead us for the third and last time to an inglorious defeat. It is unfortunate that the great Democratic party must pay the penalty of having hanging on to it such a platitudinous parasite."

Speaking of the Panama Canal and the work being done there he said:

"There are always plenty of people ready to throw cold water on anything that may look like a political project, but the Panama Canal is a national undertaking, and as such it should be a source of pride to every one of us. Whatever credit is due to the men who have made possible the success of this undertaking, let them have it. They have created an eighth wonder of the world."

COMMISSIONER BACKES WON'T TEST EXCISE LAW

"I have not been retained by Robert Davis or any one else to test the constitutionality of the Bishops' law, and I would refuse to accept any such duty, under any circumstances," said Peter Backes, counsel for the State Excise Commission, at Point Pleasant, yesterday afternoon. "Furthermore, having helped draft the act two years ago, and being interested in its enforcement now, I would endeavor to be one of those to defend the law, and would do everything I could to perpetuate it on the statute books. I can hardly see on what point its constitutionality can be attacked, for that question has already been tried, I think, on three points, and been sustained by the Court of Errors and Appeals on each."

Mr. Backes is spending his weekends at Point Pleasant. He was asked if the story emanating from Jersey City that he had been retained by friends of Robert Davis, the Democratic leader in Hudson county, to attack the law, and the above statement was his reply. He continued:

"I cannot understand how any one would think that I would accept any such commission as that about which you ask me. I believe in every feature of the Bishops' law, and, as I said before, if the act should be contested, the first move I would make would be to defend it."

—To insure prompt payment, all bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tomorrow night.

HIGH OLD TIME AWAITS THE G. A. R. VETERANS

Every port of the Grand Army of the Republic in the United States has been notified by the arrangements committee of the city of Toledo, O., that the preparations for the national encampment to be held there, beginning August 31, contemplate the greatest reunion of the veterans of the Civil War in the nation's history.

Fifty tons of flowers are to be procured for the day of the procession of the "boys in blue," to be showered along their path. Thirty-six hundred school children are being trained to form the largest "human flag" ever attempted. They will dress in such a way that when they are arranged on the day of the procession they will give a huge representation of the national emblem.

Brand Whitlock, Toledo's rather famous Mayor, says there will be 200,000 visitors to his city, and that they will be well entertained.

At the last meeting of the council of administration of the New Jersey department of the G. A. R. it was voted to charter a special train of the Lackawanna Railroad for the trip from this State to Toledo. The train will carry Department Commander John Foran and his staff and the delegates of the department to the encampment.

The "Jersey Special" will leave Hoboken at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 30, stopping at Newark at 2:15; Orange, 2:24; Summit, 2:40; Morristown, 2:54, and will arrive at Toledo at 9:45 on Monday morning, August 31. There will be connecting trains from Trenton, Paterson and other points, Newark being the rallying place. The train will probably run as a section of the regular Buffalo train of the Lackawanna.

WOMAN'S SKULL FRACTURED.

Horse Shies and She Is Thrown from Carriage to Road.

Mrs. Rose Branstein, of 663 Park avenue, Brooklyn, was badly injured in a runaway accident in Roselle last night. She sustained a fractured skull, and physicians at the General Hospital are doubtful of her recovery, although holding out hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Branstein were driving along Rahway avenue, when, in front of the Wheatsheaf Hotel, their horse shied and started suddenly on a fast run, throwing Mrs. Branstein over the rear of the buggy into the road. She was picked up unconscious.

HERRON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF PREACHER

Archibald Herron, of Metuchen, who went on trial today at New Brunswick for the murder of the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt in front of the latter's home, at Metuchen, on Wednesday, July 15, spent a quiet day in jail yesterday and saw no one excepting his counsel, ex-Judge C. T. Cowenhoven. He showed no signs of anxiety about his trial, and does not seem to realize his position.

Herron's counsel, after the first interview with the man, decided that he was a fit subject for a lunacy commission, and has had him examined by alienists, Dr. Cotton, of the asylum at Trenton, and Dr. W. E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy. When they questioned him about the crime he said that he was mesmerized.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS JUMP THE TRACES.

Young Democrats in New Jersey, finding that the state committee showed little enthusiasm for the Democratic nominees, have opened the campaign for Bryan and Kern in New Jersey. Job H. Lippincott, chairman of the auxiliary Democratic State Committee, leads the movement, and has sent out letters to each member of the auxiliary committee urging attendance at a conference of that body at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, on Saturday afternoon, August 1.

The members of the regular State committee and the editor of every Democratic newspaper in the State has been asked to attend.

Train Hits Peddler's Wagon.

A runaway horse, attached to a wagon loaded with cabbages, narrowly escaped death at a grade crossing in Greenville, Saturday morning. The locomotive of the 8:11 train from this city struck the wagon, breaking the horse free from it. The wagon was carried some distance on the engine pilot, and cabbages were strewn along the track. The driver, who had been thrown out when the horse bolted, escaped death, but the wagon was a splintered wreck.

Chicken Coop Afire.

Children playing with matches set fire to a chicken coop in the yard of C. W. Squires on West Fourth street near Grant avenue at noon yesterday. An alarm was turned in from box 84 and the fire department put the blaze out with a couple of extinguishers. The damage is placed at $10.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Edna Chamberlain, of Newtown, Pa., who has been visiting in the village for two weeks, is now the guest of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlain, in Plainfield.

Many of the friends of Marconnier chapel who reside in this village will join in the excursion to Ocean Grove on Thursday.

The regular services of the Baptist church were suspended last evening, but will be resumed the first week in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tappen, of Plainfield, are visiting Mrs. Tappen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Faulks, of Maple avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph and their two children, of Metuchen, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellogg.

Earl Darlington and Albert Manning returned today from a week-end visit to friends in Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Randolph, of New Market, spent yesterday with friends in the village.

Mrs. Theodore Laing is much improved in health. He was able to be out yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The game scheduled Saturday afternoon between the local ball team and the Rahway F. C. at Rahway, was called off on account of showers. The rain soon converted the diamond into a small sized lake and the game was postponed until later in the season.

The members of St. Mary's parish, Stony Hill, are arranging to hold another lawn fete, the date being Wednesday, August 12.

A picked team from here defeated the Berkley Heights team at the latter place yesterday afternoon by the score of 9-2.

The members of the Epworth League held an interesting meeting last night in the Methodist church.

Rev. Mr. Baker, of Mt. Holly, N. J., preached at the Baptist church yesterday at both services.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff entertained relatives from out of town over Sunday.

John Falmy spent Sunday at his home in Dover, N. J.

AUTOMOBILES IN HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Both Machines Wrecked—Wife of Philadelphian Hurt, But Not Seriously.

Yardley, Pa., July 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Partridge, of Philadelphia, were thrown from their automobile at Morrisville yesterday morning and Mrs. Partridge was painfully but not seriously hurt when their machine crashed in a head-on collision with the machine belonging to C. M. Bates, president of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Traction Company.

The accident occurred as the machines were rounding a corner on Mill street where that thoroughfare skirts the Delaware. The Partridge car stopped at a wall where the road is twenty-five feet above the river. The Bates car was in charge of John Taft, chauffuer, who narrowly escaped injury. Both machines were wrecked. Mr. Partridge is a restaurant owner in Philadelphia, and is a member of the Philadelphia Automobile Club. He was en route to Buffalo when the accident occurred.

PASTORS SCORE OFFICIALS.

Moved by Probe of Excise Commission in Elizabeth.

Clergymen throughout Elizabeth yesterday, in commenting upon the disclosures there before the Excise Commission as to the toleration of violations of the Bishops law, made a concerted attack upon city officials and the control of municipal affairs by the liquor and beer interests.

Dean Gessner repeated the strictures he made before the Excise Commission, and declared that conditions could not be remedied without the abolition of the present Excise Board. Without mentioning names, the Rev. Staley F. Davis described the "modern Demertrius" in such a way that his identity was unmistakable, and added:

"It is understood that our local Demetrius aspires to the office of Mayor. I hope he will succeed in being nominated for the office. It will give us a chance to reveal how many decent, law-abiding citizens this city has."

Among others who preached on similar lines were the Rev. Dr. Thos. J. Coultas, recently of Newark, and the Rev. Joseph B. Ferguson.

Powerboats Race Forty-two Miles.

Five of the fastest power boats of the New Jersey Yacht Club engaged in a race around Staten Island yesterday, the start and finish being off the club on Newark Bay. The distance was forty-two miles. The Kittie L., owned by Charles Lutton, was the victor, covering the distance in five hours and thirty-two minutes. The Adel, James Dodd, owner, was second, and the Hattie B., owned by William Baedecker, third.

AUTO UPSETS STAGE.

None of Six Occuptnts Seriously Hurt —Shauffeur Flees.

While joy-riding at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, William Long, chauffeur for E. I. Horsman, of New York, who has a summer home at Monmouth Beach, ran down a stage at Galilee in which were a half dozen persons, including the driver, Morris Stein. The driver left Long Branch with a party for Galilee, two of whom were strangers, the other three were Charles Brower, John Quinn and Harry McDaniels.

While nearing Galilee and without warning, the big machine struck the horse, overturned the stage and scattered the occupants. The hood of the machine was torn completely off. Fortunately none of the occupants of the stage were seriously hurt, although all suffered more or less from shock. The stage was wrecked and the horse injured so badly that it will die. Long, who had been out riding with a servant girl, lost no time in getting his machine to the garage. Before a policeman could be summoned he had left and has not been seen since.

FOUND SON IN HOSPITAL.

Elizabeth Mother Thought Him Safe at His Aunt's.

It was not until she reached the house of her sister in Green street, Newark, last night, that Mrs. Anna Stokes, of 428 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, realized her 16-year-old son William was missing and something might have happened to him.

She hurried to police headquarters and Sergeant Tracy, after an examination of the register, told her that her son had been injured Saturday morning through falling from a wagon at Broad and William street. He called up St. Barnabas' Hospital and was able to tell Mrs. Stokes that the boy was no longer in any danger.

Mrs. Stokes said she did not worry when William failed to return home since Friday, because she believed he was at his aunt's in Newark. When she reached Newark last night and found the boy not seen by her sister, she hurried to police headquarters.

PUT DYNAMITE CAPS IN FIRE.

To End of Wire, from Which Boys Try to Burn Insulation.

Branislau Weineinski, 11 years old, of 144 Essex street, and Isadore Sillberg, 10 years old, of 141 Essex street, Jersey City, while playing with other boys on the bank of the Morris Canal at the foot of Van Vorst street, yesterday afternoon, found ten pieces of insulated copper wire with dynamite caps attached.

They built a fire and attempted to burn the insulation off the wire. One of the caps exploded and Weineinski was hurt about the calf of his leg and Sillberg was badly injured about both knees and forehead.

"BOB" DAVIS TO FIGHT THE BISHOPS' LAW.

Robert Davis, Democratic leader in Hudson county, said Saturday that an effort would be made to have the bishops' law set aside as unconstitutional. Mr. Davis thought it would be attacked on two points ,but he declined to say what they were. He said the attack would be made by some of his friends.

Inasmuch as Mr. Davis is one of Bryan's best friends in New Jersey, and will direct the local campaign, his remarks are being taken to mean that the Hudson Democrats will make the excise question one of the issues of the campaign. An appeal will be made for votes on the liberal Sunday basis. Davis holding the opinion that the bishops' law is unpopular with a majority of the people of New Jersey.

Mr. Davis gote after Governor Fort's excise commission which is investigating the excise conditions in the various cities in the State, declaring that the commission was a political scheme to put the Democratic mayors at a disadvantage.

FIND HEIRS FOR MILLIONS TO NUMBER OF 2,200.

Heirs of Christopher Worman, who died in London 200 years ago, are taking steps to get possession of his estate, which is now said to be worth $80,000,000. There are many of the descendants of Worman in this vicinity, and they are giving their powers of attorney to S. B. Metler, of Pittstown, who has figured out from the family tree just what the heirs are to get and who the heirs are. There are about 2,200 of them in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio who have given the authority to Mr. Metler to collect for them.

Nothing has been heard lately of the Edwards estate, which also had many claimants in New Jersey. The Edwards property was supposed to be in New York city, somewhere in the vicinity of Grace church, but the heirs who executed powers of attorney ten years ago are still pursuing their customary avocations along with the Aneke Jan claimants.

NEW YORKER DIES IN SURF.

Heart Paralyzed While Bathing With Wife and Children.

Edward J. Markey, 39 years old, of 149 West 231st street, New York, was overcome while bathing in the surf at Asbury Park yesterday morning and died of paralysis of the heart. He went into the water at Asbury avenue with his wife and five children, waded out a short distance and was observed to topple back into the water.

Life guards took him from the surf and efforts to revive him were kept up for two hours by three phyelcians, but without avail. The body was shipped to New York last night.

ON THE ROAD WITH THE CIRCUS PEOPLE.

The system under which the employes of a circus work is as nearly perfect as it can be made. Each man has his especial duty—one hoists poles, another unfurls canvas, and so on, each one becoming so familiar with his work that he could accomplish it with his eyes shut if necessity arose; and in an incredibly short time, from what looks to the outsider as hopeless chaos and confusion, a tented city arises like magic. With the arrival of the tent and stake wagon, the boss canvassman walks over the site selected, with measure in hand, and at intervals indicates the places for the supporting iron tent poles to be driven. Each pole is marked with a little colored flag fluttering on the top, and these flags are the distinguishing marks for the canvasmen who follow with the tents. There are ten or twelve of them when all is done. One long tent, straw-carpeted and canvas-stalled, holds the several hundred splendid horses belonging to the circus. A smaller tent holds the performing horses. The animals in cages and the giraffes and camels and elephants have a tent to themselves; then there are the dressing-rooms, the dining-tent, tents for the blacksmith, the harness-maker, the wardrobe matron, the circus barber, and for those of many other callings necessary to the little traveling circus world, all of which must be protected from the sun or rain.

Thirty-nine minutes after the cook wagon reaches the grounds the kitchen has been set up, the dining-room is not only made ready, but also tables are set and the doors are thrown open to the fifteen hundred employes. "If it takes longer than forty minutes to set up the dining-tent and serve breakfast or dinner, there is trouble in store for some one," said Charles Henry, the chief commissary of the circus; "but we pride ourselves on having everything shipshape in thirty-nine." The first thing done is to set up the ranges and start the coffee caldrons to boiling. The fresh meat and bread that have been contracted for in advance are delivered on the spot, the butcher falls to work, and in less time than it takes to tell it the odor of frying bacon and the arona of coffee are floating out on the morning air to encourage the tent workers.

The general arrangement of the tables in the dining department is like that in a ship. A number of long tables stretch the entire length of the tent, and one table at the end is set crosswise. This latter is for the manager of the show and his business staff. The freaks occupy a table by themselves, members of families and troupes are seated together, and efforts are made to make it as pleasant as possoible for all concerned. It is seldom that the entire force of employes sit down to the tables at the same time. The dining-tent is open two hours and a half for each meal, and the performers straggle along as they choose. Divided from the officers' and performers' mess tent is that of the one thousand tena hands or roustabouts, as they are generally called. The food served to both tents is the same, and consists of good, wholesome fare—roast beef, baked potatoes, vegetables, salads and desserts, with a change o fmenu every day; and the food cooked in the open air is peculiarly delicious and appetizing.—Leslie's Weekly.

SUPERSTITUTIONS OF THE BRIDAL DAY.

There is one time in her live when every girl, no matter how practical she may be as a rule, cannot help permitting herself to be swayed by a few superstitious considerations, and that is in her wedding day. She would not think of falling upstairs this morning for fear her bridegroom should play her false and she be compelled to remain single for another year.

If she gets up to find the sky overcast or the streets full of deep splashing puddles when she is looking forward to a noon weeding, then indeed do her spirits sink, for she knows that only that bride is fated to be happy upon whom the sun shines.

She has heard that the bride who sheds tears during the ceremony may look forward to a long life of happiness, and yet when the time comes she is afraid to lose her self-control for fear she should stop the service.

As to her wedding attire, all her relatives and friends have long been instilling into her mind what she must be sure to wear:

"Something old and something new.
Something borrowed and something blue," and so she borrows a handkerchief from her sister, fastens a blue garter just below the knee and comforts herself that her slippers are really old because she has been "breaking them in" in the privacy of her boudoir during the past week.

She knows that if she would enjoy undivided happiness she must never try on her wedding gown in its entirety until the day upon which she is to be married, and that her prospective husband should not be permitted to see her that day until he meets her at the altar.

Until lately green has been looked upon as an emblem of bad luck, but this spring quite a number of green weddings are noticed. The decorations will be entirely of this color and the bridesmaids' dresses, if not entirely of it, will at least have embroideries or trimmings of green.

THEY PRODUCE FEW BLONDS IN SCOTLAND.

Some interesting facts have been brought out by what is called a "pigmentation survey" of Scotland, described in the Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute by two Scotch anthropologists, Messrs. Gray and Tocher. This is simply an examination of the color of hair and eyes among the school children of Scotland. Says a contributor to Nature, describing the results:

"In the first place the pecentage (24.9) of Scotch boys with fair hair is unexpectedly low. The obvious inference is than the pure Norse or English element in the population is by no means predominant, and that there is a dark or brunette element at least equal and probably greater. The highest density of fair hair is to be found in the great river valleys opening on the German ocean and in the western isles. In the former case this probably points to invasions of a blond race into those regions. Similarly, the higher percentage of fair hair in the Spey valley and in the western isles implies inroads of the vikings of Norsemen. It is perhaps pushing the evidence too far when the writers suggest that the high percentage of fair-haired girls in the neighborhood of Dumferline is due to the train of blond damsels who are supposed to have accompanied the Saxon Princess Margaret, who about the time of the Norman conquest became queen of Malcolm Canmore."

The survey, we are told, appears to corroborate the conclusions of Dr. Shrubsall in regard to London slum districts, that the percentage of fair-haired people in industrial towns is very low. Owing to alien invasion or the influence of environment or to some unknown cause in towns like Glasgow and Dundee the conditions are specially unfavorable to the survival of blond men, while the reverse is the case with women. Another important conclusion is that improvements in communication do not, as might be expected, tend to homogeneity of type; on the contrary, owing perhaps to some obscure influence of environment, all such improvements apparently tend to make the race more heterogeneous. To quote further:

"The part of the country in which dark hair specially prevails is the extreme West. 'If,' writes the authors of the memoir, 'we assume, for reasons given above, that the pigmentation of girls represents more nearly the pre-Norse inhabitants, this native type has crowded into the Isle of Skye and the opposite coats of the mainland. If the Dalriadic Scots, who invaded Argyllshire in the fifth century, were a dark race and the invaders who settled there were men only, that would account for the darkest region in the boys' map being in Arggyllshire. The Hebrides have been so much affected by the viking and Norse invasions from Scandinavia which have passed round the coast of Scotland that they have a smaller percentage of dark type than the islands and mainland lying farther east. The Isle of Lewis has a higher percentage of dark girls than boys, indicating the presence of a pre-Norse dark native population. The southwest corner of Scotland in both the boys' and girls' maps is darker than the average; and since, in historical times, the Picts inhabited this region, this evidence points to the conclusion that the Picts were a dark race.'"

Such wide-reaching conclusions the reviewer thinks in the present state of knowledge are obviously premature, and he believes that the authors lay too much stress upon pigmentation as a test of race. But the results of this investigation are sufficiently instructive, he says, to justify the demand for a national anthropometrial survey.—Literary Digest.

APROPOS OF NOTHING.

A single novelty is not an expensive luxury, but novelties are not used singly, for one will want the hatpin, brooch, belt pin and shirtwaist set to match. First we see some delicate patterns in silver with dainty markings resembling hand carving, or the dull yellow gold will show settings of coral, emerald or imitation torquoise.

There is a great amount of imitation tourquoise and coralette on the market. These pieces are really very lasting and will serve for a whole season, looking rather dainty in their respective places as decorations. We see many beautiful belt buckles this year, neat ones that match to perfection the woven silk and metallic belts.

And, by the way, how well the last mentioned articles are staying. They are neat and it is possible to secure something in a metallic belt to exactly match a gown. Tinted tinsels showing gold and rainbow tins are used evtensively in belting and the material is well linked too.

Presumption.

A smart Irishman was leaning against a post when a funeral procession was passing. "Who's dead?" some one asked.

"I don't know," answered the Irishman, "but I presume it's the gentleman in the coffin."—Tit-Bits.

A Delicious Fruit Punch.

Cook two cups of cranberries and one cup of water ten minutes. Strain and add while hot one and one-half cups of sugar and the juice of one lemon. Stir into a pitcher of ice water.

ACTIVITIES IN WOMAN SUFFRAGE CIRCLES.

The annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association will be held October 15 to 21 in Buffalo. This series of meetings will be held in commemoration of the sixtieth anniversary of the first woman's rights convention in the history of the world, which was held in Weslyan Chapel, Seneca Falls, N. Y. It was called by Lucretia Mott, Mary Ann McClintock, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Martha Wright. Mrs. Stanton moved this resolution, which was seconded by Frederick Douglass:

"That it is the duty of the women of this county to secure to themselves the sacred right of the elective franchise."

The Buffalo convention will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building, with headquarters at the Lenox Hotel.

There were two women delegates in the national Democratic convention in Denver, Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford, of Colorado, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hayward, of Utah. Mrs. Bradford is a descendant of the Virginia Carrols. Though she is described as a domestic doman, nevertheless she is also prominent in Colorado politics. At the State Democratic convention she was the first delegate elected to the national convention and was enthusiactically applauded. She is a grandmother and an ardent suffragist.

Mrs. K. M. Cook, of Colorado, was one of the alternates. Among the Utah alternates was Mrs. Sarah Ventress. Mrs. Harriet R. Hood was one of the alternates from Wyoming. She was born in Vermont and is a strong champion of woman's rights.

Conspicuous among the visitors were the wives and daughters of many of the distinguished delegates from all over the United States, and many social functions were arranged by the Jane Jefferson Club and other Denver women.

One of the most signal victories ever won for woman's rights to the ballot was the decision of the Supreme Court in the suit brough by the women of Des Moines, Ia., to have set aside an election involving the building of a city hall and the issuance of bonds therefor, because women had not been allowed to vote. The Supreme Court set aside the election as invalid, for in Iowa woman have the right to vote in bond elections. The case had been contested through all the courts and the suit was carried to its final triumph for the women by Miss Grace Ballantyne. Competent lawyers declare her argument was one of the finest ever heard in the Supreme Court room.

BE SLOW IN CHOOSING YOUR MEN FRIENDS.

Often and often have I heard young women remark that they preferred going alone to being thrown in the society of young men whom they care little about. This is one very courageous idea and it certainly is commendable in any girl who practises it. Summer is a time to test this virtue, for many might hesitate quite awhile before refusing a day at the picnic, fishing camp, or any of the nuemorus excursions or pleasure jaunts where one might forego the pleasure rather than be with uncongenial company. It places a young man in an embarrassing position, for he is devoting his time to persons who merely go with him for the pleasure the outing will prove in a personal way. It is too bad that there are young women who will practise this bit of deception, though there are many who do and they lead their summer friends quite a merry chase.

The nice girl is decidedly choice in the selection of her friends. And it is well she is, for this is a time when one may meet a young man of very affable manners whose companionship will prove most agreeable, but before the friendship develops into something more sentimental, along come members of his family that the nice girls does not wish to know. She is surprised to find his brothers and sisters very common, the men whose associates are among a rough class of acquaintances, and, perhaps, the sisters are nice girls, though not persons one would exactly wish for relatives. I have heard girls speak of these embarrassing ocucrrences. So it is just as well if one is careful. It is always a pleasant feeling to know that one is with persons of great refinement and it is doubly so if one must appear in public with such.

A girl may be a little lonely if she refuses the ones she has the best opportunity to meet, but her better judgment will not give it the name of loneliness.

MAKE SEVERAL GUIMPES.

Almost any summer gown will prove more serviceable if provided with a detachable guimpe. Those of embroidery or tucked batiste and Valenciennes are the more practical, as they may be so satisfactorily laundered. A dainty guimpe and stock may be evolved from dotted Swiss and beading entire deux in verticle lines, or one of bold open-work muslin may be broken with narrow lace insertion. Mousseline will withstand any amount of washing and cleaning and the finely tucked nets seem not to hold the dust at all and usually require to be merely pressed.

The Susquehanna Express Robbery

At Susquehanna, Pa., are located the great shops of the Erie railroad, where 1,500 men work throughout the year. These men receive their wages on a fixed day toward the end of each month, the pay roll amounting to many thousands of dollars. It was customary, 25 years ago, for the company to have a sum of money sufficient for this purpose shipped from New York by express a day or two before the date when the wages were to be paid. Following out this practice, on the night of June 20, 1883, the Marine national bank, of New York, shipped by the United States Express company a sealed package containing $40,000 for the Erie Railroad company, in care of the First national bank, of Susquehanna. The package contained United States currency and bank notes, almost entirely in small bills, none larger than $20.

The usual precautions were observed in shipment, a trusted clerk of the Marine bank carrying the package to the express company's office and taking a receipt for it from the money clerk, who examined it first to make sure that the seals of the bank were intact and that in all respects it presented a correct appearance. Having satisfied himself on these points, the money clerk placed the package in one of the canvas pouches used by the United States Express company, sealed it carefully with the company's private seal, and attached a tag bearing the address of the company's agent at Susquehanna.

After a brief delay the pouch was delivered to Express Messenger Van Waganen, who saw it placed in one of the small iron safes used by express companies in conveying money from city to city. The messenger rode with the safe to the train, and then remained on guard in the express car, where the safe was placed, as far as Susquehanna, at which point he delivered the pouch to Dwight Chamberlain, a night clerk and watchman in the joint employ of the Erie Railroad and the United States Express company. The train left New York at six p. m., and reached Susquehanna about midnight.

Watchman Chamberlain, having received the pouch at the station, carried it into the ticket office and locked it inside a safe belonging to the Erie Railroad company. He remained on duty the rest of the night, and at seven o'clock the next morning a messenger from the First national bank, of Susquehanna, came to get the package. Chamberlain unlocked the safe, took out the pouch, opened it, and then emptied its contents on the table. To his great surprise the package containing the $40,000 was gone, and in its place were several bundles of manila paper cut to the size of bank bills and done up in small packages as money is done up.

The agent of the company, Clark Evans, was immediately notified, and he at once telegraphed the news of the robbery to the officials of the United States Express company in New York, who with very little delay placed the matter in the hands of the Pinkerton Detective Agency. The direct supervision of the work was undertaken by the late George H. Bangs, at that time general superintendent of the Pinkerton Agency, and a force of detectives at once started for Susquehanna.

An important discovery was made on closer examination of the pouch. It was found that this pouch was not the one that had been sealed up in the express office at New York, but a bogus pouch, so much like the other that the change might easily have escaped notice. The chief points of difference were the tag and the seal, the former having been addressed in a different hand from that of the New York money clerk, and the latter being an old seal not in use by the company at that time. But the general appearance of the pouch was such that neither the messenger, Van Waganen, nor the watchman, Chamberlain, could swear that it was not the one that he had handled.

After going over the ground carefully and cross-examining Van Waganen and Chamberlain, Superintendent Bangs concluded that the robbery had not been committed on the train and that the genuine money package had reached Susquehanna and been locked in the railroad company's safe by the night clerk. He was strengthened in this conclusion by the statement of Chamberlain, who admitted that, after looking up the money, he had only been in the ticket office at intervals during the night. For this he was in no way to blame, as he had other duties to perform about the station, notably those of way bill clerk.

Thus the robbers would have had full opportunity to approach the safe unobserved and exercise their skill upon it, could they have secured entrance to the ticket office. Nor was this a difficult matter, since the door leading into it was known to have three keys, in the hands of various employes of the road, from whom they might have been procured or stolen. More important still was the fact, ascertained by Mr. Bangs, that the safe itself had three keys, intrusted to as many men, whose duties required them to have access to the safe. It subsequently transpired that two of these keys had been made by the men who carried them, for their own convenience and without the knowledge of their superiors. The door leading into the ticket office opened from the men's waiting room, where people had been coming and going during the entire night of the robbery. Such of these people as could be found were questioned closely as to what they had observed on this night, but they could furnish no information that threw light upon the case.

Some significance was found in the coincidence that nine years before there had been a robbery at Susquehanna, in which $30,000 had been stolen from the express company's safe. The Pinkertons knew that for years a band of professional thieves had been traveling through the country, operating on safes that could be opened with a key. Among them were experts in fitting locks, especially skilled in making keys from impressions, and known as professional "fitters." At first it was considered possible that the robbery had been committed by these men; but, after the most careful search and inquiry, Superintendent Bangs concluded that this was not the case and that the pouch had been stolen by some person or persons resident in Susquehanna, presumably by one or more of the railroad employes who had access to the office, or by persons intimately acquainted with some of the men who had keys to the safe.

"Shadows" were put on all persons who might have had access to the ticket office and the safe; but, although this was continued for weeks, nothing conclusive came to light.

About this time a reorganization of the Pinkerton Agency became necessary, through the death of Allan Pinkerton, the founder, and George H. Bangs, the general superintendent, and Robert Pinkerton assumed charge of the investigation at Susquehanna. He undertook the difficult task of picking out one guilty man (or possibly two or three) from a body of 1,500 workmen. For, despite of lack of evidence either way, there was no doubt in the detective's mind that the money had been taken by some of the employes of either the express or the railroad company. Pinkerton men were taken to Susquehanna and given employment in various positions for the railroad and express companies, their duty being to make friends and hear gossip, and, if possible, in an unguarded moment, at some saloon or boarding house, or perhaps at the chatty noon hour in the works, secure some important secret. Other detectives came with money in their pockets, and, under the guise of sporting men, made themselves popular at resorts where a poor man come dishonestly and suddenly into money would be apt to spend it.

Day after day, month after month, the watch was continued from many points of view, the conversations of hundreds of workmen were carefully noted, the gambling houses and their inmates were kept under constant scrutiny, the lives of this man and that man and scores of men were turned inside out, and all without any one in Susquehanna suspecting it, the general opinion being that the robbery had been put aside along with many other unsolved mysteries.

A whole year passed before any promise of success came to cheer the express company and the patient detectives. In the summer of 1884, Robert Pinkerton, having received information that a professional burglar, who had been arrested some weeks previous for a burglary at Milwaukee, had valuable information about an express robbery, immediately journeyed from New York to Milwaukee to interview the man. He learned from the burglar that some years before he had operated with a man named John Donahue; that about the time of the Susquehanna robbery Donahue had been away from home, and that shortly after the robbery he had returned with plenty of money and paid off several old debts. Mr. Pinkerton at once recognized in Donahue a notorious thief who, to escape justice, had taken up his residence at Fort Erie, Canada, where he had opened a hotel.

The burglar also gave Mr. Pinkerton a description of a man who had visited Donahue at his hotel on several occasions, and who had the general appearance of a workman. He suspected that this man had been in some way concerned with Donahue in the Susquehanna robbery; he knew that he had resided at one time in Buffalo, N. Y., and worked in the shops there, and he thought that he might be then living in Susquehanna, Pa.

From the description, Mr. Pinkerton was able, on going to Susquehanna, to identify the suspected man with one George H. Proctor, who had formerly been foreman in the railroad company's shops, but had resigned his position some months before and moved to Buffalo. In the investigation that was at once begun it was found that Proctor had recently been speculating largely in oil and spending money freely, although while living in Susquehanna he was known to have had no resources besides his salary. It was learned further that Proctor had deposited money with three Buffalo banks and had accounts with various firms of brokers, and also that he was paying frequent visits to gambling houses and in general leading a fast life. Proctor's deposits, it was learned, had at one time amounted to about $11,000, but most of this sum had been subsequently drawn out and lost in speculation.

All of this was strong presumptive evidence against a man who was known to have been poor a few months before, and a more significant discovery was made a little later, when Proctor went on a trip to Canada, evidently on important business. The detective who followed him found that the men with whom he had dealings, and with whom he passed nearly the whole time of his visit, were professional thieves, well known to the police.

In view of all that had come to light, it was decided to effect Proctor's arrest. This was made easy by his habit of coming to Susquehanna every few weeks to see his wife and three children, who had remained there. During these visits it had been remarked that he was especially intimate with employes of the railroad and express companies who were connected with the ticket office.

All unsuspicious of the danger that threatened him, Proctor took the train from Buffalo on the night of Saturday, November 16, with a ticket for Susquehanna. Word was at once telegraphed to Robert Pinkerton, who, in company with E. W. Mitchel, superintendent of the United States Express company, started for Susquehanna, reaching there Monday morning. They learned that Proctor was still in town, but keeping very closely to his house. It was not until ten o'clock in the evening that he appeared on the street, his purpose in going out being to purchase some groceries. As he came from the store Robert Pinkerton stepped forth from his place of waiting and took him into custody. He was taken to a private house, where Mr. Pinkerton passed nearly the whole night in conversation with him. Before daylight Proctor had made what purported to be a full confession.

Proctor stated that he had moved to Susquehanna in 1880, having resided in Buffalo previous to that time. While in Buffalo he had occasionally of a Sunday visited Fort Erie, Canada, and there had made the acquaintance of John Donahue. At first he did not know that Donahue was anything more than the keeper of a hotel. He found him an entertaining companion, a good storyteller and singer of comic songs, and very generous with his money. They came to see much of each other, and after Proctor's removal to Susquehanna they kept up an occasional correspondence. Proctor, having a monthly pass over the Erie railroad, and being able to procure passes on other roads, made several trips to Fort Erie, always stopping at Donanue's hotel. On one of these visits he chanced to read aloud to his friend the newspaper account of a clever robbery in Montreal, where a band of sneak thieves had robbed a paymaster of a sum of money he had in a bag to pay off employes. This turned the conversation to criminal exploits, and Proctor related the circumstances of the express robbery at Susquehanna some years before. Donahue showed great interest, and inquired how it happened that the express company had so large a sum of money at Susquehanna. Proctor explained about the extensive railroad shops there, and incidentally remarked that the same system of paying the hands was still in practice. Donahue then requested Proctor to ascertain for him how much money was being shipped each month at that time, the day of shipment, the train, the kind of safe used on that train, and full details about the lock—whether opened by a combination or a key. Donahue professed that his only motive in seeking this information was curiosity, and Proctor promised to learn what he could.

It was about a fortnight after this that the two men met again, Proctor having secured all the facts about the monthly transfer of money from New York to Susquehanna. These he confided to Donahue, who seemed greatly pleased at the report. He showed Proctor the greatest attention, spending money freely. Then he pressed Proctor with further questions, asking how the money was wrapped up, what kind of pouch it was carried in, and so on. Finally he came out bluntly with the opinion that Proctor was a fool to waste his time working in a dirty shop when he might be living in luxury. Then, seeing that the foreman took no great umbrage at this suggestion, he asked him if he could get an impression of the safe key, and also one of the key to the door of the ticket office. After some show of reluctance, Proctor finally consented to try.

Returning to Susquehanna, Proctor took advantage of his friendship with employes about the ticket office to get possession of the keys long enough to take the desired impressions, and these he mailed to Donahue, in whose service he was now fully enlisted. Donahue wrote back, expressing satisfaction, and saying that he and another man, named Collins, had paid a secret visit to Susquehanna, and had found everything as Proctor had represented. A little later Proctor went to Canada again, and was introduced to Collins. At this meeting it was arranged that Donahue should procure a canvas bag like the one used by the express company, and that a dummy money package should be placed inside, so that a substitution might be effected on the arrival of the next shipment. Proctor was to take no active part in the robbery, but was instructed to return home and continue at his work, showing no concern, whatever happened.

"If there's an earthquake at Susquehanna when pay-day comes around, you don't know anything about it, do you understand?" Such was the final order given to Proctor, and he obeyed it implicitly.

A month passed, and, hearing nothing, Proctor went to Canada again, and had another talk with his two confederates. They told him that they had gone to Susquehanna prepared to do the "job," but had learned, accidentally, that the money that month had been sent in gold, which would have been too heavy for them to carry away, and they had therefore decided to wait until a month later.

This was in May, and the following month the robbery occurred. Two weeks later Proctor went to Canada, and received $11,000 as his share of the plunder. Donahue and Collins explained to him that he did not receive more because they had been obliged to give a fourth share to another man who had worked with them. They cautioned him not to spend a dollar of the stolen money for months to come, as the detectives would be always on the lookout for suspicious circumstances. They also advised him to continue at his work, under no circumstances giving up his position within a year.

Proctor had strictly followed these suggestions, living and working as he had done before the robbery, and not spending any part of his portion. Having changed the money into large bills and sealed it up in a fruit-jar, so that the moisture could not injure it, he buried the jar head downward in his garden. There it remained untouched for months. But when the severe weather of the following winter set in, he dug up the jar, and taking the money to Buffalo, deposited it in three banks, in the name of his wife and his three children, with himself in each instance as trustee.

Although his trade became very irksome to him now that he had a small fortune in his possession, he prudently stuck to it until June, 1884. Then, a year having elapsed since the robbery, he decided that it would be safe for him to launch out into a pleasanter life. He accordingly went to Buffalo, where he entered into oil speculations with a friend who claimed to have "inside information" from the Standard Oil company. Although fortunate at the start, the failure of Grant & Ward brought them heavy losses, and soon their profits and their original capital were swept away. Proctor assured Mr. Pinkerton that, at the time of their talk, he was ruined, and that he had intended, during this very visit to Susquehanna which ended in his arrest, making application for his old position as foreman of the boiler shops.

Having heard Proctor's confession, Mr. Pinkerton took counsel with the officers of the express company. They, believing that Proctor had been only a tool in the hands of two smart professional criminals, agreed with the detective that the ends of justice demanded rather the apprehension of his confederates than his punishment alone. Proctor professed great penitence for his wrongdoing, and declared himself willing to do whatever was in his power to make amends.

The first step necessary to the capture of Donahue and Collins was to get them both into the United States at some point where they could be arrested at the same time. Donahue was still in Canada, where he could not be taken. Mr. Pinkerton arranged with Proctor to write to Donahue that he had discovered another safe which offered a tempting opportunity, hoping in this way to induce him to cross the line into the United States. To give color to the story it was necessary to accord Proctor apparent freedom of movement; but he pledged himself not to leave Susquehanna without Mr. Pinkerton's permission, and to keep the detective informed by letter and telegraph of all developments. At the same time detectives were sent to Canada to keep watch over Donahue.

Collins, in the meantime, had been located in Albany, but no attempt was made to arrest him until Donahue could be brought over the line. Should he cross without notifying Proctor, the men "shadowing" him were to cause his arrest. It was arranged with Proctor that, in case his letter failed of its purpose, he should go to Canada himself, persuade Donahue to send for Collins, and then induce the two to come back with him, when they would be arrested the moment they crossed the line.

On the 29th of November Robert Pinkerton received word by telegraph that Proctor had left Susquehanna suddenly in the night, telling the agent of the express company that he would return the next day. This looked very much as if Proctor had played him false, since it had been expressly stipulated that he should not go away without Mr. Pinkerton's permission. Days went by, and Proctor did not return. Then word came from one of the Pinkerton men at Fort Erie that Proctor had arrived at Donahue's hotel and had been joined there by Collins. This was a serious setback for the detectives. Not only were the three robbers safe from arrest where they were, but being fully aware of the danger threatening them, and being men of shrewdness, it was fair to presume that they would now move with great caution.

It soon became evident that Donahue and Collins were thoroughly alarmed by the news Proctor had brought them; for they at once took energetic steps to mislead anyone who might be watching them. Having retired as usual one night, they arose later, and drove in a wagon to a station on the Grand Trunk railroad, where they boarded a freight train for Toronto. After a brief stay in that city they went on to Montreal, where they tried hard to lose themselves, but were unsuccessful, and returned to Fort Erie.

Y.M.C.A. BESTS SUMMIT

Local Nine Wins Only State League Game by Score of 9 to 5.

RAIN DELAYED THE CONTEST.

Shower At End of First Inning Made Call Necessary—Dupee Fanned Eleven Batsmen.

Plainfield trimmed Summit in the only Y. M. C. A. State league contest played Saturday and now holds undisputable possession of second place among the six teams. The game, which was played at Summit, was interrupted at the end of the first inning, but after a short delay, the teams went out on the diamond again and played an eight inning contest. The score was 9-5.

Newark may have to forfeit the only other league game begun, for some of the Newark players left the field and went home when the umpire called time because of rain in the third inning of the Newark-Orange contest.

George Dupee, who used to do things for the Y. M. C. A. from the centre of the ball diamond, was on the slab for the local association boys in Saturday's game, and made good. He fanned eleven batsmen and kept the twelve singles culled from his delivery well scattered. The rain made it bad at the first part of the game and four runs came in during the first two innings, while the local players could not complete the circuit. In the third, owever, they found the way around four times before the Summit players could score three outs, and though Summit scored a single run in the fourth, goose eggs were the order of things after that and the Plainfielders located Dennis for runs in the next three stick sessions. The locals made a total of twelve hits and only five times were Plainfield batsmen fooled by Dennis' curves. The score:

PLAINFIELD A.C. BEATS IOLA CLUB NINE, 3-0

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the fast Iola Club team on the Clinton Avenue grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 3 to 0, the game being called at the beginning of the sixth inning on account of rain. Both sides played fast snappy ball throughout the game. Each team now have a game to their credit and will play the deciding contest on Saturday, August 29, at the Clinton Avenue grounds. The score:

WHITEHOUSE DEFEATS A BOUND BROOK NINE 8 TO 1.

The St. Joseph's baseball nine from Bound Brook went to Whitehouse Station Saturday afternoon and was defeated by the Whitehouse Station A. A. by a score of 8 to 2 in a loselyplayed game. Each side garnered seven errors. The hitting was heavy and the home team had the best of the argument in this respect. The score was:

Rain Saves Dunellen F. C.

The Highland A. C. nine scored six runs against the Dunellen A. C. team in the first inning at Dunellen, Saturday, but rain stopped the game in the second. Will Russell, who was in the box for Dunellen, was touched for three hits in the first session and a couple of muffs and a wild throw completed the tally of six. The Dunellenites could not score in their half of the session.

Dunning and Murphey in Finals.

F. O. Dunning and Chauncey Murphey won from Burdick and Clark in the doubles tournament of the S. S. A. L. tennis play Saturday by default. They are now in the final round and will meet the winner of the Dunning brothers with Beers and Long for the title.

Fine Contest Stopped by Rain.

The Clinton Avenues and Nationals, of Perth Amboy, were able to play but two innings at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, when a heavy downpour of rain put a stop to the contest. When the umpire called the contest the score was 2 to 1 in favor of the home team, and there was every promise of a fine exhibition. The Clinton Avenues got busy on the start and made their two runs in the first inning, while the visitors were able to tally one. The home team was strengthened by a new catcher, Bouzler, of Elizabeth, and in the short time he worked, he displayed unusual ability behind the rubber. His throwing to bases was a feature and he handled Randolph like a veteran. He apepared to put lots of confidence in the rest of the team and they played snappy ball. No doubt another contest will be arranged between these clubs.

Juniors Give Out Wrong Score.

Following the game played a week ago Saturday between the Juniors of this city and East Millstone, at the latter place, The Daily Press was furnished a score by innings of the contest by a representative of the Juniors. According to that it was 4 to 3, tenn innings in favor of the home team. It has since been learned that the Juniors were defeated by a score of 17 to 3 and that the contest was one of the poorest played at East Millstone this year, the visitors, it is said, put up a miserable exhibition. The sporting columns of The Daily Press have always been open for accounts of contests of all kinds, but when a team or its representative deliberately doctors a score to further the interests of that club they certainly deserve to be censored. A spectator at the above game in speaking about it says that "The Juniors could not play to keep their feet warm," and the score certainly tells the story.

WRITER OF POPULAR SONGS IS "DEAD BROKE."

Hugh Cannon, the man who wrote "Bill Bailey," "Ain't Dat a Shame," "Just Because She Made Dem Goo-goo Eyes," and other songs, is playing the piano in a Detroit, Mich., saloon. It is the only way he has of making a living. He says that he is almost down and out. And at that he is still a young man.

His songs have paid royalties, to be sure, but they have gone into the pockets of others. He sold "Goo-goo Eyes" for a paltry $25, and a woman in the South is still drawing a comfortable income from its sales. "Bill Bailey" brought him $350, and the money was squandered years ago. He never received a cent for "Ain't Dat a Shame."

He admitted without hesitation that he put away twenty or thirty "whiskies" per day, as a rule.

"Well, I don't blame the booze," he said. "I always drank to a certain extent, but I used to take a brace. I haven't written anything in over a year now, and there ain't any use, for I can't get my stuff accepted around this town."

AUTO MEN MUST OBSERVE THE LAW.

Automobilists having almost entirely omitted to blow their horns while nearing street corners around which they sweep at full speed in the centre of Trenton, the police commissioners Saturday night issued orders to patrolmen to pick up every man in an automobile in that city who in the slightest degree violates the automobile law.

The actiin is the result of a score of minor accidents during the last few weeks, one of which came near taking the life of former Supreme Court Clerk Benjamin F. Lee within a stone throw of his residence. Only a telegraph pole saved Mr. Lee's life. The commissioners are determined to put a stop to Philadelphia tourists also running through the city at full speed.

HUGHES KEEPS HIS COUNSEL.

Saranac Inn, N. Y., July 27.—It was said last night Governor Hughes as yet had received no communication from President Roosevelt or Chairman Woodruff, of the Republican State Committee, with reference to the Governor's announcement that he would accept a party renomination.

The Governor refused to comment on the interview of William Barnes, Jr., where Mr. Barnes declared it would be shown at the primaries that not 20 per cent. of the Republican voters would express a desire for Hughes' renomination. While the Governor refuses to discuss the criticisms or lack of criticism, nevertheless he is much interested in scanning the daily papers to learn how his decision is taken in all quarters.

VICAR GENERAL FOX DENOUNCES PRIZE WEDDING

Monsignor Fox, Vicar General of the Catholic Diocese of Trenton, yesterday preached a sermon during which he warned every Catholic in that city against attending a public wedding announced by the managers of a pleasure resort there.

This resort recently advertised for a couple to be married in public, and one couple agreed to the terms.

Although this resort is controlled by the elite of the city, the priest declared that advertising for a couple to be married in public "is about as bad a piece of business as it would be to advertise for a couple to be divorced in public, and for the sake of the 'Almighty Dollar' for the management.

"Men who countenance such things, who promote such affairs, know nothing of the sancity of marriage," continued the priest, "and they help along that disregard for the sacredness of the marriage ceremony which has resulted in over 1,000,300 divorces in this country during the past twenty years."

POLITICAL NOTES.

William C. Morton, of this city, left yesterday for Chicago, where he will be a delegate from Union county to the Independence Party's National convention.

Some of the political friends of Lewis T. Stevens, of Cape May City, have asked him to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Assembly, and he has promised to give them his answer in a short time. Stevens is a lawyer, and was assistant secretary of the New Jersey Senate in the sessions of 1905 and 1906. He is the author of Stevens' "History of Cape May County," published ten years ago, and is the owner and editor of "The Cape May Herald."

Mayor Edward Kenney, of East Newark, one of the Jersey delegates to the Denver convention, tells this story of his experience during the 87-minute demonstration for Bryan. "Mr. Martine tried to get the New Jersey banner, but whether he was pushed or fell, he certainly went sprawling on the floor in a most undignified manner. He appealed to me to help him get it. Together we went after it with iron in our souls and defiance on our brows, but when I saw six-foot-six Walter Connor holding that banner, and received a mild (?) admonition from that enormous product of Monmouth county, I advised the Union statesman that discretion was sometimes the better part of valor. The majority of Jerseymen present would like to have seen the Jersey banner in the parade, and Walter told me afterward that if I had come out for that banner half an hour later I could have had it."

James M. Seymour, who is being urged by the "real Democrats" of Newark to become a candidate for mayor of that city, declares that the political affairs of New Jersey are controlled by 30 men—24 Republicans and six Democrats. He doesn't specify who the 30 are, except to intimate that Thomas McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, is one of them.

James A. Lyon, of Pompton Falls, who served as a member of the assembly from Morris county during the last session of the Legislature, is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket. No one has come forward to contest the nomination with him and he will undoubtedly receive a place on the ticket.

The Anti-Saloon league has decided to eliminate from its new local option bil for next winter the county and ward features that were criticised so severely in the Crosby measure.

The Middlesex Democrats will nominate as their assembly candidates Dr. W. E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy; Schuyler C. Van Cleef, of New Brunswick, and Howard Butcher, of Cranbury. The first two were elected last fall and the third narrowly beaten by his fellow townsman, William C. Voorhees. It seems to be doubtful whether the Republicans will renominate Mr. Voorhees. In fact, all three of the Middlesex assemblymen are in a rather ticklish situation—Messrs. Voorhees and Ramsay because they voted against the Crosby local option bill and Mr. Van Cleef because he voted for it. There will be a good deal of splitting assembly tickets if these gentlemen are renamed. Who will run on the Republican ticket with Mr. Voorhees is uncertain.

Did They Ever Fail?

Peter Stram, of Wilson avenue, found the silver hunting case watch lost by an East Front street young woman Saturday. She advertised the loss in The Daily Press, and the watch was returned two hours after the paper was published on Saturday.

Albert Van Winkle, the young son of Letter-carrier and Mrs. Daniel Van Winkle, of Manson place, has returned from a New York hospital, where he has been under treatment. He is much improved in health.

Miss Ethel Vincent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vincent, of West Third street, underwent an operation at the parents' home Saturday afternoon. It was performed by Drs. Van Horn and Buchanan.

Lake Placid notes have the following interesting item: "The women who are spending the season at this resort, in the heart of the Adirondack mountains, are rejoicing over the fact that the first sailing race in the point series, under the auspices of Lake Placid Yacht Club, was won by Miss Blanche Buttfield, daughter of W. J. Buttfield, of Plainfield, N. J., who defeated her father in a closely contested finish. Miss Buttfield sailed the yacht of Commodore Charles N. Morgan and Mr. Buttfield sailed his own yacht.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

SHOES FOR THE SEASON.

We are offered many new styles in footgear which are being made in almost every color that is fashionable in costumes. Pumps of white kid, piped with black patent leather, with black heels and little bows, are considered very smart when a dress of white embroidered in black is worn. With an all-white costume no other than white ties and stockings are correct.

A very new idea of the season is a heavily embroidered linen or canvas shoe which may be worked at home and finished by a shoemaker. Buckskin is commonly worn because of its durability, and canvas because it is not expensive. Brown and tan shoes, ties and slippers may be worn successfully with white, but they appear most suitable with dresses of brown, navy, green and certain shades of gray. But tan shoes and a black dress is very bad taste.

There is a noticeable decline in the popularity of pumps because of their constant slipping at the heel, which so ruins the hoisery. The low shoes with colonial tongues and buckles are worn evening to restaurants and theatre parties.

BEAUTIFUL NEW VEILS.

In trailing clouds of glory will we come this summer when enveloped in the new veil. It is the nearest approach to a meterialized rainbow or a cloud come down to earth that the mind of man can conceive.

It is of a diaphanous chiffon, sheer and filmy as mist, about four yards long and a yard wide. But this is but its material body, which any veil might own. Its ethereal essence is in its coloring, which softly shades from light to dark and which makes it the wonderful thing it is. One in pink grows from the faintest, most delicate tones to the deepest, richest rose, fleecy as a cloud at sunset, as lovely in its coloring. Another is in the popular blue, showing blendings from the palest to the universal Copenhagen. Another beauty ranges from the elusive tint of campaign through the rich, modish tans. The ends and sides are barred with satin stripes in self color, which add to its richness. They are the newest arrivals in the veiling world, and they will probably flutter like captured rainbows from coaches and autos at St. Martin's Green during horse show week.

Mrs. Olin G. Waldbridge.

Mrs. Anna H. Waldbridge, mother of Mrs. Paul Taylor Brown, of this city, died at her home at Glen Cove, L. I., on Saturday, aged seventy-eight year. Mrs. Waldbridge's maiden name was Anna H. Ryckman. She was the widow of Olin G. Waldbridge. The funeral services were held this afternoon at the late residence in Porspect Park West, Brooklyn.

EXPECT SWIFT JUSTICE

Summing Up in Trial of Herron, Charged with Murder of Metuchen Preacher.

VERDICT LIKELY TONIGHT.

But Two Days Consumed in Disposing of Case Against Prisoner —The Lawyers Are Now Summing Up.

Before night is its generally expected that Archibald Herron, of Metuchen, will be found "guilty in the first degree" in the Middlesex county court, at New Brunswick, where he is on trial for his life for killing Rev. B. B. Prickitt, a retired Methodist inister at Metuchen some few days ago. All morning the witnesses for the defense were examined, mostly sainty experts. Mrs. Herron, the wife of the prisoner, at first refused to go to court to testify in her husband's behalf but later consented to do so. An automobile was sent to Metuchen for her but on the way she fainted. When revived, Mrs. Herron absolutely declined to go to court.

The lawyers in the case are summing up this afternoon.

Dr. William E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy, testifying for the defense, yesterday, swore that Herron is an alcoholic paranoias, and that, in his opinion, the man has been insane for the past two and a half years. Justice James J. Bergen, who is presiding at the trial, would not permit the physician to give this testimony until he had qualified by telling of the examination which he had made of the murderer.

Dr. Ramsay said that the had spent an hour and a half with the prisoner, and had examined him physically, and had also questioned him. Herron had told the doctor that he had been mesmerized by the Rev. Dr. James G. Mason, the Rev. Mr. Prickitt, George Bennett and other members of the Masonic order in Metuchen. These men, he had declared, were forcing women into the Masonic order, and had taken his wife from him and forced her to join the order. Women who refused to join the order, the murderer had said, were taken to the Presbyterian church and abused. He claimed that he had heard them cry out at the meetings.

Herron had told the doctor that once he had been ordered to go to Newark to investigate a Masonic order there and that he had written down to find out about the doings. He said that he had told the Rev. Mr. Prickitt all these things, but that didn't stop the persecution.

Says He Was Mesmerized.

On the day that he shot Mr. Prickitt, he claims that he met the Rev. Dr. James G. Mason on the street and that the doctor made a lot of passages with his arms in the air, which had mesmerized him and had impelled him to shoot Mr. Prickitt.

Dr. Ramsay was on the stand at adjournment for the day and he was cross-examined this morning. His testimony was listened to by Dr. Britton D. Evans, of the Morris Plains Asylum, and Dr. Frank M. Donohue, of New Brunswick, who are to be called in rebuttal by the State. The State's doctor took notes of Dr. Ramsay's evidence freely.

The State did not produce any unexpected evidence, simply following the actions of Herron for months, showing that he had told many people that he intended to kill Mr. Prickitt for an alleged wrong. Mr. Prickitt, when recorder of Metuchen, had sent him to jail for thirty days for being disorderly, and the prisoner had been talking of that sentence for the past two years and threatening to get even. Charles N. Prickitt, the grandson of the murdered minister, was the only eyewitness to the murder. He saw Herron shoot and saw his grandfather fall.

The defense did not attempt to deny the shooting. Judge C. T. Cowenhoven, counsel for the prisoner, in opening for the defense yesterday afternoon, said: "We do not deny that Herron fired the fatal shot. If this man Herron, in cold blood, deliberately took the life of that man, the law will fix the penalty, and justly. Herron may have fired the shot, but we deny that at that time he was Archibald Herron himself. We shall show that he has not been endowed with all the powers of reason. On that day he was morally and legally irresponsible—unable to discriminate between right and wrong. He had no knowledge or conception of the result of his act. The fact that he brooded over what he thought to be unfair treatment and that society was against him, preyed upon his mind, and he knew not what he did. Banish all prejudice and feeling, and do unto this man as you would have him do unto you."

Thomas Horn and Patrick Gafney, who had known Herron for some time, said that they had often heard him complain of his treatment, but

GANNUZZI FINED $20; WILL APPEAL HIS CASE

Fined $20 by Recorder Dolliver at the session of North Plainfield police court, last night, John Jannuzzi, the Italian whose fruit store on Somerset street was raided as a "speakeasy" and disorderly house by Chief Marshal Weiss, Sunday afternoon, will apply through his counsel, Francis J. Blatz, for a writ of certiorari to take his case to the Supreme Court at Trenton. Jannuzzi pleaded not guilty at his hearing last night and George Monck, a witness, testified that there was no disorderly disturbance in the place, no swearing or bad language and that the men did not seem to be drunk. The borough judge, following out North Plainfield's stern policy toward "speak easies," imposed the maximum fine, which Jannuzzi paid.

The writ of certiorari will be secured on a recent decision at Atlantic City that penalties for disorderly houses must be by indictment and that a prisoner cannot be tried under a city ordinance. The five men arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss in the raid Sunday were fined $2 apiece at a hearing yesterday morning.

FRESH AIR HOME ONES ARE MUCH INTERESTED

The children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home enjoyed a delightful time last evening when G. E. Hall, assisted by Clinton Hall and William Maxim, entertained the children with music and otherwise. There were many of the popular airs on the phonograph, tricks, recitations by the camp children and then both children and mothers were given candy, chewing gum, pictures, etc. As the visiting friends said good-night they left behind them a happy lot and the request that these friends come again.

Tonight's meeting at the Netherwood Home is to be in charge of the St. James' Epworth League of Elizabeth. Tomorrow night Hughes Fawcett, of Plainfield, will lead the services.

"TUCK" NOW RUNS WITH WESTFIELD FIRE TEAM.

"Tuck," the surviving horse of the old North Plainfield fire department team, was sold yesterday to the Westfield fire department and five minutes after his delivery to the Westfield fire-fighters, he made his first run to a lively blaze at Godschalk's barn last night. The deal was made by Fire Chief Howard Woolston, who drove to Westfield last night, accompanied by Fire Captain Edward Terry, to deliver the animal.

"Tuck" now runs on the Westfield hose wagon, paired with a sorrel, and the action of the pair has been highly praised. The horse is the better of the pair of greys, but the other horse, "Nip," broke his ankle and had to be shot several months ago. "Newt" and "Sam" were purchased by the borough shortly after "Nip's" death, and the sale of "Tuck" was in accordance with a motion passed at the last borough Council meeting.

Happy Bill's Benefit.

Happy Bill Counihan and Sammie Cunningham, both of whom are pressed into service every now and then to put the "S. R. O." sign out in Second street, will be conspicuous at the fourth annual barn dance to be held by the Fair Haven Idle Club at that place tonight. Frank Evans, Frank Wesley Martineau, to say nothing of Thomas Morrissey and one Frank Herbert, make up the ambulance corps which will assist Happy Bill in rushing "the dear people" home after the jamboree.

Short School Meeting.

There was more brevity than business to the North Plainfield Board of Education meeting held at the Somerset Street School last night, when little was done except report on some minor repairs and authorize the installation of some new slate blackboards in the class rooms of the building. J. Herbert Case, Nelson A. Miller and E. A. Lowe were the absentees. A special meeting of the board will be held next Monday night at which time estimates on school supplies will be made.

In the City Court.

Mrs. Kate Stevens, colored, was found helplessly drunk by Sergeant Overbaugh on West Second street at 1 o'clock this morning. Judge Runyon gave her the preference of $3 or ten days when arraigned in court. She was still trying to negotiate a loan at noon time.

Burglars at South Bound Brook.

Burglars broke into "Jim" Fisher's blacksmith shop at South Bound Brook Sunday night and stole about $25 worth of tools.

MARTINE IS IN HARNESS

Farmer-Orator to Whoop it Up for Bryan and Kern in Jersey and Elsewhere.

HE WON'T ACCEPT AN OFFICE.

Our Jim Never Would Be An Appointee and Now Refuses to Become a Candidate Before Voters.

From all parts of the State, to say nothing of foreign parts, James E. Martine is receiving invitations to speak at Bryan rallies. In this Presidential campaign, Mr. Martine says he will confine himself to the Eastern States, having been convinced, he says, that the West is plentifully supplied with stump speakers of the best kind.

"I will be kept busy, much to my delight," said Mr. Martine today, "from now on until Mr. Bryan's election takes place. On Saturday night, August 8, I will address a party organization in Newark. On the following Wednesday I speak at Lake Grinnell, Sussex county, where a farmers' reunion will be held. I will be right at home with those people for I am a farmer myself. A little later I will tell the good people of Hunterdon county the virtues of Mr. Bryan, having been invited to speak at the farmers' reunion at Flemington. My services are at the disposal of the State and National committees and I assure you that I will do all in my power to help the Triumphant Democracy which will see a realization of its efforts on Nov. 3.

"All this talk about my accepting a position under Mr. Bryan is pure rot," continued Mr. Martine. "I have repeatedly said during the forty-five years that I have fought in the ranks that I would never accept an appointive position. If the people want me for office, they will say so. As yet they have not been of that view although in this Congressional district they came mighty near saying so three years ago."

WELCOME HOME FOR FATHER J. J. ZIMMER.

Rev. Father J. J. Zimmer, of Raritan, is expected to arrive home from a trip of several months abroad, Thursday night, and plans have been completed to tender him a big reception. He will be met at the Raritan station by members of the Holy Name Society, escorted by the Crescent Military Band. After an elaborate dinner served at the rectory an entertainment will be given in St. Bernard's Hall by the parochial school children. This will be in the nature of the closing exercises of the school, which have been held over until Father Zimmer should return.

There are two graduates, Edmund McWilliams, and Miss Esther Corcoran, the former being the valedictorian. The program will consist of songs, recitations, etc.

At Somerset County's Seat.

A a special meeting of the Somerville Board of Commissioners last night a bitter battle was waged over proposed improvements on East Main street. The matter was laid over until Friday. There was also a dispute over the erection of a fountain for horses in front of the David Robert residence and the board was threatened with suit if the fountain is not removed. Counsel was asked to look up the title to the land at that point. Various other matters of minor importance were transacted.

Reserved Part of Casino.

A committee from Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, visited Asbury Park a few days ago and made arrangements for a reservation of port of the Casino on August 6 when the organization conducts its excursion. The space will be made headquarters for the Plainfielders during the day and special accommodations will be arranged for the children at lunch time.

A Wedding Present.

The members of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders and the county officials chipped in and purchased a handsome solid silver tea set as a wedding present for County Counsel John A. Frech and it was presented to him at a recent special session of the board. The speech of presentation was made by Director Thomas E. Gibson and Counsel Frech responded briefly.

PRESBYTERIANS WIN CUP

Have Most Points, Though Crescent Ave. Players May Win Tournaments.

FINALS IN S. S. A. L. TENNIS.

First Presbyterian Tennis Players Will Get At Least 18 Points While Crescent Avenue Church Can't Exceed 16½.

While Albert D. Beers is picked as the winner of the Sunday School Athletic League tennis tournament in singles, and he and his team mate, Monroe H. Long, of the Park Club, are considered probable winners in the doubles, the First Presbyterians will be awarded the league cup for winning most of the matches in the two tournaments.

Eight Presbyterian players entered in the singles and three teams from that church in the doubles and now, with both tournaments in the last rounds, the Presbyterians have a total of fourteen points, with a certainity of four more, having runners-up in both tournaments. The Crescent Avenue church, represented by Beers and the Beers-Long team, still in the play, had six players in the singles and three teams in the doubles, and has a point score of 10½, which cannot exceed 16½ points. This gives the trophy to the Presbyterians, for no other Sunday-school is within striking distance. The winners in the singles and each member of the winning team is the doubles will each receive silver medals, and the runners-up in each tournament will receive bronze medals.

The singles tournament will probably be concluded this afternoon, when Arthur Dunning has a match arranged with Beers. Dunning trimmed R. D. Rice in straight sets at the Park Club yesterday afternoon, the scores being 6-3, 6-3. In the doubles F. O. Dunning and Chauncey Murphey have reached the final round, and will play the winner of the match between A. and W. Dunning and Beers and Long still unplayed in the semi-finals. The tournament will be finished this week. An unfortunate feature of the tournaments this season has been the number of defaults made necessary by the inability of the teams or players in matches to get together within the prescribed number of days. In one case, a misunderstanding and the delayed transmission of a telephone message made it necessary to split a point. This was in the match between Slocum and Daniels and Powlison and Miller, where each team was awarded half a point.

Points are awarded in each tournament to the team or player winning a match. One point is awarded for each match, except in the semi-finals, when no points are awarded. The winner of each tournament makes three points for his church and the runner-up, two points. The scores to date, singles and doubles added together, to determine the cup standing, are as follows: First Presbyterians, 14; Crescent Avenue, 10½; Congregationals, 5; Seventh-Day Baptists, 4; First Baptists, 3½.

FAIR ACRES CLUB PLANS RACE MEET FOR AUG. 6

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association met in the Iroquois Hotel parlors last night and arranged for a matinee race meet at the Driving Park on Saturday, August 6. The card will include one running event and four trotting and pacing, valuable prizes being offered for each.

The races will be as follows: 2:30 trot, 2:30 pace, 2:25 trot, free-for-all trot and pace and the runing event, best two out of three heats. In the others, three heats will constitute a race and prizes will be given as the horses stand in the summary at the end of the final heat. The committee has received assurance from all the prominent horse owners in this section that they will have entries.

It was decided at the meeting to charge an admission fee of twenty-five cents in order to meet the cost of prizes and other expenses. The payment will entitle all comers to a program and a seat in the grand stand.

Shipping Clerk a Suicide.

Charles McNichols, a shipping clerk employed by the Salem Brass and Iron Company, committed suicide near his home at Salem yesterday by taking carbolic acid. McNichols was married, but had no children. For some time, his wife says, he had been despondent because of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Caldwell, Miss Frances O. Caldwell and Walter B. Caldwell left today for a six weeks' summer sojourn at Lake Bomoseen, Point-of-Pines, Vermont.

BEER PUTS OUT A FIRE

Hen. Lewis' Pail of Suds, Judiciously Applied, Kills a Threatening Blaze.

SAVED MARTHA ROGERS' HOME.

Chief Doane's Men and a Bunch of Apparatus Reach the Scene After the Trick Had Been Accomplished.

The Prohibitionists who assert that beer has no other mission on earth beside furnishing cases for the police court, will have to go way back and sit down after an occurrence that took place on Madison avenue this afternoon. If it hadn't been for a big can of the German joy, Martha Rogers' home in the rear of the old Alert hose company house might have been in ruins by this time, as it was applied so judiciously that it killed an incipient fire that was getting real sassy. Water was applied a little later but the beer deserves all the credit for stopping the flames in their hungry search for more fuel.

Thomas Bowzer, the East Front street barber, was standing in the alley adjoining Mrs. Rogers' home when he noticed smoke pouring out of the windows. He noted that no one was inside so broke open a door to locate the trouble and found a small blaze in a pile of rags near the wall. The flames were also creeping up some loose wall paper. Bowzer immediately jumped back to escape the dense smoke and yelled "fire" with all the strength of his lungs.

It was at this point that the beer appeared on the scene. Henry Lewis had purchased it only a few minutes before and was on the way through the alley to find a cool spot wherein to enjoy it. The exact quantity is uncertain but Hen says he paid fifteen cents for what was in the can. At any rate, when he heard Bowzer's cry of distress it occurred to him that the Widow Rogers' home was of more importance than his thirst so he decided on the instant to hand up the amber liquid.

"Here Tom, take this," he shouted, and the beer was held out.

Bowzer didn't stop to see what it was but let 'er go. Swash—it went squarely into the bundle of burning rags and the way the blaze sputtered showed his aim had been true. There was a small quantity left after the first ker-souse and the remainder was slapped against the flames making a tour of discovery up the wall.

There is little more of importance to tell about the fire. Somebody else heard Bowzer's call for assistance and turned in an alarm from box 12 but when Chief Doane, six pieces of apparatus and twenty men arrived on the scene they found that fifteen cents' worth of saloon suds had accomplished what they turned out for. As a matter of precaution, some water was throw in the house and about nine bales of rags were pitched out doors by the firemen.

Chief Doane conducted an investigation but was unable to learn what started the blaze. Mrs. Rogers had been away from home all morning and her daughter was visiting somewhere in the neighborhood. The damage was trifling.

It was stated after the excitement had died down that the owner of the place had given Hen Lewis thirty cents for a double size can of beer and stands ready to repeat the dose for the next thirty days.

DRAGS HIM THROUGH STREET.

Mrs. Annie Katz, of No. 66 St. Mark's place, Brooklyn, created much excitement at Broad and Market streets, Newark, last night, when she dragged a man she says is her husband through the street and handed him over to a policeman. The woman insisted that her prisoner be locked up on a charge of desertion. The man said he was Hyman Katz, a tailor, having a wife and children at No. 541 Bergen street, Newark.

Katz denied that the woman was his wife, and he was paroled until this morning. The Brooklyn woman said that eight years have elapsed since she last saw Katz. She added that only recently she learned her alleged recreant spouse was living in Newark. For several days the woman haunted the tailor shops in that city, and was on her way home after a day's fruitles search when she accidentally met the object of her eight years' search.

Mraviag Boomed By Rector.

A boom has been started by Dean Gessner for Dr. Victor Mraviag for Mayor of Elizabeth. The physician, who for six years was a Republican Alderman there, has been in the field for some months as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, and seemed to be in the lead among the aspirants.

BOWERS AND ROGERS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Martin Rogers, the second participant in the affray at Third and Church streets on July 18, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. He waived examination on a charge of assault and was held in $100 bail for the Grand Jury. The amount was furnished.

Contrary to expectation, no hearing of the case was held today as Ira Bowers, Sr., who appeared in court yesterday morning and claimed to be ignorant of why he should be arrested, changed his attitude within a few hours. He presented himself before Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon and offered a plea of not guilty to atrocious assault. The bail of $500 imposed earlier in the day was made permanent and the entire matter will now be heard by the county authorities.

Rogers was discharged from the hospital yesterday afternoon. He is still suffering from three knife wounds inflicted by Bowers but will be able to return to work within a few days.

BOHAN YOUTH HELD FOR TRIAL TOMORROW

Elmer Bohan, the eighteen-year-old young man who broke into H. C. Corsa's home and stole $20 and then confessed other thefts, was given a preliminary hearing in the city court this morning. At the request of his counsel, George W. V. Moy, the matter was adjourned until tomorrow and the defendant was released in $50 bail. The amount was furnished by his father.

The police have followed up their investigations commenced directly after Bohan's arrest and have learned that he has been guilty of wrongdoing for the past three years. Beside the robberies at the homes of Mr. Corsa, James R. Knowlton and James Moran, which he has admitted, he consistently pilfered desks at the Plainfield High School and the clothing of members of the Y. M. C. A. left in the gymnasium lockers. He had long been under suspicion at the school but nothing was said in public for fear that a mistake might be made. Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant Flynn have four other robberies that they believe he committed but he has not acknowledged them as yet.

The parents of young Bohan are highly respected and enjoy the full confidence of all who know them. The father is bookkeeper for A. M. Griffin.

FOOLISH JOKE INJURES TWO OWL CLUB MEMBERS

As a result of a so-called practical joke played by a number of Plainfield young women, two members of the Owl Club, the local organization enjoying cottage life at Lake Hopatcong, are laid up with badly inflamed eyes. The trouble seemed very serious yesterday and the victims had to be treated by Dr. Derry, of Dover.

The club gave a house party and dinner over Sunday to about thirty friends from Plainfield and North Plainfield. During the afternoon, while the guests were inspecting the cottage, several of the young women watched their opportunity and sprinkled red pepper on the pillows and in the beds belonging to the Owls' outfit. None of them suspected anything was wrong when they retired at night but in a very few seconds the pepper got in its work and all were more or less affected by it. There was very little sleep for any of them afterwards as those who recovered quickly spent their time planning revenge on the perpetrators of the trick.

All but the two members mentioned had gotten rid of the pepper by yesterday and they will probably suffer for several days yet. The physician who treated declared that the affair might had resulted seriously.

Gives Her Pet Dog a Formal Burial.

Bob Roy, an Irish setter, which belonged to Miss Mabel Olmstead, of Morristown, died on Saturday at Spring Lake, where Miss Olmstead has a summer cottage. The dog's body arrived at Morristown yesterday in a sealed coffin and was buried in the dog cemetery on the Olmsted place. Miss Olmsted accompanied the body to the grave and sprinkled earth on the box as it was lowered. There are a number of other graves in the cemetery of Miss Olmsted's dead pets. She was for years at the head of the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

A LIVELY TILT IN COURT

Chief Kiely and Lawyer Moy Argue Over Right to Confer with a Prisoner.

JUDGE RUNYON HAS TO DECIDE.

Police Head Declares Legal Light Tried to "Bull-doze" Him While Latter Declares He Acted Politely.

The customary quietude that attends the dispensation of justice at police headquarters was given a black-hand jolt this morning through a lively tilt between Chief Kiely and Lawyer George M. V. Moy. A difference of opinion between the two men as to whether or not the legal light had a right to interview a client, held a prisoner, led to a heated argument that was finally brought to Judge Runyon for settlement. His Honor granted Mr. Moy the privilege he asked.

The first round of the affair took place before court convened and there were only one or two witnesses. According to Chief Kiely, the lawyer came into his office and announced in a commanding way that he wanted to have a private talk with Elmer Bohan, the young man arrested for robbing the home of Henry Corsa. He was informed that the privilege could not be granted whereat, the chief says, Mr. Moy began "bulldozing" him. A cross-fire of talk followed and the lawyer stated that he would ask no favors from the police head but would make application to the court.

When Judge Runyon took his place on the bench, Mr. Moy stepped forward and announced that he had a statement to make. He then told of the occurrence with Chief Kiely, concluding with the request that his right in the matter be established. The chief also related his side of the affair and added that the lawyer had tried to "bulldoze" him.

"Humph," exclaimed the latter, surveying the police official's figure and contrasting it with his own; "doesn't it seem rather preposterous for a man of my physique to come in and try to 'bulldoze' you?"

The chief then went on to say that Mr. Moy was seeking advertisement by his appeal to the court and there was several minutes of rapid-fire conversation. Both men kept their tempers but the suppressed excitement was plain to the large crowd of spectators. In the end the lawyer was allowed to hold a conversation with Bohan before he was arraigned.

Mr. Moy was interviewed later in the day and stated that he did not propose to let the matter drop.

"I have no desire to undermine the prerogatives of the chief of police," he said, "but I intend to have it made plain whether or not a lawyer has a right to go to headquarters and interview a client locked up. I understand that the same occurrence has happened before and it is time that something is done. I am seeking no advertisement as was implied but will have the proper authorities define the law."

"What about the statement that you 'bulldozed' the chief?" he was asked.

"I did nothing of the sort. When I first saw the chief I greeted him with a polite 'good morning,' and then stated that I wanted to talk to Elmer Bohan. He asked why I wanted to talk to him. I replied that I had been engaged as his counsel and wished to become enlightened on several matters before his case was called. He then asked what I wanted to talk to him and when I refused to say, I was informed that my request would not be granted. Soon afterward, in the course of the conversation, the chief implied that as a special favor I would be allowed to speak with the prisoner but I informed him that I was seeking no favors and would make application before Judge Runyon. As I went into the court room a little later, the chief followed me and said, 'you can see the man now.' This inconsistency is very qeer. The fact that I was told one minute that I could not speak to Bohan and the next that I could is a very strange proceeding. I reiterated that I was seeking no favors and would let the court decide what I could do."

FROM BRIDGE INTO RIVER.

Four Occupants of Surrey Narrowly Escape Death.

Stamford, Conn., July 28.—Rotted by long usage, a truss timber gave away on the bridge over Rippowam river on Cold Spring road here yesterday morning and the horse and surrey of Louis D. Hopkins, a wealthy New Yorker, with business offices at 312 Madison avenue, went through it into the swollen river twelve or fifteen feet below.

In the surrey were Mrs. Tredwell G. Hopkins, her 2-year-old son, William Burrell, the coachman, and John Clury, an employe of Mr. Hopkins. All were badly bruised, but not seriously hurt.

BOYCOTT INSTEAD OF RAID.

Novel Way of Closing Red Light District in Washington.

Washington, July 28.—Washington's police department is taking a novel method of closing up the red-light district. Orders have been given the police to clear the streets of the district and keep them clear. Men are not permitted to pass through them at night. Any one attempting to do so is driven off with a warning. Loiterers or roysterers in the district are to be arrested promptly.

Any one caught within its confines after nightfall is liable to arrest. Neither are the police supposed to worry about his destination or intentions. The ground is forbidden and that is all there is to it.

STOLE $80 FROM STOCKING.

Perth Amboy Domestic Had Removed Hosiery to Take a Bath.

Perth Amboy, July 28.—The police are trying to find the thief who stole $80 from Mrs. Julia Mucha. The woman is employed by Leonard Zaremba, of Inslee street, and kept her money in her stocking.

She removed her stockings, left them on a chair and went into an adjoining room to take a bath. When she returned she found her stockings where she had left them, but the money was missing.

Zaremba reported the matter, but there is no clue. The money represented several years' savings, and she is almost crazy over its loss.

BURIED WRONG CHILD.

Mix-up Over Names Cause of Trouble in Paterson.

Instead of a Paterson undertaker burying the child of Mrs. John Stalk on Saturday he had the body of a child of Mr. and Mrs. John Maitland interred in the Laurel Grove cemetery and the mistake was not discovered until the second undertaker visited the morgue at the General Hospital, where both children died last week. Yesterday the undertaker placed the blame for the mistake on the hospital authorities. They say it was the undertaker's fault.

The hospital management will try to determine where the responsibility should rest. The body was disinterred and buried a second time.

$2,500,000 Foreclosure.

Judge Lanning, of the United States Circuit Court, had a conference at Trenton yesterday with representatives of the various interests of the Passaic Steel Company, relative to the form of prospective order foreclosing a mortgage for $2,500,000. It was agreed that the order should be so drawn as not to prejudice the interests of the holders of unsecured claims for merchandise, which amount to $108,000. It was stated to the court that there are $250,000 of assets to meet these claims.

George Feiring and James R. Blair drove to Boynton Beach in Feiring's automobile yesterday. The pair started out to be fishermen, but only landed one fish, so came home as motorists.

Have you thought of the possibilities of our great Club Plan which enables you to pick from our great stocks, pay only the same prices that others pay and be able to clear the cost by an easy payment arrangement that is at once unique and agreeable?

Think it over. There are only 3 more days of the July Furniture Sale.

Comfort Swing Chairs.

They Rest You All Over.

The "Comfort" Porch Chairs, for which we are sole agents, combine all the comfortable features of the ordinary porch chairs, rockers, hammocks, settees or swing seats; the frame work is made of strong, highly tempered steel, coated with rust-proof black enamel; the seat and back are made in one piece of fancy colored canvas overlapped in the centre: strong and durable. In the chair the motion is gently forward and backward, requiring but the slightest effort, and is always under perfect control. The freedom of the swinging feature is such that the chair responds instantly to your slightest move, hence offering no resistance to any motion, therefore affording perfect relaxation and rest. You sit in it as in any other chair, and whenever you wish to recline you just stretch yourself out as far as you like, even to full reclining position. No levers to operate, no hooks or screws to release; simply move forward and backward and the chair moves with you. Our price is only 4.25

Inexpensive C'mfort Chair

All the woodwork is smoothly machined and all corners are rounded, entire frame finished with two coats of good varnish; cloth seat is of heavy canvas attached at the top and bottom by means of a slot and spline instead of being simply tacked, making it much stronger and less liable to tear loose, with no tacks to tear clothing. Chair folds and adjusts to four different positions. All the joints or intersecting parts are riveted together, insuring perfect safety. Price only 1.25

Porch Swing Seats.

Swinging seat or porch swing, is 42 inches long; it is made of reeds, strongly woven together, and may be had in natural color or a green finish. On each end are pockets for magazines, papers, etc. It is fitted with strong chains, sufficient for a 9-foot ceiling. Price complete 13.50

BOY MEETS DEATH UNDER WHEELS OF TROLLEY CAR.

Leonia, July 28.—Stuart Watson, eleven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Watson, of Grand avenue, this place, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon by a trolley car of the Hudson River line.

The boy had been to Sunday-school. On his way home he and a number of companions were playing tag. In endeavoring to escape being "tagged" the child fell or was pushed under the rear trucks of the car.

His left foot was crushed and his skull fractured. He was taken to the Eaglewood Hospital, where he died soon after the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kenney and son, John Kenney, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney and son, Edmund Kenney, enjoyed an automobile trip Sunday in J. J. Kenney's machine to Highland Beach and then to Long Branch, where they spent the afternoon, returning home about nine o'clock.

CHICKEN DISPUTE LANDS HIM IN JAIL.

Kreuger Persists It Is His Right to Shoo Woman's Fowl Out of His Yard.

"I'll go to jail before I'll promise not to shoo Mrs. Grinshaw's chickens out of my yard," declared Arthur Kreuger, of Woodridge, yesterday, when he was told he would have to furnish $200 bonds to keep the peace with his neighbor. He went to jail, still protesting that he would wring the neck of every fowl that dug in his garden.

Mrs. Etta Grinshaw testified that Kreuger, who lives next door to her, on Main street, Woodridge, had threatened to burn down her home. The threat, she said, was made one afternoon when Krueger was exerting himself to drive her chickens out of his yard. He denied making it, and declared that he swore at the chickens in German so that she might not be shocked at his language.

Mrs. Grinshaw said that she did not understand German, but that Kreuger's threat was made in choice English.

NAN PATTERSON IN FLIGHT ONCE MORE.

Leaves Pittsburg When Prominent Man's Wife Complains of Her to the Police.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 28.—Fearing that she was to be sent back to New York, Nan Patterson, the chorus girl who was tried there three times for the murder of Caesar Young, several years ago, and who has since been making this city her home, has left here for parts unknown, following a conference with the police authorities.

In speaking of the matter yesterday afternoon, Acting Captain of Detectives Roche said:

"When Nan Patterson was brought in before me, she thought that she was to be sent back to New York, as she is only out on probation there during good behavior. She was very retired and quiet, and when I told her she would have to go she agreed to do so.

"The wife of a prominent man called up on the telephone, stating that the young woman had enticed her husband, and Nan Patterson promised to leave the city at once."

Garret Kiely, of Steiner place, has left for Connecticut to spend his summer vacation of two weeks visiting friends.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

"Never Again," Says Martine.

Farmer Orator James E. Martine, of Plainfield, is willing to shout and talk for William J. Bryan, but he draws the line at running for elective office in New Jersey ever again—as long, at least, as this State, and especially the section around Plainfield, insists on rejecting good Democratic timber on election day and voting Republican. "You can say that I am through running for office," says Mr. Martine, and he seems to mean it. No one can really blame him. For years the Farmer Orator has been running for any old office that the Democratic sanhedrists in Union county have dangled before his eyes. These campaigns—every one of them hopeless—have helped to deplete Mr. Martine's bank account and have been a tax on his nervous system. His doorbell has been pulled out by the roots and the paint on his doorstep has been worn off by political runners in quest of rations. His nights have been rendered sleepless. His locks have taken on a silvery tinge and the top of his head is showing through. Martine, of course, is more enthusiastic than ever for Bryan, but this constant drain on the Farmer Orator's resources must cease. The job of Secretary of State under Bryan might suit him, but another run for Congress—never!—Jersey City Journal.

THE FORUM.

"No "Speakeasy."

Plainfield, The Daily Press:

Under your issue of July 27, I wish to contradict the statement as alleged in your valuable paper that I have at any time ever run a speakeasy. I have always conducted my business in a legitimate manner for the past five years as well as being a taxpayer of the borough of North Plainfield. In justice to me I trust you will correct the above statement.

PRIEST ANSWERS DAVIS AS TO BISHOPS' LAW

Father J. C. MacErlain, who established the Sacred Heart parish, in Jersey City, and was active in the fight for the enactment and enforcement of the amended excise law, discussed yesterday the declaration of "Bob" Davis, the Democratic boss of Hudson county, that he would attack the law and would advocate an amendment that would permit the saloons to do business on certain hours on Sunday.

"No one regrets it more than the friends of Mr. Davis to find him assuring such an untenable attitude on the question of law and order in Jersey City," he said.

"Has not Mr. Davis made it the issue for the next shrievalty campaign?" was aksed, and Father MacErlain, after a momentary pause, exclaimed with warmth: "Mr. Davis may be the guardian of Bryanism, but he is certainly not the guardian of the morality of Jersey City. If he has undertaken to attck and nullify the Bishops' law he has assumed a gigantic contract, a job that will land him where the last administration landed. For the sake of the present administration we regret exceedingly that Mr. Davis has come out of the West to array himself against the moral element. We are not politicians, but we are the guardians of the morals of the people, and, standing in the watch towers, will sound the alarm like faithful sentinels. We are for that which is right, and right will prevail; we shall not fail.

"If this be Bryanism or Davisism to encourage the violation of a law that every lover of good order admires and is ready to defend, we do not want Davisism or Bryanism. It is only a few months ago, so recent as to be within the recollection of everybody, that ex-Judge McCarthy attacked the Bishops' law from the bench before ascending to which he had taken the oath of office and sworn that he would uphold that law and do justice between man and man according to the principles of the law. On that occasion we defended the Bishops' law, and that was the beginning of the end of the last administration.

"We hope that this is not the beginning of the end of this administration, for so far we have great respect for many of the men who at present govern our city, but from not one of them shall we for a moment brook any interference with the Bishops' law as it stands at the present time."

POLITICAL NOTES.

United States Senator Briggs is in Cincinnati to attend the notification ceremonies incident to officialing advising William H. Taft of his nomination for president, which are scheduled for today. Senator Briggs is the New Jersey member of the committee on notification. He will return home Thursday.

The Cranford Taft and Sherman Republican Club has been formed with 100 members on the charter roll. The executive committee has been empowered to procure permanent headquarters for the club and the club has decided to raise a Taft and Sherman banner over North or Union avenue opposite the station in Cranford.

The Taft and Sherman Republican Club, of Cranford, has pledged its support to Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce and decided to recommend to the county his renomination and election to represent Union county in the Assembly. The club has decided to join the Union County League of Republican Clubs and delegated Secretary Austin to attend the meeting of the league at Elizabeth next Friday evening.

Former United States Senator Jas. Smith, Jr., who as a delegate-at-large from New Jersey to the Democratic National convention refused to vote for the nomination of William J. Bryan, announced yesterday that he would support the Democratic candidates. Mr. Smith said: "I will do all in my power for the success of the ticket indorsed by the Democratic convention at Denver. I believe that Mr. Bryan has an excellent chance of being elected, and New Jersey will work for his election."

Ex-Mayor Joseph P. Riordan, who was removed from office last November at Harrison, decided yesterday to become a candidate for re-election at the coming campaign in Harrison. Both times that he was made mayor he was nominated by the Democrats and indorsed by the Republicans. Councilman John J. Daly was elected to succeed Riardan to fill out the unexpired term.

Black Hands In State Prison.

Michael Filosetoe, John Cery and Antonio Natelli, the Italians recently sentenced at New Brunswick to twelve years for sending Black Hand letters to the Rev. Augustino Dassori, of Franklin Park Station, were taken to State prison yesterday. Their counsel, H. B. Cook, has taken out a writ of error, and he held that this acted as a stay and that the Sheriff had no right to remove the prisoners, but the court overruled him, as it did a few years ago in the writ of error taken for Frank Cordova, the unfrocked minister.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. William Norman gave permission to their boys, Edward and Howard, to camp out with the Attlee boys in the woods last night. Fearing, however, that the youngsters would get scared in the darkness, they came out at midnight and made a long and fruitless search for the camp. The boys, however, all returned to their homes safely but desperately hungry at four o'clock this morning, declaring that improvised tent in the woods was far superior to the most modern home in the village.

Corporal H. J. Manning and Privates Edward Horn and Arthur Randolph have returned from Sea Girt after spending a useful and most enjoyable week.

Miss Gertrude Bunting, of Piscataway, is spending her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Lewis Randolph, in the village.

Mrs. Ben Randolph was suddenly seized with acute indigestion yesterday and is now under the doctor's care.

Irene Miller, who has been staying with her aunt in Elizabeth for a month, has just returned home.

CLEVELAND FUND NOW AMOUNTS TO $323.20

Mite boxes opened today added $1.35 to the Plainfield subscription to the Cleveland monument fund, bringing the total for this city up to $232.20. The Cleveland Memorial Association of New Jersey is actively engaged throughout the State in collecting funds, and is meeting with much success. So far Plainfield has contributed $232.20, and it is expected that at least double that amount will be raised here.

BOATLOADS OF BLUEFISH.

Seabright Fishermen Bring Back 50,000 Pounds As One Day's Catch.

Deep-sea fishermen of Seabright scored a phenomenal catch of bluefish yesterday. Two hundred set out at sunrise for the fishing banks in 100 boats. Yesterday afternoon they returned, each boat carrying from 500 to 600 pounds. The catch aggregated 50,000 pounds, and was disposed of by the lucky fishermen to buyers for commission houses on the beach at the rate of 7 cents a pound.

The fishermen received for their day's work $3,500.

FORT GIVES PRAISE TO GENERAL COLLINS

Govenor Fort has sent the following letter to General Collins:

"Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, Commanding Second Brigade, N. G. N. J., Sea Girt.

"My Dear General Collins—With today your service in camp will have ended. It has been a delight to have you and your staff here. The review last Saturday of your brigade was a most satisfactory one, and it was my first opportunity of seeing a brigade review. I greatly enjoyed it and appreciated the pleasure of having my first review with you.

"The battery, troop and both regiments of your brigade in camp have been a credit to you and to the State. The discipline and bearing of the men evidenced close watchfulness on the part of their commanding officer. The one thing especially gratifying to me was the spirit exhibited by the men in their work, and this only comes from a feeling of satisfaction on the part of the men with their superior officers.

"The two weeks in camp have impressed me greatly with the efficiency and usefulness of the National Guard, and that efficiency and usefulness, of necessity, are in a large measure due to the commanding officers.

"I congratulate you upon the appearance of your brigade, the splendid manner in which they have maintained discipline during their tour of duty in camp and their general soldierly bearing. Anything that I can do to promote the efficiency of the brigade or aid you in this matter personally, I shall esteem it a pleasure to be called upon to perform.

"Very truly yours,

"JOHN FRANKLIN FORT."

QUESTIONS PROPOUNDED ON INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

The New Jersey Commission on Industrial Education recently appointed by Governor Fort, and which started work only about two months ago, at its headquarters in Newark, has already got under way important work that promises to be of great value.

The commissioners are George R. Howe, of Newark, president; George G. Tennant, of Jersey City, treasurer; together with William A. Bembridge, of Roselle Park; John W. Ferguson, of Paterson, and Ferdinand W. Roebling, Jr., of Trenton. Albert A. Snowden is the secretary.

The purpose of the commission is to make investigations that will lay the foundations for conditions under which the young people of New Jersey entering industrial pursuits will have a satisfactory training to fit them for the highest efficiency and success in life. Data is being collected showing the wages earned by those thrown into industrial occupations without any preliminary training and the wages of those fully equipped by proper industrial training.

Blank question sheets have been sent out to 2,400 of the leading manufacturers of New Jersey, some of these circulars coming to Elizabeth firms. They contain a series of twenty-one questions bearing on the subject of the efficiency of the workers. Other letters if inquiry have been sent to labor leaders and to labor organizations, in order to secure the point of view of employer as well as those of manufacturers.

The commission is preparing data to make clear the increased earning capacity brought about by industrial training. As the result of its investigations, the commission aims to suggest, not an elaborate scheme, but the next steps to be taken in the evolution of some comprehensive plans, such as has been carried out with striking success and benefit in many European States during the last fifty or a hundred years, especially by Germany and France.

At a meeting held last Friday the commission considered a large number of answers already received to the "question-like" sheets sent out and laid plans for other forms of investigation.

REARDON KNOWN ON COAST.

Jerome's Detective Ran Police System at Long Branch.

Edward J. Reardon, county detective, whose resignation has been asked for by District Attorney Jerome, of New York, is well known in Long Branch among the summer cottagers. Until last fall he had a well-organized police force patrolling the beach front night and day, and maintained an office there, with telephone connection, all the year round.

Reardon's men acted independently of the local police, and incurred their enmity by their methods. Finally the authorities compelled Reardon to close up. Reardon's resignation was asked by Jerome because it was said he had a tendency to use his stick and revolver too freely.

Runaway Fatal to Woman.

Mrs. Rose Barunstein, 38 years old, of 663 Park avenue, Brooklyn, who was injured in a runaway in Linden Sunday night, died from her injuries in the General Hospital, Elizabeth. While Mr. and Mrs. Braunstein were out driving their horse was frightened by an automobile. The woman jumped, striking her head against a stone. Her skull was fractured.

HOTEL MAN SHOOTS HIMSELF IN THE HEAD.

Frank Brubaker, proprietor of Sunset Lodge at Lakewood, shot himself through the head at Point Pleasant Sunday afternoon and died shortly after he was brought to St. James' Hospital at Lakewood. It is presumed that financial difficulties and the consequent worriment had unsettled Bruabaker's mind.

Since the close of the hotel season in Lakewood, Brubaker has been acting as freight agent for the Central Railroad at Keyport, N. J. Sunday he left Keyport for Point Pleasant, presumably intending to drive across from Point Pleasant to his home at Lakewood.

Instead, after leaving the Point Pleasant depot, he wandered off from Arnold avenue into a bit of woods, sat down under a tree and sent a bullet crashing through his brain. The deed was seen by a young woman, Miss Clark, who ran screaming for help. Dr. Edwin H. Middleton was near and he placed Brubaker in an automobile and hurried him to the hospital at Lakewood.

Brubaker was 52 years old and leaves a wife and two children, one a babe in arms and the other half-grown. He was formerly in well-to-do circumstances, but is known to have worried lately over his financial difficulties.

MGR. FOX INDORSED.

Judge Lanning Also Condemns Public Marriages.

United States Judge William M. Lanning, president of the Interchurch Federation of Trenton, embracing all of the Protestant churches of Trenton, yesterday indorsed the position taken by Monsignor John H. Fox, vicar-general of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, who Sunday preached a scathing sermon against a public marriage arranged as a drawing card at a summer park owned by prominent society men.

Judge Lanning declared yesterday that while the Protestants do not regard marriage as a sacrament of the church, as do the Catholics, he held that common decency should forbid such public ceremonies as proposed by the park management. Judge Lanning was one of the New Jersey commissioners to the uniform divorce congress, held a few years ago, and he has made an extended study of marriage and divorce.

Will Audit South River.

Justice Bergen yesterday afternoon named Mayor William E. Florance, of New Brunswick, as auditor to probe the affairs of South River Borough. The Grand Jury recommended the naming of an auditor recently.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

In throwing a switch, H. Anderson, of 314 South Fourth street, Camden, was struck in the face with an iron bar and badly injured.

Preparations are being made for the opening of the new roller lift bridge over Cooper's Creek, at Federal street, Camden, tomorrow.

In a quarrel near the Camden city line, Joseph Quakerin, of 319 Stevens street, Camden, was stabbed in one leg early yesterday morning. His assailant escaped.

Bitten by a dog while investigating a case, County Probation Officer Charles H. Edmunds, of Trenton, is confined to his bed. His physicians fear an attack of hydrophobia.

About to clean a revolver at his home yesterday, Alfred A. Jackson, of 611 Kaign avenue, was shot through two fingers of his right hand by the accidental discharge of the weapon.

Edward Tullis, gateman at the Shiloh railroad crossing, is laying in his supply of winter potatoes by gathering them as they fall from the farmers' wagons as they bump over the crossing.

His hand caught in a motor while at work for the Public Service Railway Company in Camden, yesterday, Samuel Blessing, of 1029 South Third street, Camden, sustained serious injuries to several fingers.

Mrs. Kate Queen, the woman chef of the North Jersey Country Club, near Paterson, fell down a flight of stairs soon after midnight yesterday morning and broke her leg. She was walking in her sleep at the time.

Herbert Weimann, of Lower Preakness, tumbled from the top of a hay loft to the ground yesterday afternoon. The lad, who is aged seven years, was taken to the General Hospital, Paterson. He is suffering from a broken arm.

The town clock on the courthouse at Woodbury stopped at 10:30 Sunday morning, and preachers in several churches who time their sermons by its stroke on the hour were led astray. The clock had not stopped before for a year.

John Quinn, fourteen years old, a victim of the "didn't-know-it-was-loaded" mistake, is in the McKinley Hospital, Trenton, with a bullet wound in his forehead. He played with a gun which his elder brother had just cleaned, and his condition is serious.

About 100 men, women and children were present when a dozen persons were baptized in the Delaware River at the foot of Twenty-eighth street, East Camden, Sunday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Elder J. Grant Anderson, of Philadelphia.

It is claimed that a boy urged a dog to attack and bite the six-year-old son of Charles Coene, of 59 North Fourth street, Paterson, last evening. The little fellow and an older sister were looking through a picket fence on Cliff street when the biting took place.

Reports that the State excise probers had been at work gathering evidence of alleged violations of the Sunday liquor law in Camden seemed to have a big effect Sunday. It was stated that saloonkeepers who have been winking at the law for many Sundays had their places closed tightly.

The thousands of bushels of oyster shells which were deposited in Maurice River cove early in July appear to have caught a remarkable growth of oyster spawn. Specimens exhibited at Fortescue have hundreds of young oysters on every shell. The natural beds also are said to have caught a lot of spawn.

Receiving short notice from her landlord that she must vacate the house she was then occupying, Mrs. Dennis Shanahan, of 218 Cass street, Trenton, worked for three days in the hottest weather and then collapsed. Her condition became so alarming that she was sent to St. Francis' Hospital, where she died late last night. The physicians say that her death was caused by overexertion.

Mrs. M. A. Beattle, of 65 Jefferson sreet, Passaic, was thrown from the running-board of a main line trolley car in front of the entrance of Fairyland Park, Paterson, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The woman, who is sixty-five years old, was about to leave the car, when the conductor, not noticing her, gave the signal to the motorman to go ahead. Mrs. Beattle was seriously injured.

THIRD FIRE IN THREE YEARS.

Each Followed Threatening Letter to Burlington Farmer.

Following threatening letters received from Philadelphia during the past three years, Frank Kelvey, a farmer living near Arney's Mount, Mt. Holly, has suffered severe loss which may drive him from the farming business.

His third disastrous fire occurred yesterday, when all his outbuildings, crops, etc., were swept away by fire of incendiary origin, causing a heavy loss, on which there is only small insurance. His fine home and all his household goods were destroyed two months ago, causing a loss of $6,000. His first fire, three years ago, resulted in a total loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Martin, of Netherwood avenue, have returned from a sojourn at the seashore.

August Stephany, of Newark, formerly of Plainfield, is spending his vacation at Atlantic City.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, has returned home from Monticello, Sullivan county, N. Y., where he has been visiting his mother and sister who are spending the summer months at their bungalow.

LEGAL NOTICES.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

1. Strike out paragraph 3 of section I. Article IV. and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II. Article IV. and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II. Article IV. and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III. Article IV. and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding the office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II. Article VII. and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II. Article VII. and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII. three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State, or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

ASSEMBLY, CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI. of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring). That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

ENGINEER CRUSHED BY TOPPLING LOCOMOTIVE.

Morristown, July 28.—Emil Myers, a locomotive engineer, well known along the line of the Lackawanna Railroad, was crushed to death beneath his engine, about three hundred yards from Morristown Depot, about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. His body could not be removed until a wrecking crew had raised the locomotive.

Myers was using his engine in shifting freight cars on a side track near Water street. The locomotive left the track and tumbled down a twenty-foot embankment. The fireman, John Dixon, saved himself by jumping, but Myers was in his cab and could not get out in time.

The accident was caused by an obstruction in the switch, which threw off the pony trucks of the engine and caused the rail to spread.

Myers leaves a widow and three sons, William, of Penn Argyll, Pa.; Tewitz, of Dover, and James, of Rockaway. Myers had resided in Rockaway for fifteen years.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

Copyright by G. W. Dillingham Co.

Meanwhile Mr. Pinkerton discovered that the story told him by Proctor was entirely untrue. So far from having been an honest man before the robbery, it came to light that he was already at that time a hardened criminal, having committed burglaries both in the United States and Canada, and having been sentenced under another name, to a term in the Massachusetts state prison. While in prison he had contrived to make keys that would unlock his own cell and those of three other prisoners, and the four had thus made their escape. One of them was the notorious Charles Bullard, who was at that time serving a term of 20 years for the robbery of the Boylston bank of Boston. Proctor had also offered the privilege of escape to Scott and Dunlap, the Northampton bank robbers, who were confined in the same prison, but they had distrusted his plan, and refused to avail themselves of it.

It was now necessary for the detectives to devise a new plan. Robert Pinkerton knew that some three years earlier Donahue had been concerned in the robbery of a bank at Winnipeg, and also in the robbery of a hardware store at Quebec. His brother, William Pinkerton, he also knew, had a personal acquaintance with Donahue, from having arrested him a number of years before. He therefore sent for William Pinkerton to come to New York from Chicago, and on his arrival proceeded to him that he go to Fort Erie, get an interview with SUMMONED TO SURRENDER THE KEYS.

Donahue, and tell him of Proctor's treachery in betraying Collins and himself; impress upon him that Proctor was a dangerous man to have dealings with; and try to induce him to lend his aid in delivering Proctor and Collins over the line, just as Robert Pinkerton had sought to have Proctor do in the case of Donahue and Collins. Donahue was known as a "stanch" man—that is, one who is true to his friends—and it was thought probable that he would refuse to take part in any such scheme. But in that event William Pinkerton was to threaten him with arrest for the old robberies at Winnipeg and Quebec.

This plan was carried out by William Pinkerton with greater success than had been expected. At first Donahue stoutly refused to betray a comrade, but the danger threatening himself was made to appear so great that finally, seeing no other way out of his difficulties, he consented to do what was asked of him in regard to Proctor. Against Collins, however, he declined to give any aid. By working on Proctor's natural fear of arrest, he easily persuaded him that the immediate departure of all three of them—himself, Proctor and Collins—for Europe was advisable. It was arranged that they should not sail from Quebec or Halifax, since the steamers from those points were likely to be watched by detectives, but that they should leave Fort Erie stealthily by night, make their way separately to Montreal, and meet there.

This plan was carried out, and within a few days the three were in Montreal, all apparently of one mind in their desire to escape the country, though in reality Proctor was the only one of the three who thought himself in danger. Donahue had taken Collins into his confidence, and Collins was quite of Donahue's opinion that they were doing the proper thing in saving themselves by surrendering a man who had shown himself willing to betray them.

It had been agreed between William Pinkerton and Donahue that at Montreal tickets should be purchased to Europe by way of Portland, Me., and that the party should leave Montreal at a certain time by the Grand Trunk road. The line of this road runs for a number of miles through northern Vermont, and it was customary for the train the men were to take to wait over for an hour at Island Pond, a little place just across the Canadian line. Here, as it was arranged, Robert Pinkerton was to be waiting, ready to take Proctor into custody, and also (though in this part of the arrangement Donahue, of course, was not consulted) Donahue and Collins, should they be so imprudent as to stay on the train until it crossed the line. To the forwarding of this latter end, indeed, a special stratagem was resorted to. Conceiving that Donahue and Collins, in order the more completely to allay Proctor's suspicion, might remain with him until the last station was reached on the Canadian side, the detectives arranged that on this particular night the train should not stop at that station, but push on at full speed to the American side.

On a certain Tuesday night Donahue, Collins and Proctor took the 10:15 p. m. train at Montreal for Portland. No sooner had they left the station than a Pinkerton representative, who had "shadowed" them aboard, telegraphed the fact to Robert Pinkerton at Island Pond. Proctor went early to his berth in the sleeper. In another berth, not far distant, never closing his eyes through the night, but lying there fully dressed, with weapons ready, was a Pinkerton detective, whose instructions were to accompany the three robbers as long as they were together, and to stay with Proctor to the last.

It was five o'clock in the morning when the train drew up at Island Pond. On the platform stood Robert Pinkerton, carrying a requisition from the governor of Pennsylvania on the governor of Vermont for the arrest of Donahue, Collins and Proctor, charged with robbing the United States Express company of $40,000 at Susquehanna, Pa. The first man to leave the train was the "shadow," who informed his chief that Proctor was sound asleep in berth No. 12. Donahue and Collins, he said, had left the train long before it reached the last station on the Canadian side, so that the plan for their capture had fallen through. Mr. Pinkerton went aboard the sleeper at once, and going to berth No. 12, pushed aside the curtains. He could not see distinctly for the darkness, but borrowing a lantern from one of the trainmen, let the light fall on the face of the person within, and saw it was Proctor, slumbering in complete unconsciousness that his hour of reckoning had come. A gentle push in the ribs awakened him with a start. Recognizing Mr. Pinkerton, he said with admirable coolness:

"You have spoiled the whole business. If you had not come in here to arrest me, I would have had those men across the line next week."

When he said this, Proctor supposed that Donahue and Collins were asleep in an adjoining berth; but, even to save himself, he never thought of betraying them, which goes to show that he was a "stancher" man than Donahue and Collins had been led to believe. For some time he endeavored to maintain his old character with Mr. Pinkerton; but on the way to Susquehanna, realizing the hopelessness of his case, he acknowledged the deception he had practiced, and his full responsibility with the others in the Susquehanna robbery. He also admitted his previous criminal record.

At Susquehanna Proctor was placed in jail to await trial, and there Mr. Pinkerton visited him some time later. Something in the prisoner's manner convinced the detective that all was not as it should be, and he urged the sheriff to put Proctor in another cell and search his cell thoroughly. This was done, and there were found a number of keys that fitted the locks of various doors in the jail, and also a large key fitting the gate from the jail-yard into the street. Proctor's rare mechanical skill had enabled him to make these keys in his cell, from impressions furnished him by a woman who had been allowed to visit him. Being a good talker, Proctor had won this woman's sympathy, and had also made a strong appeal to her self-interest by promising, on his escape, to share with her a large sum of money he had buried.

At his trial Proctor pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Cherry Hill, Pa. Here, again, he was caught in the act of making keys to aid him to escape. He laid various other plans for regaining his liberty, indeed, but all were frustrated. His imprisonment worked no reform in him. After he had served out his sentence, some burglaries committed in Maine brought him again under arrest and, having been identified as a convict from the Massachusetts state prison, he was taken back to that institution, to serve out his unexpired sentence.

The United States Express company had not relaxed its efforts against his associates after Proctor's capture. Donahue and Collins returned to Montreal, well satisfied with the work they had done, and thinking themselves safe from pursuit. But President Platt instructed Robert Pinkerton to take every measure possible against them, and it was decided that as Donahue could not be reached and punished for the robbery at Susquehanna, he should be made to suffer for the early robbery at Quebec already referred to. Donahue's complicity in this robbery was proved by the discovery of a part of the stolen goods in his hotel at Fort Erie. Through the efforts of the express company and the Pinkertons he was now arrested, and on trial was convicted and sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary. After his conviction Donahue told the detectives that he was a fool to have had anything to do with such a dangerous project as an express robbery, but that the opportunity at Susquehanna was so tempting that he could not resist it. After his arrest the express company attached all of his property, and, although they did not succeed in getting a judgment against him, they fought him in the courts until his wife, acting for him, was obliged to mortgage all their possessions up to the last dollar, so that they never derived any substantial benefit from the stolen money.

As for Collins, he remained a fugitive from justice for some time after the conviction of Proctor and Donahue. Several years later, however, seeing himself constantly threatened by the express company and the detectives, he decided to placate his enemies by stepping out from the ranks of the lawbreakers and trying to lead an honest life. And he has succeeded, as the Pinkertons have reason to know; and his case goes to prove what is borne out by wide experience, that even the most desperate criminals are sometimes capable of genuine reform.

TRENTON CHURCHMAN CHARGED WITH CRUELTY.

Trenton, July 28.—Mrs. George Young, wife of one of the best known official members of the Broad Street Park Methodist church, of this city, has created a sensation by taking her children and leaving her husband, on the charge that for the past eleven years, and within three days after her wedding, Young has shamefully abused her, although she has heretofore made no complaint in order to avoid a scandal.

She is now at the home of her brother in New Brunswick, and has instructed counsel to begin suit against her husband for maintenance. She claims that with her help Young has acquired considerable property and she is determined to enjoy a share of it.

One of the charges of Mrs. Young is that her husband beat her a few days ago because she took her children trolley riding to relieve them of the excessive heat. They returned, she says, in time for dinner, but this did not seem to mitigate what her husband regarded as a serious offense. On another occasion, she alleges, she was beaten because she made a short social call on a neighbor instead of sprinkling the lawn with the garden hose, as her husband had ordered.

She says that during all of her married life her husband has insisted that she shall work just as many hours in the house as he works in the foundry where he is employed, and that he has never consented that she shall take a holiday when for any reason his toil is suspended.

Young was threatened with a coat of tar and feathers by Methodists when the story of his misuse of his wife first became known, but his neighbors relented when Mrs. Young left home and secured counsel to bring legal action. The condemnation of Young is the more severe because of his church activities during the period when his wife claims he has been ill treating her.

NEWARK MAY FORFEIT UNFINISHED ORANGE GAME

Plainfield's place in the Y. M. C. A. State league now depends upon the result of a confab of the executive committee of the ball teams when a decision will be reached about Saturday's Newark-Orange contest at Orange. The game was stopped by rain in the third inning, when Umpire Patten, of Orange, called time. Without waiting the legal time to see if the game could be resumed, some of the Newark players donned their street clothes. Patten consequently declared the game forfeited to Orange.

If Orange is formally awarded the game on this technicality, Plainfield and Newark will have the same standing in the league, each with six wins and two defeats. Acting Manager Herbert E. Parker, of the local nine, has received a letter from the Newark manager, reporting on Umpire Patten's decision and claiming that there was no game, so the forfeit was illegal. The matter has been referred to the executive committee, but the fact that Physical Director George L. Listman, manager of the local nine and chairman of the league committee, is on his vacation, will delay the decision. The other members of the committee are L. M. Smith, of Newark, and R. Zearfoss, of Passaic.

Until the decision is announced, Saturday's Newark-Orange game must not be considered in the standing. Including Saturay's Plainfield-Summit game, the teams rank as follows:

	W.	L.	Pc.
Newark	6	1	.857
Plainfield	6	2	.750
Orange	3	2	.600
Summit	2	5	.286
Trenton	1	3	.250
Elizabeth	0	5	.000

Brothers Bunco Workers.

Michael and Anthony Maguch, brothers, of Trenton, are missing, and a score of their fellow countrymen are clamoring to the police for the return of $800 of their hard earned wages which the young men are said to have collected for the purpose of opening a co-operative saloon. According to information obtained by the police the brothers and their families are now on the Atlantic, en route home to Italy.

GAMBLING CADDIES RAIDED.

Police Fire at Them on the Montclair Golf Links.

Policemen in an automobile raided crap-playing caddies employed on the golf links of the Montmlair Golf Club in Verona late Sunday afternoon, and the men and women who were playing golf at the time witnessed the exciting chase, in which a number of shots were fired by the pursuing policemen. The shots caused three of the crap players to surrender, but the others covered the Montclair Golf Club's course in record time and got away. The three prisoners, who gave their names as Frank Jones, William Carroll and Curtis Colston, were fined $5 each when arraigned before Recorder Jacobus in Montclair.

The raid on the golf caddies were preceded by a raid on another gang in the Silver Lake section of Bloomfield, where the game was carried on at a meeting that purported to be a political gathering. Nine negroes were arrested there. Eight of the prisoners, most of whom live in Montclair, were fined $10 each, and the proprietor of the house, John Smith, of Montclair, was held in $500 bail for court.

In the Silver Lake raid the pot was saved by a man who jumped out of the window and got away from the officers with the cash. At the golf links the officers confiscated the stakes, $1.80.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Runyon, of East Front street, returned Sunday from a two weeks' vacation trip spent at Esmeralda, Ind., Bat Cave, N. C. On their return they stopped off at Ashville, N. C., and Washington, D. C.

had not heard him threaten anyone. Gafney said that Herron was all right when sober, but a "little off" when drunk. When he left the witness stand, he clapped his hat on his head and went over to Herron and shook hands with him.

Henry Williams, a negro, who had worked with Herron, said that the man had a sunstroke on Staten Island and a couple of years ago and had not been right mentally since.

Edwin Smith said that he had heard Herron talk about his alleged wrongs, but that he hadn't paid much attention to him.

Mrs. Herron, the wife of the murderer, was in court yesterday morning, having been subpoenaed by the defense. She saw her husband for the first time since the crime when he was led into court. She did not offer to say a word to him and did not meet his glance. She was very nervous during the State's case and when Herron was asked to stand up so that the county physician could demonstrate the position of Herron and the Rev. Mr. Prickitt at the time of the shooting, she swooned away and had to be helped out of the court room. She was called as a witness yesterday afternoon, but did not respond, having been taken to her home.

The trial of Herron promises a new record for murder cases in New Jersey. The murder was committed July 15; Herron was indicted July 20; his trial commenced July 27, the jury beinb secured in twenty-five minutes; the State rested the first day; the defense will finish the second day and the case may go to the jury tomorrow afternoon.

WIFE-DESERTER ARRESTED.

Eloped With Young Girl; Accused of Theft by Father.

Prosecutor Koester has been notified by the police of Philadelphia of the arrest there of Victor Heyny, wanted in Hackensack for deserting his wife and an infant child and robbing his father of $105. It is said he eloped with a seventeen-year-old girl named Rankin, of Jersey City. He declared his purpose to elope to Judson Rankin, the girl's brother, who said:

"A bully scheme. I am to be married to Eva Galloway, of Hoboken, and we will all four go together."

The quartet went to the office of Justice of the Peace O'Keefe, in Hoboken. Rankin and Miss Galloway were married there. Then the four fled to Philadelphia, where the two men were captured in a furnished room house yesterday. The young women, they said, had gone to Atlantic City for a day's outing. No attempt was made to bring the young women back. Heyny's father will prosecute him for the theft of the money.

Dean Gessner to Be Fort's Guest.

The Very Rev. Dean Gessner, rector of St. Patrick's parish, Elizabeth, who, as a witness before the State excise probers at Elizabeth last week, described the city government as "rotten," has been invited by Governor Fort to visit him at his cottage at Sea Girt. The dean will accept the invitation, and says he will lay before the Governor some interesting information as to the redeliction of the authorities in Elizabeth.

W. E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue, is improving slowly from an injury to his spine, sustained about a week ago.

WHAT'S BEING DONE FOR BABIES OF THE POOR

That Plainfielders are taking great personal pride in the support of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the Watchung Mountains is proved by the fact that thus far this summer $65.50 has been received for the fund annually raised by The Daily Press to help maintain the camp for babies and sick children of the city and borough. Yesterday afternoon a delegation of nine babies and the poor, tired mother of one of them was taken to the King's Daughters' Camp for a week's stay. Arrangements had already been made to keep eleven little children at the camp for another week, so there are now twenty-one in the "family."

The King's Daughters' Camp is situated on Johnston's Drive, a few minutes' walk from the end of the Somerset street trolley line and its work is entirely with the local poor. Although Plainfield is not a large city, there is considerable suffering each summer among the poor, especially the babies. The camp opened for the season July 10 and up to yesterday more than 500 have been benefitted by week stays on the mountain. The "family" of babies, which is in charge of officers of the Organized Aid Society and Mrs. Bird, as matron, numbers between 30 and 35 a week.

Consistent work among Plainfield's poor is done the year 'round by the Organized Aid Society, of which Miss Margaret Holly is in charge. Miss Holly, with Miss Olive DeLany, the nurse, and Dr. L. S. Pocock, visit the homes during the summer and take to the mountain the most needy of the babies, if accommodations can be secured.

The babies have a good time at the mountain home. They spend the days in the sand-pit, in swings, hammocks, or being wheeled about the grounds. They eat good, healthful food as often as they are hungry and it takes ten quarts of milk a day to keep them happy. Another item is bread, and they consume seven loaves of that daily, not to mention considerable other food,—all of which costs money. Their recreation taken by day, they sleep in the dormitory where twenty-four beds have been set up.

If "charity begins at home," a home charity should be especially supported. It is going to cost more than $65.50 to run that camp during the summer, and to restore to health and strengthen for the winter months the babies of Plainfield's poor.

"A MEN'S CHURCH IS AS BAD AS A CLUB"

Claiming that the "men's church," in which husbands and fathers are allowed to smoke and loll in shirt sleeves, is too attracive, a score of wives have protested to the Rev. Sydnet Goodman, pastor of the new idea congregation in Atlantic City, that their husbands would rather go to church than stay home. The protest took the form of a letter read before the male congregation by the rector Sunday night, but he refused to give out the names of the irate wives who made the protest.

"Church is all right for men but our husbands are staying out as late Sunday night to attend your service as they do on lodge nights," said the letter. "We insist that some of the attractions be cut out or else the services be cut down so that they can get home in decent time."

So pleasant have been the weekly Sunday night meetings of the Men's Church that the men have insisted on the services being strung out longer and longer, with the fine program of music and singing interspersed with moving pictures, soft drinks and cigars, which latter have become an important part of the services. As a result of the protest, the meetings will be opened earlier next Sunday night, and will be halted at an hour which will allow of the men getting home before 10 o'clock.

Eight Eat Fried Rattlesnake.

Eight persons ate fried rattlesnake Sunday night at a Newton hotel. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. William Erb, Thomas Erb, Frank B. Allen, of Bernardsville; Mrs. C. J. White and the Misses Charlotte, Caroline and Augusta White, of Harrison. All say that the rattlesnake was palatable. The snake was killed early in the day by Mr. Allen as he was inspecting a farm near Lake Owassa.

Zastera Triel Delayed.

Alleging that he had been unable to get several material witnesses to court at Freehold to give testimony in the trial of Frank Zastera, indicted for killing William B. Sheppard, his wife and their servant, Jennie Bendy, at Marlboro on May 16 last, ex-Judge William P. Hoffman, of Jersey City, counsel for the prisoner, asked that the case be postponed until September 21 next. The motion was granted.

Ralph Hillman, of Flatbush, L. I., is visiting at the home of Russell Knowlton and family, of West Fifth street.

MRS. SUSANNA M'BURTH REACHES HER 96TH YEAR

Mrs. Susanna McBurth celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday at her home in Glen Gardner yesterday, and five generations attended.

On February 2, 1832, she married Augustus McBurth, the wedding taking place in the house in which she was born. Seven children were born to them, six of whom are still living —Mrs. Mary Chapin, of Glen Gardner; Mrs. Eliza Swayze, of Clinton; James McBurth, of Phillipsburg; Mrs. Harriet Carling, of Bloomsbury; John McBurth, of Jersey Cty, and Mrs. Emma Sheppard, of Plainfield. Mrs. Belle Burd, of this city, is a great-granddaughter.

DOGS CAPTURE BURGLAR.

He Had Broken Into "Frat" House of Stevens Institute.

William Bastain, who claims to come from Portland, Oregon, was chased and captured early yesterday on the Castle Point grounds at Hoboken by two powerful mastiffs owned by Colonel Edwin A. Stevens. It was an exciting few minutes while the chase was in progress and Bastain was more than glad when Willim Robinson, manager of Colonel Stevens' stables, called off the dogs and took him into custody until the arrival of the police.

Robinson was reading when he suddenly heard the sound of crashing glass coming from the new "frat" house on the northern edge of the Stevens Institute campus. He got on the job immediately and as he was crossing from the stables to the fraternity house Bastain leaped from a first-story window and started on a run across the campus toward Sixth street.

The big mastiffs were unleashed by Robinson in a jiffy, and with deep-voice bays took up the chase. Before Bastain had left the campus they were upon him. Both dogs have been well trained by Robinson and they did not bite Bastain, but simply held him until Robinson caught up with him. He was held by Recorder McGovern to await the action of the Grand Jury in $1,000 on a charge of breaking and entering.

ROOSEVELT COMMENDED.

St. Patrick's Alliance Favors Scheme for Big Navy.

Paterson, July 28.—Delegates to the thirty-first annual convention of the National Council, St. Patrick's Alliance of America, which began at Paterson yesterday morning, were welcomed by Mayor McBride and Thomas A. Butler, of Roselle, national president, and other speakers made brief addresses. The annual report of the national council was read by William H. Smith, of Newark. Delegates were present from State councils to the number of about 250. Following a dinner tendered the delegates by the members of local district, No. 9, the afternoon session was begun. Reports were read, among them one by National Treasurer P. J. Hosey, of Newark. James A. Grant, representative of the State council, and John Scanlon, representing Branch No. 4, of Newark, were among those present.

After the reports of committees were received by the chair, the report of the committee on resolutions recommended the adoption of a resolution favoring President Roosevelt's scheme for an increased navy. This resolution was applauded.

Bad Effects of Spices.

Although the use of spices for the purpose of heightening the flavor of food is almost universal, it is generally recognized that their influence on digestion is detrimental. Some experiments recently carried out tend to prove that, while spices stimulate the motor functions of the stomach, they progressively impair the secretory functions, and in the long run inhibit the production of hydrochloric acid. On the whole, therefore, the ingestion of spices hinders rather than accelerates digestion, though an exception may be made in respect of persons in whom slowness of digestion is due to a deficiency of muscular activity on the part of the stomach, and also possibly of the victims of hyperacidity.

Asbury Cottages Burned.

Fire yesterday afternoon practically destroyed two cottages in the west section at Asbury Park. It started in the dwelling at No. 602 Asbury avenue, owned by Benjamin Hacker, almost totally destroying it. The adjoining cottage, owned by H. S. Wilson and occupied for the summer by Henry Michaels, of New York city, was badly damaged. The loss will exceed $6,000.

Scalds Wife With Soup.

Charged with throwing a kettle of steaming soup over his wife, John Slackley is a prisoner at police headquarters in Trenton. Mrs. Slackley is in a hospital, and is scalded so badly the physicians believe she will die. The wife says her husband became angry because she said the soup was bad.

Fire at T. A. Sullivan's Home.

A still alarm was received at Fire Headquarters at 10:30 this morning for a blaze at the home of T. A. Sullivan on Park avenue near Eighth street. It was between the walls on the second floor and was put out after about $15 damage had been occasioned. The origin is unknown.

ARCHIE HERRON TO DIE

Middlesex Jury Quickly Find Him Guilty of Murder in First Degree.

OUT FOR ONLY 45 MINUTES.

Verdict Reached and Sentence to Chair Pronounced Just 13 Days After Crime—Insanity as Defense Fails.

After deliberating for three-quarters of an hour at New Brunswick yesterday, the jury which sat in judgment on Archibald Herron returned a verdict at 4:32 p. m. of "guilty of murder in the first degree," convicting the prisoner of the wilful and deliberate murder of the Rev. Samuel S. D. Pickitt at Metuchen on Wednesday, July 15. Justice James J. Bergen at once sentenced Herron to die in the electric chair at State prison, Trenton, during the week of September 7. The verdict was found and sentence pronounced just thirteen days after the crime, another record for Jersey justice.

Herron showed unconcern over the verdict, and after he had been taken back to the county jail by five officers, remarked to Warden Rogers: "They found me guilty of murder in the first degree. I don't know what they are going to do with me now. Give me a paper of tobacco. I'm all out."

The prisoner will be detained in the county jail for twenty-four hours and will then be removed to the death house at Trenton. His counsel will endeavor to get a new trial for him.

Charles A. Prickitt, former chairman of the Middlesex County Republican committee, son of the murdered minister, and in whose arms he died after being shot down in front of his home by Herron, said after the verdict was rendered:

Verdict Satisfactory.

"I am well pleased with the verdict. It is another evidence that justice is administered by our courts. The people of this county can rest assured that their interests are being looked after and that justice will be rendered to all. Such orderly action is better than the lynching methods resorted to in some of our States. The trial of Herron has been well conducted, and the man will have to pay the penalty for the crime he has committed." William B. Prickitt, another son, who has taken up his father's editorial work on the Metuchen Recorder, also expressed himself as pleased with the result of the trial.

The trial concluded yesterday without the expected battle of insanity experts. The State did not attempt to refute the testimony of Dr. Henry W. Cotton, of the State Insane Asylum at Trenton, and of Dr. William E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy. Prosecutor Berdine felt that he had made the medical testimony so uncertain by cross-examination that he did not need Dr. Britton D. Evans, of Thaw trial fame, and Dr. F. M. Donohue, of New Brunswick.

The trial also concluded without Mrs. Herron, the wife of the defendant, going on the stand for the defense, as she was confined to her bed.

One of the sensations of the trial was the refusal of Herron to testify in his own defense.

"Take the stand, Herron," said Mr. Cowenhoven, but the defendant shook his head and said: "I won't have anything to do with the trial."

Mr. Cowenhoven's Plea.

Ex-Judge Cowenhoven based his plea to the jury on the evidence as to the insanity of his client. In concluding he said:

"It is well enough to talk of Jersey justice, but do not, in the celerity the case, make it Jersey injustice. To execute a madman is a judicial murder. Don't send an insane man to the electric chair when you are sure that he is not mentally responsible and commit a judicial murder."

Cowenhoven referred to Herron's refusal to go upon the stand and spoke of his apparent unconcern at the outcome of the trial. Herron sat listening to his lawyer's plea as if half asleep and unconscious of the fact that his life was at stake.

Prosecutor George Berdine insisted that no murder could have been more deliberate and that the defendant should not be allowed to escape through a plea of insanity.

Justice Bergen, in his charge to the jury, said that criminals must be taught to respect the law. The principal defense, he pointed out, was that the defendant was insane. The State did not have to prove that the man was sane beyond a reasonable doubt. Every man is presumed sane, and the defendant must satisfy the jury that he is insane. He told the jury that the doctors who testified were young; did not know the habits of this man, and that they had based their observations of his condition solely upon the delusions which he, the defendant, had told them of.

ELIZABETH TO WELCOME MAJOR WM. B. MARTIN

In recognition of the credit reflected upon the city of Elizabeth by the record established by Major William B. Martin, a local resident, in the rifle matches of the Olympic games, city officials and citizens at the county seat are planning to give him a public reception upon his return next week. The Elizabeth City Council will invite the Mayor to appoint a committee to receive Major Martin at the City Hall.

It is expected that State dignitaries will be present to assist in paying a tribute to the champion rifleman. General D. F. Collins, president of the City Council, will order out the local companies of the militia, and it is probable that the Olympic victor will be escorted from the station to the City Hall by a military parade.

The military and civic departments will be equally represented in the celebration of tribute. Both General Collins and Mayor Ryan are enthusiastic over the plan to honor Major Martin, Mayor Ryan stating this morning that, in his opinion, "there is nothing too good for Major Martin."

Major Martin shot with the American team in the Olympic matches and tied for the championship of the Olympiad.

RABBI STIRS UP A SMALL SIZED RIOT

The third day's session of the conference of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada came to an abrupt ending late last night in the Temple B'nai Israel, on Godwin street, Paterson. The trouble arose when Rabbi M. Feigleman, deposed last year from the congregation, attempted to gain admittance to the hall. He was backed by his wife, a la Carrie Nation, and a large following.

The streets in the immediate vicinity of the church were choked with excited people, and at one time it looked as if there would be a riot. A hurry call was sent to the police station but before the reserves could be rushed to the scene the mob dispersed. Rabbi Feigleman managed to enter the tmple, and he demanded that he be given recognition at the hands of the conference. He was firmly told that this was impossible, as he had already been deposed, and that under no consideration would he be taken back to the fold.

Rabbi Feigleman left the church a very indignant clergyman. He gathered all his followers about him and called for a massmeeting, which was held this morning in Barnert Memorial Hall, on Broadway. The excitement is great, and serious trouble is in sight.

Rabbi Feigleman was deposed last year after a stormy time over "kosher" meat. It was claimed that he had not properly supervised the dressing of meats for Jewish consumption, and the housewives boycotted the butcher shops. There were street fights galore. It resulted in many court trials and the opening of co-operative shops by women. There is also a split in the Jewish congregations, and steps are already under way to build a new church by the followers of Feigleman.

The conference will come to a close this afternoon, when officers will be named.

Reception for Francis O'Hare.

A large number of relatives and friends from Plainfield, Newark, Jersey City, Bound Brook, Somerville and other places went to Raritan last night to attend a reception tendered Francis O'Hare, son of Mrs. Margaret O'Hare, at her home on Colfax street, that place. The young man's term of enlistment on the battleship Chatanaaga had just expired and he had just arrived home. A fine time was had by all. Music for dancing was furnished by Mr. Wendell's orchestra from Bound Brook. A caterer from Somerville supplied the dinner, which was an elaborate one. It is said that Mr. O'Hare will reenlist.

To Try Whitmore in October.

Prosecutor Garven, of Hudson county, said yesterday that the second trial of Theodore S. Whitmore, of Brooklyn, for the murder of his wife, Lena, in the Lampblack swamp, Harrison, would probably take place late in October. He predicted a stronger case than the first one, which ended in a disagreement.

SUMMER SUPPLIES FOR CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH

Rev. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, who has been granted an eight weeks' leave of absence for the summer, and sailed for Europe last Thursday, will not return to resume his church work until the middle of September. During his absence, clergymen from out of town will be in charge of the services at the church, which, on account of the extensive interior repairs now under way, will be held in the lecture rooms of the church.

Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D., pastor of the Manhattan Congregational church, New York City, will be in charge of the service Sunday, and the following week Rev. J. G. Mason, D. D., of Metuchen, will take Mr. Zelie's place. Sunday, August 16, Rev. Samuel Parry, of Somerville, is to be the supply; August 23, Rev. Edward Love, will take the services, and the last Sunday in August, Rev. J. E. Stuchell, recently of Elizabeth, will have charge.

In September, Robert E. Speer, the evangelist, will come to this city, Sunday, the thirteenth. The previous Sunday, September 6, Rev. Andrew Hageman, D. D., pastor of the Collegiate Reformed church on Fifth avenue, New York, will be the supply, and Mr. Speer will conduct the service and speak on the Sunday previous to the return of the regular pastor for the winter.

During the month of August, services will be held in the lecture room of the church, but the interior alterations may make it necessary to cease holding services there in September for a short time. If this is the case, it is probable that the services will be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church for a time, if arrangements can be completed.

SUPPER NOT READY, SHOOTS HIS WIFE

Shot in the chest at her home last night Mrs. William W. Williams, of 738 Pennsylvania avenue, Camden, was taken to the Cooper Hospital in a serious condition and her husband was locked up in the city jail pending a result of her injuries. When the woman returned from work Monday night she met her husband in the front room and he remarked:

"I thought I told you not to go to work."

"I thought I had better go until we are in better shape," she replied.

As she raised her arms to remove her hat Williams drew a revolver and fired point blank at her. In the room at the time were his two step-children, who followed their mother into the street, screaming. Mrs. Williams had not gone far before she dropped to the sidewalk, unconscious. Attracted by screams of the children, neighbors sent word to Policemen Golden and King, and they arrived just in time to place the husband under arrest. They found Mrs. Williams where she had fallen.

According to Mrs. Williams' children, their stepfather was out of employment for some time and their mother was compelled to go to work to support the family. When Williams secured employment, a few weeks ago, he tried to prevail upon his wife to discontinue her work. After the shooting Williams is alleged to have declared that he fired the shot because his evening meal had not been prepared.

Miss Lottie Gray, 18 years old, the injured woman's daughter, who is employed at Cape May, was on a visit to her home at the time of the shooting for the first time in a year. Mrs. Williams is 38 years old. At the time she married Williams as her second husband, five years ago, she had five children. Another, since, has been added to the family.

Business College Graduation.

Miss Josephine Martin will sing and Harry A. Weber will render instrumental music at the commencement exercises to be held Friday night at the Plainfield Business College. Martin A. Korff will have a delegation of eight members of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra to furnish music for the occasion. A complete rehearsal for the exercises was held at the college last night.

Mrs. Stevens Released.

Mrs. Kate Stevens, the colored woman sentenced to ten days in jail yesterday, was released by Judge Runyon this morning. While she was enjoying her skate Monday night, she fell somewhere and sustained a bad cut over the left eye. It continued to grow worse and the magistrate rescinded the sentence in order to let her go to the hospital for treatment.

Trolley Kills Pet Dog.

A small fox terrier dog, apparently a pet, was run over and killed by a Fourth street trolley car at about 7 o'clock last night. The accident happened near John street.

PASTORS WON'T ALL GO

Ministers' Association Has Made Provision for Spiritual Assistance in Vacation.

IN TOWN OR WITHIN CALL.

Dearth of Dominies Last Summer Will Be Guarded Against By This Season's Arrangements.

To guard against the feeling that local clergymen are unmindful of the needs of the community during August, the customary vacation month, the Ministers' Association has announced that a large number of pastors or acting pastors will be in town for the entire period. Through a misunderstanding, last year, Plainfield was practically preacherless for several weeks and it caused a great deal of inconvenience. The Daily Press called attention to the fact and an effort has been made to avoid a repetition.

In a letter addressed to this paper, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich in behalf of the Ministers' Association, announces that throughout August a sufficient number of clergymen will be within call for any needs that may arise. Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. C. S. Kemble will be in town over the first Sunday and Rev. L. R. Howard the last. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church; Rev. Theodore Englund, of the Swedish, and Rev. C. H. Schneegas, of the German Reformed, will be at home the whole month, and probably, also, Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist.

Rev. George A. Warner, of Holy Cross church, will be within easy call of his parish; Rev. Mr. Brockwell is acting rector of Grace P. E. church for the month, and Rev. Mr. Kidder is acting in a similar capacity for St. Stephen's. Rev. Fred S. Newman will be caring for Hope chapel's interests for the second and third weeks of the month.

In addition to the clergymen mentioned, there will be in the city during August, Rev. Edwin Love, Rev. Lewis Bond, Rev. H. K. Carroll and Rev. W. A. Therrell. Besides these there are the Catholic priests and the colored ministers. It will therefore be evident that though some pastors are necessarily away, the religious interests of the city will be well cared for.

W. K. VANDERBILT NOT IN FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

A cablegram received this morning by The Daily Press from Paris, France, stated that William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., had been the victim of an automobile accident near Poissey and that he was seriously hurt. According to the report Mr. Vanderbilt's leg had been crushed and that it would have to be amputated. He was said to have been internally injured as well. A later report contained the news that Mr. Vanderbilt did not figure in the accident, but that his step-son, G. Winthrop Sands, did.

It appears that Mr. Sands was killed and that his chauffeur was fatally hurt.

JERSEY CITY BOYS LAND IN LOCKUP.

Start Out to See World and Are Held in Delaware for Riding Freight Train.

Three runaway lads from Jersey City, each 15 years old, Michael Keenan, of 77½ Van Winkle street; John O'Toole, 625 Pavonia avenue, and Irvin Burke, 13 Oakland avenue, were arrested at Wilmington, Del., last night on a Baltimore and Ohio freight train. The police sent word to their parents. The boys, who said wanted to see the world, left their homes last Friday on a Pennsylvania freight train and landed in Harrisburg, Pa. They boarded another train, as they supposed, for Jersey City, but instead were taken to Baltimore.

After spending twenty-four hours and about all their money in Baltimore, they boarded a Baltimore and Ohio train and were arrested for trespass upon arriving at Wilmington. Their combined capital on the tour was $6. This had dwindled to fifty cents when they were arrested.

Lightning Strikes, Stuns Woman.

Lightning struck a large tree in the rear of E. D. Young's premises on West Front street during Saturday's storm, and Mrs. Young, who was in the back part of the house, was temporarily stunned by the vivid bolt.

NEGRO LOOTS HOME OF COUNTRY 'SQUIRE

South Plainfield was treated to an exciting thief chase, yesterday afternoon, through the discovery that two colored men had ransacked the home of Justice of the Peace W. E. Smith while the family was absent. They were seen by Miss Emma Manning, who lives directly opposite, to leave the front door with bundles under their arms and she started to follow them until assistance could be procured. The thieves became aware of the "shadower" and after dropping some of their plunder, ran at full speed toward the railroad station. The young woman continued on and gathered recruits but the pair disappeared in the woods near the Lehigh yards.

An investigation at the Smith home showed that the negroes had procured eight rings, two watches, three stick pins and a pair of gold cuff buttons, the property of members of the family and friends who are visiting them. The bundles dropped in the flight were found to contain wearing apparel and shoes. The pair overlooked a large sum of money belonging to Mrs. Smith. Entrance to the house was effected by breaking open a side window.

A description of the thieves was telephoned in all directions and it was reported today that two men answering it were seen in New Brunswick.

A. D. BEERS WINS TITLE IN S. S. A. L. SINGLES

Albert D. Beers defeated Arthur Dunning in the final round of the Sunday-school Athletic League tennis tournament in singles yesterday afternoon, winning his match in three straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0. The match was played at Dunning's court on Mountain avenue and Beers had the advantage throughout, playing a steady, consistent baseline game for the most part.

As winner of this tournament, Beers will receive a silver medal from the league. He represented the Crescent Avenue church in the play, and by his defeat of Dunning brought three more points to the church score for the league trophy. Dunning, as runner-up, won two points for the First Presbyterians. The Presbyterians now lead with a score of sixteen points, while the Crescent Avenue church standing is now thirteen and a half points.

Arthur and Will Dunning will play A. D. Beers, paired with Monroe H. Long, of the Park Club, on the Park Club courts this afternoon in the semi-final round of the doubles tournament under the auspices of the league. The winning pair will meet Chauncey Murphey and F. O. Dunning, a First Presbyterian church team, in the final round for the doubles championship.

GROCER HELD FOR ARSON.

Candle and Oil-Soaked Rags Found in Basket.

Joseph Mohlmann, proprietor of a grocery store at 131 Monroe street, Hoboken, was held for the Grand Jury by Recorder McGovern yesterday on a charge of arson.

Mohlmann's store, which is on the first floor of an eight-family tenement, was found on fire about midnight Sunday, and several residents in the neighborhood, who broke into the place before the arrival of the fire department, declare that the blaze was started by a candle placed in a basket of paper and oil-soaked rags.

Negress Mulcts Tax Collector.

Elizabeth, July 28.—Laura Phillips, wife of William W. Phillips, both negroes, got a verdict for $75 damages and the husband got $25, in the District Court at Elizabeth, yesterday, against Michael W. Boyle, deputy collector of taxes and a wealthy real estate owner. She charged Boyle with assaulting her while trying to make her pay a tax bill.

Verona Borough Election.

A special election was held in the borough of Verona yesterday to decide whether the borough should construct a water plant and whether $55,000 bonds should be issued for the purpose. Of 174 votes cast 14 were rejected; 124 were for the improvements and 34 against.

AL SANDERSON FLOORED BY THIRD RAIL WHISKEY

The police were called up on the 'phone at 10 o'clock this morning and told that Al Sanderson, a well-known colored man, had fallen in a fit in the alley back of French's mill. The patrol wagon was sent out to get him but the cops found that Al's fit was occasioned by an over-dose of third-rail rum. He was taken to Sycamore street for resuscitation.

A colored friend of Al's, who witnessed his going down and out, declares the effect of the rum was the worst he ever saw. He told the police that Sanderson dropped to the ground and grovelled about like a wild man, all the while scratching his face with stones and dirt. When he was lifted in the patrol wagon his appearance was about the same as if he had been dragged through a gravel pit.

A couple of bluecoats are gumshoeing around in hopes of getting a line on the selling place of this particular brand of "cat." They declare they got a whiff of what was left in Sanderson's bottle and it seemed to be a cross between Tenth avenue fuss fungle and Arizona snake bites.

TELLS GOV. FORT THAT BLUE LAW IS ILLEGAL

Charles E. Menagh, the East Orange druggist who was arrested for a violation of the Sunday closing law on last Sunday, through his counsel, Leo Stein, will apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari as soon as the papers may be made ready. A motion to dismiss the complaint was made before Recorder Franklin W. Fort in the East Orange Police Court, and when this motion was denied Menagh's counsel notified the recorder of the application for the writ. In presenting the motion to dismiss Lawyer Stein declared that the law is illegal and void because it was not passed in accordance with the East Orange charter; that it is unconstitutional because it violates Article 4, section 7, paragraph 2, of the State constitution, which prohibits the Legislature from passing any private, local or special laws granting exclusive privileges to any person or corporation. He also says that it makes lawful the Sunday sale of ice, which is contrary to the vice and immorality act, and that it imposes a heavier penalty than the statutes allow, and is unreasonable and discriminating.

This is the first time that the constitutionality of the law has been attacked and the result of the return of the writ of certiorari is awaited with interest. Mr. Menagh was fined $25, which was paid under protest, and notice of appeal given.

The case of Gustav Lind also came up, but in this case the complaint was dismissed by the recorder, who ruled that the stay granted to F. J. Purssell was also operative in this case, as in each the matter was one of delivery and not actual cash sale. Recorder Fort said that the city would not prosecute while the writ remained in force.

VAN RENSSELAER GOES FREE.

Mother Refuses to Prosecute Him for Threatening Her Life.

New York, July 29.—John A. Van Rensselaer, of 164 Waverley place, who was arrested on Monday of last week for writing a threatening letter to his mother, Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, and who spent a few days in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital under examination into his mental condition, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Corrigan in the Tombs police court.

A lawyer representing Mrs. Van Rensselaer appeared at the hearing and said that the prisoner's mother would be content to drop her complaint.

Arrested for Burglary.

At the request of the Hunterdon county authorities, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn today arrested Nathaniel Harvey, colored, accused of committing a robbery in East Amwell township. He was picked up on West Third street. He was held at headquarters and this afternoon was taken in charge of County Detective Elmer Hann, of Flemington.

Colored Boy to Preach.

Lonnie Dennis, the colored boy preacher, who is making a tour of the country, will preach at the Shiloh Baptist church, Central avenue and West Second street, tonight. Young Dennis is a powerful speaker for a youth of his age; he is a native of Atlanta, Georgia, and has recently returned from a four years' trip in Europe.

To Lead Prayer Meeting.

Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, will lead the Wednesday evening prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue church this evening.

IGNORE COMMON COUNCIL

P. S. C. Goes Ahead Constructing Unsightly Gas Holder Without a Permit.

CITIZENS ARE INDIGNANT.

One Large Property-Holder Will Seek Redress—The City Fathers Are Likely to Take Action.

Ignoring the city authorities, the P. S. C. has well underway the construction of a huge gas holder in the very heart of the city, despite the fact that no permit has been issued as yet by the building inspector nor by the Common Council. Some time ago, application was made in a formal way by the corporation to erect such a structure but Building Inspector T. O. Doane refused to take the responsibility and referred the petition to the Councilmanic fire and buildings committee, which in turn brought the matter to the attention of the Common Council.

Strong opposition arose among the city fathers to the scheme, it being claimed that such a huge and unsightly gas holder would not only disfigure "The City Beautiful" but would depreciate property values in the vicinity. Charles H. Hand, one of the largest property-owners in the immediate vicinity of the P. S. C. plant, through his counsel served notice on the Common Council that if the petition were granted, he would hold the city liable for any depreciation to his holdings. At two successive meetings, the city fathers debated the proposition, and now the matter will come up again at a meeting to be held on Monday night. Disregarding the authorities, however, in the meantime, the P. S. C. has gone ahead with the work and there is much indignation among large property owners who take the stand that the gas holder will affect realty values and in addition be an eyesore.

According to the plans the gas holder is to be 117 feet in heighth and 100 feet in diameter. It will abut on the Church street side of its Watchung avenue property. Already the structural work is well under way.

Mr. Hand stated today that he had been advised that his redress will now be against the P. S. C., inasmuch as the corporation has begun the erection of its gas holder without any permission on the part of the city. The municipality, he states, can have redress against the corporation but his damages must be collected in the first instance from the public utilities concern. He adds that he will surely proceed.

KENNETH ROBBIE APPOINTED ACTING GENERAL SECRETARY

Kenneth Robbie, for two years boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here, has recently been appointed general secretary of the association at Springfield, Mass., and will assume his duties September 15. He will act as general secretary of the New England association until May 1, when the association year ends.

Mr. Robbie went to the Springfield association from this city about three months ago, and has since been acting as financial secretary there. William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the Springfield association, has recently resigned, and Mr. Robbie has been appointed to fill the vacancy until the end of the association year.

John Yahrman.

John Yahrman, aged twenty-nine years, died yesterday morning at his home on Liberty street. He had been suffering for several months with a pulmonary trouble. Mr. Yahrman came to Plainfield from California and was an expert cutter by trade, being employed until his health failed by local tailors. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and other organizations. A wife and six-weeks-old daughter survive him. The funeral will be held at his late home Friday afternoon at 2:30 and burial will be at Hillside.

Local County Court Talesman.

Howard Craig, James W. Craig, James C. Hansen, Augustus Jenkins, Thomas E. Kelly, John Mantz, Louis McIntosh, Raymond L. McVoy, James Middledith, Harry Payne, Edward Willis and Joseph Sheppard, all of this city, have been drawn on a panel of forty-eight talesmen from which the jury in a murder trial, set for September 8 in the County Court at Elizabeth, is to be drawn. The prisoner is Dominick Mangano, an Italian.

Bohan Case Adjourned Two Weeks.

The case against Elmer Bohan, charged with numerous thefts, was put over for two weeks in the city court this morning. This was requested by his counsel, George W. V. Moy, and the police offered no opposition. The bail fixed yesterday was allowed to stand.

NOTICE. The policy adopted by us two years ago will be continued this year during the heated term, when we open at 8:30 and close at 5:30. We are convinced that this move will be appreciated by our employes and the general public and hope that our patrons may not feel inconvenienced, but will rather assist us by shopping between the hours above indicated. Saturdays we will be open as usual until 10 p. m.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

The consistory of the Reformed church at Franklin Park has tendered a call to Eugene H. Keator, just graduated from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, to become pastor. Mr. Keator has signified his intention to accept the call and his ordination and installation will probably take place about September 1.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry V. Davis, of this place, accompanied by their daughters, were guests Sunday of County Engineer and Mrs. Grant Davis, at Whitehouse Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Beekman and son, John, of this place, were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Beekman's mother, Mrs. Henry C. Hoffman, near Pottersville.

Mrs. Eva Macain has returned to her home in Newark after a visit at the residence of former Freeholder and Mrs. Richard W. Hoagland, at Neshanic.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dunham, of Plainfield, were Sunday guests of Mr. Dunham's mother, Mrs. Jane Dunham, in North Branch.

Miss Edna Randall, of Newark, has been visiting Miss Alletta Layton at Pluckemin for a few days.

Miss Sarah Holman, of North Branch, was a recent guest of relatives in Whitehouse.

Miss Emma Whitenack, of Neshanic Station, is a guest of relatives in Newark.

WESTFIELD.

A fire caused by a defect in the baker's oven at the rear of the building occupied by Erving's bakery, on Broad street, Westfield, did about $1,000 damage Monday. The firemen had hard work to keep the fire from adjoining buildings, which are frame with brick fronts.

Richard Daly, who gave his home as Somerville, was sent to the county jail from Westfield, on a charge of vagrancy. He was making his headquarters at the trolley barn and had become a nuisance to the trolley employes.

Owing to the excavations for the telephone conduits, Central avenue, Westfield, is not safe at night for automobiles. The street will be torn up for the rest of the week.

Catharine Malone, of Westfield, was taken to the asylum at Morris Plains yesterday. She had been unbalanced mentally for several months.

SOMERVILLE.

Miss Maria J. Covert, aged seventy-nine, died at her home on South street on Saturday night and was buried at Belle Mead yesterday afternoon. She had been ill a long time. Rev. A. J. Bliss officiated.

A number of boys were arraigned before Justice Sutphen for bathing in the river near the cemetery without bathing suits.

Joseph Vichery, who is a member of the State Capitol force at Trenton, is spending his vacation in town.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gaston are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Abram DuMont at North Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. James Q. Ten Eyck have returned from a month's outing at Lake Hopatcong.

Mrs. Charles Q. Dalley and son of Trenton, have been visiting Mrs. W. H. Thompson.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Cranmer began his four weeks' vacation yesterday.

RARITAN.

Rev. J. J. Zimmer, who has been in Europe for several months, will arrive home today. A reception and entertainment will be tendered him in St. Bernard's Hall, tomorrow evening, at which time also the graduating exercises of St. Benard's School will be held.

Rocco Sabitio, who was employed at Haring & Frech's barber shop, Somerville, died at the Somerset Hospital on Sunday from the results of an operation for appendicitis. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from St. Bernard's church.

Miss Annie McNally has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Weill and Miss Anna Doyle, of Newark.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The New Market Field Club members are planning a straw ride to Boynton Beach in the near future. The committee is arranging to hire a couple of large stages and the club members have already given their invitations for the affair.

Miss Mabel Cole and Miss Elsie McCullough will leave Saturday for Ocean Grove, where they will spend two weeks. They will be at "The Arctic."

Mrs. John C. Dilts has been entertaining Miss Helen Grant, of Bayonne, who recently returned to her home after a short sojourn here.

Miss Ruth Spear and Howard Spear, of Paterson, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Sarah Cole.

The Misses Helen and Edna Day have returned home after a visit with friends at Linden.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball teams are considering cancelling the game scheduled for Saturday afternoon on the home grounds and taking on a game at Somerville with the West Ends. This does not sit very well with the fans who believe the team should play all the home games possible.

The pulpit committee of the Baptist church will probably wait until fall before calling a church meeting for the purpose of calling a regular pastor for the church.

David R. Clark, who has been spending a week with his mother, Mrs. Benjamin Clark, has returned to his home in Newark.

The oil which which was sprinkled on Park avenue and Front street several weeks ago is still doing duty keeping down the dust.

Several of the boys from town will spend a week camping at the Passaic river, the camp opening the latter part of the week.

Miss Harriet M. Squires, of Rahway, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Henry Alberts was the guest of friends in Orange yesterday.

Among the American tourists who signed the register at the office of the New York Herald in Paris yesterday was Miss Mary E. Breck, of Woodland avenue, Netherwood.

BAYONNEITES IN A FIX.

Rowboat Upset, They Cling to Stern of Moving Vessel.

Thomas O'Brien and James Engle, of Avenue C. Bayonne, were little the worse today for a thrilling experience and narrow escape from death. When the steamboat Sirius, having aboard 2,000 persons, who were headed for Rockaway on the annual excursion of the Democratic Club, pulled out Monday, O'Brien and Engle had intended getting a tow behind the steamboat down the Kills, and had tied their rowboat to the stern. Instead of going ahead, the captain backed in order to escape striking the pier. After being knocked about for several minutes, the rowboat was hit by the steamer, and Engle and O'Brien were knocked overboard.

Both are good swimmers, and they managed to grasp hold of the stanchions on the hull of the steamer. They shouted lustily for help, but the roar of the waters, churned by the paddle wheels, drowned their voices. Several hundred persons ashore, who were waving hats and handkerchiefs to the excursionists, saw the peril of the two men and set up a yell that was heard aboard the steamer. After it had gone a quarter of a mile the Sirius was stopped and a dozen men went to the assistance of O'Brien and Engle and took them ashore.

LINEMAN'S FATAL MISHAP.

Cooks on Live Wires in Mid-air and Dies in the Hoboken Hospital.

Hoboken, July 29.—William Depitch, thirty-five years old, a lineman of the Public Service Corporation, died in St. Mary's Hospital this morning about 1 o'clock as the result of being badly burned yesterday by a live wire while at work on a fifty-foot pole at Bloomfield and Fourteenth streets.

Depitch was at work at the top of the pole endeavoring to disentangle crossed wires carrying heavy electric light current. He received a shock which threw him cross a network of wires, which held him suspended while the deadly current poured through his body. His clothing caught fire and people stood in the street helplessly watching the flames wreath his body for a considerable time until the power could be shut off at the power-house.

Fellow-linemen finally arrived and lowered his unconscious body to the ground, where he was hurried to St. Mary's Hospital. The body was taken to his home today to be prepared for burial.

WRIGHT AT CAMP FORT.

Camp Fort, Sea Girt, July 29.—Secretary of War Luke E. Wright will review the guardsmen here on Friday morning prior to his visit to Oyster Bay to have a conference with President Roosevelt. Secretary Wright will leave Washington late Thursday night and will reach Sea Girt early Friday morning. He will be the guest of Governor Fort. He will probably spend Friday night at Sagamore Hill, returning to Washington next Monday morning.

Members of Governor Fort's staff will meet the Secretary at Philadelphia and escort him to the camp.

Dennis Fitzgerald.

Dennis Fitzgerald, sixty-one years old, died yesterday morning at his home, 23 Third street, Elizabeth. For many years he was a car inspector for the Jersey Central Railroad. Death was due to Bright's disease. He was a native of Ireland and had lived thirty years in Elizabethport. He was a communicant at St. Patrick's church and a member of Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians. He is survived by six sons and two daughters.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Odd Fellows of South Jersey will hold their annual picnic near Pitman next Wednesday.

Theodore Budd and son started yesterday to make 10,000 cranberry crates for the fall picking.

A courtship of over a decade ago had its culmination in the marriage, on Thursday, at Cranbury, of William K. Morton and Annie Adams.

Ralph Mote, of Clayton, and Lee Hallock, of Iona, Republican candidates for Assembly, are preparing for an automobile tour through Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Redfern, both active and enjoying excellent health, celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at Trenton yesterday.

Struck by a trolley car, Charles Pearce, tollgate-keeper at Haddon avenue and Pear street, Camden, was yesterday injured about the body. It is also feared that the gatekeeper is injured internally.

A call has been extended by the First Baptist church of Atlantic City to Rev. John W. Hoag, of La Crosse, Wis. The church has been pastorless since the death of Dr. J. O'B. Lowry in the spring.

After a lively chase Mounted Policeman Palmer yesterday shot a supposed mad dog in East Camden. The dog ran through the streets snapping at everything in sight, and several persons narrowly escaped being bitten.

Joseph Dolan, of 487 Union avenue, Paterson, while engaged at work as a millwright in a local machine shop yesterday, stumbled over a section of iron tubing, and fell heavily on his right arm. He sustained a fracture of the bones of the forearm.

Francisco Caloggario, arrested at Beverly last week after fellow-countrymen had informed officials that he was wanted for a murder at Johnstown, Pa., is not the man wanted. A photograph of the real murderer received yesterday disproved the identification.

In the Camden Court of Chancery yesterday a rule was allowed to show cause why Alfred Adams, of Atlantic City, should not be attached for contempt of court for his alleged failure to pay alimony allowed his wife, Mary Adams, some time ago.

H. C. Howell, of 730 East Twenty-sixth street, Paterson, was removed from the Passaic Steel Works to St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday afternoon, suffering from a badly crushed foot, sustained by a two-ton steel casting falling from a roller and upon the foot.

The new ordinance giving the Atlantic City life guards $100 a month and raising the yearly salaries of police officials was passed and members of the special committee of councils are to ask the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to allow the city to plant flowers and otherwise beautify the big railroad yards in fashionable Chelsea.

Running from the sidewalk to catch a "hooky" on the rear platform of an ice wagon, Margaret Abbott, five years old, of Trenton, ran directly in the path of a rapidly moving trolley car. The child saw the car just in time to avoid being struck, but in jumping out of its way she landed under the feet of a horse drawing an express wagon. The horse stepped on her left leg, injuring her badly.

Brave firemen, led by Captain Charles Fenton, of the Chelsea Cricket fleet, prevented a disastrous fire in a big boathouse at California avenue and the Thoroughfare, Atlantic City, yesterday afternoon, by throwing a blazing launch from the top floor of the building into the deep stream. The launch had been fired by an explosion of leaking gasoline while the owner was making repairs to the boat lying on a "cradle" in the house.

Bitten on the hip about a week ago, Philip Sparks, son of John C. Sparks, of 1128 South Second street, Camden, was taken to Pasteur Institute yesterday for treatment. Although suspicious that the dog had the rabies at the time the boy was attacked, the little fellow's parents were not absolutely certain of the fact until the animal's head was sent to the University of Pennsylvania for examination. No serious results are anticipated.

A party of young Philadelphians aboard the yacht Restless, running up to Barnegat, created excitement on the coast yesterday afternoon by coming to and running their flag down to half-mast, as a signal for a pilot. Life-savers, who supposed that there had been a sudden death aboard the little craft, put out, and were highly disgusted after their mile row to find that nobody aboard knew the pilot signal, and had used the death flag as a summons.

ONCE POPULAR G. O. P. CLUB. DISBANDS AT ELIZABETH.

The once noted McKinley Club of Union county has disbanded. This action was taken last night.

The club at one period in its history had a membership of nearly seven hundred, but only eleven mourners appeared at last night's meeting. It is said notices were sent out to 150 members who were in arrears to square up their accounts, but none responded. All the furniture in the clubroom on Broad street, Elizabeth, will be sold at public auction, and the proceeds, it is said, will be divided among the few faithful members who are not in arrears for dues.

The club in its palmy days had handsomely furnished headquarters on West Jersey street, Elizabeth, and numbered on its roll every Republican of prominence in Union county. It attended the inauguration of President McKinley and made a fine showing at Washington. The club also attended the inauguration of Governor Voorhees. Internal dissensions hampered the club recently, and its decline has been rapid. Nearly two years ago it abandoned its West Jersey street clubhouse and removed to a couple of small rooms over a Broad street restaurant. An effort was made, it is said, at last night's meeting to reorganize the club as a Taft and Sherman association, but the motion failed to arouse any interest or enthusiasm among the few people present.

THOUGHT MINISTER SUSPICIOUS.

Too Zealous Cranford Copper Took Up Visiting Clergyman.

Rev. E. L. Morabray, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hagerstown, Md., has been supplying the pulpit of Rev. Elmer E. Pearce, in the First Methodist church at Cranford during the vacation of Rev. Mr. Pearce. Yesterday morning he started for the 4 o'clock train for New York.

At the station Policeman Otto Behnert arrested him as a suspicious person. In vain the minister tried to satisfy the policeman as to his identity. He was taken to the house of Justice of the Peace W. W. Mendell, who, when awakened, at once ordered his discharge. Mr. Morabray had to sprint in order to catch his train. Justice of the Peace Mendell is a steward of the First Methodist church.

Mrs. A. F. Streuli, of Prospect avenue, is at the Breakers, Bailey Island, Me., for the summer.

Miss Cora Gano, of Grove street, and Miss Beulah Rogers, of West Second street, have returned from a week's stay in Brooklyn.

THE delight of the summer evening at home may be greatly enhanced for you with a Euterpe Player-Piano at your command. The Euterpe Player-Piano is a delightful combination of the best in piano and player mechanism construction, it is ideal in every detail and is particularly simple and easy to operate.

A DELICIOUS ROAST AT LITTLE COST.

"At last I have found a way of roasting meats which costs little in gas and nothing at all in trouble," said a young housekeeper who is fond of cooking and likes to try experiments. "I take a two-gallon butter jar, one that is as wide as it is high. You can get one for 10 cents. I wash the roast, season it to taste and place it in the jar dry—not a drop of water. No, it won't burn and the steam makes the gravy.

"To keep the steam in I have a good cover, heavily weighted, to hold it down tight. I place the jar over a gas burner with an asbestos mat between and the gas not too high. Then I just let it alone. In a couple of hours or so, according to the size of the roast, it is done to a turn, with gravy golden brown and ready for thickening.

"This process makes even tough meat tender and the gravy is nicer than the gravy of meat roasted in the oven. But what commends it to me is the fact that in roasting meat this way there is no stooping down and scorching your face every few minutes to baste. You can just put the jar over the fire and go out shopping, and when you come back the chief part of your dinner is done. I have prepared six-pound roasts in this way.

"I've made a schedule of the length of time needed for cooking different kinds of meat: For beef, thirty to forty minutes; chicken, thirty to thirty-five minutes; pork, twenty to thirty minutes; tame duck, thirty to forty minutes."

STILL NEED TO HARP ON THE OLD SUBJECT.

"The stitch in time!" How we do hale those trite, old, well-worn, but never worn out, sayings—especially when we feel that the "cap fits" (another too-personal-to-be-polite saying) our own special head. But we can never get around the truth of them.

Very essential is that proverbial stitch in these days of diaphanous fabrics, narrow, close-fitting garments, transparent yokes and sleeves; for, one thread broken, the damage is little less complete than when a thread is dropped in a silken stocking.

Some one asked me the other day how to keep silk stockings from wearing out. I could think of no way except to keep them in the bureau drawer.

See to your collars. Bent and broken bones will mar the beauty of the most perfect stock. And fresh ruchings? Why, of course; I might treat of those in a story on cleanliness.

See to your hooks and eyes. Nothing presents a more dejected look than a hanging hook and eye. It has such a reproachful aspect. It, in itself, is perfectly good and anxious to do duty, but its environment makes it impossible.

See to your dress braid. A woman with a frayed dress braid is untidiness personified. If she cannot afford a new one, let her rip the old one off and turn it upside down; if she has already done this, rip it off altogether and go braidless. But then the skirt itself will become frayed? Then turn up a new hem. This process may be repeated—not inedfinitely, but for a number of times quite within the bounds of modesty.

The petticoat should be an object of special care. It is easy to pin it up, but it will last far longer if you take the despised "stitch." A silk petticoat discarded the other day by a fair maid had acquired pins approaching fifty-seven varieties.

THE CANNING SEASON NOW AT HAND.

If you want the flavor of the fruit to come out well do not use an excess of sugar.

Never use poor fruit for canning. The best is none too good. Let it be as fresh as possible and not overripe.

Handle it as little as possible.

Have everything in readiness before you begin operations. The woman who has to run to pantry or kitchen every time a thing is wanted makes herself double the work that's necessary.

Use the best grade of sugar. It may cost a little more than the ordinary, but it will make your fruit enough better to pay the difference in cost.

Do not stir your fruit when it is cooking. If you want to know how it is coming along take out a piece of it without disturbing the rest.

Give it a brisk boiling. If allowed to stand and simmer it will not retain its shape well.

When the cans are ready for sealing see that the covers fit perfectly. Never use one that does not hug down tightly to the shoulder of the jar.

New-Old Neck Adornment.
Wide ribbon and quantities of it will be made up during the next few months into that most bewitching of all feminine accessories, the neck sash, which so satisfactorily solves the problem of supporting the stock collar and of filling the unsightly space between the hair line and the collar, which has been the bane of womankind for time immemorial.

LIFE.

(As the pessimist see it.)
A berry pie to kick about—
A cozy home to scrap in—
Some kindly ears in which to shout
The woes that never happen—
A feather bed on which to toss
So sleeplessly—it's shocking!
A little time to knock the boss—
O, lots and lots of knocking!
A sky that will undoubtedly
Soon darken up the glower—
A pretty cloud that soon will be,
No doubt, a dreary shower,
Then comes a time, when those who b'lieve,
May make their plans to sever
Those ties that bind to earth and leave
This bum old world forever.

FLUFFY FRILLS FROM FASHION'S FANCIES.

A pair of pins for the collar, one small and one large, are very useful and hold the collar and bow in place.

Silk negligee shirts for men have a monogram embroidered in pastel shades or to match the color in the shirt. The monogram is on the left arm.

New trimmings are tassels of silk and silver or gold thread, crochet balls of all sizes and shapes and buttons covered with chintz or sometimes heavily embroidered.

Woven silk belts can be found in stripes and plain colors. The buckles are dull gold. One great advantage is that the belt will wash readily.

Pique robe gowns embroidered in eyelet or solid embroidery are a novelty.

Butterfly bows of satin ribbon are embroidered in ribbon on the ends.

Pins to hold the veil in place are miniature swords or arrows. The blade pierces the straw and veil and the sheath slips on over the point the arrow head fastens it in.

Iceland Lacks Development.
Up to the present time no mining has been done in Iceland, says a consular report. It is sated that investigations have shown that there are rich veins of gold in the vicinity of Reykjavik, the chief port. Last year an agricultural society in Copenhagen sent an engineer to Iceland to investigate the agricultural conditions. He has reported that by a system of irrigation 16,547 hectares, equal to 40,888 acres, can be placed under cultivation at a cost of about $1,600. At present only 17,019 hectares, equal to 42,054 acres, are under cultivation. It is claimed that the construction of roads, bridges, and especially railroads, would contribute much to the development of the country. There are important water falls that could be utilized for power purposes.

EIGHT POISONED BY EATING TOADSTOOLS

Eight persons were poisoned at Roselle Monday evening by eating toadstools in mistake for mushrooms. They are now in the General Hospital at Elizabeth.

The victims are Simon Cramer, fifty-three years old; Bedka Cramer, his wife, thirty-five years old; their five children, Ethel, Sadie, Augusta, Joseph and Anthony Cramer, and Mrs. Matilda Kosch, thirty-six years old.

All live in the same house on Twelfth avenue, Roselle. They partook of the toadstools for supper. They had gathered the supposed mushrooms yesterday afternoon in a field near their home.

Shortly after the meal they became violently ill, and Dr. Strickland, of Roselle, was summoned. When he saw their condition he telephoned at once to the hospital and an ambulance was hurried to Roselle.

The vehicle had to make two trips to Roselle to bring all the patients to the hospital, and it was 10:30 o'clock before the last load of sufferers reached there.

All were found to be in a serious condition, and for a time it was feared several of the children would die.

The hospital physicians worked over the patients for the greater part of the night. Today they are resting easily, and it is believed all will recover, although two of the children are not yet out of danger.

It was nearly four hours after eating the toadstools before they arrived at the hospital for treatment, and the doctors there consider it an achievement to save all the patients. All the victims are Austrians.

Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of the borough, is stopping at the Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, N. H.

Plainfield, N. J., July 29, 1908.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The Plainfield Daily Press says:

"As a matter of information it will be interesting to select the five members of the Legislature who placed the highest number of laws on the statute books. The record shows: Frelinghuysen, eighteen; Wakelee, seventeen; Robbins, sixteen; Avis, fifteen; Ackerman, thirteen. These five members of the Leguslature are responsible for about twenty-five per cent. of the finished work of the session. There were no other Senators who succeeded in passing more than nine bills."

It isn't the number but the quality of the laws that members of the Legislature are responsible for placing on the statute books that counts most. Among the sixteen that Senator Robbins has to answer for, the one pensioning members of the Supreme Court is, perhaps, the one most to be condemned, and of the thirteen that Senator Ackerman has to his credit, the civil service laws is the most useless and expensive.—Trenton State Gazette.

It is not surprising that the Trenton State Gazette should consider the civil service law "most useless and expensive" for it is apparently one of the relics of that political dynasty that "fed" the "heelers" and seemingly believed that merit consisted in rewarding those who could "deliver the goods" on election day without regard to personal ability to occupy public office. It might be well, however, to call the attention of the State Gazette, peace be unto it, to the fact that both political parties in their plaforms last September endorsed the fundamental principles of civil service. And as the Trenton paper is Republican, it seems strange that it should protest against its party idea.

Wherever civil service laws have been in force so serious efforts have been made to secure their repeal because of the resulting economy. The auditing of the pay roll, which our contemporary may consider expensive, is an incentive to economy on the part of all administrations, local and general, which are reviewed by this most excellent commission. In New York these laws are a part of the constitution, having been adopted by popular vote. Consequently when the State-Gazette fires its shot into such statutes it aims its editorial battery at the ranks of intelligent voters of the great state of New Jersey which will certainly approve of a law fixing merit as a standard instead of "pull," as an essential for a political job.

True it is not the quantity but the quality of results that should be used as a criterion when judging of a legislator's ability, but we submit that the deeds performed by those mentioned in the honor roll in The Daily Press were most creditable and we see no reason to revise our report notwithstanding the wail of The Trenton State-Gazette.

LET US JOIN IT!

Mindful of the fact that the splendid record he made in the recent rifle tournaments in England is deserving of special recognition, Elizabeth's wide-awake residents are prepared to do honor to Major William B. Martin, of that city. Upon his return the mayor and other civil authorities at the county seat will conduct fitting ceremonies, and the public demonstration will be of no mean order. This leads us to mention the fact that the major belongs to Plainfield as well as to Elizabeth, for it was he who made Company K, of this city, what it is today. The local military company holds an enviable position in the regiment and that standing is entirely due to the training given the boys by the Elizabethan. As its captain, he raised it from an insignificant place to one of honor. Therefore, is it not most appropriate that the good people of Plainfield should play some part in the reception to be accorded to him.

We suggest that the mayor advise the city fathers at their meeting on Monday night that some token of esteem be shown by Plainfield at the demonstration planned by the Elizabeth authorities.

The new schedule of the P. S. C. trolleys is the worst that has ever been perpetrated on the local public. It pleases none except the corporation itself, which some few years ago gained the name of "The Public Soakus Corporation." Never a day passes but what we receive complaints of the zig-zag schedule and we voice the sentiment of the community when we demand that the old time-table be restored.

As far back as last November, The Daily Press reported a statement made by a local official that as a result of an agreement made with the P. S. C. new trolley cars would be placed on all local lines by the first of the year. Nearly seven months have elapsed since the time that the new cars were supposed to have been in use, but there are no signs of them as yet. It's the same old story.

Francis G. Moore has sent his check for $10 to The Daily Press for our Netherwood Fresh Air Home fund. Our two local funds now aggregate $85.00. Cannot we expect that our generous people will make the total twice that amount within a week?

Plainfield is doing its share in raising funds for the Cleveland monument, but there are many patriotic residents who have not been heard from as yet. Let us make the grand total for "The City Beautiful" at least $500.

It is somewhat surprising to hear that a police chief should arrogate unto himself the right to deny local lawyers the right to consult with their clients who are detained at headquarters. Can the report be true?

Elections to decide whether the use of the voting machines shall be continued in Orange will be held on Tuesday, August 11. In East Orange elections will be held in five precincts on Tuesday, September 1.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Chancellor Isaac Roe was renamed yesterday State Director of Insurance Policies in the Prudential Insurance Company, pursuant to the new insurance law requiring the State to have one Director on the Board of Insurance Companies. Mr. Roe's term does not expire until August 7, but he was reappointed at this time, as he will be on a vacation when the term expires.

The first candidate for president who will be heard in New Jersey during the campaign will be Thomas E. Watson, the nominee of the Populist party. At least his representative in this State, Joseph B. Kein, who ran for governor on the Socialist ticket of 1892 and 1895, promises that Tom will put in an appearance at some time and make a speech defining his position and saying not so pleasant things about his old friend, but now antagonist, William J. Bryan.

Joseph R. Buchanan, a Hearst employe, was elected chairman of the New Jersey delegation at the caucus at the Chicago convention. He was also chosen as one of the three nominal committeemen from the State. The other two are John Smith, of Camden, and Samuel Warbasse, of Sussex. Smith has been a Hearst organizer for several years. John Roach, of Newark, was made the state member of the committee on resolutions. Samuel Hoke, of Bergen, was selected for the committee on permanen organization, and D. J. Jeydell, a Hearst employe, who lives at Montclair, was put on the credentials committee.

It is likely that Assemblyman William P. Martin will direct the "New Idea" campaign work in Essex county this year. Mr. Martin had charge of the first campaign of the reformers in 1905, when Senator Colby, Sheriff Sommers and 11 assemblymen were elected.

The New Jersey Independence leaguers in the Chicago convention sit under a banner on which is imprinted these words: "New Jersey, the home of the trusts, wants to smash them."

Eddie Gray, secretary to the governor under the Stokes administration, refutes the report that he seeks the honor of a Republican nomination for assemblyman in Monmouth county, and incidentally stamps as "sapient" the Newark newspaperman who gave circulation to the original story. Mr. Gray declares he is a resident of Essex county, not Monmouth, and hopes to continue as such for many years to come.

BABY DYING, CALLED DOCTOR.

But Christian Scientists Didn't Have Prescription Filled, Says Physician.

The Christian Science Publication Committee in New Jersey issued a statement yesterday concerning the death of the eleven-months-old child of Frank Black, of Broad avenue, Palisades, who died under the Christian Science treatment of Miss Florence W. Bull. The committee announces that Dr. Van Dyke, a practitioner, was called in after the first Christian Science treatment, and that medicines prescribed by him were given the baby, but that when they proved ineffective, the Christian Science was resumed.

The statement says that the child's parents, relatives and friends were satisfied, and that Dr. Van Dyke and other physicians are the only ones who raised a fuss. When the statement was shown to Dr. Van Dyke, he said:

"This child was not treated by me. I was called in the day before the child died, and found him in convulsions. I prescribed, but Mr. Black told me the next day that Mrs. Black did not even have my prescription filled. For that reason I refused to grant a death certificate. The child was dying when I was called in."

The Bergen County Medical Society will take the case before the September Grand Jury.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the majority of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

Told to "Shut Up," Girl Has Hysteria

Annie Pearlman, sixteen years old, of No. 102 Suffolk street, New York, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Barnet Olinger, in Willof street, Blomfield, for several weeks, is confined to her bed under the care of a physician, suffering from hysteria, as the result of a sudden fright. The girl was talking to friends when a boy came up to her and yelled "Shut up." Dr. Frank Lockwood has ordered absolute rest.

BURNED AT THE STAKE IN A PUBLIC SQUARE.

Thousand People See Young Negro Suffer Terrible Death in Greenville, Texas.

Dallas, Tex., July 29.—"Tad" Smith, a negro, 18 years old, charged with attacking a white woman Monday afternoon, was captured by the police yesterday. He was taken before the young woman and identified.

The prisoner was then hurried to the Greenville jail. Before arriving there, however, a mob of citizens overpowered the officers, took the prisoner and prepared to hang him. This idea was given up, however, and the mob agreed to burn him at the stake.

Faggots were piled up in the public square at Greenville and the negro was placed on them. Kerosene oil was poured on and a match applied. Smith slowly burned to death, while a thousand people witnessed the lynching.

BRYAN-KERN BANNER.

Appropriate Ceremonies Tonight at the Unfurling.

The unfurling of a Bryan and Kern banner at High and Market streets, Newark, tonight will mark the opening of the Democratic campaign in Essex county. The Andrew Jackson Association will do the honors.

The evening's program will consist of speechmaking, a band concert and fireworks. John F. Sinnott, majority leader of the Common Council, will preside, and Congressman John Hughes, of Passaic; Congressman James Hamill, of Hudson; Assemblyman Joseph Tumulty, of Hudson, and former Judge Thomas S. Henry will speak.

The officers of the association are: Frank A. Boettner, president; Philip A. McGuire, vice president; Daniel Mauer, secretary, and Charles E. McCraith, treasurer.

DIET TO CURE SLEEPLESSNESS.

Common Causes of Insomnia—Indigestion and Hunger.

Dr. William Stevens says that insomnia is not a disease itself, but the effect of an unhealthy condition of body or mind. When the cause is removed the insomnia may be expected to disappear.

Every physician has had stubborn cases of it which would not yield to any treatment and for which a change of air or of scene became necessary. But such cases as these should not occur, and do occur only when the sufferer has neglected precautions that should have been taken when the trouble first made itself manifest.

Insomnia results from causes which can be removed if attended to in season. The most common cause is found in the digestive organs. Either unsuitable food, causing insomnia as a feature of indigestion, or insufficient food, causing the patient to be kept awake by hunger.

There are few things which can be universally recommended as diet for sleeplessness, since what will agree with one man will disagree with another. But two things that may almost always be recommended are lettuce and celery.

BETTER THAN CIPHER WRITING.

South Sea Islanders Have Unique Way of Sending Messages.

The day was warm and the sailor turned on the electric fan and stood in its refreshing breeze, with a pleased smile.

"I'd have my head shaved for the summer," he said, "but on my scalp is tattooed in Polynesian, 'Kill Atara and Rarahu, the bloody traitors.'

"You know, boss, I wunst lived down Samoa way. I lived the native life in a white hut thatched with palm leaves, my young wife wove garlands of fresh flowers every morning for my hair, and I fed like a native on nothin' but baked breadfruit.

"Well, a war ariz between our tribe and another, and they sent me with a message through the enemy's country. Fust they shaved my head, then they tattooed the message on the skull, then they made me wait till the hair growed again."

He smiled pensively.

"Mine was a happy life in the South seas," he said, "and if you ever want a safe way to send a message, tattoo it on your messenger's scalp and let his hair grow over it."

Fertile Lands of the Globe.

It is estimated that the fertile lands of the globe amount to 28,000,000 square miles, the steppes to 14,000,000 and the deserts to 1,000,000. Fixing 207 persons to the square mile for fertile lands, ten for steppes and one for deserts as the greatest population that the earth could possibly nourish, scientists have arrived at the conclusion that when the number of inhabitants reaches 6,000,000,000 the earth will be peopled to its full capacity. At present it contains somewhat more than one-quarter of that number. If the rate of increase shown by the latest census statistics should be uniformly maintained the globe would be fully peopled about the year 2072.

Camphor to Break Up a Cold.

One of the most efficient remedies for breaking up a cold during its earliest stage is camphor. When the eyes begin to water and there is the accompanying tingling of the nose and feeling of chilliness, place three drops of camphor on a lump of loaf sugar and place the sugar in the mouth.

Repeat this every 15 minutes till four or five doses have been taken. At the same time place the feet where they will become thoroughly warm. This will usually prove effectual in breaking up a cold if the cold is taken at its very beginning. For a child but one drop should be placed upon the sugar, and five or six doses administered.—Health.

The Shrinking Sun.

One hundred years ago the diameter of the sun was four miles greater than it is now. One thousand years ago the sun's diameter was 40 miles greater than it is at present. Ten thousand years ago its diameter was 400 miles greater than it is to-day. The present diameter of the sun is 860,000 miles, and if this diameter were to shrink to-morrow to the extent of 10,000 miles the change would not be appreciable to common observation, though a much smaller change would not elude the delicate astronomical measurement. — New York American.

No Place for Dogs.

Is it impossible in Japan to keep a good dog? I have twice had my dogs disappear in a seemingly miraculous way.

As I am well aware that there is a great demand for dog skins, especially those of young dogs, we have been careful in having our dog watched; nevertheless, he disappeared the other morning.

Almost every foreigner has lost a dog or dogs, and even a sea captain who was three days on shore had his dog poisoned the first day he put his feet on land.—Japan Chronicle.

Literal Facts.

"Some of the most unlucky kings and queens in history brought their misfortunes on themselves by their bad judgment in crises."

"That's so; for instance, both Charles I. and Mary Queen of Scots at the critical moment of their careers, lost their heads."

FRIENDS WENT WITH MONEY.

Hughes Goes to Workhouse After Suending Half a Million.

New York, July 29.—Having squandered a fortune of half a million dollars, according to his own admission; Thomas Hughes, 48 years old, no home, was committed to the workhouse for vagrancy yesterday by Magistrate Breen in the West Side Court.

Hughes said he was a son of Thos Hughes, head of the old contracting firm of Hughes & Cooney, who in the days of Tweed did a great deal of city work. He was born in a Gramercy Park mansion, received an excellent college education, and previous to his father's death traveled abroad frequently. He had plenty of friends to help him spend his inheritance.

COUNTRY WEDDINGS.

The evening is usually the time selected for a wedding in small communities, because every one is busy in the daytime. This gives the hostess the whole day for her preparations, and as all the guests will have had their evening meal, she need only serve light refreshments. Oysters, salads and ice cream are always popular, but it is perfectly proper to serve only cake and wine, or some form of fruit sherbert or coffee in houses of strict temperance principles.

Something will depend on the means and position of the host as well as on the number of guests invited.

Where many people are asked the hostess will make an effort to supply a more bountiful entertainment; but for a few intimate friends this is not necessary.—Harper's Bazar.

Bather Dies on Beach.

W. M. Wade, a contractor of 415 Grant avenue, Richmond Hill, Long Island, dropped dead on the sand at Ross Pavilion, Ocean Grove, yesterday afternoon of heart failure. Mr. Wade had just come from a bath and was sunning himself in the sand when he toppled over. He had been there since Friday and took his first dip in the ocean yesterday.

Boy Killed by Fall; Mother May Die.

A game of tag cost ten-year-old Nathan Katz his life and it may also cost the life of his mother, who is suffering from shock caused by the news of the boy's death at Paterson. The lad was killed while playing with companions in the foundation of a new building. He was taken to the hospital, where he died soon after being admitted.

IS THE THEATER BAD?

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

The best Greek and Roman writers, such as Xenophon, Plato, Socrates, Tacitus, Cato and Tertullian, denounced the theater of their time as antagonistic to good morals. Athens suppressed the theater by law. Solon denounced the actor's profession as "tending, by its simulation of evil character and by its expression of sentiment not genuine or sincere, to corrupt the integrity of human dealings." In Rome "gross exhibitions and licentious buffoonery became the common rule of the play." "The Roman theater," says Dr. Schaff, "became more and more the nursery of vice and deserved to be abhorred by all men of decent feeling and refinement." Of England Macaulay writes: "From the time that the theaters were opened they became the seminaries of vice." And Sir Walter Scott says of the theater of his day: "It was abandoned to the vicious. The best portions of the house were set apart for the abandoned characters."

The Modern Theater.

Is the modern theater any better? Let us hear the testimony of those who know. "None of my children," said Macready, the actor, "shall ever with my consent, on any pretense, enter a theater or have any visiting connection with actors or actresses." Dumas, the play-writer, wrote to a friend: "You do not take your daughter to see my play. You are right. Let me say, once for all, you must not take your daughter to the theater. It is not mainly the work that is immoral; it is the place." Mr. Sothern, in a newspaper article over his own name, says: "I have known some of our best performers who have found it necessary to first attend a play before they would allow their wives and daughters to go. Why was this necessary? Why, because they knew that there was very little cleanness in those places, and who better than they should know?" John Gilbert, the veteran actor, wrote in the North American Review: "I believe the present condition of the drama, both from a moral and artistic point of view, to be a subject of regret." An actor, in passing a theater, said to a friend of Dr. Cuyler: "Behind those doors lies Sodom." Edwin Forrest, hearing Dr. Brantley denounce the theater as an immoral institution, lingered long enough to assure the preacher that he agreed with him only he would put it stronger.

Purity on Stage Impossible.

Mr. William Winter, a dramatic critic, asserts that Christian ethics on the stage would be inappropriate. Mr. A. M. Palmer, the Nestor of the theater managers, says in a "Review" article: "The chief themes of the theater are now, as they ever have been, the passions of men, ambition and jealousy, leading to murder; lust, leading to adultery and death; anger, leading to madness." Mr. Clement Scott, a distinguished theatrical critic of the London press, was asked to give his views as to the effect of the stage upon a pure-minded girl who might enter the profession to make a livelihood and to pursue the dramatic art. And here are his words: "Stage life, according to my exerience, has a tendency to disorder the finer feelings, to crush the inner nature of men and women out and to substitute artificiality and hollowness for sincerity and truth, and, mind you, I speak from an intimate experience of the stage extending over 37 years. It is nearly impossible for a woman to remain pure who adopts the stage as a profession. Everything is against her, and, what is more to be deplored, a woman who endeavors to keep her purity is almost of necessity doomed to failure in her career. It is an awful thing to say, and it is still more terrible that it is true, but none who know the life of the greenroom will deny it."

The Passion Play.

The modern stage had its birth at a time during the dark ages when men were playing at religion in their daily lives, and they would not, of course, refuse to play at it for the entertainment of an audience. Lecky is right when he says that the "Mystery Plays" led to the degeneration of religion, and it is equally true that the degeneration of religion led to the "Mystery Plays." Playing at marriage and divorce on the stage weakens, if it does not destroy, the sanctity of marriage and keeps the divorce courts busy. Playing at vice cannot fail, sooner or later, to make an actor vicious. It is one of the discouraging signs of the times to-day that religious plays are becoming popular. It proves that the religious instinct in the theater-going people is a thing to play with, and while faith, prayer and praise are feigned it is evident that real faith, prayer and praise are lacking. The "Passion Play," though performed by simple country people with deep religious feeling, has not imrpoved the state of true religion at Oberammergau, and I can think of nothing that would go farther toward breaking down real Christianity than the presentation of this farical crucifixion of our Lord in the theaters of the world.

SOME CURIOUS PLANTS IN THE GARDENS.

A very old plant, in the government botanical garden at Washington, is the so-called "barber plant." It comes from the Orient, and is not used, as its names hight imply, to help barbers, but rather to their detriment, since it is rubbed on the face to keep the beard from growing.

It is not supposed to have any effect on a beard that is already rooted, but merely to act as a preventive, boys employing it to keep the hair from getting a start on their faces. It is also employed by some Oriental people who desire to keep parts of their heads free from hair, as a matter of fashion.

Also found in the botanical garden is the "cruel plant," which is so designated becauses it catches butterflies and kills them for sheer sport. Its flowers attract the poor little flutterer by the honey it offers, and when the victim lights upon it, it grabs the butterfly by the head and holds it fast until the captive dies. Then the flower drops it on the ground and lies in wait for a fresh unfortunate.

Curious looking-tree from the Isthmus of Panama bears a round, red fruit as big as an apple, which has this remarkable faculty, that its juice rubbed in tough beef or chicken makes the meat tender by the chemical power its possesses to separate the flesh fibre.

One is interested to observe in the botanical greenhouse three kinds of plants that have real consumption of the lungs—the leaves, of course, being the lungs of a plant. The disease is manifested by the turning of the leaves from green to white, the affection gradually spreading from one spot until when a leaf is all white it it just about to die.

Cruelly enough as it would seem, the gardeners only try to perpetuate the disease for the sake of beauty and curiosity, all plants of those varieties that are too healthy being thrown away.

FASHIONABLE PALLOR.

Pallor is quite fashionable in France, so this year if you would be fashionable as to complexion you must be excessively pale. Thinness came to be modish several seasons ago, and gray hair displaced locks of red and of gold in the coiffure; but the tinge of death was never desirable until this year, and rouge manufacturers have grown rich producing the shades of vermilion which go best with complexions of olive and cream.

All fashions are liable to change in Paris, and now women are going in for morbid effects, even in their skin. Certain classes are seeking weird complexions by rubbing powders into creamed skins, producing a sort of pasty surface that suggests again the makeup of a Pierrot. It is exactly the same that a Camile or consumptive heroine smears in behind the scene. So this complexion is now sold in Paris in pots and boxes, with directions how to apply. Anything like the slightest tinge of pink is banished, for the skin must be really a smoky white.

HINT FOR PRETTY BLOUSE.

The trimming alone gives to a linen shirtwaist the pretty effect it displays, for the waist alone is exceedingly plain with stitched bands over the shoulders, pointed at each end, to produce a Gibson effect.

The point at the back and front reached a few inches above the waist is finished with three immense eyelets on each side, at least an inch across and heavily outlined with a buttonhole stitch. A flat white silk collar, shaped to a decided V in the front, is finished with two long white ribbons laced through the eyelets and tied in a tight four-in-hand below the bust line. The cuffs are of white silk, turned back upon the short length sleeves. The lusterless silk looks very handsome with the dull white linen.

Trimming White Linen.

While linens trimmed prodigiously with heavy lace are very smart and becoming, and have the very considerable advantage of being cool, a virtue in the directoire style, notwithstanding its various transparencies and absence of petticoats—a pulled-in waist being about the hottest misery possible. One embroidered linen coat and skirt is trimmed with handsome panels of thick white lace, Irish or thick guipure, for example. Nearly the whole of the front of the coat is made of lace, with white passementerie ornaments; it continues over the shoulder, and forms a panel down the centre back of the coat. The skirt has panels of lace, which also forms a border around the foot.

Dainty Neckwear Necessary.

A pretty touch can be given to the simplest blouse by a dainty stock or tie. One that is quite simple and may easily be made at home is a combination of the narrow velvet ribbon bows that were worn last winter and a short jabot of lace.

A half-inch band of colored velvet is hooked around the base of the collar with a small, stiff, inch-wide bow in front, with two ends about an inch and a half lone falling over a plaiting of net or lace. Below is a second plaiting of the lace, with two more ends of the velvet falling over it between the double frills.

Cleaning Marabout.

To clean a marabout stole warm white cornmeal should be well rubbed in; then shake thoroughly. Repeat the process if necessary.

SMARTNESS MAY NOT MEAN GREAT OUTLAY.

There is a popular fallacy in existence that the dowdy woman is more economical than the smart, dressed girl.

But ugly clothes cost just as much as pretty ones when one has to pay for them. The woman who takes an intelligent interest in dress knows how to get the best results for the least expenditure. An eye for color, the knowledge of how to dress according to one's own style, the instinct of suitability in dress, are valuable attributes to all women whose circumstances compel them to dress well on a small allowance.

Men acknowledge that a smartly dressed wife is a help in many cases to the struggling professional man, to the business man who makes a bid for social and commercial success.

Only the very rich can afford to disregard the importance of appearances; but it is an expensive matter if she has no love of clothes. It means expensive shops; it means paying well to get the benefit of somebody else's taste in dress. The woman who genuinely loves pretty frocks, who has the artistic feeling for chiffons, studies her subject, and does not suffer so much from the tyranny of fashion. She has individuality and initiative where dress is concerned. She can get her "money's worth" when she goes shopping.

It requires brains to dress well on little. It means the exercise of caution and judgment to avoid fashion's pitfalls in the shape of passing atrocities, to choose what is at once suitable, becoming, and according to the mode.

SUGGESTIONS FOR AN EVENING PARTY.

A funny game to arrange is to assign each man of the party to the task of writing a description of some lady's gown. The name of the person whose gown is to be described must be given, paper and pencils are passed for the purpose and about ten minutes allowed for the work.

Meanwhile the women can be working for another prize in a nonsense contest of a different sort. A very absurd and exciting one is to give each feminine competitor an empty pin paper which she is required to fill in a certain length of time. The holes for the pins are already made.

A bowl of loose pins is placed on the table around which the fair players gather, and each strives to get her paper filled first. The woman whose paper is full when the time limit is up, or who has filled more rows than any fellow-worker, wins a pretty pin cushion. The gentleman whose description is considered the best by three feminine judges appointed to pronounce upon the masculine attempts receives a prize. This might be a book containing portraits of famous beauties of the past in their quaint cosumes.

A NEW BLOUSE.

The latest novelty is the blouse in filet net, braided and worn with a blouse of colored silk muslin. It is really the prettiest and latest thing. The style seems likely to become a great favorite, whether for very elegant dress or for more simple bodices, more appropriate for wearing under a tailor-made jacket.

Lawn is much worn, either striped or plain; it is made in plaits and ornamented with a white plaited jabot. Such blouses, of course, women have been wearing for years, but now there is, in addition, this new departure in filet net.

The latter is preferably cut Japanese style, and hangs quite loose, with the ends tucked into the band of the skirt; there is no decided opening, the squares of network lie one within the other, or else are separately braided and looped together with chains and knots of network. The neck is usually cut low over a yoke and a very high embroidered collar, yoke and collar being in muslin.

FOR THE BABY'S CARRIAGE.

It is a clever idea to knit straps for the baby's coach, for they may then be kept clean and the straps may match the cover. Besides this, they take little or no time to make, for they are only about twenty inches long and two or three inches wide. They may be knitted or crocheted, and present many possibilities. Finish at each end with a one-inch curtain ring, which hooks on to each side of the coach. The best material for the purpose is a heavy zephyr, which is more elastic than the finished kind and stronger.

Sometimes the straps are done in pink and white and blue and white stripes, and sometimes they are done in solid color; but anyway, the baby should have at least three straps, so that they may always be clean and always appropriate to the color worn at the time.

A bone crochet needle of medium size, or a pair of fairly thick bone knitting needles should be used, so that the stitches will not be too close together.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

Copyright by G. W. Dillingham Co.

The Pollock Diamond Robbery

There were 12 men in the smoker of a train on the Sioux City & Pacific railroad when it drew out of Omaha at six o'clock on Friday evening, November 4, 1892, and started on its eastward run. Among these 13, sitting about half-way down the aisle, enjoying a good cigar, was Mr. W. G. Pollock, of New York, a traveling salesman for W. L. Pollock & Co., of the same city, dealers in diamonds. In the inside pocket of his vest he carried $15,000 worth of uncut diamonds, while a leather satchel on the seat beside him contained a quantity of valuable stones in settings.

On the front seat of the car, just behind the stove, sat a stolid-looking young man, who would have passed for a farmer's lad. He seemed scarcely over 20, having neither beard nor mustache, and a stranger would have put him down as a rather stupid, inoffensive fellow. Compared with Mr. Pollock, he was slighter in build, although an inch or so taller. As he sat there staring at the stove, the passenger in the seat behind him, J. H. Shaw, an Omaha well-digger, a bluff, hearty man of social instincts, tried to draw him into conversation; but the young fellow only shook his head sulkily, and the well-digger relapsed into silence. Presently, as the train was approaching California Junction, the young man on the front seat rose and started down the aisle. Curiously enough, he now wore a full beard of black hair five or six inches long. No one paid any attention to him until he stopped at Mr. Pollock's seat, drew a revolver, and said loud enough for every one in the car to hear him:

"Give me them diamonds."

Then, without waiting for a reply, he shifted the revolver to his left hand, drew a slung-shot from his coat-pocket, and struck Mr. Pollock over the head such a heavy blow that the bag of the slung-shot burst, and the shot itself fell to the floor. Then he said again: "Give me them diamonds."

Realizing that the situation was desperate, Mr. Pollock took out his pocketbook and handed it to his assailant, saying: "I have only a hundred dollars; here it is."

Pushing back the pocketbook as if unworthy of his attention, the man coolly aimed his revolver at Mr. Pollock's right shoulder and fired. Then he aimed at the left shoulder and fired. Both bullets hit, and were followed by two more, which went whizzing by the diamond merchant's head on either side, missing him, perhaps by accident, but probably by design, as the men were not three feet apart.

By this time the other people in the car had disappeared under the seats like rats into their holes. To all intents and purposes Mr. Pollock was alone with his assailant. The latter evidently knew where the diamonds were secreted, for, ripping open his victim's vest, he drew out the leather wallet in which they were inclosed, and stuffed it into his pocket. Wounded though he was, Mr. Pollock now grappled with the thief, who, using the butt of his revolver as a cudgel, brought down fearful blows on Pollock's head. The latter, however, getting into the aisle, fought the robber up and down the car; but a crushing blow at last laid him senseless on the floor.

With perfect self-possession and without hurry the thief walked back down the aisle to Mr. Pollock's seat, and took one of the two leather bags lying there, by mistake choosing, though, the one that did not contain the mounted diamonds. Then he went to the end of the car, pulled the bell-rope, and, as the train began to slacken its speed in response to this signal, jumped off the steps, rolled down a bank 15 feet high and disappeared.

Sharing, apparently, in the general consternation and terror inspired by the young fellow, the conductor, instead of holding the train to pursue the thief, signaled the engineer to go ahead, and no effort was made for a capture until the train reached California Junction, several miles farther on. Meanwhile the panic-stricken passengers recovered, at their leisure, their composure and their seats. Had but one of his fellow-travelers gone to the assistance of Mr. Pollock, the robber might easily have been overpowered. As it was, he all but murdered his man, plundered him of his diamonds, and escaped without the slightest interference. When his pistol was picked up, near the spot where he left the train, it was found that in the struggle the cylinder had caught, so that it would have been impossible to discharge the two chambers remaining loaded. Thus 11 able-bodied men were held in a state of abject terror by one slender lad, who at the last was practically unarmed.

At California Junction the wounded diamond merchant was carried from the train, and the same night taken back to Omaha. Mr. Pollock, being a member of the Jewelers' Protective union, a rich and powerful organization, established some years ago for the protection of jewelry salesmen against thieves, was entitled to its aid.

When the detectives reached the scene of the robbery, the robber had vanished as completely as if he had been whisked off to another planet. To be sure, farmers in the neighborhood brought rumors of the stealing of horses, of a strange man sleeping in the woods, and of a desperate-looking character seen limping along the road. But all this came to nothing, except to establish what seemed probable, that the diamond thief had fled back to Omaha. A patient and exhaustive search in Omaha resulted in nothing. The man was gone, and the diamonds were gone; that was all anybody knew.

What made the case more difficult was the uncertainty as to the robber's personal appearance; for some of the passengers testified to one thing, and some to another. The black beard was a cause of confusion; only one witness besides Mr. Pollock remembered that the man wore such a beard. Mr. Pollock, however, was positive as to this particular, and it seemed as if he ought to know. It was also impossible to decide, from conflicting statements, whether the robber had a mustache or not, and whether it was dark or light in color. The fact is, the passengers had been so thoroughly frightened at the time of the assault that the credibility of their testimony was much to be questioned.

Mr. Pollock reported that for several weeks previous to the robbery he had suspected that he was being followed. He also reported that on the day of the robbery he had been in the shop of the largest pawnbroker in Omaha, and that while he was there two noted western gamblers had entered the shop and been presented to him as possible customers. He had made a trade of some diamonds with one of the men, and, in the course of the negotiations, had shown his entire stock. While the trade was in progress a negro on the premises had noticed, lounging about the front of the shop, a man in a slouch-hat who suggested the robber. From these circumstances it was decided that the robbery might be the work of an organized gang, who had been waiting their opportunity for many days, and had selected one of their number to do the actual deed.

All his life it had been Mr. Pinkerton's business to study criminals and understand their natures. He knew that a crime like this one was much beyond the power of an ordinary criminal. Let a robber be ever so greedy of gold, reckless of human life, and indifferent to consequences, he would still think many times before declaring war to the death upon 12 men in a narrow car, on a swiftly moving train. This was surely no novice in crime, reasoned Mr. Pinkerton, but a man whose record would already show deeds of the greatest daring; a brave fellow, though a bad one. And even among the well-known experienced criminals there must be very few who were capable of this deed.

Mr. Pinkerton, therefore, set himself to studying the bureau's records and rogues' gallery to first pick out these few. Page after page of photographs was turned over, drawer after drawer of records was searched through, and at last a dozen or more men were decided upon as sufficiently preeminent to merit consideration in connection with the present case.

Photographs of these dozen or so were speedily struck off, and submitted by the detectives to all the men who had been in the smoking-car at the time of the robbery, to the conductor of the train and the trainmen, to other passengers, to farmers and others who might have seen the robber while making his escape, and to various people in Omaha. The result was startling. Conductor D. M. Ashmore, without hesitation, selected from the dozen or more portraits one as that of the robber. Mr. Shaw, the Omaha well-digger, who had sat just behind the robber, selected the same photograph, and was positive it pictured the man he had tried to talk to. Other passengers also picked out this photograph, as did various persons who had caught sight of the man as he escaped.

The portrait thus chosen by common accord was that of Frank Bruce, one of the most desperate burglars of the younger generation in the country, and it seemed only necessary now to find Bruce, to have the problem solved. Many days were spent, and hundreds of dollars, in searching for him. Dozens of cities were visited, and every conceivable effort made to get on his track; but it was not until his pursuers were almost weary of the chase that he was finally discovered living quietly in Chicago, on Cottage Grove avenue, near Thirty-sixth street, where he was operating with another high-class burglar, "Billy" Boyce.

Requisition papers were at once procured from the governor of Iowa on the governor of Illinois, and men were sent to take Bruce into custody, when the "shadows" reported that he and Boyce had left for Milwaukee, where, of course, the requisition papers were valueless. Fortunately, that same night they attempted a burglary in Milwaukee, for which they were arrested and held for 90 days. This gave the Chicago detectives abundant time to identify Bruce as the missing robber.

Mr. Pinkerton himself went at once to Milwaukee, saw Bruce in the jail, heard his story, verified its essential facts, and within two days, to his own complete disappointment, and in spite of himself, had proved a complete alibi for Bruce. To satisfy himself in this connection, Mr. Pinkerton brought Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw to Milwaukee, and pointed Bruce out to them; and, after looking carefully at him, both men declared they had made a mistake in choosing his portrait, and that Bruce was not the robber.

With Bruce clear, the detectives were again without a suspect, and almost without a clew. Just here, however, Mr. Pinkerton recalled that on a trip to the west, some three years previous, to investigate the case of a man arrested at Reno, Nev., on a charge of "holding up" a faro-bank, and while stopping over in Salt Lake City, Utah, he had run across some sporting men in that city with whom he was well acquainted, and on his telling them where he was going and what his business was, one of them, whom Mr. Pinkerton had known for years, had said: "Why, the man at Reno is innocent. The men who committed that robbery are in this city. One of them is a smooth-faced boy, about 20 years of age, and the other is a heavy-set, dark-complexioned fellow, with a dark mustache. They are the intimate friends and companions of Jack Denton, the well-known gambler of Salt Lake; and only a short time ago, at Salt Lake, they entered a house one night, going in through a rear door, and compelled two ladies, who were just returned from a ball, to give up a large amount of diamonds."

Though not interested in this particular robbery, Mr. Pinkerton had mentally jotted down the intimacy of Jack Denton with this class of people; and he recalled it now in connection with the fact that Jack Denton was one of the two gamblers to whom Pollock had exposed his diamonds at the pawnshop in Omaha. He at once decided to secure definite information in regard to the boy who had been with Denton at Salt Lake three years earlier. Proceeding immediately to Salt Lake City, and making cautious inquiries, he learned that the boy in question, since he first heard of him, had been arrested and convicted of robbery at Ogden, Utah, and sentenced to one year's term in the penitentiary. An investigation at the penitentiary disclosed that the young man had given the name of James Burke, had served out his sentence under that name, and had been released about one month previous to the Pollock robbery.

Denton, in the meantime, had left Salt Lake and gone to Omaha, there to make his home. The boy Burke, argued the detective, had naturally followed his friend to that place. An accurate description of Burke was got from the records of the Utah penitentiary, and some idea of him and his friends was derived from the officials of the prison. But where to find him in the whole great west was a question.

Inquiries at Salt Lake developed the further fact that Burke had had one intimate friend there, a man named Marshall P. Hooker. Hooker had now, however, left Salt Lake and removed to Denver. For a man of his class, Hooker was unusually talkative, and was known by "crooks" throughout the country as "Windy" Hooker. Plans were made for keeping a watch on him and on Jack Denton, in the hope, by "shadowing" the movements of these two, of ultimately locating Burke.

Through the free talk of Hooker, reported back to the detective, it was soon learned that Burke was known by the alias of "Kid" McCoy, and that he had recently been operating on the Pacific coast in "holding up" faro-banks, and had also been concerned in two large robberies, one at Lincoln, Neb., and the other at Sacramento, Cal. His whereabouts at that time, however, were unknown.

Much time had now elapsed since the robbery, and the sensation caused by it had died out. Jack Denton and his friends seldom spoke of it, and Hooker never spoke of it unless the subject was introduced to him. Both men were extremely shy of strangers, and it was almost impossible for a detective to draw them out, as anybody who introduced the subject of the robbery was at once looked upon with suspicion. For the purpose of creating further talk upon the subject Mr. Pinkerton caused to be inserted in the Omaha papers an advertisement as follows:

"Five hundred dollars will be paid for any information leading up to the identification of the party who robbed William G. Pollock on the Sioux City & Pacific train November 4, 1892.

"WILLIAM A. PINKERTON,
"Paxton House, Omaha, Neb."

This at once attracted the attention of the local newspaper men, and when Mr. Pinkerton arrived in Omaha he was interviewed by all the papers in the city in regard to the robbery. Thus interest in the robbery was at once renewed. Denton and the other persons under suspicion commenced talking of the matter again, none more freely than Hooker.

The latter was then in Denver. Mr. Pinkerton instructed Mr. James McParland, Denver superintendent of the Pinkerton agency, to send for him, and say to him that he had understood that he (Hooker) could throw some light on the robbery, and that a large sum of money would be paid him for the information he gave. Mr. Pinkerton explained to Mr. McParland that Hooker would lie to him and endeavor to get the money by giving him false information, but to listen patiently to what he had to say and lead him on as far as possible without giving him any money. This done, Mr. Pinkerton further predicted that Hooker would go back to his cronies and boast of the way he was fooling Pinkerton and how much money he expected to get; and that eventually, through his boastings, he would prove the means of locating Burke, alias McCoy.

And so, precisely, it fell out. Some of Hooker's companions were Pinkerton detectives, although Hooker did not know them as such, and they in time reported back that Burke was really the Pollock robber; that after committing the robbery he had gone back to Omaha, and from there had gone to Denver. From Denver he went to Salt Lake, and visited a prisoner in the Salt Lake penitentiary with whom he was intimate, gave this prisoner some money, and went from Salt Lake west to the Pacific coast.

Mr. Pinkerton next instructed that the record be examined for daring "hold-ups" that might have occurred in the country lately traversed by Burke. It was then found that a faro-bank at Colorado City, a small place between Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs, had been entered late at night by a masked robber, who compelled the dealer and other persons to hold up their hands, took the money in the drawer and escaped; that later on a similar robbery had been perpetrated at San Bernardino, Cal.; that later still the pool-rooms of James Malone, a noted gambler at Tacoma, Wash., had been treated in the same manner; and, finally, that a light or pane of glass in a jewelry store at Sacramento had been broken in and a tray of diamonds snatched from the window by a daring thief. And all of these deeds, Mr. Pinkerton learned ultimately through Hooker's talk, had been done by Burke.

The watch on Denton at Omaha developed little, if anything, except that a close companionship existed between him and the Omaha pawnbroker.

During the summer of 1893, learning that an intimate friend of Burke's, a burglar who had been in prison with him in the Utah penitentiary, was confined in jail at Georgetown, Tex., Mr. Pinkerton decided to go and interview this man, and see if he could get any trace, through him, of the robber. In the meantime he instructed the detectives at Omaha and Denver to keep a particularly close watch on Jack Denton and Hooker.

On Mr. Pinkerton's arrival at Austin, Tex., he found awaiting him dispatches from Superintendent McParland of the Denver agency, stating that through Hooker's talk they had learned that "Kid" McCoy, or Burke, had been arrested at Eagle, Col., with a kit of burglar tools in his possession, and was then in jail at Leadville, Col.

Mr. Pinkerton at once telegraphed to have Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw, the well-digger, go to Leadville and see if they could identify the prisoner. Word was also sent to New York for Mr. Pollock to do the same. He also instructed Superintendent McParland at Denver to send his assistant, J. C. Fraser, to watch the case, so that if McCoy gave bail, or attempted to escape from the Leadville jail, they could be ready with a warrant for his arrest on account of the Pollock robbery.

Having wired these instructions, Mr. Pinkerton proceeded on his journey to Georgetown, Tex., where he called on McCoy's former prison associate in the Utah penitentiary, but was unable to get him to tell anything about McCoy, though he volunteered, if Mr. Pinkerton would furnish him a bond and get him out of his Texas scrape, to go to Omaha and compel the "fence" who had received the diamonds to turn back the property. But the rule of the Jewelers' Protective union was to get the thief first and the property afterward; so no treaty was made with the Texas prisoner.

Mr. Pinkerton now went to Kansas City, and found awaiting him there dispatches from Superintendent McParland of the Denver agency, stating that Conductor Ashmore and Messrs. Shaw and Pollock had positive identified the prisoner James Burke, alias "Kid" McCoy, as the man who assaulted Mr. Pollock and robbed him of his diamonds.

Burke winced perceptibly when he saw Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw, and went fairly wild when confronted by Mr. Pollock. Requisition papers were obtained from the governor of the state of Iowa on the governor of Colorado, and the Colorado offense being a minor one, Burke was turned over to Assistant Superintendent Fraser and another detective, to be taken to Logan, Harrison county, Ia. Before leaving Leadville Mr. Fraser was confidentially warned by the sheriff of the county that he could not be too careful of his prisoner; for that Burke, through a friend of the sheriff, had made a proposition to the latter to pay him a thousand dollars if he would secretly furnish him with a revolver when he left the jail, his design being, with this revolver, to either "hold-up" or kill the two detectives who had him in custody and make his escape from the train.

On trial at Logan, Ia., the man was easily convicted, and was sentenced to imprisonment for a term of 17 years.

Last season's duties, to a girl, she says exacting were.

He talks of gold in large amounts; of Wall street's tiresome grind.
She prates of countesses and counts, the good old Ouida kind.
The truth they wholly set at naught whilst lading out this stuff—
Two souls with but a single thought, of putting up a bluff!

BASEBALL.

The Plainfield Giants and the Jr. O. U. A. M. team will meet on Hope Common, Saturday, to play off the game stopped by rain last week. It was called in the fourth inning with the score standing 6 to 1 in favor of the Giants. The latter line up as follows: W. Johnson, lf; Hatchett, rf; Perkins, 1b; Warrick (captain), 3b; M. Johnson, 2b; McClain, ss; Carter, cf; Vanderveer, c; Brokaw and Brown, p; Willis, sub.

Fully 100 Plainfielders were included in the big crowd that witnessed the sixteen inning contest between the Pittsburg and New York Nationals league teams at the Polo grounds, yesterday afternoon. The Daily Press bulletin service furnished results of the game as it progressed and when the final score was given fully several hundred enthusiastic fans were in waiting for the figures to go on the board.

The Plainfield and Newark Y. M. C. A. State league teams will cross bats in this city, Saturday afternoon, on Crescent Oval. The game will mean a great deal to the locals as they stand with a record of six victories and two losses while Newark has the same number of victories and has dropped but one. If Plainfield wins out Saturday, it has a fine chance to hold first place.

On Saturday afternoon at Cammann Field, Somerville, the West Ends will have for their opponents the crack Scotch Plains team and a royal battle between these nines is expected. Luyster will be in the box for the West Ends.

The Far Hills nine will be the opponents of the Whitehouse Station A. A. at Whitehouse Park next Saturday afternoon.

Carnegie Gets Shaken Up.

Inverness, Scotland, July 29.—The car in which Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie were motoring here yesterday was in collision with another car. Mr. Carnegie's car was damaged, but no one was injured, although they were somewhat alarmed.

Blackville-Veterans Game Tomorrow.

The game between the Blackville ball team and "Gamey" Nelson's Veterans, called off last Thursday because of rain, will be played on Hope Common tomorrow afternoon. The two sides will line up practically as before. A stake of $25 will go to the winners and there is sure to be some hard work in order to land it. Time is to be called at 2:30.

Juniors to Play Local Giants.

The Plainfield Giants will meet the Jr. O. U. A. M. team on Hope Common Saturday afternoon and will endeavor to repeat their victory of last week. Rain prevented the completion of last Saturday's game, forcing the players to leave the diamond in the sixth inning, when the score was 6-1 in favor of the Giants.

Practising for Westfield Races.

Half a dozen members of the Plainfield Cycle Club are holding regular practise for the bicycle races to be held at Westfield Saturday, August 8. The event is to be a road race, and Jack Todd, Harry Hook, Sherman Haberele, Harry Warren, Raymond Mantz and Robert Guttridge are getting in condition by a series of evening spins and sprints.

While nothing in Mr. Cleveland's will, which was filed several weeks ago, indicates the amount of his fortune, and although no official announcement has been made as to its extent, it became known at Princeton yesterday that his personal and real property amounts to $250,000.

Trinity's Excursion Tomorrow.

With prospects of ideal weather, the members of Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel, together with the friends of both, are looking forward to the annual excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove tomorrow. Two sections have been engaged to carry the pleasure seekers to the shore and the committee has made all possible arrangements for their comfort. The trains will leave the North avenue station at 8:15 and the return trip will commence at 7 o'clock in the evening.

MRS. KATZ'S PROOF NOT FORTHCOMING.

Man She Said Was Her Husband Shows Certificate of Marriage With Another.

After being forced to play a part in an embarrassing scene at the corner of Market and Broad streets, Newark, when the woman who claimed to be his wife clung to him until both were taken to the station house the evening before, Hyman Katz showed the certificate of his marriage in the First Precinct Police Court yesterday, and said his wife and three children were living in Bergen street.

Katz, who is a tailor, admitted living with the woman who said she was Mrs. Katz, in Germany many years ago, but said he had never married her.

The alleged Mrs. Katz lives in St. Mark's place, Manhattan. She was arraigned for disorderly conduct, and could not produce proof of the marriage she said was contracted in Germany. She was willing to settle the case for $200, but Katz did not have the money. Katz made no complaint against the woman.

VOTING MACHINES DOOMED

Special Election Called in Second Ward, Jersey City.

Jersey City, July 29.—Jersey City is after the obnoxious voting machine. At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen two sets of petitions asking that the machines be done away with were presented by the voters of the ten districts of the Second ward. The machines were placed in this Democratic ward two years ago in the hope of confusing the Democratic voters, and the returns showed it had the desired effect.

Republicans as well as Democrats signed the petitions for their removal, and the Board of Aldermen decided to order a special election for Wednesday, September 2. As the petitions bear the names of 80 per cent. of the voters of the ward, the machines are doomed.

BOY'S BODY RECOVERED.

Twelve Pounds of Dynamite Had to Be Fired in Cranberry Lake.

The body of 9-year-old George Wissel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wissel, of 41 Holland street, Newark, who was drowned at Cranberry Lake last Sunday, was recovered last evening at 6 o'clock.

Fourteen sticks of dynamite, weighing twelve pounds, were used in trying to bring the body to the surface, and the lake was dotted with small boats grappling for the body of the little lad, yet it was not until more than forty-eight hours had elapsed that the body's body came to the surface.

Undertaker Haebler, of Springfield avenue, Newark, left last night for the scene of the accident, and will bring the remains back to Newark today.

Receiver for Pleasure Resort.

Thomas Haight, a Jersey City lawyer, was appointed receiver yesterday by Vice-Chancellor Garrison for Melville Park, an amusement resort at Newark Bay and 50th street, Bayonne. The park was opened a year ago, and at the close of the season was $60,000 in debt. The creditors this year advanced $10,000 to run the resort, and William Van Clief, of Staten Island, who has a claim of $28,000 for lumber, and Alvin H. Cortwright, of Bayonne, were appointed trustees. It is likely that the resort will be sold. There is a mortgage of $60,000 on it.

RAILROAD TO TEST LAW LIMITING HOURS OF WORK.

United States Marshal Thomas J. Alcott yesterday at Trenton made service in an interesting complaint led by counsel for the Erie Railroad Company against the Inter-State Commerce Commission in the United States Circuit Court there, complaining that an order of the commission requiring railroads to report the hours employes worked was in contravention of the fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution of the United States in that it was compelling railroads to give information which might be used against them in a suit for alleged violation of the act of Congress "Limiting the Hours of Service of Employes," approved March 4, 1907.

A novel feature of the suit is a prospective defendant coming into court first as complainant against the rulings of the possible complainant, the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and asking the court to construe not only the methods adopted for getting information for enforcing the law, but to give opinion as to the constitutionality of the law itself.

The bill of complaint recites the law, which provides a penalty of $50.

NEWSBOY HERO SAVES HIS CHUM.

Stubinsky Pulls Him From Pond at Haddonfield Camp After Hard Struggle.

Risking his own life to save that of a fellow newsboy, Morris Stubinsky, 16 years old, of 226 Delancey street, Philadelphia, jumped into twelve feet of water in a pond at the newsboys' camp at Haddonfield Monday night and rescued Charles Blooney, 15, also of Philadelphia.

The rescue, witnessed by a dozen small newsboys, who either could not swim or who were too frightened to give aid, was effected only after a desperate struggle, and more than once it looked as if Stubinsky must give up and be pulled down by his struggling companion. But each time the young life-saver would extricate himself and continue his efforts, until finally the shore was reached. The boys marched home yesterday and when Stubinsky was asked about it, he said:

"Say, gud id out, gud id, dat ain't nuthin'."

Major Claims Papers Held by Negro.

Major William M. Wright, of the 8th United States Infantry, stationed at Fort McDowell, California, has telegraphed to Adjutant General Perkins at Governor's Island that the badge and papers bearing the signatures of President McKinley and Roosevelt which were found on Henry L. Moore, a negro, held at Orange on suspicion, are his property. Unless some new charge can be brought against the negro he will be out of jail in Saturday, when his ten day sentence will expire.

FIGHTING "WHITE PLAGUE"

Miss Mamie Leahy, Cured of Lung Trouble, is Doing a Noble Work Here.

A MOUNTAIN CAMP NEEDED?

Local Society's Visiting Nurse Works In Co-operation With Board of Health Does Her Best to Stamp Out Dread Disease.

Although there is a possibility that a tuberculosis camp may be founded on the Watchung Mountains back of the city for the care of city and borough residents afflicted with "The White Plague," Health Officer Leon Thurlow told a reporter for The Daily Press today that the plan of a mountain isolation camp is not being agitated at present because of the fact that there are very few who would be willing to go to such a retreat for treatment.

"To found and maintain such a tuberculosis camp," Mr. Thurlow said, "would involve an expense of more than $3,000 a year. While Plainfield has at least its share of consumptives, they are under careful supervision of Miss Mamie Leahy, the visiting nurse of the Plainfield Tuberculosis Society, the local physicians, the Organized Aid Society, and the boards of health of both city and borough. The community does not need an isolation camp to fight the disease.

"An active campaign is being waged here against tuberculosis," Mr. Thurlow continued, "but this is not because the general health of city and borough is menaced by the disease. All over the country an effort is being made to stamp out "The White Plague" and Plainfield is working hard to co-operate with this movement, along with various cities and towns all over the State. Miss Leahy has cured herself of tuberculosis by the out-door treatment, and as the visiting nurse of the Society here is doing a great work among consumptives of city and borough."

"I have always been interested in securing a tuberculosis camp on the mountain, but Miss Leahy tells me it is very hard to persuade local people who have lung trouble to agree to go to such a camp if it were founded. They are given excellent care in their homes, with the suggestions of Miss Leahy and the physicians for the most part strictly obeyed, and I do not consider them dangerous to the community. Miss Leahy says that there are only about five or six whom she could persuade to go to a mountain isolation camp."

Miss Mamie Leahy, who is the visiting nurse of the Plainfield Tuberculosis Society, was seen at her home on East Fifth street by a Daily Press representative yesterday afternoon. She is brimful of enthusiasm for the work she is doing against tuberculosis, and has been especially successful since her appointment by the society about two years ago.

"Tuberculosis is spreading alarmingly throughout the country," she said, "but the situation here is by no means dangerous. All cases of 'cough' in which a physician is summoned are reported to the boards of health, if they develop into tuberculosis. My work is essentially a work of instruction. I go to people and give them sputum cups, impressing upon them the danger which lurks in tuberculous sputum. I tell them what they ought to eat, urge them to live out-doors as much as possible, and tell those living with them how they must be cared for.

"Tuberculosis is not as much of a 'plague' as people try to make out. I believe that there is no danger from any well-cared-for consumptive in any home. The danger lurks in the sputum alone, and if consumptives could be made to realize this, there would be no danger, absolutely none. We don't really need a tuberculosis camp, but I'd like to see one started. This will only be made possible if I can persuade local people to go there and take advantage of the treatment. A local physician has said that the Watchung Mountains are as healthful as the Adirondacks, but the idea of isolation, which is really unnecessary, I think, is distasteful."

$50 Fine For Liquor Violation.

James Regan, of this city, who recently pleaded non vult to selling liquor from a wagon in Plainfield without a license, was fined $50 in the county court, yesterday. His counsel, Samuel Schleimer, explained that Regan was merely an employe and had nothing to gain from the violation. The defendant is employed by Adolph Bohren, of Greenbrook road.

"Salt Water Day" the 13th.

The annual outing of the Calvary Baptist Sunday-school will be held Thursday, August 12, at South Beach. Special trolley cars will leave the station at 9 o'clock in the morning and the excursion will return late in the evening.

INTOXICATED MAN ROCKS HIMSELF THROUGH WINDOW

Eugene Sutton, a young man whose home is on West Front street, recently returned from Florida, where he visited friends in his native city. He conducted a quiet celebration, last night, in honor of getting back to Plainfield and as a result became pretty well loaded. Somehow or oher he lost his bearings and becoming tired after an ineffectual attempt to locate the proper trail to his boarding place, he selected a rocking chair on the porch of Theodore Pruden's residence, on East Second street, wherein to rest.

The fact that it was close on to midnight didn't feaze Sutton in the least and he proceeded to have a good time. The rocking motion of the chair was glorious and he made it go higher and higher. Finally his efforts proved more than the rocker could stand and it went over backward. With a tremendous crash, Sutton banged into a window and then dropped to the porch amid a jingling of broken glass.

The racket roused up the Pruden family and the greater part of the neighborhood. A young man on the street ran after Patrolman Nolan and the unfortunate Sutton was lugged off to jail. He was arraigned in the city court, this morning, but Judge Runyon let him go after getting his promise that he would pay for the demolished window.

PASTOR'S SERIES ON "PILGRIMS' PROGRESS"

Shoop, pastor of the church, has announced the subjects for each of the five sermons to be preached during the month, and music will be at feature of the Sunday evening services. These are the subjects:

August 2: John Bunyan, the prisoner of Bedford jail, and his Immortal Allegory, "Pilgrim's Progress."

August 9: Christian leaves the City of Destruction and Starts on his Long Pilgrimage to Mount Zion.

August 16: Christian at the Wicket Gate.

August 23: Christian at the Palace Beautiful; his New Armor; his Battle with Apollyon; his Experience in Doubting Castle.

August 30: Christian Crossing the River and Entering the City of the Heavenly Jerusalem.

PARALYSIS CAUSES DEATH OF WILLIAM B. MARTIN.

William B. Martin, aged seventy-eight years, died this morning at his ome on lower Clinton avenue in the Maple Grove section. He had been ailing for several months with paralysis, having suffered a stroke last spring. The family has lived in this section for the past fifteen years, removing here from Roselle. Mrs. Martin died sixteen months ago. There are surviving one son, Frank Martin, and two daughters, the Misses Martin.

The funeral will be held at the late residence Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The burial will be private.

First Presbyterian Supplies.

The following supplies have been announced for the First Presbyterian church during Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring's vacation: August 2, Rev. Allen R. Bartholomew, D. D., of Philadelphia, secretary Foreign Board of the Reformed church; August 9, Rev. Percy F. Schelley, of Philadelphia; August 16, Rev. Lewis Bond, of Plainfield; August 23, Rev. Chas. E. Bronson, D. D., of Philadelphia West Hope Presbyterian church. On August 30 and September 6 the church will be closed for repairs.

Dr. Endicott Returning.

Dr. G. W. Endicott, who went abroad some weeks ago when summoned by a celebrated Berlin physician for consultation over an American patient, sailed for home on Tuesday. The patient accompanies him.

Date For Herron's Execution.

The Middlesex County Court has fixed the week beginning September 7 as the date for the execution of Archibald Herron, found guilty on Tuesday afternoon of the murder of Rev. S. B. D. Prickitt, of Metuchen.

His License Revoked.

The inn and tavern license of Joseph Kula, at Elizabeth, who got it without first getting a place to use it, was ordered revoked by Judge Atwater yesterday morning on application of Prosecutor Swift.

PLAN OVATION WHEN MARTIN RETURNS HOME

Comment everywhere is favorable to the project of a public reception to be given Major W. G. Martin, formerly captain of Co. K, of this city, at Elizabeth.

Sportsmen, public-spirited citizens, city officials and military enthusiasts come within the list of those who are particularly interested in this movement to honor an Elizabeth man who has done what few have the opportunity to do. Various private individuals and many collective bodies of men have in times past so conducted themselves as to bring credit to the city and to the State. Few, however, as those interested in the Martin tribute movement point out, have brought renown from the field of competition which comprised the whole world.

Governor J. Franklin Fort says: "Elizabeth does well to honor Major Martin.

"J. FRANKLIN FORT."

Details as to the celebration are few at present. It is known that the Elizabeth City Council will pass a fitting resolution, and that by its direction a committee will be appointed to receive Major Martin.

General D. F. Collins will order out companies of the militia, in order to provide a military escort for the champion rifleman, and some sort of appropriate program will be arranged at the Elizabeth City Hall.

It will be a day or two before it is definitely known when Major Martin will return to his home and in the meantime various plans of celebration will be considered.

BLACK HAND DEMANDS MILLIONS FROM FORT

Camp Fort, Sea Girt, July 39.—Governor Fort has received a Black Hand postal card. He says it frightened him, but that he feels safe while the soldiers are in camp. The card was mailed at Atlantic City, was without signature of any kind, and read as follows:

"Gov. Mr. Fort:

"Dear Sir—Leave $10,000,000 at the bridge leading from Trenton to Morrisville Friday, July 31, on pain of death."

The writer sent the missive to Trenton, evidently not having noticed that the executive has not been in that city for several weeks, having conducted all his State business from the office here.

HEBREWS DENOUNCE STAGE CARICATURES AND PLAYS.

The stage Jew was denounced yesterday in resolutions adopted at the convention of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of North America at Paterson. The resolutions set forth that the stage Jew made the sons of Israel look ridiculous. Immoral plays and yellow journalism were also denounced. The convention also denounced "the jargon dailies that mock everything that is noble, ideal and holy in Judaism." It also denounced "the reform style of imitative, apelike Judaism of the so-called modern schools that send into the congregation rabbis without any learning, without the fear of God, and who make rabbinical clack a source of gain to themselves."

The Rev. Dr. B. L. Leventhal, of Philadelphia, was named as presiding elder of the Eastern district, which comprises New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and the Rev. M. S. Zivitch, of Pittsburg, and the Rev. S. Rosenberg, of Brooklyn, first and second vice presidents, having jurisdiction over the Western, Southern and Northern States.

The convention advocated the establishment of elementary schools throughout the country, the installation of Jewish literature in the free public libraries and the founding of a national institute for rabbis.

Exploding Dynamite Hurts Boys.

John Guy Waller, eleven years old, of No. 87 Sherman avenue, Jersey City; his brother, Emil, seven years old, and Daniel Kelly, ten years old, of No. 86 Sherman avenue, where hurt yesterday by exploding a stick of dynamite with a hammer in the Waller back yard. The report was heard at the 6th Precinct police station. Officers Short and Lomasney got the Waller boys to the office of Dr. Faber, and Kelly to Dr. Hornblower's office. Kelly may lose an eye. The dynamite was probably lost by a contractor for the railroad excavation work of the Erie or Lackawanna road.

Will Hold Watermelon Feast.

The Ernest Workers' Circle, of Bethel chapel, will hold a watermelon feast next Thursday afternoon at the casino on Peterson's lawn at Berckman street and St. Mary's avenue. Music will be a feature of the affair.

EXCISE VIOLATION CASE

W. S. Frederick, H. S. Garretson and Other Dunellenites Testify Against Trainor.

A BOARDER OR BARTENDER?

As Sequel to Conviction of Charles Wyckoff, Senator Silzer Is Fighting to Prove Trainor Innocent.

Wilson Frederick, Postmaster Henry S. Garretson and Michael A. Gallagher, of Dunellen, were among the witnesses for the State at the trial of Peter Trainor, of Dunellen, before Judge Booraem at New Brunswick today, charged with selling liquor without a license. The case occupied the entire morning in the court and was resumed again after the mid-day recess. It will not be concluded today. Trainor's case is a companion one to the Charles Wyckoff case, in which Wyckoff pleaded non vult and was fined $250 and sentenced to sixty days in jail. Wyckoff put up no fight in his case, but Trainer has retained State Senator George S. Silzer as his lawyer.

The State claimed at the trial this morning that Trainer was associated with Wyckoff in the conducting of the hotel and was equally responsible with him for the sale of liquor without a license. In his testimony today, Trainor stated that he is simply a boarder at Wyckoff's place and had no connection with the hotel business. This statement was supported by three Dunellenites, Alexander Wolff, Alexander Harris and Nelson Strand, who swore that they had never seen him selling liquor or working about the place.

Wilson Frederick, local manager of the U. S. Express Co., testified that he saw liquor served by Trainor at Wyckoff's hotel on November 4, 1907. He said there were eight or ten bottles of beer served by Trainor. Michael Gallagher, of Dunellen, and Detective Frank Hoffman, with Special Detectives Thomas Brennan and Frank Kean, testified the same. Other Dunellenites who gave testimony for the State were Postmaster Henry S. Garretson, Elizabeth VanFleet, Harry VanFleet and Clarence Henry. Judge Booraem would not admit the record of Wyckoff's sentence as evidence. Peter Scott, of Dunellen, is one of the members of the jury.

CAKE IS A SNAKE MAN.

Is Shedding His Skin for the 28th Time.

William U. Cake, a linodeum printer of Trenton, who sheds his cuticle just like a snake, is now losing his skin for the twenty-eighth time during the fifty-three years of his life. The mysterious serpentine characteristic comes to Cake regularly every two or three years. Many doctors have examined him, but none has been able to diagnose or explain his trouble.

The attacks have come to Cake periodically ever since he was a baby, and he is now getting discouraged. During the shedding of his skin he experiences great pain.

Man Killed On Bayonne Bridge.

A well-dressed man about 58 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, was struck by an eastbound express train on the Central Railroad drawbridge between Bayonne and Elizabethport last night, and was instantly killed. On the body was found a card reading: "William F. Fallow, Elect. Contractor, 85 York street, Jersey City." The body was taken to the morgue.

HORSE STEALING CHARGE FOLLOWS SKY-LARKING

Andrew Smith, a young colored man employed by J. P. Homan, appeared in the city court, this morning, and preferred complaint against Ethel Rogers and "Punchie" Lewis, two of his lady friends, who he alleged had appropriated a rig belonging to his employer and ridden around town in its despite his protests. They got aboard, he said, while he was changing his coat at the Rogers home, where he has lodgings.

"Ah don't care to have 'em 'specially punished, Yo' Honah," he said to Judge Runyon, "but as Ah was in an awful hurry at the time and might have lost mah job if the boss had seen them two in his wagon, Ah think yud better give 'em a jackin' up."

The magistrate replied that horse stealing is a serious offense and that though Jersey justice doesn't prescribe hanging for the crime, as is done in the West, the young women would have to stand the consequences Smith was also warned that he would be "in bad" with the two defendants and all their friends for preferring such a terrible charge against them.

"H'm, that's so," mused the complainant; "Ah hadn't looked at it in that way; perhaps Ah'd better not have 'em arrested.

"Too late," exclaimed Chief Kiely, who had heard the tale of woe, "the matter is now in the hands of the State."

And as a result Ethel and "Punchie" will be arraigned tomorrow morning for horse stealing.

VIRGIN APPEARS TO A MEXICAN HERDER

The Catholic church authorities in Mexico City have received advices of a marvelous apparation of a new Mexican virgin, which has been baptized by the name of Nuestra Senora De Zapotlan.

Hundreds of devout worshippers are making pilgrimage to the place near the town of Zapotlan, state of Jalizso, where the virgin is alleged to have appeared.

The story of her appearance was brought to the local priest Zapotlan by a herder, who stated that during a violent thunderstorm in the hills he saw the virgin emerge from a rock which had been split by a stroke of lightning. The priest immediately took up a collection and organized a pilgrimage to the new shrine.

CONDEMNED MAN EXAMINED.

To Doctors Testing His Sanity Lang Said He Didn't Believe in Future Life.

New Brunswick, July 30.—Dr. Britton D. Evans, medical director of the Morris Plains Hospital for the Insane, made another examination of Frederick Lang, the condemned murderer, at the jail yesterday afternoon. Dr. Evans had examined Lang at the time of the trial, when the question of the prisoner's sanity had been raised, and at that time he pronounced him sane enough to go on trial. Lang's counsel will have a commission examine him as to his sanity and the examination yesterday was for the State.

Dr. William E. Ramsay, who said that Archibald Herron, the slayer of Rev. S. D. Prickitt, was an alcoholic paranoiac, also examined Lang yesterday. The doctors have not made their report public. Lang talked freely with the doctors for an hour and a half, and discussed questions intelligently. He would not talk about the crime, his mind seemed to be a blank on that point, but he talked about himself and declared that he didn't care what was done with him.

He said that if he lives there is nothing in the future for him. His life has been wasted and, living or dead, his life is over. When asked if he was prepared for the future life he replied that he did not believe in a future life. Death, he said, ended all.

Uses Kite to Protect Chickens.

The science of aviation has been adapted by John Wolfe, a poultry raiser on Hook Mountain, near Montclair, to protect his young chickens from the hawks. Wolfe has several box kites flying above his henneries, and the sight of them acts as an effectual deterrent to the rapacious birds. Wolfe got the idea from his young nephew, who spent a vacation on his farm. Since the kites have been used Wolfe has not lost a single fowl.

Stanley Garrett.

Stanley Garrett, the thirteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Greer Garrett, of Grove street, died last night after a brief illness. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

BOROUGH RECORDER AWAY; COUNCILMAN THE JUDGE

The fact that Borough Recorder Charles Dolliver went on the Trinity Reformed church excursion to Asbury Park today mixed things all up in the North Plainfield police department this morning and kept George Abler a prisoner while Chief Marshal Weiss was telephoning around town for somebody to act as judge in the borough cadi's place. Councilman M. C. Van Arsdale, chairman of the police committee, and the formal acting mayor of North Plainfield now, was finally called upon to act as judge. He suspended sentence.

Abler was found in a helplessly intoxicated condition at Jackson avenue and Somerset street late last night by Marshal Charles Keller. He said that his home is in New York, and left for that city as soon as he was discharged from the court room today.

Acting Mayor L. B. Woolston left this morning for Atlantic iCty, where he will remain for a week, returning in time to officiate at the Borough Council meeting next Friday night. Councilman C. L. Nichols, chairman of the finance committee, is next in line to act as Mayor, but he, too, is out of town. Councilman Van Arsdale will be North Plainfield's chief executive for the next week.

JUDGE ATWATER PRAISES THE BISHOPS' BILL

Strong praise for the bishops' law was voiced by Judge Atwater in the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth yesterday in imposing the first sentence for violation of the screen law in Union county.

"The screen law which you have violated," said the Judge to Valentine Balling, of Elizabeth, "must be observed, and no law-abiding citizen will attempt its violation. It has been illegal to sell liquor on Sunday for years. The bishops' bill imposed no new requirements in that respect, and no man who is engaged in the liquor traffic, and is obeying the law, would hesitate for a moment to comply with its provisions.

"I have decided not to impose a prison sentence in these first cases, but I wish it understood that I am making no precedent. The court would have everybody understand that it will enforce the law by all means in its power—and the means are considerable."

Because of peculiar circumstances Balling was sentenced to pay a fine of but $100. The jury which found him guilty made a strong recommendation for mercy, and Edward Nugent, his counsel, presented facts showing he was an invalid and that his wife took care of the saloon at the time of the alleged violation. Mr. Nugent also presented a petition asking clemency, signed by John Bender and others.

William Klein, also of Elizabeth, found guilty of screen violation, was fined $200.

TEARS LETTER; ENDS LIFE.

Mystery in Suicide of Young Woman in West Hoboken.

Miss May Louise Kobold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kobold, of 250 Clinton avenue, West Hoboken, committed spicide during Tuesday night by taking carbplic acid. She had a good position with the Singer Sewing Machine Company, at its branch office in Washington street, near Second street, Hoboken, and until Tuesday night she seemed to be in good health and spirits. On her return home she found a letter which seemed to worry her. After she had read it she tore it into small bits and threw it away. The police are trying to put it together.

When her parents retired she remained downstairs, and later they were aroused by her falling and groaning, and found her beside their door. The empty acid bottle was found in the kitchen. On the dining-room table was found a note, which read:

"Don't blame any one else for this."

It is said she was in love with a young man in Hoboken, to whom she gave her photograph.

Recapture Asylum Fugitive.

Bart Uimer, who escaped from the Morristown Asylum three weeks ago, was captured near Everettstown Tuesday night and committed to the jail at Flemington yesterday. Ulmer was sentenced a year and a half ago to ten years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He became insane four months ago. He had been convicted of horse stealing.

Wants College Land Assessed.

Dr. William J. Arlitz, police surgeon, made a formal demand on the Hoboken Board of Assessors yesterday that the campus and ground of Fraternity Home be assessed this this year.

NO POLITICS, SAYS FISK

Head of State Excise Commission Makes Tart Reply to Democrats' Claim.

DENIES ITS CAMPAIGN CAPITAL.

"Bob" Davis and Other Democratic Leaders Attempt In Vain to Discredit Gov. Fort's Probers.

The Trenton True American yesterday telegraphed Mayor C. J. Fisk, of this city, at Saranac Inn, in the Adirondacks, where he is a guest, and advised him that Robert Davis and other Democratic leaders and many newspapers were severely criticising the excise commission for suspending public operation just as it was planned to visit Republican cities.

The Mayor sent this reply:

"Thanks for your telegram. No statement to make at present. My compliments to Robert Davis and the newspapers referred to. They know it all now. But they may not be so wise when the commission gets ready to talk."

Democratic leaders in Elizabeth take the same view as Davis, and attack the commission for not proceeding promptly to inquire into conditions in Republican cities. The Elizabeth Times criticises the commission bitterly on the same score.

Down in Atlantic City, where great apprehension was felt over the scheduled invasion of the commission, a report is circulated by the Democrats to the effect that the inquiry will not be conducted in that town until after the November election. Local officials and Republican politicians, who credit the report and who have their hands full with a factional fight, are said to be in high glee at the decision not to immediately investigate excise affairs there. Asbury Park has a different view entirely of the prospective activities of the commission. From the latter city the story comes that Chairman Fisk will pilot his colleagues into that prohibition community before the end of August, under a new schedule to be adopted soon.

ROSELLE MAYOR'S WIFE BURNED IN ODD MANNER.

Mrs. Charles W. MacQuoid, wife of the Mayor of Roselle and well known in this city, is confined to her home as the result of burns which she received about the neck and shoulders while she was riding on a Central Railroad train last Saturday.

Mrs. MacQuoid was returning from New York and was seated near an open window when a spark from a passing locomotive blew in and fell upon her clothing. Her waist caught on fire and before the blaze was extinguished her skin was scorched and burned. She was assisted home where Dr. Pierson gave treatment. Mayor MacQuoid and family had planned to go to Lake Hopatcong for a few days and the accident postponed the visit until the end of this week.

Mrs. MacQuoid is a sister-in-law to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clouston, of East Fifth street.

AUTO BUS LINE FOR COUNTRY CLUB MEMBERS.

To accommodate the commuter members and their guests from New York city, the management of the Plainfield Country Club has arranged to have an auto bus run between the North Avenue station and the club house Saturday afternoon and evening. The bus is to meet the 1:10 and 1:30 trains from New York, and in addition will run between the trolley terminal and the club house between 5:15 and 7:15 o'clock and between 9:15 and 11:15 at night.

There will be the usual weekly dance at the Club, Saturday, and dinner will be served to all who place their orders in advance.

To Arrange a "Stunt Party."

Miss Elsie Goddard is chairman of a committee of the Y. W. C. A. members who will meet at the association tonight to complete plans for a "Stunt Party" to be held a week from tonight. Other members of the committee are the Misses Sarah Head, Lillian Fedderman, Florence Jennings, Autumn DeLany, Florence Wyckoff and Meta Rose. The affair, which promises to be of a decidedly novel character, will be the principal social event of the month at the association.

Sanderson Released.

Sentence was suspended on Al Sanderson when arraigned in the city court this morning. He was taken in custody yesterday by Patrolman Flynn who found him in a mixed-fit in the alley back of French's mill. Sanderson claimed the fit was due to natural causes and not brought on by too much third rail rum.

NOTICE. The policy adopted by us two years ago will be continued this year during the heated term, when we open at 8:30 and close at 5:30. We are convinced that this move will be appreciated by our employes and the general public and hope that our patrons may not feel inconvenienced, but will rather assist us by shopping between the hours above indicated. Saturdays we will be open as usual until 10 p. m.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

About twenty of Frank Hand's friends from here and Plainfield tendered him a surprise party at his home on Park avenue last night. The affair was a success in every way, Frank being completely surprised and every one having one of the best times of their lives. The lawn about the house was soon decorated and lighted by Chinese lanterns, and the games played in the open air. After games, music and refreshments were enjoyed in the parlor. The pleasant affair was arranged by his mother, Mrs. Edward Hand, and Miss Dorothy Smith, of Netherwood avenue.

A few of the fans will accompany the team to Somerville Saturday afternoon. The majority of them are unable to make the trip on account of working until 1 o'clock Saturdays.

Constable Robert Walpole, who was injured at the ball game two weeks ago, is able to be around again, but is still quite sore from the bruises he received in the melee.

EUGENE MIANNAY DIES.

Retired Manufacturer of Perfume Extracts Passes Away at Elizabeth.

Eugene Miannay, one of the pioneer French settlers in Elizabeth, where he had lived for more than half a century, died yesterday morning at his old home, 540 Edgar road. He was born in France, about eighty years ago. He carried on in New York city, for nearly forty years, a perfumery business, being a dealer, manufacturer and importer of perfume extracts.

Mr. Miannay was one of the early Catholics of Elizabeth and one of the original members of St. Mary's Church of the Assumption, the first Catholic religious edifice in Elizabeth. He was a man of much learning and ability. He leaves a widow, two married daughters and three sons, Henry, Everest and Edward Mianay, the last named school commissioner for the Sixth ward of Elizabeth. Mr. Miannay retired from business some years ago.

HYPNOTIZED BY GIPSY.

Unger Says He Was Relieved of Money and Ring.

Michael Unger, who lives under the shadow of the University of Princeton, buzzed into the central police station at Trenton yesterday and excitedly asked Sergeant McGowan to cast off a hypnotic spell which he said had been put upon him by a gipsy woman in the suburbs of Trenton.

According to Unger, he went to the gipsy camp Sunday and was invited by a pretty gipsy girl to talk to her. She told his fortune, and Unger says that while she was doing so he was placed under a hypnotic spell and relieved of all his cash and a gold ring. He says the dark eyes of the dusky nomad pierced his very soul, and he had no power over himself for several hours. Even now, he says, he is under the spell. Sergeant McGowan made several passes before Unger's eyes, but it did no good. Unger's complaint is being investigated.

BOY KILLS MAN IN DEFENDING HIS SISTER

Guarding his home against intrusion and protecting himself and sister from attack, Bonaslos Cznick, 18 years old, shot and killed Edward Broderick yesterday afternoon in the house 34 Court street, Jersey City, where Cznick lived. This is in the west end of the city, close to the Hackensack river.

Young Cznick and his sister, Marie, 14 years old, were alone in the house. His father is a railroad laborer and his mother went to New York to visit relatives. She told Bonaslos to take good care of the house, and be careful not to let any one in during her absence. Many tramps frequent the neighborhood. Broderick, who was 40 years old, and worked in the West End section, had been drinking. He knocked on the door of the Cznick home. Cznick, remembering his mother's warning, refused to open the door. Broderick kept knocking and insisting that the door be opened. Young Cznick ordered him away.

"If you do not open the door I will break it in," said Broderick.

Cznick and his sister were thoroughly frightened. The boy went to a bureau drawer and got his father's .32-calibre revolver. The next moment there was a crash. Broderick had forced the door. He started toward the girl. Cznick ordered him to leave, and when he refused the boy, fearing that the man meant to do his sister harm, fired three shots at him.

One of the bullets hit Broderick in the head over the right temple and another entered his left breast. The third went wide. Broderick fell dead on the floor. Cznick and his sister went into the street and told several persons what had happened. The police were notified and Cznick gave himself up. With his sister, who is held as a witness, the boy was taken to the Oakland avenue police station and locked up on a charge of murder.

Broderick's body was sent to the morgue. The murdered man lived at 321 Lip avenue. His friends say he had been drinking and hardly knew what he was doing. Why he went to the Cznick home is not known.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL SAVES BOY'S LIFE

"I'm glad I saved him, but I don't know what to say when I go home, for I've spoiled my best shoes."

This was the only comment that Grace Farlee, 14 years old, of Burlington, would make today when praised for saving the life of 8-year-old Fred Schard. Fred, who was playing on a wharf fronting a dangerous spot on the Assicunk Creek, which has claimed more than one victim in its swift current, stepped too near the edge and fell overboard.

Several men were working on the wharf, but either because they could not swim or feared the current, they began to search for a boat instead of going at once after the boy. Grace Farlee saw the excitement among the men, and ran to the water's edge. She is one of the best swimmers among the scores of children who daily bathe in the stream at a safer spot.

Without a thought of the current, she plunged overboard, swam a hundred yards to midstream, and, snatching the blouse of the little fellow, who was sinking for the last time, floated and swam with him to the shallow water on the flats below, where rescuers pulled both ashore.

That Sale of New Umbrellas.

The sale of 1,200 men's and women's new Umbrellas is an annual event and every year we put forth our best efforts to secure for the patrons of this house better materials, better assortment and better value. We always insist on a quality which we know to be the best at the price.

These umbrellas have been secured from two of the most reliable and progressive makers. They are made of fine American Taffeta, Piece Dyed Taffeta and Union Taffeta (all of which are strictly fast color)—white the "Tape Edge" which has now become so popular. Only the best imported paragon frames are used and the steel rod is slender but strong and will stand pretty nearly anything we ever have in the storm line.

The collection of handles is great, and though we cannot describe them in detail the following will give you an idea of what the collection consists of: Fine English boxwood, plain, gold and sterling silved trimmed; fancy colored Dresdens, pearls and ivories, plain and silver trimmed; pearls with partridge posts and silver loops, fancy ivories, partridge post with gunmetal loops, partridge and pearl posts with silver swedges, fine Cape Horns, plain and silver trimmed, fine black horns, gunmetal, plain, silver and sterling silver swedges, partridge posts, with ivorine and silver trimmed, etc. Case and tassel with each umbrella; 26 and 28 inch size.

DRANK IN SALOON WHILE FIRE RAGED

A fire last night at the Mechanic Hotel, Main and Scotland streets, Orange, threatened to be a serious affair, and but for the prompt arrival of the fire department would have completely destroyed the building.

The hotel and saloon is owned by M. McNerney, and it was right after dinner that his daughter told him something was wrong with the chimney. Upon taking down the stovepipe, a cloud of smoke enveloped the kitchen, and Mr. McNerney threw water and salt into the aperture, and as it was presumably smothered the family thought nothing more of it. A little later, however, the room began filling with smoke and an alarm was turned in at 7:45 o'clock. When the apparatus reached the corner the entire roof was enveloped in smoke. Chief Matthews could give no estimate of the damage done, but as there was no insurance the loss will be heavy. Business in the saloon went on with no interruption except when the hose was run through on the floor.

This was the first fire since the new water pressure system has been installed, and consequently it was watched with much interest. The pressure gave great satisfaction.

Dr. Clara E. Gary, one of Boston's most noted women physicians, is advocating the throwing open of the State reservation for camping purposes during the warm weather.

Plainfield, N. J., July 30, 1908.

Yes, gentle reader, it is Hisgen, although Willie Randolph Hearst knows him as His-gent.

"Principles Not Men" is a very pretty motto, but after all is it not the man rather than the party professions that counts?

From now on, Mr. Taft has the right to run a steam shovel but on Nov. 3 it is more than likely that he will make use of the steam-roller.

Mr. Taft has joined the Steam Shovelers' Union. Now it is up to Mr. Bryan to affiliate with the Hot Air Furnace Journeymen's Union.

What do you feel like contributing to the Cleveland monument fund? Already $323.85 has been contributed, through this paper, by the good people of Plainfield.

It is encouraging to note the upward lift in trade since the big party conventions have been held, for it surely indicates that a Republican victory is due this fall.

Here's hoping that Wilhelmina will borrow Teddy's Big Stick just long enough to give Castro such a swipe that Venezuela will feel the effect for some time to come.

Coined words gradually pass into the dictionary. Therefore, we may expect that within a few years Bryanism and Disaster will have one and the same significance ere long.

William R. Hearst has adjourned sine die and in the meanwhile the string of yellows will whoop it up for the grandest National chairman that ever supplied the "dough."

"Well done thou good and faithful servant" will be the sentiment of the people of Union county when they stamp their approval on nominees Ackerman and Pierce on Nov. 3.

According to the Elizabeth Journal, the Excise Board of that place seeks advice. For its benefit let it be stated that the Bishops' law is printed in the English language.

The Newark Evening News takes exception to a Plainfield pastor's view of the Cordova case, and there are others who do likewise, for what evidence has the good dominie that the South River jail-bird was "prejudged by a sensational press and prejudiced by a judge?"

Mr. Roosevelt was elected Vice-President on a platform that denounced an attack on the integrity of the courts, yet the self-same Mr. Roosevelt has been guilty of that offense by his tirade on the recent Standard Oil case decision. "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

Evidently, by his remarks, Judge Atwater is a firm believer in the Bishops' law, but as yet he has not shown his faith as strongly as has Judge Booraem who sends culprits to jail rather than exacts from them a fine which comes out of a brewery treasury.

Though it be Presidential year, this much is certain—James E. Martine, as radical and rampant a Democrat as he is, would come dangerously near if not successful in wresting the congressional plum from the Republican party in the fifth district were he to be named as Mr. Fowler's opponent. If either John Blair Reilly or John H. McGraw were named by the Republicans, the Democrats would have no show on election day.

When the party leaders admit the fact that another nomination for Charles N. Fowler means a Democratic congressional victory why should he be nominated? When a Republican nominee can carry a district with a normal majority of 5,000 by less than 500 majority, why should he be named? This is something for the sober, conservative voters to consider before they choose whom to select as their standard bearer.

Just take it from us that it is not the excise commission that is trying to make political capital out of the investigation but the wily old discredited leader, "Bob" Davis. Away down in his heart, the Hudson county boss knows full well that the present statutes regulating the sale of liquor are for the best interests of all concerned, but he sees a chance just now to make some political capital which will stand good with a certain class of people until after election day.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Answers Rev. Mr. Kemble.

A Plainfield pastor has taken the ground that Cordova, the unfrocked minister of South River, has been hounded down by the sensational press and is entitled to be pitied and helped and uplifted when he comes out of prison next month. And the Plainfield pastor takes for his text Paul's admonition to the Galatians: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such as one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself lest thou also be tempted." The text doesn't apply. Mr. Cordova was not "taken in a fault;" he was condemned for a continual series of faults of the gravest character. He did not fall under temptation and then, with penitence, confess his sin and try to do better, but he kept on wilfully adding crime to crime, persistently lengthening his long list of indefensible acts. He not only eloped with a choir singer, but he beat his wife, deserted her and his own children, and never, from that day to this, has he shown any desire to do right by his injured wife or disgraced and deserted children. He proposes to go on and live with the woman who was his partner, and to continue his evil ways in spite of all pleas, warnings and punishments. He hasn't asked to be "received" or "restored," or anything of the kind. No works meet for repentance have been manifest in him. He isn't the kind of man Paul referred to at all. —Newark News.

Assemblyman Pierce.

The action of the Cranford Republicans in endorsing the candidacy of Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of that place, will undoubtedly be followed by similar action by Republican organizations in other parts of the county. Though Mr. Pierce began work at Trenton with little or no legislative experience, he had so many qualifications for the position to which he had been elected by the people that the voters felt sure of their man. Mr. Pierce's scholarly attainments inclined the so-called practical politicians to doubt at first whether the Cranford man would fill the bill. But as the session wore on they found that he was not slow in grasping the real situation in the State Legislature. In short, Assemblyman Pierce made good, as the phrase goes, on the people owe it to him to send him back to Trenton, and with an increased majority, too.

We need more men in the New Jersey Legislature of the type of this Union county representative. We need men who are honest beyond any shadow of doubt. Further than that there is a demand for clean, clear-cut and unquestionably intelligent representatives of the people—men who are faithful to their constituents, but are capable of seeing large questions in the interest of all the people. Mr. Pierce answers fully to this description.

A candidate with a good legislative record with which to go before the people stands less and less in need of recognition by the press. That the position taken by Assemblyman Pierce, which, as during the discussion of the civil service and public utilities measures was commendably aggressive, will stand the closest scrutiny of competitors there is no doubt. It has won him recognition both in and outside of his party. Though he showed himself to be a party man at Trenton, his course even won for him recognition among those less bound by party ties and called forth well-merited praise in the so-called independent press. Thus while newspaper recognition of the Assemblyman's services may be needless it is merited without any doubt.—Elizabeth Journal.

Farmer a Candidate.

John J. Matthews, who was the youngest member of the House in 1887 and 1888, serving with Foster M. Voorhees, William H. Corbin and John Ulrich, from Union county, will be a candidate for one of the Democratic nominations from Hunterdon county this year. He is a farmer now, but his experience as a politician and ability as a legislator will give to Hunterdon county an influence it has not had at Trenton for many years.—Trenton Times.

STATE'S SUGGESTIONS ARE BEING CARRIED OUT.

Commencing yesterday on the work of the New Jersey railroad commission, Secretary Barber stated that the experience of the board demonstrated that while the members do not possess power to make arbitrary rulings in reference to railroad operations and improvements, it is a fact that practically all of the recommendations made have been followed out by the companies to whom they were directed.

"We have found," said Mr. Barber, "that there is a marked willingness on the part of the railroads to co-operate with the board, although, of course, there are sometimes differences of opinion and judgment as to the advisability of doing certain things in the sense that a general ruling by the commissioners is not always suitable to the remedy of same condition that exists in a particular case. In these cases, however, the matter has always been adjusted amicably, with the railroad managers always disposed to meet us more than halfway."

THEATRICALS.

Cyril Scott, for three years the star of "The Prince Chap" and last seen here last spring in "The Royal Mounted," by the De Mille brothers, yesterday signed a five-year contract with Joseph R. Grismer, William A. Brady's partner in "The Man of the Hour" and other ventures. Mr. Scott is to star under Brady & Grismer in a play being written for them by George Broadhurst. The complete manuscript has been promised for November 1.

Thomas S. Wise, who is one of the most recent Brady recruits, will appear in a play by himself and Harrison Rhodes called "The Gentleman from Mississippi." Frank Worthing, who will be leading man with Grace George during the earlier part of the season, will later be seen in a play entitled "Our Pleasant Sins."

PROBERS ARE COMING; BEER REVELS HALTED.

Investigation being made by agents of the State excise commission in Gloucester and the visit of the commission to Camden next week have started the police authorities to action.

Chief Goan, of Gloucester, yesterday served notice on all of the Camden bottlers who have been delivering beer to the bathhouses on Saturday nights, to be server out wholesale on Sundays, that they must cease their violations of the law.

Proprietors of the saloons are also being notified that the law must be carried out, especially the provisions of the bishops' law, and any violations on the Sabbath will result in arrests.

For a long time past Camden bottlers have stocked up the bathhouse district on Saturday nights, and every Sunday there is an abundance of beer in nearly every such resort along the old beach. Residents have been making appeals that such business be stopped.

SIXTEEN CARS REQUIRED FOR TRINITY EXCURSION.

With prospects of ideal weather and a most enjoyable day at the shore, the annual excursion of Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel pulled away from the North Avenue station at 8:15 this morning. Two sections of eight cars were provided for the throng that took the trip and everybody had a seat. It is estimated that 1000 adults and children went along.

The first section was in charge of Conductor Lester Brightman and Engineer Kleinfeldt while Elwin Lake and James Smith had the second.

The excursion committee was composed of Chauncey F. Colthar, chairman; Charles M. Dolliver, Charles Rittenhouse, C. Bertram Leggett, William Trenbath and H. C. Van Emburgh. They were assisted by a corps of ticket sellers from the two Sunday-schools.

MAY SWEAR AT HOME.

Orange Judge Refuses to Punish Man Said to Have "Cussed."

That a man may swear as much and as often as he chooses in his own house was the effect of the refusal of Justice Bray, in the Orange police court, to entertain the complaint of Mrs. Katherine Wright, of 71 Henry street, against her husband, Wilfred T. Wright, for using bad language.

The judge said that it was lawful for a man to use such language if he saw fit in his house.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Members of the Dunellen A. C. are planning a trolley ride as a club outing in the near future. President Lewis T. Churchill has appointed a committee to arrange the details, and as soon as the time and place are decided upon, a special car will be secured and the club members will issue their invitations.

In accordance with the ruling of the Piscataway township Board of Education, new concrete walks and curbs are being set at the East Bound Brook and South Plainfield schools. The Plainfield Cement Stone Company has the contract for the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGuire, who recently returned after a sojourn at Southern Pines, North Carolina, are staying at the home of Mrs. McGuire's father, Dr. P. W. Brakeley, but are planning to return south again within a week or two.

Several from this town went to Asbury Park today with the Sunday-school excursion from Trinity Reformed church, Plainfield.

William Piddington is sojourning at Ocean Grove.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Herman Walker, the Newark News political news expert, who has been in Chicago watching the birth of the Independence league, does not seem impressed with the idea that the Hearst convention was less bossed than the conventions of the older parties. In fact, Mr. Walker points out in his dispatches that the leading factors in the Independence league movement arrived in Chicago cocked and primed for the business in hand just the same as did the men who directed the Republican and Democratic conventions.

Charles Burrows, former postmaster of Rutherford, is a candidate for Congress from the 6th District, comprising Passaic, Sussex and Bergen counties. He announced his candidates today. Mr. Burrows has always been a Republican. He believes in the principles of President Roosevelt and is in heary sympathy with those set forth by William H. Taft.

A boom has been started by Dean Gessner for Dr. Victor Mraviag for mayor of Elizabeth. The physician, who for six years was a Republican alderman there, has been in the field for some months as a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor and seems to be in the lead among the aspirants.

John I. Blair Reiley, prosecutor of Warren county, is mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress if Charles N. Fowler is not to be the candidate. Mr. Blair can remain as prosecutor until 1911.

A committee appointed by the Gloucester county Democratic executive committee to select candidates for several county offices this fall has not yet made up a slate. There are several candidates for each place, and the committee wants them all announced before it takes a step one way of the other.

The ninth local option organization in Salem county will be effected tonight.

The Union county Republicans will have their annual outing on Saturday, August 8. The destination of the braves will be Witzel's Grove, Point View, L. I. All the party leaders will be on deck.

Hopes of campaign managers that the promised struggle between the $5,000 glass factory workers and their employers could be made political capital were dashed when Dennis A. Hayes, president of the Glass Blowers' union, issued a statement in which he declared that nothing of the kind would be counseled or discussed during the wage conference in Atlantic City.

This will be the ticket of the Essex county "regular" Republicans as far as the principal offices are concerned, according to one of the best-informed of the State leaders:

For Congress, Richard Wayne Parker and William H. Wiley; State Senator, Thomas L. Raymond; Sheriff, Arthur D. Denman; County Supervisor, former Assemblyman John N. Kline; Mayor, George W. Jagle.

It was added that the seven regular Assemblymen of last year would be on the ticket again.

David J. Carney denies the report that he will bolt William Jennings Bryan, for whom he has cast his ballot at two Presidential elections.

Here's the Cabinet some slate-makers have picked out for Taft:

Secretary of State—Judson Harmon, of Ohio.

Secretary of the Treasury—John A. Johnson, of Minnesota.

Secretary of War—George Turner, of Washington.

Attorney General—William J. Gaynor, of New York.

Postmaster General—Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama.

Secretary of the Navy—Theodore A. Bell, of California.

Secrtary of the Interior—Thomas M. Patterson, of Colorado.

Secretary of Agriculture—Clark Howell, of Georgia.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor—John Mitchell, of Illinois.

COMEDY IN THE DRUG STORE.

Serious Place Usually, But Funny Things Happen Occasionally.

"No, I can't say that we have a large number of comic incidents happening here daily," said the drug clerk. "As a matter of fact, the drug business is inclined rather to the serious side of things naturally, but we do have funny things happen occasionally, like this morning, when a little girl came in with a prescription that she said she wanted put up in hatsules.

"'Hatsules?' I says, sort of puzzled like, because for the moment I didn't fall to what the little girl meant.

"'Yes, sir, hatsules,' she says, just like that, and then it began to percolate through my brain just what the little girl did mean, and I says to her then:

"'I guess you mean capsules, don't you?' and she says:

"'Why, of course I do. Hatsules!' she said, and laughed right out as she said it. 'Of course I mean capsules! How could ever I get it twisted up like that?'

"And so we put the medicine up in capsules and the little girl took it and carried it away.

"And really that wasn't the most comic thing that ever happened in the world; but, as I was saying, you don't exactly expect to have funny things happen in a drug store, and so that call for hatsules kept us cheerful here for three-quarters of an hour."—New York Sun.

ACCEPTED VERDICT OF DOCTOR.

Great Painter Heard His Sentence and Calmly Passed Away.

When Turner, the famous painter, was dying at Chelsea he sent in despair for a Ramsgate doctor who had done him some good during his recent stay at that place, and who, he hoped, might take a different view of his case from that which the London physicians had expressed. The doctor arrived, and confirmed the opinion that the artist had very little time longer to live. "Wait a bit," said Turner to the doctor, "you have had nothing to eat and drink, yet, have you?" "No, but that's of no consequence." "But it is," replied the painter. "Go downstairs and you will find some refreshment; and there is some fine brown sherry—don't spare it—and then come up and see me again." The doctor refreshed himself and then came back to the patient. "Now, then," said Turner, "what is it? Do you still think so badly of my case?" The doctor regretfully said he could not alter his former opinion. The artist shook his shoulders, turned his face to the wall and never spoke again!—Dundee Advertiser.

Yews in Churchyards.

The object of planting yews in churchyards has been much disputed. Some antiquarians have asserted that the custom arose in order to supply bows for the purpose of archery, but this idea is in the highest degree unlikely. Gilbert White suggested that one object might have been to serve as "a screen to churches by their thick foliage from the violence of winds." They might also, he thought, have been placed as a shelter to the congregation assembling before the church doors were opened, or as an emblem of mortality by their funeral appearance. Perhaps rather, as the learned Ray suggested, the yew was planted in churchyards because, from its evergreen foliage and the great age to which it attained, it was regarded as a symbol of immortality.

Leaf That the Devil Tore.

In the library of the Massachusetts Historical society is a leaf of a sermon on which is written the following memorandum by Dr. Elliott:

"Dr. Cotton Mather's leaf of a sermon which the devil was so spiteful as to tear. The leaf has been torn, and near the rent is the following memorandum in Mather's own handwriting: 'While I was preaching at a private fast (kept for a possessed young woman)—on Mark ix., 28-29—ye Devil in ye Damsel flew upon mee, and tore ye leaf, as it is now tore, over against ye text.'"

Strange Human Nature.

"Hit's a mighty strange thing," said Broaher Williams, "dat w'en we lays up treasures in heaven we still spends all we got on earf wid de doctors to keep us fum gwine whar it is! We pray erbout it, and we sing erbout it—streets er gold an' milk an' honey, but somehow or other we don't feel lak walkin' on a shiny pavement, an' milk an' honey don't seem ter suit our appetite! I reckon it's des po' human natur' showin' up what hit's least expected. We is all weak critters!"—Atlanta Constitution.

First National Exhibit.

The London Society of Arts is entitled to the credit of having originated national exhibitions, when in 1761 it held a show of agricultural and other machines in its rooms. The idea of an international exhibition, however, was long viewed with disfavor in all countries, a French minister of commerce even going so far as to suggest that a proposal for the representation of foreign products at a French exhibition emanated from the enemies of French industry.

To Fall Back Upon.

"We put that motto back on the coins, anyhow," said the congressman.

"Yes," answered the constituent, "and in view of what you fellows have accomplished during this session that motto affords us our only consolation."

AS SHE IS.

Her thoughts are like a flock of butterflies,
She has a merry love for little things,
And a bright flutter of speech, whereto she brings
A threefold eloquence—voice, hands and eyes.
Yet under all a subtle silence lies
As a bird's heart is hidden by its wings;
And you seek through your many wanderings
The fairyland of her realities.

She hides herself behind a busy brain—
A woman, with a child's laugh in her blood;
A maid, wearing the shadow of motherhood—
Wise with the quiet memory of old pain.
As the soft glamour of remembered rain
Hallows the gladness of a sunlit wood.
—Brain Hooker, in Scribner's Magazine.

Girls' College Discipline.

The usual "larks" indulged in by college girls promise to be severely diminished in the future and the most rigid laws will exist. It is found that enthusiastic American girls are taking too many privileges and often their reputations are at stake, for which reason the college discipline has to undergo a great change.

Unless accompanied by relative, maid or teacher, many will be unable to enjoy many social privileges heretofore offered. College girls, as a rule, believe in harmless flirtations, and this bit of mischief will keep many lovers from the door of favorite heroines and it looks very much as though college life would have to drift into ordinary school life.

A New Skirt Pattern.

There is a becoming skirt with circular sides and inverted box pleats in front and back, and a new gored style, both of which are popular. All lines are straighter, apparently, and yet the skirts must not hang in unbecomingly straight lines. Such are a few of the directions that are given out to puzzle womankind.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

While John Watson, of Millville, was butchering at Ocean City, his knife slipped and cut a gash across one knee that required ten stitches to close.

Hurrying across a commons at Eighth street and Jefferson avenue, Camden, yesterday, Fred. Smuckle, of 1912 South Seventh street, was overcome by the heat.

While driving near Berryman stream Monday, V. Schlachter, a Millville butcher, was surprised to see a large buck and a doe staring at him from a field thirty feet away.

Bitten in both eyes by an insect, Mary Naughton, twenty-three years old, of 23 Haddon avenue, Camden, was taken to the Cooper Hospital yesterday with her eyes closed.

Selling liquor on Sunday in Trenton must cease, according to the ultimatum of Chief of Police Hiner. Very quietly the police department has been securing evidence against saloon-keepers who persist in violating.

After a trial of Borough Solicitor Newton B. T. Roney, of Collinswood, on charges of neglect of duty, preferred by Mayor Collins last night, four councilmen voted "guilty" and two "not guilty." No sentence was imposed.

Edward Cryne, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cryne, of Trenton, fell in the canal for the third time this season, and for the third time passersby managed to rescue him from drowning and pumping the water out of his lungs.

"I have not heard from my husband since I received the letter from him day before yesterday," said Mrs. William Mall, wife of the missing Mayor of Egg Harbor City, yesterday. "If he came back to me I would forgive him—yes, certainly," she said.

A mad dog running amuck through Westville and Newbold yesterday had the citizens terrified until Burrell Patterson got a gun, mounted a wheel, followed the beast a mile and killed it. The dog bit three dogs on its way through the town, which have been killed.

Joseph Mitchell, three years old, whose parents reside at 240 Sixth avenue, Paterson, was knocked down by a horse on May street yesterday afternoon. The animal kicked the child in the head and the wheels of the vehicle to which the horse was attached ran over his legs.

The greatest annual gathering of Grangers of Burlington county will take place at Rancocas Park today, when Pomona Grange will hold its picnic. This embraces all the subordinate granges in the county, and it is the most important meeting of the farmers of the year.

Atlantic City won its fight for the buying of the "Fort Lee" property, needed for carrying out its beach front park project. Yesterday there was paid $34,000 in cash and bonds for $40,000 were given to the owners. The fight over this land has been in progress for ten years or longer.

Albert Sutton, telegraph lineman at Atlantic City, who was knocked from a pole by a bolt of lightning, is still in the hospital, a puzzle to the surgeons, who have not as yet succeeded in setting all the bones which were fractured by his tumble. They have found the shoulder blade, a thigh and several ribs fractured.

Alfred Reed, of Philadelphia, held on a warrant for "non-compliance with a court order," was released by Police Magistrate Harris in Trenton yesterday, when counsel pointed out to the court that Reed was not charged with a crime, simply that he had not paid his wife $7 a week alimony, as decreed by the Pennsylvania courts. Not being an extraditable offense, Reed was released.

After a week's experience in "roughing it," two runaway boys from Hoboken arrived in Paterson last night and decided that there was no pleasure in traveling without funds. They had been to Canada, and after knocking about for a day or two started on the return trip. In Paterson they were caught on a milk car on the Lackawanna Railroad. They gave their names as John Thoda and Frank Murphy.

By an unanimous vote of the congregation Rev. A. E. Douglass has been dismissed as pastor of the Third Baptist church, Camden. Many rumors are afloat concerning the controversy, the principal one being that the clergyman became angry because members of the church refused to cash his checks. Last Sunday he preached a scathing sermon and announced that he would resign. The members refused to consider a resignation and the dismissal followed.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers, of interest to Plainfielders, have been recorded at Elizabeth: Highland Park Realty Co. to Jessie L. Smith, southwesterly side Summer avenue, 250 feet southeasterly of Midway, Plainfield, $1; Harvey R. Linbarger to Maude A. Cooke, northeasterly side Park avenue, 30 feet northwesterly of Bartel avenue, Fanwood, $1, William H. Lawrence, sheriff, to Mary P. Sullivan, southwesterly side Lafayette place, 250 feet southeasterly of West Front street, Plainfield, $1,484.28; Francis J. Blatz et ux to Maude E. Bauer, Fifth street, corner Sampson, Plainfield, $1.

Here's a Natural Strength-Giver

You'll find the beneficial effects of this tonic are permanent—because it helps you to build up your body and become strong and healthy in a natural way. The effects of other tonics are only temporary because they supply a false stimulation to the system. As soon as you stop taking them, you remove this stimulus, and the feeling of exhaustion returns.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

brings lasting health and strength, because it helps your body to do its own building up—through the stomach. It puts your digestive organs in perfect condition, and enables you to get every bit of nourishment and strength out of the food you eat.

It is also an excellent child's medicine and a safe Worm Cure.

Sold by all druggists.
Two sizes, 50c. and 35c.

Jayne's Expectorant—An invaluable medicine for Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Pleurisy and Asthma.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 2, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Songs of the heart.—VIII. How can we serve the church?—Ps. lxxxiv. (Consecration meeting.)

It is not true that church interest and church attendance are less today than in bygone days. The Christian church was never so well attended, and interest in its work was never greater, especially upon the part of men. Men—strong, successful business men, men who occupy high and lowly positions—were never more interested in the church at any time since the days of the apostles than today. It's the people who never attend the church or, if so, but seldom and those who never take any interest in its work, that never see behind the scenes that claim in their ignorance that the church is losing its hold. They have drifted from it. It has lost its hold upon them, and they judge millions by themselves. But to those who know from experience, to those who live on the inside of the church, with its active organizations, it is a veritable beehive of industry.

The great problem of church life today is not how to get the workers, but how to get the places for them to work in. They have been saved to serve and are willing to serve, and the question that confronts them and the church is, How can places be found in which they may serve the church? But still there is always some work to do and some service to be found for those truly converted and deeply consecrated.

1. We cannot serve the church on the outside of it. To serve the Lord in the church we must become identified openly and publicly with it. No man can successfully serve an organization of which he is not a member. If a man wanted to serve in any cause represented by an organization the best and in most cases the only way would be to join the organization. In most cases he would have to do so. No man can say "I am a Mason at heart" or "I'm an Odd Fellow at heart" and co-operate with either organization He would not be allowed to enter a meeting, much less become an active participant in its work. Nor can one say "I'm a Christian at heart" and stay out of the church and serve it to the best of his ability. Membership in the church is an essential element in serving it.

2. We cannot serve the church by being nominal members. We are then only dead branches and are usually cut off from it. Irregularity in attendance, absenting ourselves upon the slightest pretext or none at all, will never make us servants of the Lord in the church. Church services, which we have promised to attend, are engagements with God and in God's house and on his day, and every man should promptly keep his engagements and, above all, those with God. Many men boast of their business promptness with men and come into church fifteen to twenty minutes late or absent themselves altogether and treat the matter lightly. Engagements with men are serious; engagements with God are trifling. What an absurdity!

3. To serve the church we must love it as God and Christ loved it. We must appreciate its blessings and amiableness. We must glory in its ordinances and realize its importance to others and lead them to it. It is God's house. There we meet Him. It is Christ's body, and there we see Him. Let us make a new consecration vow of service to the church and keep it.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxviii, 1-5; lxxxvii, 1-7; c, 1-5; cxvi, 12-19; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; John xiv, 8-16; Acts xiii, 1-3; Rom. xii, 1-11; Matt. xxv, 14-30.

An Endeavor Statesman.

Christian Endeavor has been particularly happy in the friends it has made among the great men of the nation in which the movement was born. President McKinley through all his occupancy of the White House always sent a message of greeting to its international conventions. President Roosevelt has been none the less hearty in his congratulatory words and has shown many favors to Dr. Clark in his world journeys. Vice President Fairbanks is a firm believer in Christian Endeavor. Hon. William Jennings Bryan has done signal service for the movement.

The Christian Endeavor World recently gave three notable messages from Mr. Bryan on its cover page. As showing his belief in all that Christian Endeavor stands for, on Dec. 6, 1906 he wrote in a letter to Dr. Clark, from which he permits us to quote: "The Christian Endeavor society is doing a great work. It is the part of the ethical movement that is going on throughout the world." On Nov. 11, 1907, Mr. Bryan wrote to Secretary Shaw as follows: "I inclose a check for $5 to pay for one share of the stock of the Christian Endeavor building. I do not care to hold the stock. You can issue it to the Christian Endeavor society if it is issued in the form of stock. If it is merely a subscription, you can so count it." On Dec. 12, 1907, Mr. Bryan wrote to Mr. Coleman: "I have just received and read the leaflet giving the purpose and scope of the Christian Endeavor Patriots' league. I am fully in sympathy with the purpose of the league and believe it can be made a power for good in the land. We need the application of Christ's teachings to everyday life, and your league can assist in this work. While Christians may differ in judgment as to measures proposed, they must agree in purpose and study and investigation such as your league urges will result in the acceptance of the best measures for discussion brings out the truth I shall be pleased to be enrolled as an honorary member of the league."—John H. TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE PINKERTONS

The Pollock Diamond Robbery

The alarming and increasing prevalence in the large cities of crimes of the character described in the Pollock diamond robbery, which the Pinkertons term "the original stick-up," led Mr. William A. Pinkerton a few days ago to outline the causes of such crimes and a comprehensive plan by which they may be checked. His remedy, which is no less than the general and generous application of the whipping post, will doubtless arouse considerable adverse criticism on the part of humanitarians, but, as Mr. Pinkerton says, one's ideas on that score may be quickly changed by figuring as the victim in a "stick-up." He said:

"My investigations have revealed the fact that the original crimes of this class in Chicago and other large cities in the west were done by Burke or by men who had been either his associates or students of his methods. Then young fellows who had merely read newspaper accounts of the operations and rich hauls of the pioneers in the stick-up business gradually began to embark in the same vocation. Soon this class of crime was spreading over the country like a flame. It started in the west and traveled eastward. On account of its geographical location Chicago began to suffer before the cities farther east, but it is a mistake to suppose that this class of crime flourishes here more than elsewhere. It has reached from the Pacific coast to New England, Boston being one of the most recent cities to suffer from the stick-up. It is only a question of time until the stick-up will be as familiar to Portland, Me., as to Portland, Ore. In fact, this condition practically prevails at present.

"New York is about as bad off in this respect as Chicago. The public there is clamoring for protection against the stick-up man as loudly as here. Only a short time ago two masked men entered a private gambling house in New York and took $8,000. Pedestrians are stuck up on the streets with alarming frequency. It has become a crime not only of national scope, but it has invaded Europe, where a few years ago such crimes were entirely unheard of. While I was in London last year a prominent jeweler was surprised in his shop, gagged, tied to the safe and left from Saturday night till Monday morning, masked thieves meanwhile making away with a large amount of jewelry. In France and Italy I heard of numerous stick-ups.

TOOK ONE OF THE LEATHER BAGS.

"Since Burke as a 15-year-old boy started single-handed to hold up a store in Aurora, the stick-up men have been largely of this type. Nearly all of them are young—mere 'kids.' They are unknown to the police and there is absolutely no way in which the authorities can get a line on them until they have committed several crimes. Most of them are young fellows that have not been known as loafers, having worked at some trade until they conceived the notion of going into the stick-up business.

"Burke was a farmer boy, raised in western Iowa. He never had been contaminated by city influences. His parents were worthy people. The facts illustrate the uselessness of trying to find causes in heredity or environment. But he was a reader of sensational literature.

"The Chicago 'car barn bandits' furnish an illustration of the type. Here were four boys whom nobody had any reason to suspect until they had committed a long series of the most desperate crimes. It will be recalled that they killed six men in their career as stick-ups before they were caught.

"I recall the killing of a drug clerk in the southwest part of Chicago about two years ago by three youths who attempted to stick him up. The three were caught, one of them proving to be a clerk around the board of trade and the other two employed in Packingtown. The clerk had resisted them and was shot to death. Last week two youths were allowed to plead guilty to murder. The plea was accepted on account of their youth, whereas, if they had been older they probably would have been hanged. Recently the police arrested three boys about 16 years old, and, from the confessions of the prisoners, they have been guilty of dozens of stick-ups and burglaries in the last few months. These cases might be cited without end. In other cities the stick-up man is the same youthful culprit he is in Chicago.

"A singular feature of the case is that the most desperate stick-ups we have developed in Chicago have been Poles and Bohemians. These are races supposed to be more than commonly quiet and law-abiding. To the police of the world neither the Pole nor the Bohemian is known as a professional criminal. Just why such a large proportion of the young, American-born Poles and Bohemians should develop such desperateness along the stick-up line I do not pretend to say, but the fact remains.

"Another criminal of the Burke type, whose work is closely related to that of the stick-up and of whom we have too many in Chicago, is the night worker or prowler. He makes a specialty of entering a house in which there is a sleeping family and goes to the sleeping-room of the man of the house. If the householder is not awake he wakes him and orders him to keep quiet and deliver the family valuables. A man named Wilson represented the highest development of this type, as Burke did of the stick-up proper. Wilson operated in Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota several years ago. One of his most sensational pieces of work was done when he entered the house of Thomas Oakes, then president of the Northern Pacific railroad, in St. Paul. Oakes fought Wilson desperately all over the bedroom and was badly battered in the fight. He gave about as good as he received, however. Wilson, soon after, called on William G. Merriam, banker and afterward governor of Minnesota, and carried away the family treasures. He was arrested later in New York while disposing of stolen property, taken back to Toledo, sentenced to a long term in the Ohio penitentiary, from which he escaped, and was afterward arrested in Connecticut. He was killed in Weathersfield, Conn., while trying to escape. This man, like Burke, was not known to the police as a professional criminal until his capture.

"Recently negroes have taken up this class of crime. Only lately the room of a prominent railroad official from San Francisco in a leading Chicago hotel was invaded by a negro prowler. The rightful occupant of the room gave battle and managed to keep his valuables, but only after he had been severely battered up by the negro thief. The negro escaped through the window and down the fire escape. Negroes also have adopted the stick-up profession to a great extent.

"When the stick-up draws his pistol and orders you to produce your valuables, the part of wisdom is to deliver. When the night worker enters your bedroom, turn your face to the wall and pretend to be asleep. The history of these crimes shows that the men that commit them will kill.

"I have said that nearly all the stick-ups were mere youths and not known as professional criminals. The exceptions are largely the 'yeggmen.' These are the criminal hobos, who recently have taken to the stick-up business extensively. They are nomadic and difficult to trace. They travel in summer time, stealing their way on trains, and frequent the cities in winter. They are regarded merely as tramps by the public at large and not as desperate criminals. The man that tries to sell you shoestrings on the street to-day probably will stick you up or rob a country bank to-morrow. There is no class of criminals as desperate, active and difficult to handle as the 'yeggs.' They are cunning, physically brave and will kill at the slightest provocation. And there is no class of criminals so hard to get or keep a line on as the 'yeggs.' The only plan we ever found that was successful was to have our own men travel with them in disguise. From our agents thus employed we get bits of information that are valuable, but even in this way we have found it most difficult to keep track of them as we would like or as is possible with other classes of criminals.

"The character of the men employed in sticking up the public furnishes a key to at least some of the causes. I would say that sensational literature—the yellow-back kind—is one of the most prolific causes. The country has been flooded with it for years, and the period during which writers of cheap fiction began to make heroes out of the most despicable criminals was coincident with the inauguration of the wave of stick-ups that is rolling over the whole country. The sticking up of a western faro bank and a score of armed gamblers by a man of Burke's type carries with it a glamour of daring that appeals strongly to the imagination of thousands of boys, and when these crimes, clothed as fiction, are scattered broadcast over the country they are bound to have a disastrous effect. It is a natural process for the adventurous Chicago boy to reason, if Burke could immortalize himself in crime and make thousands so easily, the boy in Chicago can operate at home just as easily and safely. The yellow-back should be suppressed.

"Such plays as 'Tracy, the Bandit,' have an incalculably evil effect. In this class a miserable thief and convict like Tracy is always lauded to the skies and transformed into a hero, while the officials on his trail are pictured in the darkest colors. The well-to-do Chicagoan, who attends only the best theaters in the city and who never sees one of these plays produced at a third or fourth class theater, has no conception of the effect they have on the audience. In Europe managers would be prohibited from producing such plays and lax supervision of such matters in this country is responsible for a great deal of the stick-up business.

"The other night I attended a performance at one of the best vaudeville theaters in Chicago, where the vitascope, or moving pictures, was a feature of the programme. Here, depicted on the canvas with the utmost realism, I found a train robbery. Starting with the binding of the agent at the little railway station and following the thread of the thrilling narrative, every detail of the horrible crime was pictorially told. The boarding of the train, sticking up of the passengers, the murder of one who sought to escape, the blowing of the express safe, capture by the cowboy posse and final killing of the robbers, all were thrown on the screen most realistically. It was a veritable school of instruction to aspiring criminals.

"Another cause is the ease with which such crimes can be accomplished. To become a successful criminal of the old school—bank burglar, confidence man, forger or pickpocket—required years of training and experience along the line of their chosen profession. The result was that these men did not reach the zenith of their careers until they were full-grown and mentally matured men. To stick a man up, all that is required is a pistol, an unfrequented spot in any city and a certain amount of physical 'nerve.' The first attempt is as likely to be productive of a big haul in valuables as any later one. The stick-up is, therefore, a class of crime within the easy reach of any young fellow criminally disposed. Escape is also comparatively easy, as has been shown by the numerous crimes committed by Chicago stick-ups before they were caught.

"Modern industrial conditions have not a little to do with the spread of this crime. Young men thrown out of work by the numerous strikes, with their minds inflamed by bad reading, take to the stick-up business readily. The slugging done in many of the strikes under the guise of battle for principle is a splendid school for the stick-up. Those who teach that what the rich have belongs to the poor furnish some with an excuse who might otherwise be deterred by conscience.

"As to cure and prevention, for years I have held a very positive and firm opinion. I have watched the development of the stick-up in American cities closely. I have carefully and without prejudice followed all the plans advanced for the cure of the evil. My observation leads me to believe, however, that there is but one practical remedy—the whipping post. Those to whom I have offered this plan, or many of them, have criticised it as being a return to barbarism.

"About 30 years ago four of the New York 'swell mob'—the criminal aristocrats—planned to rob a bank in Wilmington, Del. They learned that the keys were in possession of the cashier in that official's house. They repaired to his home, stuck up the family and secured the keys to the bank, but not until a negro servant had escaped and given the alarm. The men were captured and sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary, one hour in the pillory and 50 lashes on the bare back. As I have said, these men were among the aristocrats in their calling. They wore silk hats, frock coats and had their box at the opera. Their good address, intelligence and daring had caused the public to throw a glamor of romance about them. When it became known that they were convicted, the sentimentalists cried:

" 'My God! you are surely not going to flog Jim Brady, you are not going to lay the lash on Joe Howard, you don't intend to subject "Big" Frank McCoy to this indignity?'

"But they did flog them, and they did it well. Every time the big negro laid on the lash it cut the skin. They were not spared. This was the beginning and the end of the stick-up business in Delaware. In 30 years there has not been even an attempted bank robbery. The 'swell' crooks have given Delaware a wide berth for a generation. There is not a populous county in the union in which there is as little crime with violence

"When we first undertook the policing of race tracks it was considered almost legitimate for a pickpocket to operate on the tracks. Years ago we frequently took an arrested pickpocket out onto the quarter stretch, pinned a sign to his back, 'I am a pickpocket,' and paraded him back and forth before jeering thousands several times. No man treated that way ever failed to get and stay as far away from Chicago as possible.

"Without undertaking to go into the psychology of the thing, the fact cannot be disputed that a crook fears public ignominy more than the seclusion of prison cells. The sentimentalists may be right when they say the whipping post is a return to barbarity. But any man or woman holding such sentimental theories who is stuck up at the point of a pistol, robbed of their money and valuables and beaten over the head with the butt of a pistol will be willing to sacrifice sentiment to any means to check this sort of crime."

BREAK JAIL WITH KEY MADE OF TIN

The police of Bayonne, Jersey City, Newark and Staten Island hunted in vain yesterday for Patrick Reddy and John Delaney, who broke out of police headquarters in Bayonne Tuesday night. Their escape was a daring one, and made when a number of policemen were in and about the building.

Reddy and Delaney were under arrest for malicious mischief, and had caused a disturbance at Melville Park. They would doubtless have escaped with a few days in jail, but they saw an easy way to beat the law and took advantage of it. The cells in police headquarters are in the basement of the building at Avenue C and Twenty-sixth street, a thickly populated section of the city. A massive iron door, with a double lock, divides the corridor and the tiers of cells. Reddy and Delaney managed to get hold of a piece of a sardine box, and juggled with the lock until they got it opened.

A number of prisoners watched them operating. As soon as the door swung open Delaney and Reddy slid out into the corridor and softly shut the door before any of the other prisoners had a chance to get out. They crept along the corridor to a kitchen on the south side, and easily climbed to a driveway, and, walking to Avenue C, probably boarded a trolley car headed for Jersey City.

The escape was discovered in a short time, and half a dozen detectives and patrolmen went out in search of the fugitives, but, so far, no trace of them has been gained.

MASURY MUST PAY FINE.

New Brunswick, July 30.—Justice Housell yesterday fixed the penalty of overspeeding in the case of John L. Masury, of New York, at $25 and costs. He is the owner of the car that struck Dr. Flint at Seabright recently, fatally injuring him. His chauffeur was then running the car. Masury was running seventy-four miles an hour here.

William H. Quackenbush, of Westfield, was arrested on the Metuchen road going at the rate of thirty-nine miles an hour and fined $10 and costs. As a result of the many complaints made against the alleged shortness of the Raritan avenue course here in Highland Park, where he times auto speeders, Justice Howell has had Surveyor Tide measure it off. His sworn statement shows that the justice had given the autoists twenty-eight feet leeway, despite their kicks.

THREE CHILD LABOR CASES.

State Factory Inspector Neil A. McCarthy, of Elizabeth, went to Jersey City yesterday and served three writs on persons against whom suits have been brought by the State.

Two of these are against Hansen & Co., of Jersey City, for alleged violation of the child labor law by having two minors in their employ, one aged twelve, the other eleven years.

The third suit is brought against William A. Joerg, a boss baker doing business at 251 Newark avenue, Jersey City, who recently refused to admit to his place, for the purpose of seeing if the law was being complied with, Miss Mary F. Van Leer, a child labor inspector in the employ of the State. All three cases will be tried next Thursday morning, August 4, in the Jersey City District Court.

NEW TRAP FOR AUTOS IS SET BY FARMERS

Stating that their lives are constantly menaced by fast-driving autoists, farmers of Hamilton township, Mercer county, to the east of the city, have measured off a mile, and are timing every auto traveler who comes that way.

The farmers are indignant over the way that Philadelphia and New York autoists run through their township, and they promise to make it hot for some one.

In the meantime, State Commissioner of Vehicle Registration J. B. R. Smith is canceling licenses of people who speed through the State.

Among the men whose licenses he revoked yesterday are Clarence Gritman, who left the state after causing considerable damage at Highlands last week; George R. Vreeland, who sped away after injuring a man on a motor bicycle and was caught and is now in Hudson county jail, and Albert Mohmking, of Hillsdale, who, while driving his car in Hudson county last week, killed a boy.

The commissioner says the laws must be respected, and that he intends to deal severely with violators of the statutes. He is ready to proceed against all offenders, regardless of their political "pull," just as he did last year when he revoked the license of Jim McNichol, the Philadelphia contractor-boss.

VOTING MACHINES LOSE MORE FIGHTS.

North Bergen Turns Them Down 567 to 24, and Flemington By 298 to 40.

The death knell of the voting machines was sounded in North Bergen at the special election Tuesday. Of the 591 votes polled, only twenty-four were in favor of retaining the machines. No special effort was made to get the vote out, and the large vote polled was an expression of public sentiment against the mechanical method.

In the First district of the First ward 83 votes were polled in favor of the removal of the machines and 3 to retain them.

In the Second district (East New Durham), 173 voters asked for the machines to go and only 3 stood for keeping them.

In the Second ward, First district (New Durham), of the 62 votes polled, thee were only 3 who wanted to vote on the machines in the future, and in the Second Homestead section only 4 of the 74 voters who went to the polls voted for the machines.

In the First district of the Third ward there were 74 votes against the machines and 2 for them, and in the Second district of this ward there were 108 against the machines and 9 for them.

At a special election in East and West Amwell Townships Tuesday it was voted to dispense with voting machines. Only a small portion of the rural vote was cast, but in this place about 80 per cent. of the usual vote was polled. There were 338 ballots voted, and 298 votes were cast against the machines and 40 for them.

Pay-as-You-Enter Montclair Cars.

Pay-as-you-enter cars will be operated on the Montclair line of the Public Service Corporation next Monday. The cars will not run any further than Montclair, because a second fare is collected from passengers en route from Newark to Verona and Caldwell, and no successful method has yet been devised to collect an extra fare on the pay-as-you-enter cars and preserve the peculiar characteristics of the vehicle. The crews are now being trained in the operation of the cars at the Montclair car barn.

Fined for Assault.

Jersey City, July 30.—Samuel Silverman, a young real estate broker, was fined $10 by Judge Farmer in Jersey City yesterday for assaulting William Drumm, one of the staff of newsgathers in the City Hall Tuesday night.

TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF.

Man Who Shot Cop Bangs Head Against Cell Floor.

Gustav Larsen, 39 years old, of 204 Ninth street, Jersey City, attempted suicide in the Seventh street police station, where he was confined pending the result of injuries inflicted upon Patrolman John Lane, whom he shot Saturday night.

Doorman Durr early yesterday morning heard a noise in the cell occupied by Larsen, and upon investigation discovered the prisoner climbing up the cell door. Before he could get to him Larsen released his hold and from the top of the cell threw himself backward upon the stone flooring, landing on his head. Durr got the keys and called for the police reserves.

Before he could be reached Larsen had tried to batter his brains out. He was bruised and bleeding when the door was opened, but was conscious, and fought the men who tried to sieze him. He was overpowered and handcuffed and again locked in the cell. After the police had left they heard another racket in the cell, and Durr found Larsen beating his head against the iron bars. He fell unconscious as the doorman reached him. He was taken to St. Francis' Hospital. His wounds were dressed and he was returned to the city prison, and has since been under close guard.

MARTIN TILTON DEAD.

Jersey City Man Accused of Shooting Mrs. Brennan.

Martin Tilton, who on July 17 shot Mrs. Harriett Brennan, with whom he had been boarding for two years at 23 Pearsall avenue, Jersey City, and then shot himself in the head, died in the City Hospital yesterday morning.

Tilton was in good condition Tuesday night and the doctors reported that he would recover. He was seized with convulsions at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and shortly afterward died. The convulsions were the result of inflammation from his wound reaching his brain. He died insisting that he was innocent of the shooting and that the woman shot him and herself.

Detective-Sergeant James Larkins, however, has positive proof that Tilton carefully planned and attempted to kill the woman and himself. They traced all his movements the day of the shooting, and learned that he bought the revolver and fifty cartridges at 315 Broadway, New York city, after drawing his salary from the firm for which he worked in New York city.

OUR NEW COIN PLEASES POPE.

Glad That "In God We Trust" Has Been Restored.

Rome, July 30.—The Pope yesterday received in private audience the Very Rev. Charles P. Grannan and the Very Rev. A. P. Doyle, of Washington.

Father Doyle presented to the Pope a new American gold coin on which was the inscription "In God We Trust," and related the circumstances connected with the removal and the restoration of the motto. The Pope was greatly pleased at hearing that the motto had been omitted for reasons not conencted with religion, and that the religious sentiment of the country was strongly in favor of the words.

BONIFACE SUES FARMER.

Wants $10,000 for Alienation of His Wife's Affections.

Richard M. Hill, a well-to-do young farmer near Beemersville, Sussex county, has been sued for $10,000 damages by Horace G. Hall, proprietor of the Beemer Hotel, Beemersville. The suit is brought for alleged alienation of Mrs. Hall's affections. Hall is represented by former Senator Lewis J. Martin, of Newton.

Red Bank Bungalow Robbed.

A robber or sneak thief entered the bungalow of William H. Weber, a Jersey City man, at Keansburg Beach, Red Bank, yesterday morning, and got away with jewelry which Weber had left in the place, valued at about $500. Weber was swimming when the robbery occurred.

PERSONAL.

Walter Dobbins is sojruoning at Asbury Park.

Isaac Elliott, of Watchung avenue, left yesterday for Bordentown to spend a week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Name, of Madison avenue, are at Fulton, N. Y., for the remainder of the summer.

George E. Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, has returned from Netcong, where he spent a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Anna Porter and Miss Edith Glaentzer, of the West End, are registered at the Clarendon, Asbury Park.

Miss Anna J. Outwater, of Fanwood, is stopping with other guests for a time at Goodenuff Lodge, Lake Hopatcong.

William Kenyon, of East Front street, has returned from an extended trip to Texas and other parts of the southwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Lyons, of West Front street, left today for Kennebunkport, Me., where they will spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Phillips, of Denmark road, Netherwood, have returned from an automobile trip through the Berkshires.

Miss C. D. Hamming and Miss Stella Swain, of the borough, are among the late arrivals at the Hotel New York, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Stillman, of West Eighth street, left yesterday for Long Lake, in the Adirondacks, where they will spend a month.

Mrs. Frederick Sylvester, of Philadelphia, is visiting friends in this city while her daughter, Miss Helen Sylveter, is in East Gloucester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lee, Charles A. Lee, Jr., and the Misses Dorothy and Gladys Lee, of Grove street, are registered at the Leadley, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Runyon, of East Front street, have returned home after a two weeks' trip to North Carolina, stopping at Washington, D. C., on the way back.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Field and J. Clinton Field, of West Sixth street, have gone to Asbury Park for the remainder of the season. They are registered at the Marlborough.

J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, returned last night after a ten days' stay in Rhode Island. While away he visited Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis at Watch Hill and found the latter's health much improved.

Miss Heinze, the contralto soloist of the choir of the First Baptist church, who is spending the summer abroad, is enjoying not only the foreign travel, but also the advantages to be gained at musical centres and musical festivals.

TO BE MADE AT HOME.

One-piece sacques of all-over embroidery, dotted Swiss or lawn have sleeves produced by the two parts over the arm being caught together and tied with pretty ribbon. A more elaborate short negligee has its accordeon-plaited lawn fronts and back attached to a square, round or pointed yoke or embroidery or lace.

Colored lawn kimonos have band embroidery borders and shaped backs with tucks or box plaits stitched to the waist or falling loose from the shoulders. The double handkerchief elbow sleeves are embroidery bandfinished, and a ribbon sash confines the fulness at the waist, this adding to the garment's trimness. With them, as well as with linen, pique and duck walking skirts, are worn the sheath, hip-fitting umbrella white cotton petticoats trimmed with embroidered muslin flouncings.

To Wear With Lingerie Frocks.

With the simplar princess and one-piece lingerie frocks are worn fascinating bebe hats of heavy embroidered linen. Their frilly scalloped brims are supplemented with lace-edged accordion-plaited net ruches and big taffeta bows set against the square crowns lend a charming note of color to the costume. With the more elaborate confections of all-overs and flouncings, the point d'esprit Charlotte Corday is considered eminently suitable. Taffeta and white mousquetaire gloves to accompany lingerie short sleeves are sometimes elaborately embroidered in delicate colors from wrist to elbow, and even the lisle stockings revealed by the low-cut canvas and suede oxfords display the same craze for the decorative.

Prohibitionist Paraphrase.

"What we want now," said one Prohibition campaigner, "is some picturesque title of our candidate, such as it is now customary to give the head of the ticket."

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Senor Tomas Gagliardo was yesterday appointed Secretary of Finance of Ecuador in succession to Senor Belisario Torres, resigned.

M. Ruau, the French Minister of Agriculture, has made James B. MacLaughlin, of Columbus, O., a commander of the Order of Merite Agricole.

William C. Fox, the American iMnister to Ecuador, with his family left Quito Monday for Guayaquil, where he will board Archer Harman's yacht, the Cavalier, bound for Panama.

Ex-Governor William L. Douglas, of Massachusetts, has presented to the Brockton Day Nursery Association, of Brockton, Mass., a building, together with an endowment of $10,000.

General Joseceline H. Wodehouse, Governor of Bermuda, has been selected by the British War Office to succeed General Sir Bindon Blood as the commander of the Northern (Punjab) Division in India.

For the purpose of studying again the choosing of a president and the methods employed to win votes in a national campaign, Mosel I. Ostrogorski, the distinguished Russian savant, has come to the United States and will remain in the country until next November's election.

Count Komura, the Japanese Ambassador to the Court of St. James, will leave London on July 27 to take up the post of Foreign Minister in the new Katsura Cabinet. The count will go to Tokio by way of America.

Frank S. Hastings, rear commodore of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club of Oyster Bay, was decorated Monday with the Order of St. Stanislaus, presented to him by Baron Schlippenbach, consul-general at New York, on behalf of the Russian Emperor.

Count Herman von Hatzfeldt, Wildenburg, counsellor of the German Embassy at Washington, will soon be transferred to the post of counsellor of Embassy at Constantinople, being succeeded at Washington by Count George von Wedel, who is at present second secretary of the German Embassy at Rome.

THE IDEAL PRESIDENT.

(Inspired by a careful reading of Mr. Bryan's article on what sort of a man the President should be.)

Now listen and I'll tell you
Just what a President should do.

I will describe with perfect tact
The way a President should act.

And, too, I'll point out, by your leave,
Precisely what he should achieve.

And then I'll set down, one by one,
The things which he should leave undone.

Likewise I'll tell, and never shrink,
The sort of thoughts he ought to think.

I'll go still further and reveal
Just how a President should feel.

I'll let you know he should talk
And write and breathe and eat an walk.

On all these things I'll briefly dwell,
For on the subject I've thought well.

The thing to me is very real,
And so I've built up my ideal

Of what a President should be—
But what's the use? Just look at ME!

TUCKERS AND FRILLS.

The revival of the becoming tuckers for the neck, now known by the inexpressive and vague term of "frillings," has led to quite a revolution in neckwear.

The latest idea is to have a very stiff, upstanding frill of satin or moire silk in the top of the collar. In Paris they are wearing a kind of collar, tulle or lace, with a colored ribbon tied around the middle, one frill appearing above it, standing up, and two below it, lying down. The ribbon is tied under the left ear in an exaggereated bow, which is very becoming, but also rather self-conscious, so that none but really pretty people can afford to wear it, even when it becomes them. It is essentially the finish chosen by a pretty woman who knows how pretty she is.

Unfortunately, there are many things which suit the average woman, but she dare not wear them because they seem like claiming for herself a beauty to which she certainly has no wish to pretend.

Bull Gores Horse to Death.

A bull owned by Frand Goodrich at Verona attacked and killed a horse owned by Walter Williams which had been put into a field to pasture where the cow was grazing. The bull was seen to chase the horse around the field until the latter fell from exhaustion. Then it gored it to death.

CARE OF THE SKIN WHEN OUT OF DOORS.

Devotees to outdoor sport will do well to remember that it is easier to prevent than remove the beauty-destroying effects of their indulgence in their favorite sports.

Chamois or white cotton gloves will be of service to prevent tan, sunburn and freckles, while afield.

There is absolutely no excuse for a woman of leisure to neglect her finger nails. Children should be taught at an early stage to keep nails well shaped and clean. The biting habit is only curable by having the nails manicured frequently. When all the little rough particles are removed the inclination to bite is decidedly lessened.

Those who wish to be their own manicurer should have an orange-wood stick, file, cuticle pusher, cuticle scissors, buffer and nail powder. Lemon juice, two-thirds part, and one-third water, used on top and under the nail with stick is cleansing and will loosen the cuticle.

First file the nails to the desired length and shape, then soak in warm, soapy water, loosen the cuticle with the stick and bleach, then the pusher.

If necessary cut the cuticle with the little scissors, placing the points under and then turn the scissors toward the end of the nail to avoid cutting too closely. Cold cream can be applied after the cutting. Polish, bathe, dry and polish again with a buffer, that has not been used with the powder. After the bath is a very good time for the treatment.

The hands can be whitened with a liquid powder. Never file or cut low at the corners, as it hopelessly destroys the cuticle and ruins the shape of the nails. Do not cut the cuticle unless it is absolutely necessary.

The frequency of treatment must be governed by the occupation, condition of the nails and inclination of the owner.

The moist, clammy hand is often the source of annoyance to the unfortunate possessor. This condition often requires a nerve tonic, in other cases it has been corrected by the use of an astringent.

The Diet and the Children.

In these days of an autocratic "young America" it seems almost daring to suggest a "diet" for the small boy and girl. And yet there is nothing that is of greater importance in the bringing up of children than the apparently simple question of what they should eat.

When a child is old enough to eat solid food, great care should be taken in the choice of his diet.

Do not feed the child potatoes as they are not fully enough developed to digest starch, which forms the solid part of this vegetable. Give him beef and lamb broth, one or two boiled eggs, and for fruit, squeeze out the juice of an orange. Do not give the whole orange to children, as they are apt to swallow some of the white tissue, which is indigestible. Bananas are most difficult to digest and it is a mistake to give them to a child under 4 to 5 years of age.

Styles in the Philippines.

At Baguio the Igorrote ladies wrap themselves in a sort of endless such, but out in the country they wear "evening dress" down to the waist. With the men the "G" string is considered quite sufficient anywhere, though to be sure the policemen of Baguio supplement this costume with a khaki blouse and straw hat; while the choir boys in the little church of the Episcopal bishop wear not only blouses but "G" strings of a brilliant crimson. This, however, is only the pomp of church and state. —Army and Navy Life.

Excuses for Wraps.

Little mantelets in all sorts of shapes are much worn this summer, and are liked as much as anything, because they slip over a soft-sleeved gown sa easily. The sleeves of these little wraps are of the angelwing sort in a modified and shortened mode. Others are made with a series of little capes fastened to the armhole at the top and sides, and the armhole is full and extends down the sides of the garment.

Trimming the Linen Suit.

Trimming heavy white linen coat and skirt suits with panel embroideries is rather novel, yet not more unique than that of trimming them with heavy lace bands, which for several seasons has been the vogue. One such costume shows the eyelet-hole banding about the skirt bottom, matching the Empire girdle concealing the joining of the embroidery-yoked blouse and the wide cuffs and collar of the reefer coat.

Just So.

Mr. Stubb—Maria, what was that electrician talking about so long this morning?

Mrs. Stubbs—Why, John, he said for $2 he could put in a battery that would run the electric fans, the door bell, the sewing machine and furnish enough heat for an electric range. What do you think of that?

Mr. Stubb—H'm! Maria, I'd call that current fiction.—Chicago News.

Verona Wants a Water Plant.

By a vote of 124 to 34 the residents of Verona decided at a special election yesterday to bond the borough for the purpose of installing a water plant. The work will be started as soon as the bond issue is disposed of.

MINISTERS AT SEA GIRT

Governor Acts as Host for 325 Pastors Representing All Denominations.

GOV. FORT PRAISES SOLDIERS.

Luncheon, Exhibition Drill, Inspection of Camp and Speechmaking the Program.

Ministess from all parts of the State were the guests yesterday of Governor Fort at Sea Girt. A number of Plainfield pastors were invited but the only divines from here were Rev. C. S. Kemble and Rev. D. B. F. Randolph.

Shocking to relate, the Fifth Regiment band, of Paterson, intermingled the strains of "Lead, Kindly Light," "The Holy City" and other sacred airs with "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and "Merry Widow" waltzes, concluding the program with "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

"There is no better National Guard in the United States than that of New Jersey," said the Governor to the ministers after the luncheon. "I am glad that you have been able to get here for a day and observe how dignified and proper is the atmosphere of the camp for our young men. The records at Washington will show that the statement I have made about our guardsmen is true. They are fine Americans; the best in the land. I am proud of them, and I know that you are.

"We have a regular army battery here, captained by a Jerseyman, and this afternoon Captain Hennessey will give you an exhibition drill, showing you how a battery behaves in action. You will see the guns manipulated, firing in action, and lots of other interesting things."

Cheers for Guardsmen.

When the Governor had concluded there were cheers and a Chautauqua salute. Then the Rev. Dr. Lyman Whitney Allen, of Newark, proposed three cheers for the National Guard of New Jersey, and they were given with a vigor of voices trained to public speaking that made the echoes ring.

Someone asked the Rev. Dr. David O. Irving, of Bethel Presbyterian church, East Orange, if all the ministers in New Jersey weren't included in the list of 325 invited there yesterday by the Governor. It is true, if sad, that he found the statement he made very new to those who heard. He said:

"There are several thousand ministers in this State. There are six or eight hundred of the Presbyterian church alone."

The ministers spent most of the day in going about the camp and visiting the company streets. It was discovered that many had parishioners among the boys of the Fifth Regiment.

There were many meetings between old friends about the big tent where luncheon was served. So many were there of the men of the cloth from every county in the State that fifty or so were served on the lawn in the shadow of the Governor's cottage.

Bishops O'Connor, of Newark, and McFaul, of Trenton, and other dignitaries of the Catholic church, sent regrets. Deans Gessner and McNully were among those who were unable to lunch with Governor Fort. Bishop Lines, of the Episcopal Diocese of Newark, was one of several of his faith to send regrets.

AUGUST PREACHERS AT WARREN CHAPEL ANNOUNCED.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, will spend the month of August on the St. Lawrence River resort, sojourning on the Canadian side. Accompanied by his wife, he will leave this city Monday for four weeks of recreation.

Tomorrow is communion Sunday at Warren chapel, and Mr. McKelvey will officiate at the service in the morning. The following two Sundays, August 9 and 16, Rev. Mr. Porter, of Coal Run, Ohio, will have charge of the services at the chapel, and August 23, Rev. Fred Newman, of Trenton, will be the supply. Rev. Edward Love, of this city, will conduct the service and preach Sunday, August 30, the last Sunday of the regular pastor's absence.

In the City Court.

William Banks, a hackman, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Kelley with a violation of the hack ordinance. Judge Runyon suspended sentence. Charles Barry, another hackman, was ordered to appear for a similar violation but failed to show up. He will have a hearing tomorrow.

FOUR BOROUGHITES FIGHT, NURSE BRUISES IN CELL

John Walsh, William Mollison, Leonard Young and John Kerry, the latter colored, are occupying borough court cells today as the result of a four handed scrap after an alcoholic outing last night. All are boroughites and were arrested by Borough Marshals Kellar and Kiernan on Somerset street, near Greenbrook road at a few minutes after midnight. The first three started the fighting, but Kerry, who is a trained nurse, happened along and took the side of "the under dog," just for the sake of getting in the mix-up.

Walsh got the worst "beating up" of the quartet. His nose today resembles a cauliflower, his right eye is "polished" and his face is red and puffy. His trained nurse fellow prisoner recommended leeches to take the black coloring away from his optics. The advice was followed, with the result that the man could hardly persuade them to loose their "soul kiss" grip. The leeches were finally pried off and Walsh spent the rest of the morning trying to stop the bleeding.

The explosion of a red toy balloon on the Asbury Park station platform, about the time the Plainfielders were getting aboard the train for this city yesterday, caused considerable excitement and great fright to ten-year-old Edna Smith, of this city. The little girl was standing on the platform, deeply engrossed in the antics of the "b'loon," when someone touched it with a cigar or cigarette and it "bursted" with a noise like a cannon shot. Edna was thrown down by the concussion and her hair and eye brows singed. People who stood nearby thought she had been hurt and there was a general gathering to see what was the matter. The smoker who did the damage got away with his joke.

No accident marred the day for the Plainfielders, who found the conditions at the shore ideal, with a steady sea breeze and sun just hot enough to suit those who went to get sunburned. A large percentage of the excursionists "hit the surf" and declared their swim the best part of the day's outing. Jollity reigned in the train going and coming, and there was no delay with the specials. The excursion made especially good time, running down in an hour and a half and back in an hour and forty minutes.

The outing crowd was the largest in the history of Trinity Reformed church excursions, and all sixteen cars of the two-section special were well filled.

PREACHERS DURING AUGUST AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

CLEVELAND FUND $328.85

Frederick Sandford Sends His Check from Far Off Maine for the Monument.

HE PRAISES THE MOVEMENT.

Governor Fort Chairman of the Cleveland Memorial Association, Which Aims to Raise the Monument Fund.

Plainfielders enjoying a season of rest at far distant points, some of whom are in Europe, have largely augmented The Daily Press fund for the Grover Cleveland monument to be erected in this State by the New Jersey Cleveland Memorial Association. The latest evidence of this fact is the contribution made today by Frederick Sandford, a public spirited resident, who is sojourning at Harrison, Maine.

Mr. Sandford, who sends his check for $5 for the worthy object, says:

"I have been reading in my paper of the wonderful work being done by it for the Cleveland memorial. The cause is one that particularly appeals to me inasmuch as I always held that great President in veneration. It would be good if we had more public servants like him and I wish to show my humble appreciation of his great work for the Nation by contributing my mite. Please find enclosed my check for $5. I wish you good luck in your effort to make the total subscription for Plainfield, 'The City Beautiful,' at least $500.

Former United States Senator John F. Dryden is chairman of the State committee and among his assistants are Governor J. Franklin Fort, United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs and former United States Senator James Smith, Jr.

EXPRESS WAGON AND RUNABOUT IN COLLISION.

An express wagon belonging to A. E. Hoagland and driven by Edward Conger, collided with a runabout on West Front street near the Babcock building this morning. A wheel of the latter rig was demolished but the occupants, the Misses Grace and Carrie McVey, of West Front street, escaped injury by holding fast to the seat. Patrolman Flynn assisted them in getting the runabout put to rights in order to get home.

The accident was caused by the Misses McVey stopping their rig suddenly just as Conger was about to pass them. He attempted to pull his horse to one side but the animal slipped on the brick pavement.

A New Prosperity.

Every indication of better times than ever. Merchants all over the country are reporting larger sales and a continued and insistent demand for summer goods. Many who were a bit timid about even spending money for necessities are now buying liberally, and it is reported on every hand that the fall will see a return to the old times. One of the most experienced retail men in this section—M. C. VanArsdale, shoe dealer at 127 East Front street, has taken time by the forelock and even in the face of an unusually good summer business has reduced the price a quarter and more of regular figures in order to clean up his stock quickly and surely. His idea is to get the present summer stock into ready money to use in buying the biggest stock of fall and winter goods he ever carried in order to meet the increased demand that is now assured for fall and winter footwear. Sale starts tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. ***

THEY DEMAND PLEDGES OF PARTY CANDIDATES

Finally perfecting an organization to be known as the Home Rule Good Government Club, the organization committee of the Union County Trades Council in Elizabeth has appointed a committee of five to get from every local candidate for office his stand on legislation advocated by the unions. Unless there is an unexpected change of mind written pledges are to be secured.

In a pamphlet made public the union men announce the legislation they want enacted, and the plan by which they propose to secure it. One plank calling for home rule in taxation—another name for the single tax theory—was last night referred back to committee. These are the principle laws which the union will attempt to have candidates come out for:

A law providing for the initiative and referendum and recall.

A law providing for a public utility commission.

A law providing for the Massachusetts ballot.

A law providing for the direct vote system of primaries.

An employers' liability law.

It is proposed to have a representative in every election district.

The means by which the union men purpose to secure the legislation they favor are set forth in the pamphlet just issued. It states among other things that the Republicans and the Democrats in each local shall vote in their respective primaries for men pledged to their interests and recommends the organization of a county committee composed of one Democrat and one Republican, at least from each local, which is practically the method adopted there.

"If this plan be carried out," says the pamphlet, "it will result in controlling the organization of both political parties in the interest of the people and in the nomination of men in each party pledged to the enactment of laws in the popular interest." But the greatest advantage of all is that this plan would utterly destroy the political power of the specials interests and control the State in the interests of all the people.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN OUT FOR TEMPERANCE

John L. Sullivan, who has broken with rum and is traveling around the country delivering temperance lectures, spoke yesterday at the Boston, Mass., Tammany Club's outing. Here are some of the famous fighter's epigrams:

"If a man wants a drink, let him have it, if he knows how to handle it—I have never met the man yet who did."

"Money is the universal passport to every place and everything—but heaven."

"Never mind what the other fellow does—if he wants to hang himself, don't follow suit."

"I have worked at most everything honest, but I soon found an opening to make money quicker. Now, money may come fast, but it goes likewise."

"If a man had to kiss a wife with a breath of beer, limburger cheese and peanuts, he would 'holler' enough to wake the whole neighborhood."

"Prohibition is an elephantine farce that would not be tolerated in Boston."

Colored Baptists' Excursion Today.

Scores of local colored folk, including delegations from the Mount Olive, Shiloh, Calvary and Ebenezer Baptist churches, are spending the day at Bellwood Park, where they are re-inforced in numbers by several thousand excursionists from colored Baptist churches from Newark, Elizabeth, Westfield and Bound Brook. The local excursionists went by trolley or train to Bound Brook, where a special train took them to Bellwood Park. Although the start was not supposed to be made until nearly 10 o'clock, about a dozen of the excursionists gathered at the trolley stand before 8 o'clock and took an early trolley to Bound Brook, "so as to be sure and get good seats in the special train."

Trainor Jury Disagrees.

After having been closeted for three hours, the jury in the case of Peter Trainor, charged with illegal selling at the saloon of Charles Charles Wyckoff, of Dunellen, reported that they could reach no agreement. They reported that the vote was eight to four for conviction. The trial was before Judge Booraem at New Brunswick.

EXPOSES REALTY BOOM

Elizabeth Journal Calls Public Attention to Some Misrepresentations.

TRADING ON OUR GOOD NAME.

"A Mine Is a Hole in the Ground Owned By a Liar"—Property Not Located In City Limits.

The Elizabeth Evening Journal editorially exposes a New York realty company which is advertising alleged Plainfield property at ridiculous prices. Aware of the fact that this is no boom town and that neither the local Board of Trade nor the residents in general have any desire to have the municipality misrepresented, the Journal says:

"A development company that is exploiting land near Plainfield may have a good thing to offer, but the circular that it is sending to prospective buyers makes out too good a case to inspire confidence in those who know this neighborhood. For instance:

Plainfield had a papulation of 5,000 inhabitants, and in five years has grown to 40,000. At this rate of growth what will your acre of land be worth two years from today?

We are sure that any person can be convinced at first sight that in Plainfield one lot is worth as much as we are getting for twenty lots.

Plainfield had a popuiation of 5,000 once, but that was not five years ago. By the census of 1900 it had 15,369 and at the present time it has about 20,000, instead of 40,000.

"The land in question is really in South Plainfield, which is part of Middlesex county, and to figure out that there are 140 trains daily between that 'Plainfield' and New York, as the circular states, one would have to include the trains on the Central Railroad to and from Plainfield proper, those on the Lehigh Valley to and from South Plainfield, and also those to and from the nearest station of the Pennsylvania in Middlesex county. There may be no downright falsehood in this paragraph, but it conveys a wrong impression.

"The advantages of Plainfield are always used to attract attention to the property, as when the circular says that 'we have our own automobiles to take you and show you the great city of Plainfield, the grandest mansions you could picture to yourself, department stores, banks, theatres, schools, churches, hospitals and other advantages that you have not seen before in a suburban place so close to New York.'

"To take you from South Plainfield to Plainfield is the real meaning of this.

"A mine is 'a hole in the ground owned by a liar,' according to Mark Twain. People who have experienced the solicitude of the men who own gold mines in Alaska and copper mines out West that will surely pay 100 per cent. dividends pretty soon can appreciate the definition. Liar is a generic term. There are species with a tendency to form varieties. Nobody is disturbed by the vain lies of a Falstaff or the amusing lies of a Munchausen, but people are sometimes deceived by the vivid kind told by the man who owns only a hole in the ground.

"Promoters of land sales who paint opportunity in hues too rosy are apt to be classed with the 'mine' owners."

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN BIBLE CLASS AT MT. PLEASANT.

The adult Bible class of the First Presbyterian church, numbering about forty church workers, had a picnic yesterday afternoon and evening at Leonard Melick's farm at Mount Pleasant. The trip was made by stages and the afternoon was spent on the grounds, where quoits and croquet proved features of the various sports in which the Plainfielders participated. L. A. Hummer and J. V. D. Burr won the informal tournament in quoits, and Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Hinman carried off the honors in croquet.

Late in the afternoon a light supper was served on the lawn, where tables were spread, and the Japanese lanterns strung about were lighted. The evening was spent indoors, where phonograph selections, vocal and instrumental music livened the gathering until it was time to start for home. Mrs. Lillian C. Kelly, Miss Eva Kelly, F. O. Dunning and Fred Goodwin were the committee in charge of the affair.

Secures J. W. Johnson Property.

Dr. F. Wilbur Cornwell, of East Front street, has purchased the J. Wesley property at East Seventh street and Watchung avenue. He will make it his home and office combined. Dr. Cornwell's parents, who were former local residents but who are now living at Cranford, will reside with him.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR ALTERING REFORM HALL

Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, was in town yesterday for the purpose of making final arrangements for the alterations to Reform Hall. The work will be started at once and the place will be open on September 15 as a ten and twenty cent vaudeville theatre. Bookings will be made by Feiber & Shea, who have a chain of similar houses in Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, Trenton, Orange and Paterson.

In speaking of the alterations, Mr. Counihan said the interior of the old hall will undergo an entire change and that no expense would be spared in making it cosy and attractive. First class opera chairs will be placed in the orchestra and extra exits are to be cut in to insure safety. The front of the building is to be entirely reconstructed and a handsome approach added.

The regular season of the New Plainfield theatre will be opened on August 10 with Dockstader's minstrels as the attraction.

LONG COURT TERM TEMPORARILY ENDED

The May term of Court of Quarter Sessions came to a temporary close yesterday, all jurymen being excused until September 8, when the trial of Dominick Mangano, accused of murder, will be held. A few sentences will be imposed by Judge Atwater Saturday.

James H. Powderly, whose case has been troubling the authorities for the past four years, was in court yesterday morning, and unexpectedly waived a trial, pleading non vult to the charge of having deserted his wife and children. Powderly has been up several times, more than a year ago escaping after being indicted, and being captured early in July in New York and brought over for trial.

The escapades of Powderly cost Hugh Boyle and Peter Kelly more than $250, as they had to make good on the bond which they gave for Powderly, guaranteeing his regular payment of $15 toward the support of his wife and children. Powderly defaulted, and after a stiff flight in the lower courts Boyle and Kelly had to pay up. Alfred A. Stein is representing Powderly, who entered a plea of non vult yesterday morning, changing from not guilty, and will be sentenced Saturday.

The present term of court has been one of the longest on record, and unlike others, has been a continuous session.

Herron's Trial Costly.

The recent trial of Archibald Herron will cost Middlesex county about fifteen hundred dollars. The four alienists in the case will get $100 each per day. They were in attendance two days, making the cost to the county $800 for them. Dr. Britton D. Evans and Dr. T. M. Donohue did not testify, although on hand for the State. They helped the State frame questions on which the witnesses for the defense were cross-examined. The two alienists for the defense were Dr. William E. Ramsay and Dr. Harry A. Cotton. The defendant's counsel, C. J. Cowenhoven, is likely to get a fee of $300 for his work, and the fees of the jury were $118. About three hundred dollars will cover the other costs, although the total amount may exceed $1,500, when all of the expense bills are counted in.

Blocker—Outcalt.

Miss Ethel Wilgus Outcalt, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Outcalt, and the Rev. Simon Blocker, pastor of the United Reformed church at High Bridge, N. Y., were married yesterday afternoon in the First Reformed church, New Brunswick, by the Rev. Dr. P. Theodore Pockman. The bridegroom was graduated from Rutgers College in 1905 and from the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick last year. Miss Adelia Siemons was maid of honor, Miss Mae W. Osborn and Miss Bertha Acken were bridesmaids, Jacob C. Pilgrim, of Holland, Mich., was best man, and the ushers were Anno C. Dykema, of Chicago, and Professor Charles A. Morris, of Toms River.

Rev. O. J. Shoop to Lead.

The meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air camp tonight will be in charge of Rev. O. J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church. He will be assisted by members of the congregation.

—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vail, of Norwood avenue, has been brightened by the arrival of a young son.

At the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock, Kiel Garrettson, a young missionary of Nyack, New York, will speak.

VETERAN RETIRES TODAY

C. H. Schermerhorn Concludes Long Service as Manager for the Western Union.

PENSIONED BY THE COMPANY.

Entered Its Employ at the Age of Seventeen and Has Been in Plainfield Thirty-eight Years.

Charles H. Schermerhorn, who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living telegrapher in active service in the east, will relinquish his duties at the North Avenue station tonight after acting as manager of the Western Union office for thirty-eight years. Beginning with tomorrow he will be retired by the company on a pension, this action having been taken in recognition of his faithful services. The veteran knight of the key retires with the best wishes of all his associates and will enjoy in a quiet way the rest he has earned after a life of activity. He is now seventy years old.

Mr. Schermerhorn began his work at the age of seventeen as a messenger boy and assistant to Joseph Worl, now living in Westfield, in the telegraph office at New Hope, Pa., in 1848. The next year he was put in charge of the office, and remained until 1851, when he was transferred to Princeton. In those days the Western Union was hardly known, and the business was done by the Magnetic Telegraph Company. So few telegrams were handled that the offices at New Hope and Princeton were used mainly as testing stations for all wires running North and South. It was part of the operator's work to look after repairs to the wires after storms, and Mr. Schermerhorn has often walked from New Hope to Philadelphia with climbers and the rest of the repair outfit looking after the wires.

From Princeton he was transferred in 1853 to New York, and took charge of the office in Barnum's Museum. For a time he was in the main office, then in Hanover street, which had a manager and six operators. In 1856 a line was laid across the East river, the forerunner of the great Atlantic cable, and when an office was opened in Brooklyn he was put in charge. The line had been working only two months, when a schooner dragging anchor, tore up the cable, and the service was then maintained for some time by messengers.

In 1861 Mr. Schermerhorn was transferred to Beverly, N. J., where the Union soldiers were in camp, and had a busy time with messages for the soldiers to their families. He was assisted here by his wife in a very material way. When General Grant was in Beverly, where his family were then located, the general often sat all night in the little telegraph office awaiting news from the front. He introduced Mr. Schermerhorn to Generals Sherman and Sheridan at one time with the words, "Gentlemen, this man has done his part for the Union cause. He has kept me in close touch with the army with some very important messages when I have been away from the front."

In 1870 Mr. Schermerhorn was transferred to Plainfield and he has remained here ever since. During all the time that he had charge of the local office he was never off a day on account of illness and he was absent for other reasons less than a week in all. Many of the messenger boys who worked under him are now substantial business men while others who learned telegraphy through his tuition hold positions of trust with the company. He will continue to make Plainfield his home.

Mr. Schermerhorn's successor at the North Avenue station will be Michael L. Griffin, of this city, who has been operator at the Berckman street tower. His assistant will be Miss Brown, of Wanamee, Pa., whose hours will be from noon untill 11 o'clock at ninght. Mr. Griffin's place at the tower will be taken by Peter McDonough.

Entertainment at Camp.

A delegation from Grace M. E. church will be at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp tonight, to provide special entertainment for the children there. Tomorrow night a social time will be conducted by the members of the Wilhelmina Runyon Class of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school. The public is invited to be present.

Next Week's Excursion.

The next excursion to Asbury Park will be Thursday, August 6, when a shore outing will be conducted under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus. The special train will leave this city at 815 and returning, will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 o'clock.

WESTFIELD.

Mayor Alpers, of Westfield, has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the barn in the rear of Godschalk's Hotel, Monday night last.

Mrs. Thomas H. Line, of Westfield, died Wednesday at her home in Westfield avenue. She had been ailing, but had not been considered seriously ill. She leaves a husband and several grown-up children.

A fund is being raised by subscription to put up a public drinking fountain at the flowing artesian well in the school grounds of the Washington School.

The bond issue amounting to $43,000 for building the new Fourth Ward School at Westfield has been taken by the trustees of the State school fund at 4½ per cent. par.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At the conclusion of the devotional services at the meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Seventh-Day Baptist church this afternoon, the regular monthly business meeting was held. It was decided that the organization co-operate with the Plainfield Union societies in the entertainment of delegates to the State convention next year. The meetings will be discontinued for the month of August.

The reception of church members by letter, and the revision of the church roll will be the principal business transacted at the regular business meeting of the New Market Baptist church to be held tonight.

The St. Joseph's nine, of Bound Brook, will be the opponents of the Dunellen F. C. team on the local diamond tomorrow afternoon. The home team will have an all-Dunellen lineup.

Levering & Garrigues' shop, which shut down a week ago, will resume again Monday, with the full force of men. In some departments the shopmen have already started work.

Routine business was transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the Defender Fire Company, held last night.

Frank Fletcher, Jr., is sojourning at Asbury Park.

GIRL OF 12 FINDS MOTHER A SUICIDE

Mrs. Jennie A. Maginley, 43 years old, committed suicide in a fit of melancholia yesterday afternoon at her home, 77 Ralph street, Belleville, by inhaling gas through a tube while she lay in bed.

The woman had been despondent since Christmas time, when her mother, Mrs. Ellen Cole, died. Her mother expired at her daughter's home in Belleville. The two had never been separated before, and since that time Mrs. Maginley had grown melancholy. Everything possible was done to rid her of this despondency. She was under the care of Dr. William Clark, of Forest Hill, and appeared on Sunday last, when the physician visited her, to be growing better.

Her husband had been idle for several months, and yesterday morning he was obliged to go to New York on matters pertaining to work. Mrs. Maginley sent her daughter Dolores, 12 years old, to Newark to make some purchases, and on the latter's return at 3:30 o'clock she found her mother in bed with the gas tube in her mouth. The tube was connected with a gas jet.

The little girl attempted to revive her mother, but the woman was dead. Dr. H. B. Vail was called in and pronounced life extinct.

County Physician Daniel Elliott visited the home and granted a burial certificate. The woman's husband arrived home from New York while Dr. Elliott was at the house.

STORK AT THE WEDDING.

Twins Come to Bride's Sister and Christening Follows.

New Brunswick, July 31.—Just before teh time set for the wedding of Miss Bertha Elizabeth Marie Misner and Percy J. Hunter at New Brunswick Wednesday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schipmann, Mrs. Schipmann, the sister of the bride, gave birth to twin boys. The guests were assembling, and some suggested that the wedding be made quiet, but Mr. Schipmann declared that the visit of the stork had added to his joys and that there was all the more occasion for repoicing.

He announced that there would be a christening as well as a wedding, and after the Rev. W. W. Knox, of the First Presbyterian church, had tied the knot, he christened the boys. Mr. and Mrs. Schipmann now have eight children, twin girls being among them as well as the twin boys.

Drowned Between Boats.

John Satkowski, aged 22 years, of 183 Washington street, Jersey City, while passing from one boat to another at the Port Liberty coal dock yesterday, fell into Newark Bay and was drowned. He was a clerk in a grocery store, and was delivering goods at the time.

The Patient Producer.

"They say your son-in-law does not appreciate the value of money."

"Yes, he does," answered Mr. Cumrox. "But I don't believe he thinks I do."—Washington Star.

WOMAN, GIRL AND BABY ARE RESCUED

Trenton, July 31.—Mrs. Albert Marke, her 3-months-old infant and her 7-year-old niece narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon when they were percipitated into the roaring water at the falls through which two waterways empty into the Delaware river. Francis B. Lee, prominent throughout New Jersey as a historian; Thomas Holmes, a local editor; E. M. Cooney, a foreman, and Henry Elso, a carpenter, risked their lives to save the trio. Although she was being dashed against the rocks and was almost drowned, Mrs. Marke clung to her infant.

The Roebling Construction Company is building a suspension bridge over the falls to replace one which was washed away some time ago. To cross the falls is a short cut for many, and Mrs. Marke believed the bridge had been completed. When she found it was impossible to go over the bridge, she thought she could safely cross a plank which had been placed over the falls for the convenience of the workmen. When the trio reached the centre of the plank the girl plunged forward, and, believing she would fall, Mrs. Marke attempted to grasp her, thus throwing the three into the water.

Cooney was first to the rescue, but found he could do little, because of the rocks. Messrs. Lee and Holmes, who were attending a meeting of the commission arranging for the bridge, leaped into the water and by desperate efforts succeeded in saving all but the little girl, who was brought ashore by Elso, who grasped her dress as she was going into the river. Mrs. Marke and her niece were severely bruised by coming into contact with the rocks, but the baby was uninjured.

CIRCUS MADE TO PLAY IN ONE TENT.

Bloomfield Authorities Ordered Traveling Show to Use Small Canvas.

Leon Washburn's circus visited Bloomfield yesterday and pitched a small tent on the grounds in Glenwood avenue opposite Linden avenue. It was intended to erect a large tent, but the park police entered an objection and declined to allow the employes of the aggregation to do so.

The land upon which it was proposed to put up the larger canvas has been acquired by the County Park Commission, hence the refusal of the park police to acquiesce in the demand of the proprietor that he be allowed to conduct the show as he desired. There was considerable excitement, as well as argument, and it looked at one time as if there would be a clash between the circus people and the objectors. This was averted, however, by cooler heads, and the show went on, although upon a much smaller scale than was at first intended.

The sympathy of the public was undoubtedly on the side of the circus people. They argued that as no attempt had yet been made to improve the swamp land, the erection of the larger tent would have done no harm. Furthermore, it was claimed that the Park Commission had not up to date acquired full title to the land. In addition to that, the circus representative stated that he had paid an agent for the property $25 to allow the tents to be pitched there. The circus people also paid for a license and secured permission for a street parade.

GOMPERS REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS.

Says He Never Presumed to Deliver the Labor Vote to Mr. Bryan.

Washington, July 31.—The row made by labor leaders incensed at Samuel Gompers for his political declarations has put Mr. Gompers in an irritable mood. Departing from his usual rule of saying what he has to say first in his labor organ, he permitted himself to be quoted yesterday in answer to his critics.

These critics said that Mr. Gompers presumed to deliver the labor vote to Bryan, and he now says that he never said nor presumed anything of the kind.

"It is possible that by lies and misrepresentations the enemies of organized labor may injure me personally, and even be successful in accomplishing my removal as president of the American Federation of Labor, but that will never change my course," said Mr. Gompers. "It is not a question of politics with me. I have no politics, or if I have, they are the politics of the people.

"I fully expected when I took the stand which I have that some would disagree with me. I expected to be criticized too in some quarters, but I did not think that the criticism would be so unjust as to be contemptible. I stand for the right of individual opinion. The report that I have ever said that I would or could deliver the labor vote to any political party is an infamous lie.

"The report that certain unions of the Central Federation Union of New York are banding themselves together for my undoing I believe to be absolutely false."

FRACTIOUS HORSE BROKE RIB OF GOVERNOR FORT.

Sea Girt, July 31.—It was made known yesterday that Governor Fort sustained a broken rib when he was thrown from a fractious horse two weeks ago last Monday.

The Governor was not aware that he had been seriously hurt until ten days after the accident occurred. At the time he was thrown he refused to submit to a thorough examination by a physician, declaring he had not been hurt, and accordingly only a cursory examination was made and the fractured rib was not discovered.

When the Governor found that the physical conditions he had attributed to bruises and a severe shaking up did not pass away, he decided to have a more critical examination made. He sent for Dr. W. G. Schauffler, surgeon of the Second Troop, who is summering at Spring Lake, and the physician discovered the fractured rib and has since given it proper care. The injury has not deterred the Governor, however, from twice riding on horseback since the accident to review the regiments.

The Cumberland County Grange picnic, an annual affair, will be held at Union Lake, Millville, next Wednesday.

July 31 In History.

1777—Lafayette began active service in the American army.

1816—General George Henry Thomas, noted American soldier, called the "Rock of Chickamauga," born; died 1870.

1907—Francis Miles Finch, jurist, author of the war elegy, "The Blue and the Gray," died; born 1827.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 7:12, rises 4:52; moon sets 9:22 p. m.: moon's age, 4 days.

Plainfield, N. J., July 31, 1908.

Would that we had more men at Trenton like Carlton B. Pierce!

This week Governor Fort acted as host for the "sky-pilots." Next week he will entertain the "ink-slingers." Are you on?

Everett Colby appears to question the right of a man who is not so blessed with riches as he to be his competitor for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Essex.

We suggest that the city of Elizabeth invite the city of Plainfield to participate in the public ovation to be accorded the former captain of Company K, Major William B. Martin.

Contributions are coming in daily for the Cleveland Memorial Association's monument fund. Today we are able to report that already the patriotic people of Plainfield have subscribed $328.85 towards this most worthy object. Are you on the honor roll?

Plainfield is not a "boom town" in any sense of the word and realty boomers in other States who mislead people by representing that they have property for sale at ridiculously low prices in "The City Beautiful" should be brought to account in the proper forum without delay.

After he has already devoted fourteen of the best years of his life to the faithful service of his constituents in the Fifth congressional district, it would be rank injustice to compel Mr. Charles N. Fowler to "accept" another term, particularly as it might jeopardize the Republican party's chances.

The Warren Journal, of Belvidere, N. J., says: "The principles laid down by Thomas Jefferson are as sure today as when the fathers professed them. They still live in the hearts and minds and lives of true Democrats." Yes, they are but a memory, and so all true Democrats will vote for William H. Taft who comes nearest to being an exponent of their political principles.

In attributing to the Republican party the blame for the alleged hard times, the Trenton True American rises in all its majesty to proclaim "The country can have a rest by deadlocking the National Legislature, stopping the grinding out of iniquitous laws and by the election of William Jennings Bryan as President." By such a course, the country would surely have a rest, but not the kind that the workingman relishes.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Chancery Clerk Vivian M. Lewis, Assemblyman John D. Prince, Water Supply Commissioner George Wright and a number of prominent Passaic county men were at Sea Girt yesterday visiting with the Governor and the soldier boys from their county who are in camp there. "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, of Morris county, State Treasurer, was the chief political leader from that neck of the woods. From here and there over the State camp prominent men to see the guardsmen or "talk it over" with each other. With the Bergen delegation were Congressman Hughes and Senator Hinchliffe.

Senator Colby and Assemblymen Hines and Morgan, of Essex county, called upon Colonel Austen Colgate yesterday at Sea Girt and sought to induce him to declare himself as candidate for sheriff to succeed Frank H. Sommer. Colonel Colgate told his visitors he did not wish to run. He added that he was of the opinion he would not be persuaded at a later time to run, but would not say positively he would refuse to enter the field. He promised Senator Colby to let him know positively at a later time.

William Dod, of Hoboken, has offered to bet 2 to 1 that Bryan will be beaten in New Jersey. So far he has had no takers.

Senator Colby went to Chautauqua today, where he will give a talk on "The Place of Political Parties Under New Conditions."

Of the present Democratic assembly delegation in Hudson county those slated for renomination, it is understood, are Joseph P. Tumulty, Mark A. Sullivan, James Baker, Charles P. Olwell, Edward Kenny, Oscar L. Aufder Heide, Albert C. Eppinger and Amadeus Valente. The first four named will all run for the third time.

Despite the fact that Congressman Sherman has branded as absolutely false the report that he intends resigning from the Republican national ticket, owing to ill-health, the story continues to circulate.

James E. Martine has received acknowledgement from Mayor Robert W. Speer, of Denver, for the resolution of thanks of the New Jersey delegates to the Democratic National convention for the generous hospitality afforded the Jerseymen. The letter was written by the mayor's secretary, John S. Irby, and in it he says incidently the "generous expressions in the matter are greatly appreciated."

YOUNG WOMEN MANGLED AT FATAL CROSSING

Four wealthy society women, summer residents of Atlantic Highlands, were struck by a train while driving across the Central Railroad tracks at the North Borough crossing at Seabright yesterday, and one was killed and two injured. The dead woman is Miss Julia E. Delcher, who was hurled a distance of twenty feet and frightfully mangled, while Mrs. Louis Mannheimer and Miss Ruth Rouse were more or less injured by being thrown from the carriage. The injured women were taken to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital at Long Branch in the automobile of Dr. Fields, of Red Bank, who was hastily summoned.

Mrs. Mannheimer and the Misses Rouse and Delcher and Miss Marie Delcher were on their way in a two-seated carriage from their homes at Atlantic Highlands to a midsummer ball. As they approached the crossing, which has acquired a dreadful reputation for the many fatal accidents which have taken place there, the horse shied at the 5 o'clock express from New York. Mrs. Mannheimer, who is a skillful whip, quieted it, and, thinking that the track was clear, started across. Just then the 5:05 local to New York approached on the other track and struck the carriage squarely, reducing it to kindling wood and throwing its occupants out. That they were not all killed is a miracle.

Miss Marie, who escaped injury, landed near her sister, and rushed to her assistance. She fainted at the sight of her mangled body, and is now threatened with nervous prostration. The other women were thrown to the side of the track and not seriously hurt.

Coroner J. T. Tetley, of Red Bank, has charge of the case, and will conduct a full investigation in order to find out why the women were not warned of the approach of the train, and look into the actions of the gatemen before the accident.

Lawyer Chosen Chairman.

Thomas H. Haggerty, a lawyer, of New Brunswick, was elected chairman of the Middlesex County Democratic Committee at its organization meeting yesterday afternoon; William F. Harkins was elected secretary. Joseph E. Stricker, of Perth Amboy, who had been in the fight for the chairmanship, withdrew from the race before the election.

James Conway, of East Second street, has returned home after a stay of several months at Atlantic City.

STOLE NEWARK RIGS.

Horse Thief Arrested In Jersey City Admits Many Thefts.

Jersey City, July 31.—After stealing at least a score of valuable horses and ponies and fashionable rigs, a man who describes himself as Arnold Levene, alias "Sylvester," of the Mills Hotel, New York, who was arrested Wednesday night by Detective-Sergeant Rooney in the stable of John Henning, Erie street, Jersey City, while he was attempting to sell a horse and runabout wagon, has confessed to having stolen it from C. J. Myneth, of Rockland Lake, N. Y.

Levene also confessed to having stolen rigs belonging to several Newark men, among them being those owned by a butcher in Fifteenth avenue. Levene's game was to hire a rig one day, return it, hire it again the following day and go off with it.

The police have learned that Levene is wanted for stealing horses by the police in various parts of the United States, and his arrest is considered an important one. He was arraigned yesterday morning before Judge Farmer in the First Criminal Court and held to await further examination.

BLAZE IN COP'S HOME.

Believed to Have Been Started By Black Hand.

What is belived to have been an attempt to burn the house in which Policeman Joseph Caprio, of the Seventh Precinct, lives at 353 First street, Jersey City, was made this morning. A boy named Joseph, who lives in the house, told Policeman Sheridan that he was coming downstairs from the apartments of his parents, when he heard a man descending the stairs, and heard the crack of matches. When he reached the hallway leading to the apartments occupied by Policeman Caprio and family, he discovered a fire. An alarm was sent in and the blaze extinguished before it made any headway.

It is the impression of the police that the blaze was the work of a firebug. Caprio has taken part in many Black Hand cases, and it is thought that the blaze was started by a member of that gang for revenge.

Held On Burglary Charge.

Hugh Brady was held for the Grand Jury at Elizabeth yesterday on a charge of burglary committed on June 19, and also for assault on Morris Keliner, for which he was arrested Wednesday night.

OHIO DRIVES OUT 458 SALOONS IN SIX MONTHS.

There are 458 fewer saloons in Ohio now than there were on January 1, according to the state auditor's record of the July collection of the Aiken tax. This means a falling off in the state revenue since January last of $397,207.19.

The Ohio records show that the revenue collected this year from saloons under the $1,000 Aiken tax is $4,909,950.12 more than was collected in 1905, the last year of the $350 tax.

This figure stands in spite of the big decrease in the number of saloons since that time.

The decrease in saloons is due not only to local option elections, but also to the failure of many saloonkeepers to make enough money to pay the tax.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The usual reports of garden truck being stolen is heard nearly every day in town. Some people believe it is cheaper and better goods when some one else raises it. It may be cheaper but if the petty thieves are caught the summer supply will come high.

The political pot in town has not started to boil as yet, and there will probably be nothing doing until early fall, when the members of the G. O. P. will no doubt revive the life in the Republican club and open club rooms in town as in the past.

Weiner and Alberts will be the battery used by Manager Frentz against Somerville tomorrow in the the game at Somerville. If Weiner is in good condition the local should repeat the defeat they gave the West Ends early in the season.

Frank Weldon's new house on Front street is finished and Mr. Weldon and family, who are boarding in Rahway, will soon take possession.

The monthly covenant meeting will be held at the Baptist church tonight. One of the deacons of the church will lead the meeting.

Mrs. George L. Dunn and children, who have been spending a week at Asbury Park, have returned home.

John Falony has returned from a visit at his home at Dover.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

One of the delightful outings of the season was enjoyed by about forty South Plainfielders, who took in the Trinity Reformed excursion to Asbury yesterday.

The Climax Athletic Club will hold one of its delightful summer dances tonight in Samuel Pyatt's barn, which is a favorite place for those events.

The township is remarkably free from illness, no serious case having been reported for several weeks.

The thieves who broke into Judge Smith's house on Tuesday covered their tracks effectually.

Sadie Randolph, of Plainfield avenue, is spending a few days with friends in Westfield.

Mrs. W. Sisty, of Philadelphia, is here on a visit to her daughter-in-law at Lakeside.

Following its annual custom, The Daily Press will receive, acknowledge and transmit to the proper officers, any contributions for these worthy charities.

GOLD BRICK BUYER DEAD.

Patrick Martin, Victim of a Notorious $5,000 Swindle, Passes Away.

Patrick Martin, of Bordentown, died at his home in Trenton yesterday, aged 69 years. Mr. Martin was an extensive owner of real estate, and sprang into prominence a few years ago when a supposed nephew sold two gold bricks to him.

The case is a famous one in this State. It appears that Martin had a brother who went West. A supposed nephew came to his house in Trenton. He told a story of "Indians" camping in the asylum woods near here with two bricks of real gold, which they wanted to sell at much below their actual value.

Mr. Martin visited the camp, borings were made by the "Indians" in the bricks, and the dust assayed the purest gold. Martin went to the bank, drew out $5,000, and bought the worthless stuff. The nephew of course disappeared.

One of the bricks holds back a door in the Martin house, the other being an exhibit in the case in the Federal Court House at Trenton. No one was ever brought to justice for the swindle.

Martin made it a rule never to speak to persons who mentioned the gold brick episode.

Arthur Caleen, of Orchard place, has been spending the past two weeks at Lake Hopatcong.

COURT SAYS MINOR MAY END MARRIAGE BOND

"Should any persons hereafter be so ill advised as to marry a minor under the prescribed age, it will be with the knowledge that the relationship can be determined at the mere will of the infant," is the decision of Vice Chancellor Stevens at Trenton in an opinion in which he refuses to annul the marriage of Percy E. Williams, of Livingston, and Lola Maria Brokaw, who is studying to be a trained nurse at the Mountainside Hospital, Montclair.

The fact that the new divorce law, which was passed in 1907 and became operative last winter, is held to be not retroactive is all that saves Mrs. Williams from being a divorced woman before either she or her husband had ceased to be a minor.

It was June 14, 1904, that Williams and Miss Brokaw were married by Leo Kitchell, a justice of the peace of Morris county. The bridegroom was at that time between sixteen and seventeen years of age and the bride was less than fifteen. The husband stated in his suit that the marriage had not been confirmed by him since he attained the age of eighteen, which is the minimum under the new law which holds such unions to be binding.

The defendant, through her counsel, filed a demurrer to the bill, setting up that the marriage was legal and valid when made; that the statute of 1907, under which Williams sought relief, became effective only after the marriage, and that any statutte which might attempt to permit the marriage to be annulled is unconstitutional. In his opinion sustaining this demurrer, Vice Chancellor Stevens says:

"At the time the marriage in question was contracted it was perfectly lawful. The union created by it was indissoluble, unless one of the spouses should commit certain specified offenses or crimes that would give to the other the right to terminate it. It is now sought to annul it without fault on part of the defendant, at the mere will or caprice of the petitioner. The court is slow to give to a statute a retrospective effect unless its language plainly demands it. I can find nothing in the act under consideration that is not entirely consistent with the idea that the statute is prospective only. The words plainly refer to past time anterior to the bringing of the suit, not to past time anterior to the passage of the act."

After quoting from an opinion of the Court of Errors holding that legislation to be retroactive must be so expressed in unequivocal terms, Vice Chancellor Stevens concludes as follows:

"If hereafter any person be so ill advised as to enter into a marriage with an infant under the prescribed age, he or she will do it with the knowledge that the relationship can be terminated at the mere will of the infant. I am unable, in the light of the above canon of construction, to find anything in the act which would countenance the idea that it was the intention of the Legislature to allow persons to affirm or annul at their pleasure unions entered into before the cast was passed and at a time when, by law, they were understood to be indestructible. The demurrer should be allowed."

JUSTICE'S STRENUOUS NIGHT.

Marries Two Couples Between Midnight and Dawn.

Justice of the Peace William Purcell was routed from his bed twice yesterday morning at his home on Tenth street, Jersey City, to marry two couples who said they wanted to be married before daylight. The first couple called shortly after 2 a. m. They said they were William K. Bauman and Jessie May Maxwell, of the Hotel Washington, Jersey City.

After making them one the justice went to bed, but was routed out an hour later by Frederick Orton and Marie Ennick, of Carlstadt, who said they had been out visiting friends and decided to get married before daylight.

Train Victim Identified.

The body of the man who was killed by a Central Railroad train on the drawbridge between Bayonne and Elizabethport Wednesday night, was identified yesterday as that of Owen Kelly, a ship caulker, of 15 Montgomery street, Jersey City. He had been to Elizabeth looking for work, and when two trains came along in opposite directions he became confused and stepped in front of the one which killed him.

Anti-Saloon Fight in Boonton.

The present agitation against repealing the ordinance which allows one saloon for every 500 inhabitants and making a flat number of nine instead of eight, as at present, is at fever heat among the church people at Boonton. The women have taken the matter up with some of the committeemen. Sunday evening there will be a union meeting in the M. E. church to frame a petition to the Common Council against repealing the ordinance.

MR. BRYAN'S SPEECHES ARE TO BE SPECIALIZED

Mr. Bryan is to display his adroitness as a politician in the character of the speeches he purposes to make during the campaign, according to a dispatch from Lincoln, Neb. Instead of discussing issues general to the country, he intends to make each one fit the particular issue that is strongest in the particular section where the speech is made. This is illustrated by the two speeches he has announced that he will make in Kansas and Wisconsin. At Topeka he proposes to discuss his plan of compulsory co-operation of banks in the guaranteeing of deposits. Of this speech he said yesterday:

"Kansas is the next State to Oklahoma, which has such a law, and the Republican Governor of Kansas called the Legislature in session to consider the passage of a similar statute. I do not think there is any place where the discussion of the subject would be more fitting than in the capital of Kansas."

Kansas did have a big row last winter over bank guarantee, those bankers on the Oklahoma border having been especially insistent because a large part of their deposits were crossing over into the Oklahoma banks. The Legislature failed to get together on a satisfactory law, but it is a very live issue there and in Nebraska.

Regarding the address he will make before the farmers' meeting at Madison, Wis., on tariff revision, Mr. Bryan said that the farmers, he had found, were always greatly interested in public questions, and especially in the tariff, which he thought concerns them directly.

Mr. Bryan received a letter yesterday from a friend traveling in Europe, who tells him that photis of him are being sold there, having appended this printed explanation: "Mr. Bryan has been nominated a third time for the Presidency. Mr. Tammany Hall has declared himself in his favor."

Mr. Bryan will shortly receive from the Minnesota Agricultural Society the gift of a mule, which is represented in a letter received yesterday as being "highly educated and tendered only on condition that it be used as a mascot for the Democratic campaign." But the stipulation is made that it shall not be called Maud, which would confuse it with the Indepedence League product.

WIFE-DESERTER CAUGHT.

Jumped His Bail More Than a Year Ago in Elizabeth.

James H. Powderly, in the Common Pleas at Elizabeth, pleaded guilty yesterday to deserting his wife and four children, and will be sentenced Saturday. He was arrested over a year ago, but fled to New York, forfeiting his bail.

His bondsmen since have been compelled to support his family. They finally managed to locate the fugitive in New York city, where, it is said, he was living with another woman. He was captured there by a detective in the employ of the prosecutor and brought to the Union County Jail on a requisition.

Boy Crushed on Canalboat Incline.

Bernard Rudden, fourteen years old, of No. 43 Wilsey street, was crushed to death in Newark yesterday while r iding on a cradle that carries the Morris Canal boats over the High street hill. As the cradle reached the top of the incline the boy tried to jump off, but fell between the wheels. He was terribly crushed and died before he arrived at the City Hospital.

D., L. & W. STRIKE IS VERY IMMINENT

Scranton, Pa., July 31.—Eighty per cent. of the switchmen employed on the Lackawanna Railroad from New York to Buffalo have voted in favor of a strike, and with this announcement today Grand Master Hawley will have an interview with President Truesdale, and, that failing to come to an amicable agreement with the head of the road, a strike will most certainly be declared.

There is no other way out of the difficulty, as the union officials cannot very well back down in the face of the overwhelming desire of the union members.

Desiring to be prepared in any emergency, the railroad officials have entered into a contract with strike-breakers, who will be ready to fill the strikers' places at a moment's notice. It was learned today that John J. Morey, chief of the Eastern association of the five brotherhoods and president of the Pennsylvania State United Railway Men's organization, left New York for this city for a conference with Grand Master Hawley.

This will probably mean an extension of sympathy from all of the switchmen employed on the other roads, should the Lackawanna switchmen strike. The firemen and engineers of the Lackawanna also have grievances to adjust, and they have seized this opportunity to worry the railroad. There will be a joint meeting of the firemen, engineers and switchmen employed on the road on Monday, at which time, if the switchmen strike, the other employes will consider it seriously, in order to get their demands. The situation today is by far the most critical of any since the ruction occurred, and an official order to strike is momentarily awaited.

Grand Master Hawley today said that it was up to President Truesdale now, as he is the only man who can avert a strike. President Truesdale has approved of the course of his general superintendent, Clarke.

JERSEY CITY IS IN A BAD WAY

Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, in discussing the city's financial problem today, said:

"In view of the great reduction in ratables made by the State Board of Assessors, the State Board of Taxation and the County Board of Taxation, I can estimate that about $60,000,000 of ratables will be lopped off of last year's total. If we can keep the local appropriations for the maintenance of the city government down to the same amounts as were appropriated last year and we have to face a loss of $60,000,00 in ratables, then the tax rate will have to go up. Last year's tax rate was $16.18 a thousand of ratables. This year it will be at least $18.50, without a dollar having been added to the city's total appropriations.

"That condition is caused by the loss in ratables. The last administration's Tax Board valued second-class railroad property at $76,000,000, and the State Board of Assessors, which now has the assessing power, has already tentatively reduced that total to $40,000,000, and I have heard that a second cut has been considered to $36,000,000. The State Board of Taxation lopped off $7,000,000 in ratables by its reductions on other property in Jersey City, and the county board also did a lot of reducing, so that an estimate of a $60,000,000 loss in ratables cannot be far out of the way."

The Mayor declared that he was opposed to any improvement of the Newark Plank road that would saddle the entire cost on the counties of Hudson and Essex. He asserted that the Public Service Corporation should be compelled to pay at least one-quarter of the cost of any improvement of that road. The Court of Chancery fixed the proportion in the Plank road case some years ago.

Track Walker in Hudson Tunnel Grasps Live Wire.

Pietro Masterio, a track walker in the Hudson Tunnel, nearly electrocuted himself when he investigated a dangling cable last night. Masterio, whose business it is to keep the tracks clear and see that everything is in proper order, was nearing the Hoboken terminus when he saw the end of a cable protruding from a crevice in the wall. Knowing it was out of place he caught hold of it and was severely shocked. His cries brought assistance, as he was near the station.

The power was turned off and a doctor summoned. After two hours' work the man regained consciousness and was removed to his home, 35 Morton street, New York. He suffered from badly burned hands and hemorrhage of the eyes. It was found that 11,000 volts passed through his body, and why he was not killed is a miracle.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

BOYNTON

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Built at a cost of about $85,000, Camden's new roller lift bridge across Cooper's Creek at Federal street was opened to the public yesterday.

Eight-year-old Franklin Davis, son of William F. Davis, of Glassboro, broke a leg by jumping off an ice wagon on which he had been taking a ride.

A carrier pigeon with a silver band on its leg, with initials B. Y. and numbered 20,965, came to the home of Robert Page, Woodbury, in a starving condition.

Le Roy Love, aged nineteen, of Vineland, while doing a high jump yesterday, fell and broke an arm. Within a year Love has broken the same arm three times.

Using a fence to walk upon instead of the sidewalk, Orland, eight-year-old son of C. C. Avis, of Woodstown, fell and splintered a bone in one leg and badly sprained the ankle of the other.

Police crusades against Sunday poolrooms and other amusements which annoy resort visitors resulted in the fining yesterday of Samuel Berg, owner of a boardwalk poolroom at Atlantic City, $200.

While driving yesterday with her four-year-old son, Mrs. Edward Ferron, of North Merchantville, was thrown from her carriage and received severe internal injuries. Her son was cut on the face and legs.

Naughty postcards at Atlantic City were made the objects of official censure yesterday, when two vendors of flashy bits of pasteboard were arraigned in the police court and held under $500 for appearance before the grand jury.

Joseph Farrell, of Grand street, Paterson, the young man who was shot in Brophy's woods last Monday afternoon, while picking berries, went to St. Joseph's Hospital. The bullet is still in his leg and he suffered considerable pain from the wound.

Born to a Jersey cow on the farm of John H. Sked, near Pennington, about two weeks ago, a calf without the slightest vestige of either eyes or tail is growing finely, and the owner expects to exhibit it at the Interstate Fair in September.

Lakewood residents have been pretty well frightened the past fortnight over an outbreak of what State Medical Inspector Brown pronounces scarlet fever. It is said that up to last week some fifty cases had been found, principally among children, but not a death has occurred.

Mrs. Elmer Turner, of Glassboro, spent many warm days this summer canning berries and fruits and making jellies until she had enough to last her all next winter. Yesterday the shelf on which she stored the goods fell, and the hundreds of cups and jars lay in a broken heap on the cellar floor.

Trolley cars decorated with tall green stalks of corn brought hundreds of persons to National Park yesterday, to attend the second annual field day and picnic of the Grangers of Gloucester county, who brought the prize products of their farms to exhibit in the campmeeting auditorium.

Sentenced to five years for breaking into and entering the store of Baptist Scull, in Camden, William Doughton was taken to the State prison yesterday by Sheriff Somers. James Rogers, who was sentenced to nine months on a charge of the larceny of a watch, also was taken to Trenton.

Joseph Mitchell, thirteen months old, who was run down by a horse in May street, Paterson, last Tuesday afternoon, died at the home of his parents, 240 Sixth avenue, that city, yesterday. At the time of the accident the parents refused to allow the removal of the child to the General Hospital, believing the injuries to be trivial.

NEWARK YOUNG WOMAN TRIED SELF-DESTRUCTION.

Evelyn Ahr, whose parents live at 534 South Twelfth street, Newark, was brought to the General Hospital at Elizabeth at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning from Roselle Borough.

She had taken a dose of carbolic acid with suicidial intent. She was in the employ of a family there as a servant. Yesterday morning her employer found her lying in agony on the kitchen floor.

A telephone message was sent to the Elizabeth hospital for an ambulance. The patient was in a serious condition when she reached the institution. It took a couple of hours' hard work before she had even a fighting chance for life.

Miss Ahr was born in Germany. A love affair is thought to be the cause of her attempt at suicide. No questions have been asked by the authorities on account of her condition.

Union Democrats Astir.

The Union County Democratic executive committee will hold a meeting at the Democratic Club, Elizabeth, next Tuesday night to make arrangements for the active opening of the campaign in the county. The Elizabeth Democratic committee will meet tonight to make plans for the fight in that city and also to hear final reports from the committee having charge of the annual outing of the city and county Democracy next month.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

The Rock Island Express

The through express on the Rock Island road left Chicago at 10:45 p. m. on March 12, 1886, with $22,000 in $50 and $100 bills in the keeping of Kellogg Nichols, an old-time messenger of the United States Express company. This sum had been sent by a Chicago bank to be delivered at the principal bank in Davenport, Ia. In addition to the usual passenger coaches, the train drew two express cars—the first, for express only, just behind the engine; and, following this, one for express and baggage. These cars had end doors, which offer the best opportunity to train robbers. Messenger Nichols was in the first car, and was duly at his work when the train stopped at Joliet, a town about 40 miles west of Chicago. But at the next stop, which was made at Morris, Harry Schwartz, a brakeman, came running from Nichols' car, crying: "The messenger is dead."

The messenger's lifeless body was found lying on the floor of the car. The head had been crushed by some heavy weapon, and there was a pistol-wound in the right shoulder. Apparently he had been overcome only after a hard fight. His face was set with fierce determination. His fists were clenched, and the hands and fingers cut and scratched in a curious way, while under the nails were found what proved to be bits of human flesh. The pistol-wound was from a weapon of 32-caliber; but it was not the cause of the man's death. This, unmistakably, was the blow, or blows, on the head, probably after the shot was fired. All who knew Messenger Nichols were surprised at the desperate resistance he seemed to have made, for he was a small, light man, not more than five feet five in height, nor weighing over 130 pounds, and of no great credit among his fellows for pluck and courage.

The express car was immediately detached from the train, and left at Morris, guarded by all the train crew except Schwartz, who was sent on with the train to Davenport. After the first cursory inspection no one was allowed to enter the car where Nichols lay; and nothing was known precisely as to the extent of the robbery. The safe door had been found open and the floor of the car littered with the contents of the safe.

An urgent telegram was at once sent to Chicago, and a force of detectives arrived at Morris on a special train a few hours later. Search parties were at once sent out in all directions along the country roads and up and down the tracks. Hundreds of people joined in the search, for the news of the murder spread rapidly through the whole region, and not a square yard of territory for miles between Morris and Minooka station was left unexplored. It happened that the ground was covered with snow, but the keenest scrutiny failed to reveal any significant footprints, and the search parties returned after many hours, having made only a single discovery. This was a mask found in a cattle-guard near Minooka—a mask made of black cloth, with white strings fastened at either side, one of which had been torn out of the cloth as if in a struggle.

Meantime Mr. Pinkerton himself entered the car and made a careful investigation. His first discovery was a heavy poker, bearing stains of blood and bits of matted hair. It was hanging in its usual place, behind the stove. The significance of this last fact was great, in Mr. Pinkerton's opinion; from it he concluded that the crime had been committed by a railroad man, his reasoning being that the poker could have been restored to its usual place after such a use only mechanically and from force of habit and that an assailant who was not a railroad man would have left it on the floor or thrown it away.

Coming to the safe, Mr. Pinkerton found that the $22,000 were missing, and that other papers had been hastily searched over, but left behind as valueless.

Among these was a bundle of canceled drafts that had been roughly torn open and then thrown aside. Mr. Pinkerton scarcely noticed at the moment, but had occasion to remember subsequently, that a small piece of one of these drafts was missing, as if a corner had been torn off.

All the train hands were immediately questioned, but none of their stories was in any way significant, except that of Newton Watt, the man in charge of the second car. He said that while busy counting over his waybills and receipts he had been startled by the crash of broken glass in the ventilator overhead, and that at the same moment a heavily built man, wearing a black mask, had entered the car and said: "If you move, the man up there will bore you." Looking up, Watt said further, he saw a hand thrust through the broken glass and holding a revolver. Thus intimidated, he made no attempt to give an alarm, and the masked man presently left him under guard of the pistol overhead, which covered him until shortly before the train reached Morris, when it was withdrawn. He was able to locate the place where the crime must have been committed, as he remembered that the engine was whistling for Minooka when the stranger entered the car. This left about 30 minutes for the murder, robbery and escape.

Returning to Chicago, Mr. Pinkerton investigated the character of the man Watt, and found that he had a clean record, was regarded as a trusty and efficient man, and had three brothers who had been railroad men for years and had always given perfect satisfaction. Watt's good reputation and straightforward manner were strong points in his favor, and yet there was something questionable in his story of the mysterious hand. For one thing, no footprints were found in the snow on the top of the car.

Brakeman Schwartz, the only man on the train who had not yet been questioned, "deadheaded" his way, in railway parlance, back from Davenport the following night on Conductor Danforth's train, and reported to Mr. Pinkerton the next morning. He was a tall, fine-looking young fellow, about 27, with thin lips and a face that showed determination. He was rather dapper in dress, and kept on his gloves during the conversation. Mr. Pinkerton received him pleasantly, and, after they had been smoking and chatting for an hour or so, he suggested to Schwartz that he would be more comfortable with his gloves off. Schwartz accordingly removed them, and revealed red marks on the backs of his hands, such as might have been made by finger-nails digging into them.

"How did you hurt your hands, Schwartz?" asked Mr. Pinkerton.

"Oh, I did that handling baggage night before last," explained Schwartz; and then he related incidentally that as he was on his way back to Chicago the conductor of the train, Conductor Danforth, had discovered a valise left by somebody in one of the toilet rooms. Later in the day Mr. Pinkerton summoned the conductor, who said that the valise was an old one, of no value; and, having no contents, he had thrown it out on an ash pile. The only thing he had found in the valise was a piece of paper that attracted his attention because it was marked with red lines.

Examining this piece of paper carefully, Mr. Pinkerton saw that it had been torn from a money draft, and at once thought of the package in the express messenger's safe. Now it is a remarkable fact that no human power can tear two pieces of paper in exactly the same way; the ragged fibers will only fit perfectly when the two original parts are brought together. There remained no doubt, when this test was made in the present case, that the piece of paper found on Conductor Danforth's east-bound train had been torn from the draft in the express car robbed the night before on the west-bound train. The edges fitted, the red lines corresponded, and unquestionably some one had carried that piece of paper from the one train to the other. In other words, some one connected with the crime of the previous night had ridden back to Chicago 24 hours later with Conductor Danforth.

Mr. Pinkerton at once ordered a search made for the missing valise, and also an inquiry regarding the passengers who had ridden on Conductor Danforth's train between Davenport and Chicago on the night following the murder. The valise was found on the ash-heap where the conductor had thrown it, and in the course of the next few days the detectives had located or accounted for all passengers on Conductor Danforth's train, with the exception of one man who had ridden on a free pass. The conductor could only recall this man's features vaguely; and, while some of the passengers remembered him well enough, there was no clew to his name or identity. As it appeared that no other of the passengers could have been connected with the crime, efforts were redoubled to discover the holder of this pass.

So great was the public interest in the crime and the mystery surrounding it that three separate, well-organized investigations of it were undertaken. The Rock Island railroad officials, with their detectives, conducted one; a Chicago newspaper, with its detectives, another; and the Pinkertons, in the interest of the United States Express company, a third.

Mr. Pinkerton, as we have seen, concluded that the crime had been committed by railway men. The railway officials were naturally disinclined to believe ill of their employes, and an incident occurred about this time which turned the investigation in an entirely new direction and made them the more disposed to discredit Mr. Pinkerton's theory. This was the receipt of a letter from a convict in the Michigan City penitentiary, named Plunkett, who wrote the Rock Island railroad officials, saying that he could furnish them with important information.

Mr. St. John, the general manager of the road, went in person to the penitentiary to take Plunkett's statement, which was in effect that he knew the men who had committed the robbery and killed Nichols, and was willing to sell this information in exchange for a full pardon, which the railroad people could secure by using their influence. This they promised to do if his story proved true, and Plunkett then told them of a plot that had been worked out a year or so before, when he had been "grafting" with a "mob" of pickpockets at county fairs. There were with him at that time "Butch" McCoy, James Connors (known as "Yellowhammer"), and a man named "Jeff," whose surname he did not know. These three men, Plunkett said, had planned an express robbery on the Rock Island road, to be executed in precisely the same way, and at precisely the same point on the road, as in the case in question.

The story was plausible, and won Mr. St. John's belief. It won the belief, also, of Mr. Melville E. Stone, publisher of the Chicago newspaper; and forthwith the railway detectives, working with the newspaper detectives, were instructed to go ahead on new lines, regardless of trouble or expense. Their first endeavor was to capture "Butch" McCoy, the leader of the gang. "Butch" was a pickpocket, burglar and all-around thief, whose operations kept him traveling all over the United States.

The police in various cities having been communicated with to no purpose, Mr. Stone finally decided to do a thing the like of which no newspaper proprietor perhaps ever undertook before—that is, start on a personal search for McCoy and his associates. With Frank Murray, one of the best detectives in Chicago, and other detectives, he went to Galesburg, where the gang was said to have a sort of headquarters. The party found there none of the men they were after, but they learned that "Thatch" Grady, a notorious criminal with whom "Butch" McCoy was known to be in relations, was in Omaha. So they hurried to Omaha, but only to find that Grady had gone to St. Louis. Then to St. Louis went Mr. Stone and his detectives, hot on the scent, and spent several days in that city searching high and low.

The method of locating a criminal in a great city is as interesting as it is little understood. The first step is to secure from the local police information as to the favorite haunts of criminals of the class under pursuit, paying special regard in the preliminary inquiries to the possibility of love affairs; for thieves, even more than honest men, are swayed in their lives by the tender passion, and are often brought to justice through the agency of women. With so much of such information in their possession as they could gather, Mr. Stone and his detectives spent their time in likely resorts, picking up acquaintance with frequenters, and, whenever possible, turning the talk adroitly upon the man they were looking for. It is a mistake to suppose that in work like this detectives disguise themselves. False beards and mustaches, goggles and lightning changes of clothing are never heard of except in the pages of badly informed story-writers. In his experience of over 25 years Mr. Murray never wore such a disguise, nor knew of any reputable detective who did. In this expedition the detectives simply assumed the charactera and general style of the persons they were thrown with, passing for men of sporting tastes from the east; and, having satisfied the people they met that they meant no harm, they had no difficulty in obtaining such news of McCoy and the others as there was. Unfortunately, this was not much.

After going from one city to another on various clews, hearing of one member of the gang here and another there, and in each instance losing their man, the detectives finally brought up in New Orleans. They had spent five or six weeks of time and a large amount of money, only to find themselves absolutely without a clew as to the whereabouts of the men they were pursuing. They were much discouraged when a telegram from Mr. Pinkerton told them that "Butch" McCoy was back in Galesburg, where they had first sought him. Proceeding thither with all dispatch, they traced McCoy into a saloon, and there three of them—John Smith, representing the Rock Island railroad; John McGinn, for the Pinkerton agency, and Frank Murray, working for Mr. Stone—with drawn revolvers, captured him, in spite of a desperate dash he made to escape.

McCoy's capture was the occasion of much felicitation among the people interested in the matter. Mr. St. John and Mr. Stone were confident that now the whole mystery of the express robbery would be solved and the murderer convicted. But McCoy showed on trial that he had left New Orleans to come north only the night before the murder and had spent the whole of that night on the Illinois Central railroad. It also appeared that McCoy's associate, Connors, was in jail at the time of the robbery, and that the man "Jeff" was dead. Thus the whole Plunkett story was exploded.

Some time before this the man who had ridden on the free pass, and given the detectives so much trouble, had been accidentally found by Jack Mullins, a brakeman on Conductor Danforth's train. He proved to be an advertising solicitor, employed by no other than Mr. Melville E. Stone, who would have given a thousand dollars to know what his agent knew; for the advertising man had seen the conductor bring out the valise containing the all-important fragment of the draft. But he had not realized the value of the news in his possession, and Mr. Pinkerton took good care to keep him from that knowledge. One hint of the truth to the newspaper people, and the whole story would have been blazoned forth in its columns, and the murderer would have taken warning. Not until he had seen the man safely on a train out from Chicago did Mr. Pinkerton breathe easily; and it was not until months later that Mr. Stone learned how near he came to getting a splendid "scoop" on the whole city and country.

The identification of the pass-holder removed the last possibility that the valise had been taken into the train by any of Conductor Danforth's passengers. And yet the valise was there! How came it there? In the course of their examination two of the passengers had testified to having seen Schwartz enter the toilet-room during the run. Brakeman Jack Mullins stated that he had been in the same room twice that night, that the second time he had noticed the valise, but that it was not there when he went in first. Other witnesses in the car were positive that the person who entered the room last before the time when Mullins saw the valise was Schwartz. Thus the chain of proof was tightening, and Mr. Pinkerton sent for Schwartz.

After talking with the brakeman in a semi-confidential way for some time, the detective began to question him about Watt, his fellow-trainman. Schwartz said he was a good fellow, and, in general, spoke highly of him. Mr. Pinkerton seemed to hesitate a little, and then said:

"Can I trust you, Schwartz?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, the fact is, I am a little suspicious of Watt. You see, his story about that hand overhead does not exactly hang together. I don't want to do him any wrong, but he must be looked after. Now, my idea is to have you go about with him as much as you can, see if he meets any strangers or spends much money, and let me know whatever happens. Will you do it?"

Schwartz readily consented, on the assurance that the railroad people would give him leave of absence. The next day he reported that Watt had met a man who wore a slouch hat, had unkempt red hair, and in general looked like a border ruffian. He had overheard the two talking together in a saloon on Cottage Grove avenue, where the stranger had discussed the murder of Nichols in great detail, showing a remarkable familiarity with the whole affair. Schwartz had a sort of Jesse James theory (which he seemed anxious to have accepted) that the crime had been committed by a gang of western desperadoes and that this fellow was connected with them.

Mr. Pinkerton listened with interest to all this, but was less edified than Schwartz imagined, since two of his most trusted "shadows," who had been following Schwartz, had given him reports of the latter's movements, making it plain that the red-haired desperado was a myth, and that no such meeting as Schwartz described had taken place. Nevertheless, professing to be well pleased with Schwartz' efforts, Mr. Pinkerton sent him out to track the fabulous desperado. Schwartz continued to render false reports. Finally, without a word to arouse his suspicion, he was allowed to resume his work on the railroad.

The "shadows" put upon Schwartz after this reported a suspicious intimacy between him and Watt, and a detective of great tact, Frank Jones, was detailed to get into their confidence, if possible. He was given a "run" as brakeman between Des Moines and Davenport, and it was arranged that he should come in from the west and lay over at Davenport on the same days when Schwartz and Watt laid over there, coming in from the east. Jones played his part cleverly, and was soon on intimate terms with Schwartz and Watt, taking his meals at their boarding house and sleeping in a room adjoining theirs. They finally came to like him so well that they suggested his trying to get a transfer to their "run," between Davenport and Chicago. This was successfully arranged, and then the three men were together constantly, Jones even going to board at Schwartz' house in Chicago. About this time Schwartz began to talk of giving up railroad work and going to live in Kansas or the far west. It was arranged that Jones should join him and Mrs. Schwartz on a western trip. Meantime Schwartz applied to the company for leave of absence, on the plea that he wished to arrange some family matters in Philadelphia.

ULTIMATUM TO 'PHONE CO.

High Bridge May Revoke Franchise of Lebanon Corporation—Want Railroad Extension.

High Bridge, July 31.—Mayor J. Henry Rose notified the Board of Trade last night that the Lebanon Telephone Company must give better service or lose its franchise.

The company operates two lines from the central station at Lebanon to this place on which there are between thirty and forty subscribers. At a recent meeting of Common Council the clerk was authorized to notify the company of the proposed action. The Board of Trade also has the matter under consideration. At its meeting last night, Manager E. W. Sutton, of Lebanon, appeared and discussed the matter. Unless the service is made satisfactory the Board of Trade proposes to purchase telephone instruments and switchboard and arrange with the American Telegraph Company for long distance connections at Washington, Warren county.

At the meeting several active and associate members were added to the membership and a committee was appointed to confer with the Lehigh Valley Railroad officials, interesting them in extending the Clinton Branch Railroad to High Bridge, a distance of less than three miles.

Baseball and General Sports

A WIN FOR THE Y.M.C.A. WILL MEAN FIRST PLACE

If it's good weather tomorrow, there ought to be plenty of excitement for the baseball fans in this city, for several good games are scheduled, chief among which is the Y. M. C. A.-Newark contest in the association State League, which will be played at Crescent Oval in the afternoon. This game will be the last meeting of the two teams in the league this season and its outcome will probably decide the struggle for first place and the State championship. If Umpire Patten's decision at Orange last Saturday is supported by the members of the league committee at their meeting next week, Plainfield and Newark each have six wins and two defeats when they meet tomorrow. Patten declared the Newark-Orange game forfeited to Orange, when he found that some of the Newark players had left the field without waiting to see if it would clear up after he called time.

George Dupee, who made such a good showing in the centre of the diamond at Summit last week, is to be in charge of the curve department for the Newark game tomorrow, and the local boys will have their strongest lineup on the field. Manager G L. Listman, who is away on his vacation, will be home for the game. Newark defeated Plainfield when the teams met at Newark June 6, but the local players are now playing much better ball and hope to nose out the visitors and land in first place, not counting the Orange game either way. If Plainfield wins tomorrow, the local nine will have a percentage of .778 to Newark's .750.

BLACKVILLE BALL TEAM WALLOPS THE VETERANS

The Blackville and Nelson Vet baseball teams played their postponed game on Hope Common, yesterday afternoon, and incidentally furnished several hours fun for a big crowd of spectators. The Blackvills won out by a score of 15 to 9, but the pile-up of runs was due to their being posted on the National sport as it is played today. "Gamey" Nelson and his associates played according to Spalding's manual of 1887 and the younger fellows all know there have been lots of changes since then.

There were any number of individual plays worthy of being features but the best thing in the contest was "Jim" Babbitt running bases. The old gentleman got to first on a line drive and then made his way around to third on another man's hit. It took him ten seconds each time to get started but when he did the players on the other side stood as much chance of stopping him as they had holding up a pile driver. They all had respect for "Jim's" tremendous girth and stepped to one side in preference of getting smashed flatter than a pancake. He reached home while the captains and the batteries were holding a conference.

Walter Brown pitched for the Vets and was caught by "Gamey" for four innings after which Fred Wood went behind the bat. The Blackville had Charlie Mason and Oscar Nelson for their battery. The remainder of the two lineups was as follows: Vets—Babbitt, 2b; Randolph, lf; Brown, ss; Mitchell, 1b; Wood, 3b; Perkins, rf; Cuff, cf. Blackvills—Taylor, lf; Warrick, ss; Hatchett, 1b; Johnson, 3b; Thornton, rf; Howard, cf.

Peter Sims and Willie Mullen officiated as umpires and Clarence Pope kept score the best he could under the circumstances. Yesterday's game was for $25 a side and the Vets are out with a second challenge for a $50 stake.

Clinton Avenues vs. High Bridge.

The Clinton Avenue baseball nine will play at High Bridge tomorrow, and the players will leave town for the game on the 2 o'clock train. It is reported that a good-sized delegation of local fans will accompany the team.

COLBY ASKS COLGATE TO RUN.

Colonel Seeks Harmony In Essex and Does Not Want Shrievalty.

Senator Everett Colby and Assemblyman W. Fellowes Morgan, spent an hour with Colonel Austen Colgate at Sea Girt yesterday, urging him to become the New Idea candidate for Sheriff. The colonel, however, would make no promises, as he dislikes very much to be drawn into a contest for an office that he does not seek.

Colonel Colgate is an outspoken advocate of armory in Sussex, so that Mr. Taft, who is a fellow alumnus of Yale, will receive a good big majority.

Home from Mt. Clemens.

J. Alexander Wilson, of Grove street, returned last night after a three weeks' stay at Mount Clemens, Mich., undergoing treatment for rheumatism. He derived considerable benefit.

PERSONAL.

Miss Mary Jane Brown, of West Front street, intends spending her vacation in Asbury Park.

Mrs. W. W. St. John, of Trenton, formerly of this city, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Mrs. P. H. Bennett and children, Louis and Mary, of Duer street, are sojourning at Asbury Park.

William Hoffman, of West Front street, has returned home from Camp There-He-Goes, Lake Hopatcong.

Frank McIntyre, of North avenue, has returned from Atlantic City, where he has been for the past three months.

Bert Simpson, of Craig place, left yesterday for South Branch, where he will spend the month of August at "Pine Bluff."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foster, of the New Madison, are the parents of a young son who came to their home a few days ago.

Dr. R. W. Emerson, of Park avenue, left today for Middleville, Sussex county, where he will remain until September 7.

Elmer D. Cutting, of West Second street, and William Bechtle, of Carlton avenue, are guests at Ram's Horn Camp, Lake Hopatcong.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mansfield, of West Front street, have returned from Providence, R. I., where they have been visiting for the past two weeks.

Corra Adams, of Grove street who went with the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school excursion yesterday, will remain at the shore for a few days.

Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, was in town yesterday en route for Charleston, West Virginia, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Caperton.

Miss Ida Yerkes and Miss Bessie Flanders, of Grove street, left today for Cascade in the Adirondacks, where they will join some other members of their family.

Mrs. Theodore Mantz, of Central avenue, and Miss Marguerite Yeager, of Webster place, will leave tomorrow for Thousand Islands, where they will spend the entire month of August.

Among the automobilists registered on Wednesday at the Equinox House, Manchester, Vt., were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Alpaugh and family, of East Sixth street, who are taking the Ideal Tour to Maine.

OUT FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Ex-Assemblyman Russell of New Jersey to Run on That Plank.

Ex-Assemblyman Russell Everett, of Essex county, threw a bombshell into the political arena Wednesday night when he announced his candidacy for the Assembly this fall on the declaration that New Jersey citizens demanded local option, which the bosses and the saloon men had been denying to them.

The declaration is surprising because all of the candidates of both partis have been shy of the liquor question, the Republicans eying the Bishop s'law askance and the Democrats boldly declaring that the people of Essex wanted a wide-open Sunday. In his statement Mr. Russell says:

"Representatives in the Legislature have been permitted to deny to the people, who lected them, the right to vote directly upon the purely local question of whether or not liquor should be sold and the distinctively American principle of majority rule has been put to shame.

"I believe that the people of New Jersey, even in Essex county, are restless under this intolerant and humiliating restraint of the exercise of their inherent powers, and that the question should be recognized as an issue in politics."

EBERHARD INDICTED.

Slayer of His Aunt Will Be Tried Early in September.

Hackensack, July 31.—August Eberhard, who confessed to killing his aunt, Mrs. Ottillie Eberhard, by shooting her in the back and robbing her of about $2,500, was indicted at Hackensack yesterday afternoon on a charge of murder.

Later in the afternoon Supreme Court Justice Parker held court so that Eberhard could enter his plea. He will be tried early in September.

The Pleasures of Hope.

"This poem upon 'May Day,'" said the editor, "is not at all bad—"

The attic poet flushed with delight.

"—but since we have enough material on hand to last us for the next ten years, I am obliged to decline it."

The poet still smiled hopefully.

"But, said," he said, "you will require something for the eleventh year."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Mrs. Dunwoodie Recovering.

Long Branch, July 31.—Mrs. Margaret Dunwoodie, of 166 East 106th street, New York, who was struck by an automobile in charge of A. Douglas Bedell, of Newark, recently and seriously injured, is reported to be in good condition at the Monmouth Memorial Hospital at Long Branch today.

James H. Budd Dead.

Stockton, Cal., July 31.—James H. Budd, former Governor of California, and long prominent in Democratic politics, died at his residence in this city yesterday, aged 58.

Materials for Petticoats.

Those who can afford the luxury are buying soft satins for petticoats. No lace or silk will ever be able to produce the same beauty as a satin petticoat of fine lustre, trimmed with many bands of fragile lace, the material cut from beneath the insertion. Then there is a petticoat to wear with tailored gowns that is well liked. It is more like a pongee, though in reality a weave of mixed silk and cotton, rather coarse and made with a flounce or several flounces, ruffle trimmed, though no lace is shown. The edges are often bound with ribbon binding. Many flounces are tucked on the bias, making something very pretty in plain trimming.

Still Vacant.

He was a dude of the would-be masher type and, tripping down the aisle of the parlor car, he dropped into a seat beside a pretty girl.

"Nobody—er—occuying this seat with you miss?" he queried.

With a disdainful look, she replied in a tone redolent with sarcasm: "No, sir; nobody, yet.'—Chicago News.

The Lingerie Gown Today.

The idea of reproducing in lingerie materials the same graceful, clinging lines which distinguished soft silk, satin and cloth costumes, would have been scoffed at as an impossibility a few years ago by dressmakers. Yet, as all sartorial observers realize, the advance of the lingerie gown from its humble position of indoor or country morning frock to its present important place in the fashionable feminine wardrobe has been phenomenal. Combinations of embroidery and batiste not only perfectly carry out the charmingly simple models designed especially for the "sweet girl graduate," but likewise the Grecian and Empire effects beloved by modish matrons anxious to accentuate the matured beauty of figure and bearing.
